BAPTIST PARISH RALLY

The parish rally in the Baptist church Wednesday evening proved to be a highly profitable and enjoyable occasion. A bountiful supper was served by the ladies of the church. Then followed a brief program of short and practical speeches on various phases of the church work. After this came an entertainment, consisting of music and readings.

The solos by Miss Selina Houlden, who always proves an acceptable singer, were much appreciated. The readings by Miss Vernon MacDougall of Boston were a rare treat. The last part of the evening was spent in games for old and young. Fresh with the enthusiasm of this rally, the Baptist people face the work of the coming year in a spirit of optimism.

The Church and Sunday School Rally Day, will be October 30th, when our District Superintendent, Dr. J. E. Coons, will be preacher of the morning, and will later address the school.

The Moncton Transcript, N. B., in speaking of "Evangelist Felix", who is to assist in a series of special services at the Methodist Church, beginning October 2nd, said—"Large congregations heard Evangelist Felix in the First Baptist Church on Sunday, services being held in the morning, afternoon, and evening.

At a mass meeting held in the afternoon the crowds were large, the subject being "The Sifter and Fan", the address being one of deep interest. In the evening it was necessary to throw open the school room doors to accomodate the large crowd. It is estimated that about 2000 people were present. Evangelist Felix gave a stirring address, his subject being "The Way Home." The address was delivered with much force and earnestness, and made a deep impression on the large audience. The address being brilliantly and effectively illustrated. Many incidents were drawn from his own experiences. Great interest has been aroused in the story of the Evangelists' life. It is expected that the large auditorium of the church will be filled to overflowing to-night, when the subject will be "The wonderful story of the Life of the Evangelist Felix."

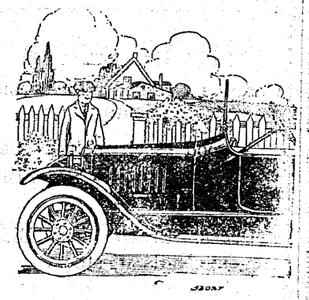
LODGES JOIN IN BOWLING LEAGUE

A meeting of the Inter-lodge Bowling League was held at the Victor Alleys last Saturday Evening with representation from six lodges and it was decided to form a league of six or eight teams. As some of the lodges had not had a meeting since being notified, it was decided to meet again on Saturday Evening, October 1st when other lodges will be ready to report.



A meeting of the Inter-factory Bowling League was held, at the same place, last Tuesday Evening and it was decided to form a twelve team league. The Captains will meet next Tuesday Evening at 8 P. M. The following factories have entered to date: N. H. Poor Leather Co., B. E. Cox Leather Co., L. B. Southwick Leather Co., Danvers Bleachery, Richard Young Co., Snyder Leather Co., Korn Leather Co., A. C. Lawrence Co., Pearce Leather Co., Green & Hayes, Morrill Leather Co.

Why Unlucky to Go Back.

How many people would be willing to acknowledge that they believe it is bad luck to return, after leaving the house, for something they have forgotten? Some popular superstitions can be explained psychologically—and this is one of them. The psychologists agree as to the bad luck part of it, but say that the bad luck consists not so much in the going back for the article as in the forgetting of it in the first place. This shows that you do not keep your mind sufficiently upon the details of what you are doing.

Rowe Motor Co.'s Salesroom Reflects Real Credit on City

Peabody will take especial pride in the Rowe Motor Co.'s model showroom which has been opened this week on Foster street as a Ford sales and service station. The concern owned by W. A. Rowe, president and general manager of the Harper Garage Co. of Beverly has one of the best equipped stations and show rooms for autos in the county and their establishment brings credit on the city.

The concern carries every Ford part in stock and its plant equipment includes all of the latest Ford machinery for repairs on Ford machines, such as burning in machinery, reboring and valve grinding. The concern announces that Ford prices for all repairs will be adhered to.

President Rowe of the local concern is one of the best known automobile agents in the state, having held the exclusive agency for this district for the Ford cars for the past 10 or 12 years. His contract with the Ford people when he was first named their agent called for 35 cars a year. Today his contract calls for 900 cars a year. He is rated as one of the 100 per cent Ford dealers and his business relations include hundreds of Peabody customers.

Karl Bisson is the resident manager of the Rowe Motor Co. He comes here from the Harper Garage Co. in Beverly. He was for three years prior to the world war with the concern and on his return from 18 months overseas duty he re-entered the employ of the concern who have advanced him to his present important position.

The new Ford salesroom and repair station is located on the site of the Murphy stable on Foster street which was bought by the E. H. Porter Co. and who have reconstructed the building into its present attractive appearance.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

One of the most important matters to come to the attention of the transportation committee of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce has come to light this week, resulting in a conference this morning between General Passenger Agent Grant of the Boston & Maine railroad and Chairman Harry F. Whidden of the transportation committee. The winter schedule of trains goes into effect Sunday, September 25, and on this new schedule it has been proposed to discontinue running trains No. 1205 and 1206 indefinitely.

Train No. 1205 is the one on which many passengers from out of town arrive in Peabody at 8.27 to commence their daily work. This train is on the South Reading branch and it is of vital importance to these people working in Peabody that this train remain on the winter schedule. Train No. 1206 leaves Peabody at 9.20 on the South Reading branch, and is patronized by many individuals for transportation as well as by business houses who ship goods to cities on the western division of the Boston & Maine, and these goods must be transferred at Wakefield.

The postoffice authorities believe this proposed change to be a detriment to the present postal service. By the elimination of Train No. 1206, Peabody would have no train to Boston on the South Reading branch between 7.45 A. M. and 5.58 P. M.

Chairman Whidden is also trying to arrange for a train leaving Peabody to connect with the train going to Boston from Salem around noon.

Many prominent firms and individuals throughout the city of Peabody have sent communications to the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce requesting the action which Mr. Whidden, as chairman, has taken this morning. It is to be hoped that the traveling public, as well as business houses of the city, will appreciate the efforts taken on their behalf, and the outcome of the conference will be made, we hope, in our next issue.

CITY COUNCIL

On the vote to permit the water service overdrafts the vote was tied five to five, Duggan voting against, together with Messrs. Barry, Jones, Brown and Hogan. Mr. Barry argued that a previous motion of his allowing the City Engineer to draw from the maintenance of water receipts enough money to pay for emergency water services covered the communication.

President Duggan during the discussion of the City Engineer's finances sang his swan song, "How I Love Emerson," by declaring he would be doing the citizens a favor if he could remove Emerson from office.

Councillor Hogan wanted to know why the City Engineer doesn't erect the drinking fountain on Tremont street and by his motion the Mayor and City Engineer are invited to appear before the Council and explain the delay.

One of the outstanding features of the Council meeting last night was the motion of Councillor Brown, which permits the street committee to make a survey of the streets and order white lines painted to help traffic. Councillor Barry called on the police to co-operate with the city government in putting a stop to reckless driving of autos through the Square and in other sections of the city. He also believed a policeman should be near every school when the children are leaving. Barry favored danger signals being posted to check fast speeding.

Councillor McKeen got in a motion to ascertain why the city had not spent the $1000 appropriated to investigate the Electric Light Department and turn back the fund for other use.

On motion of Councillor Jones, Supt. Sexton of the garage was added to the committee to purchase a new hook and ladder fire truck.

Councillor Ryan said a lot of cheap publicity was being printed about the low financial condition of Peabody and that it seemed only good business to honor the Mayor's recommendation to allow overdrafts where the emergency warranted.

Councillors Brown and Ryan were appointed a committee to interview the Salem Gas Co. with a view to getting service on Forest street.

Councillors interviewed by the Enterprise declare the first they knew that their body had instructed City Clerk Dowd to prevent the editor of this paper getting the marriage intentions records was when they read it in The News the other night following President Duggan's statement in the supreme court.

Millard R. Twiss of Carleton street was drawn for civil jury duty at Salem last night.

The Woman's Club literary class was voted the free use of the Council Chamber twice a month.

CITY HALL NOTES

City Treasurer Elmer J. Foley is back on the job, none the worse for his illness. We note he drives a Ford, but not owned by the city.

Miss Annie Driscoll, clerk of the Board of Assessors, is enjoying her annual two weeks' holiday. Miss Driscoll is rated as one of the most efficient clerks in City Hall.

Final payment on the construction on the addition to the Thomas Carroll school is being held up because of the painting job done by a sub-contractor. Building Inspector Michael H. Bresnahan, himself a painter, declares the work is not properly done and some not done at all. It is understood that Architect John Gray of Salem has 'oked' the job.

Mrs. Jessie Newhall, assistant in the city clerk's office, will resume her labors next Monday after a two weeks' vacation.

When it requires a month to repair a city automobile many citizens will say there is something wrong somewhere, somehow at the municipal garage. Why not speed up the work?

The police ambulance should hustle a policeman to every fire on bell alarm. This practice is in vogue in Lynn and many other cities. There's an excellent reason.

The City Engineer's department began the work of extending sewer service on Milk street this week. Are all of the workmen citizens?

Principal Woodman of the high school has had it brought to his attention that South Peabody boys and girls who are students at the school are making travel a hardship on the electric car that takes these students home after school. The other noon a 60 year old gray haired woman was compelled to stand from the Bleachery district to Bartholomew street before she could get a seat. Books were thrown and passengers made fun of by the students. Something should be done about it.

he did not believe them to be public records until after the issuance of the license, and further that he thought he ought to have the right to discriminate as to what information should be given out to the public as well as to the persons to whom it should be given.

Judge Hill referred to a Pennsylvania decision which was in a case of exactly the same nature as this one; where the petitioner was a newspaper publisher and the respondent a county clerk who refused to permit access to the records. In that case the court discussed the nature of marriage, the universal requirement of publicity in connection with intentions of marriage and the reasons therefor, and ordered the records opened to the newspaper.

Judge Peirce stated that the object of the five-day law was to give opportunity for publicity; that it had always been understood that public policy required publicity; and that he was very sure that the petitioner's request was reasonable and proper.

Mr. Dowd, however, had neglected to file an answer, and Judge Peirce, with the consent of counsel for the petioner, continued the case for two weeks, suggesting that the city solicitor was the proper person to represent the city clerk and advising him to obtain counsel and prepare and file an answer in proper form, so that if he desired to carry the case to the full bench, it would be in shape to go.

An interesting side light on the case was thrown by Henry F. Duggan, president of the city council, who addressed the court in behalf of Mr. Dowd, and stated that the Poors, Mr. Dowd's predecessors for 65 years, had always claimed that such records were not public and had refused to show them, and that Mr. Dowd was carrying out their policy under instructions given him by the city council.

It will be interesting to see if Mr. Dowd refers the matter to the city solicitor, in view of Judge Farnham's well known feeling that the records are public and should be shown to the Enterprise on request.

All in all, it appears to be raising a very fine legal question and one which very vitally affects the public and more particularly the newspapers of the entire state. If Mr. Dowd can refuse such information, as he desires, the question comes as to where he will draw the line, who will be the favored recipients of public items and news, and what class of news he will permit to be published. Legal opinion in this vicinity is practically unanimous that his contention is wholly wrong and that the mandamus writ will issue against him.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Legro of Lynn street are in Chicago attending the railroad employes convention.

Lowell Street

Clarence W. Barnes, formerly on the school board and one of the most efficient members ever to serve that body will be a candidate for Councillor from Ward 6 to succeed Councillor Walter H. Brown. His papers are being circulated today. He is not likely to have any opposition and his election is virtually assured. Barnes would make a valuable addition to the Council.

Lowell street residents witnessed the unusual spectacle of a trolley car being carted through the highway by a builder's dray this week Wednesday as the trolley made its way to a location in West Peabody where it will serve as a summer house. The car was sent over the rails to upper Lowell street and then moved onto the dray.

Hon. James H. Ingraham of the Governor's Council was one of the twenty contestants yesterday at Wollaston to decide the golf supremacy of Beacon Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Whidden have opened their home on Lowell street after having spent the summer at their cottage at Conomo Point, Essex.

Miss Helen Wallace, daughter of the late Rev. D. H. Wallace whose death occured a short time ago at Alton, N. H., when he was pastor of the Baptist Church has been chosen acting pastor of that church until next April. Mr. Wallace was in charge of the First Baptist Church in Peabody at the time the Society erected its parsonage on School street and was the first occupant upon its completion in the fall of 1894. Miss Helen was born here during his pastorate in Peabody.

George C. Farrington and family have returned from a summer spent at their camp at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Miss Katherine Underwood left the city yesterday for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where she will soon resume her studies at Vassar College.

A persistent rumor exists to the effect that a large local tanenry plans shortly to reduce wages and increase working hours to 50 per week.

Miss Ann D. B. Poeton, bookkeeper at the Hamblet Hardware Co., has been acting as substitute organist at the South church during the summer period.

In the interest of the wonderful work that the Mass. Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children has accomplished in the city, the organization under the leadership of Pres. Daniel C. Manning and its board of directors are to attempt a ward by ward solicitation for new members. It is felt that when the result of the efforts of the society are made known that there will be found any number of public spirited citizens who would gladly contribute $1.00 or more to become enrolled members. The Ward 6 committee which will meet shortly to complete plans consist of the following directors: Hon. William A. Shea, Hon. James F. Ingraham, Rev. Francis L. Beal, Clarence N. Barnes, Mrs. Daniel J. Donovan, Mrs. Ralph S. Kelley, Miss Annie McCarthy, Mrs. J. Ben. Palmer, Mrs. Daniel W. Poor, Mrs. Nathan H. Poor, 2nd.

A son was born early this week to Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson of Franklin street.

Miss Betty King of Forest street spent the week-end with friends at Naugus Head.

The J. B. Thomas hospital reports a crowded condition that patients are finding it almost impossible to gain admittance. It speaks highly indeed for the efficiency of the local institution.

Mildred Higgins of Franklin hill is visiting relatives in New York city.

Mrs. C. A. Macallister of Hillsboro, N. H., is spending a short vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Herman G. Barnes of King street.

Miss Margaret M. McCarthy announces that she will resume her pianoforte classes on Monday, Sept. 26, at her studio, 26 Northend street.

Charles Halpert former director of the Warren National Bank and property owner has been in the city on a business trip. He makes his home in Detroit.

PERSONAL

Little Mary Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn of Highland Park gave a party to about 15 of her little friends last Monday afternoon at the home of her grandmother Mrs. Mary J. NEW ENGLAND MILLS BUSY

Reports from the great textile cities of New England show that mill operation is 90 per cent normal. A great majority of the mills are running full time and some of them are running day and night.

"Millions Now Living Will Never Die"

In less than a year this proclamation has found its way into thirty languages and the message is being heralded to millions of people in thousands of cities in every land of the earth. "Millions now living will never die."... "Who ever heard of such a thing? "Preposterous," you will say. So said the scoffers to Noah: they had never seen rain—but the flood came on time. "Millions now living will never die," but will enjoy unending human life on the earth and ascend a highway of righteousness to full perfection of body, of mind, of character, in company with their loved ones returned from the grave. When the kingdom of God is fully established mankind will have no more fear of sickness or accident, old age or death; no more dread of loss of home or loved ones, or livelihood; no more sorrow or tears. "Millions now living will never die!" You may be one of them. Go! Hear the proof of these most marvelous tidings. Testimony upon testimony, evidence upon evidence, Biblical, historical, scientific—appealing to your reason as well as to your heart—will be presented without cost in the lecture by

Woman Deputy Sheriff Carries Gun Ready For Self Defense

Mrs. Greta Footman, one of the three women deputy sheriffs of the state of Ohio, will visit the Peabody district court today. She has been spending a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. Frank E. Bomer on Park street, and leaves tomorrow for home to attend the grand jury sitting. Mrs. Footman wears a gold badge denoting her high official rank, and she also carries a smart looking gun which she is capable of using.

In addition to being the only woman deputy in her county in which Akron, her home city, is the county seat, Mrs. Footman is also county probation officer for women and girl offenders. She has been engaged in welfare work among the women prisoners for the past nine years in the Ohio city and she enjoys a fine reputation for her efficiency. She is a great believer in the probation system and only suggests jail sentences as a last resort. She is proving that unfortunate women who get into the toils of the police come back to society. She made a hurried trip to Boston, restoring two young girls to their parents. The girls had been apprehended in Akron.

Mrs. Footman has a pleasing personality and is thoroughly in love with her life's work.

She and her sister, Mrs. Alice Campbell, also of Akron, who is matron of the girls' detention home, served on the first woman's jury ever to sit in Akron.

Rev. Fr. McGinn Will Address Rotary Club

Rev. Thomas P. McGinn, pastor of St. John's church, will be the speaker before the Peabody Rotary Club next Tuesday noon. The entertainment committee has secured General Francis H. Appleton for Oct. 11. President John Harris of Beverly Rotary Club will come here Oct. 18 and put on an entertainment, and Librarian John E. Keefe will be the speaker on Oct. 25. The local club is climbing into the first division for attendance.

MARION McBRIDE WEDS OCTOBER 12

Miss Marion McBride, one of Peabody's best known young women, will become the bride of Timothy J. Dorgan, leather dealer, on Columbus day, Oct. 12. The wedding will be solemnized with a nuptial mass at St. John's church at 10.30 o'clock and will be one of the largest church weddings. Mr. Dorgan is a war veteran, having enlisted in the Marine Corps. The couple are held in the highest of esteem by a wide circle of friends.

Editors Back Up Enterprise

City Clerks are generally upholding the right of the Peabody Enterprise or any other newspaper to obtain records of marriage intentions from the office of city or town clerks. City Clerk Remington of New Bedford in an interview in the New Bedford Standard of last Wednesday, declares the publication of this record has several times prevented undesirable marriages.

The Lynn Telegram and the New Bedford Standard support the Peabody Enterprise in its suit against City Clerk Dowd in editorials printed herewith. The suit was set to be heard again in the supreme court at Boston next Tuesday.

PUBLICITY FOR PUBLIC RECORDS

Action of the Peabody Enterprise in taking steps to compel the city clerk of Peabody to permit access to the marriage intention records reveals a situation that obtains in a more or less degree in public offices in many municipalities throughout the state.

There have been times when Lynn officials have exhibited a disposition to treat their records as private affairs. They have resisted efforts of the newspapers to get at facts which belong to the public. Some have open-

WHIDDEN WILL BUILD TWO BIG WAREHOUSES

One of the most important real estate transactions in Peabody is being closed today whereby Harry F. Whidden, President and General Manager of the A. H. Whidden & Sons will acquire the Davis property at 131 Lowell stret consisting of house and 30,000 square feet of land running to the Boston and Maine railroad. Mr. Whidden will erect two large storage warehouses, one for use in his firm's business of hardware and leather factory supplies and the other for a public storehouse which Peabody needs badly. A spur track will afford the warehouses a railroad siding. A concrete roadway will be laid from Lowell street to the proposed warehouses. The real estate transfer is being negotiated through the office of William F. Carlin, leading real estate dealer who recently recorded the big real estate deal whereby the Morse Blacking Co. secured 50,000 square feet of land from the Boston and Maine on Walnut street.

'All Aboard' Comedy Bound To Make Pleasing Success

The musical extravaganza "All Aboard," which will be staged at City Hall next Thursday and Friday nights, October 6 and 7, for the benefit of Leo Guild, is fast assuming shape, and Mr. Brown of the Rogers Producing company, under whose personal direction the show will be produced, says that he is very much pleased with the talent and adds that the play looks very professional even now.

Tunes that you simply cannot forget, catchy swinging airs that you want to whistle, feature the music in "All Aboard." The songs include "Antidotes," "Bashful Bumble Bee," "Sweetheart in Every Port," "My Dream Has at Last Come True," "What Will Your Answer Be" and "Overalls."

The action of the play takes place aboard the S. S. Florida at about 30 minutes before sailing time. Among the jolly crowds are two fun makers, two effervescent college chaps, Billy Brady and Johnny Thomas, both of whom are in love with Beatrice Sloane and—Billy seems to be the favorite. It develops that Billy is minus four front teeth, lost in a football scrimmage as he planted his face into an opponent's onrushing foot. Later he adds to his plight by losing his false teeth and fearing Beatrice will discover this fact, he remains perfectly mum. In desperation, he steals every set of false teeth he can find on board and a ludicrous situation follows. A sailor finds a set on deck, which is claimed by at least four passengers, so the captain decides to auction them off. Billy bids high, for it happens to be his own set, but Johnny tops him. Just as Billy is about to sink his sorrows in the briny, Johnny surrenders the teeth to their rightful owner as he has heard of Billy's sacrifice. Beatrice, too, learns the truth, asks forgiveness, accepts his proposal and Dan Cupid pilots the ship for the rest of the trip.

Dancing specialties will be one of the features of the play. There are no draggy moments in "All Aboard," which travels at the rate of a "laugh a minute" throughout the evening.

Following the show dancing will be enjoyed in the Council Chamber with music by Potter's orchestra.

Miss Frances Russell of Winona street has gone to North Dakota.

Mrs. Jane Foster is spending a week in South Peabody with her son Joseph.

Lawrence Durkee of Pine street is spending a short visit at Washington, D. C.

Mrs. W. B. Phillips and son Walter have returned from their vacation, which they spent touring New Hampshire.

Judge Hall and family from Salem, N. H., spent the wek-end with Mrs. E. M. Flint of Pine street.

Miss Grace Packard, who teaches the seventh and eighth grades at the West school, has been absent the last week on account of sickness.

Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Evans spent the week-end with Mrs. Valentine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Durkee of Goodale street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Richardson (nee Sheen) are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

Miss Crowell, who has been to India as a missionary, was at the West school the past week and told the children many interesting facts.

Miss Doherty substituted Monday at the West school for Miss Alice Griffin.

John McGoslin, from Maynard, a resident of this town fifty years ago, visited here the past week and visited many of his old friends.

Rondo Sands broke his arm Monday while playing at school.

Habib Yusufji of Ujjain, Gwalior, India, gave an interesting talk on India and his people at the morning service at the West Congregational church. In the evening he told the story of how he came to America and was converted.

He was born in Central India, five hundred miles north of Bombay, of Mohammadon parents. His father died during his fourth year of schooling. After trying several occupations he shipped as cook on an old freighter that was bound for England. From England they received orders to sail for America. After an exceptionally rough voyage they sailed into Philadelphia. Here he deserted the ship and through the kind words he received in the Young Men's Christian Association he became a follower of Christ. Today he is attending the Gordon College of Theology and Missions, Boston, after which he intends to take two years in Agricultural College in preparation to return as a missioanry to his country.

HUNDREDS WILL ATTEND RALLIES AT M. E. CHURCH

Evangelist Felix Powell, who is to assist in a series of special services at the Methodist Church, from next Sunday morning, Oct. 2, to 18, will arrive in Peabody Saturday, and will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nichols, 16 Beckett St.

He was born in Italy, being one of a large family. Being left fatherless very early in life, he suffered extreme hardships and poverty, working at times for 4 cents per day. Later in life circumstances brought him to America, where for a while he shifted from place to place, as a common laborer of foreign speech must.

At the time of his conversion he was digging ditches in a Maine city, 1894, where he came under the influence of a small Methodist Church, the result of which was that Felix became a member. The church people saw in him merit and great possibilities, and helped him attain the English language.

With their assistance he later entered Kents Hill Seminary, where he spent one year mastering his adopted language, then took up the regular four year course of the Academy, from which he graduated. He then went to Drew Theological School at Madison, New Jersey, from which he graduated after completing the three year course. He then joined the Maine Conference of the Methodist Church, and was appointed Pastor of a very difficult charge in Portland. From the very beginning his Evangelistic power was evident, and the church grew, people being added to its membership each week. Later he was sent to Berlin, New Hampshire, where he had signal success in the evangelistic work of his charge, his church soon taking rank with the best ones in the conference. It was not long until it was evident to the members of his conference that he had special gifts, and he was appointed conference evangelist, which position he has held since.

Evangelist Felix is unique in his preaching, and in the choice of his subjects. With his ready fund of humor and apparently endless stock of anecdotes, his sympathy and pathos, and slightly broken English, his oratory is appealing and effective. Each evening's address is different, and all abound with humor, satire, and at times invective, denouncing sin. All excuses are held up to ridicule, and no hiding place is left for those who will not accept the truth. However there is never the spirit of unkindness or bitterness in his talks. Even when he "jumps on you", you recognize that his purpose is for your betterment. He announces constantly that he is fighting, not creeds or individuals, but wickedness. He announces the following subjects as among those he will use during his stay in Peabody.

"A Step Farther".
"God's Wise Man".
"The Top-Noth Church".
"Love, Courtship, Marriage, and Home".
"What Peabody Needs Most".
"The Power Behind the Throne".
"The World's Greatest Conqueror".
"Man's Greatest Discovery".
"The Half Baked Man".
"The Sifter and the Fan".
"The Key to the Situation".
"The Man on the Tree".

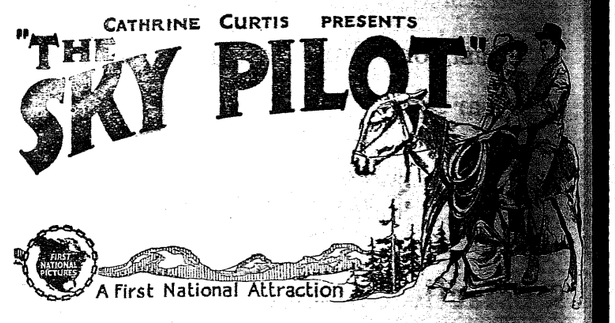
The people can not afford to miss one of these wonderful services, for to miss one, is like missing a chapter out of a splendid story. The public is invited to hear this remarkable Evangelist speak on his very unique and interesting subjects.

CENTRAL SWEETS SHOP

Peabody's new lunch and candy palace, the Central Sweet Shop, corner of Central and Walnut streets, has met with popular favor of the people, and the management of the store is making every effort to give something new and better in every way.

There has just been added the lunch department, dispensing hot coffee and chocolate, pies, cakes and sandwiches. Everything of the highest class enters into the goods dispensed, and all goods are made in the sanitary kitchens of the company. All candies sold at the store are also made in this same up-to-date candy kitchen.

FINAL GAME SUNDAY



Peabody's biggest ball game of the year is to be staged for Sunday afternoon at Emerson Park, when the Bleachery A. C. and the Father Mathews clubs will battle for the honors. Each club has a record to its credit. Ernie Gilmore is out for the Bleachery boys and they report that the Mats will appear in fine form. Lynn is also sending a team to Peabody.

WHO'S THIS MAN?

"Who's this man?" A story is going the rounds that a certain politician is telling how he is going to be the next Mayor of Peabody and on the strength (?) of that is promising jobs right and left. One of the first things this man is alleged to have said he would do is to fire City Engineer Frank Emerson. Who is this man, does anybody know?

A CORRECTION

The Enterprise erroneously stated that several men were delegates from Peabody Post 153 American Legion to the state convention. The regular delegates were Commander Joseph T. Sweeney and Leo Sullivan.

Croughwell Takes Ribbons On His Jerseys

Frank J. Croughwell dairyman of West Peabody secured three first prizes and one third prize in the registered jersey cattle class at the Topsfield Fair last week. He was awarded the first prize for the best jersey breed cow, first prize for the best jersey bull under two years and first for the best jersey bull under one year. Artlette, one of his jersey cows was given the third prize. Alerts, his jersey bull under one year, is a grandson of H. P. Hood's $50,000 bull now at the Hood farm in Lowell. Sandy Jacket his champion jersey cow is considered one of the best specimens of the breed in this part of the country.

Mr. Croughwell is a graduate of the Essex Agricultural school, and one of the most capable students ever to graduate. He went through Peabody high school. He has a large milk business in Peabody.

JUDGE MANNING

Confirmation of the Governor's nomination of Attorney Daniel C. Manning for Judge of the District Court of Peabody will doubtlessly follow at the meeting of the Governor's Council next week Wednesday. His nomination is a source of satisfaction to his many friends in this district and he is bound to make a wise selection. The duties of a municipal judge are many and varied, as he is called upon to mete out justice and we have faith in Attorney Manning that this he will do without fear or favor. His education at Harvard College and its Law School followed by his practice of law in Salem and Peabody, his service as Asistant District Attorney for Essex County, and his legislative experience with a fine record of two years in the General Court, have given him a background of experience which with his temperament insures him a successful tenure of service in this important office. Attorney Manning has both dignity and poise and his culture and general demeanor has commended him for the high honor that has come to him from the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth. The Peabody Enterprise joins with the supporters of Attorney Manning in congratulating him on his nomination and wishing him a successful career on the bench which we do not believe will end in the Peabody court.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, puts the causes of motor vehicle accidents in the following order:

Excessive speed,
Booze,
Careless driving,
Heedless pedestrians,
Children on the highways.

In seven months this year 275 persons have been killed and 5654 injured on the highways of the state. Only a third of these accidents were unavoidable. Mr. Goodwin says: "Operators of cars, whether owners or chauffeurs, must not operate an auto when they have had even one drink of liquor. This is not sentiment. Booze is responsible for half of our highway fatalities this year. No driver should attempt to pass another motor vehicle on a curve or near the top of a hill. Our evidence upon this point is conclusive. As to what constitutes excessive speed, obey these two rules: On all crowded streets do not exceed a speed that will permit you to stop your car when a pedestrian, and especially a child, darts in front of it; do not pass an intersecting street at a speed that will prevent your stopping in time to avoid an accident.(Safety Council.)

CURRENT EVENTS IN SCHOOL

Some well-intentioned gentlemen, who have formed what they call the "Institute for Public Service," are worried because the teaching of the supposedly great events of the present is given so little attention in the schools.

It seems, in answer to questions circulated among the school children, that some of the boys and girls expressed the opinion that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was an ex-senator, and some said he was secretary of war, while others thought him a writer on psychic research, ambassador to England, believer in conversations with the dead, member of Harding's cabinet, president of the senate, English speech maker, advocate of spiritualism. Only a small percentage knew the exact status of the self-satisfied senator from Massachusetts. Such is fame.

Accordingly the members of the Institute for Public Service conclude that "unless schools teach current events, young people while getting an education in school and college will put off learning how to study them until after their school days," which is highly probable and this will leave the "students confused and helpless in thinking about vital public problems," which doubtless may be accepted as also the condition of many of their elders.

Granting that a certain amount of familiarity with the events of the day is desirable for school children, the question is debatable as to how much stress is to be laid upon so-called public problems which for the moment absorb the interests of those active in the world's affairs. Particularly is it of doubtful importance to compel in children a knowledge of the "Who Is Who" of ephemeral politics. History will save for the youngsters all that is worth saving.

And meanwhile is it not better for them to give their greater efforts to learning something of the treasures of literature, the established facts of history, the theory of political institutions, the fairly permanent body of knowledge which will serve them as a practical and cultural basis for their reading and experience and observation in later life?—Chelsea Record.

PROVINCE OF A NEWSPAPER

(Fort Worth (Tex.) Star-Telegram.)

It would be comical, were it not somewhat pathetic, the way newspaper offices are besieged every day by their friends, urging them to "roast" this and that; to "see to it" that this and that is corrected; to have this and that done in the city or county; to start this and that kind of movement. These friends actually appear to believe that it is the newspaper's business to handle all these affairs.

But a self-respecting newspaper, though ready and willing to carry all reasonable responsibility, must remind its readers that they—the people—are the authority upon whom rests the responsibility for the present state of affairs local, state and national.

A self-respecting newspaper tries to report the news of what actually happens, not what it might wish had happened. The relation of a self-respecting newspaper to the general public is not always understood. It is the duty of a newspaper to be in a position to support any good act and criticise any bad act of public policy.

This relationship cannot exist where favors are asked and granted. Honesty is the only policy for a newspaper.

If objectors don't like the way things are going, they should qualify as voters, and then raise cain about it.

RETAIL MERCHANT PEABODY'S POWER

By Don G. Roby

The Peabody Chamber of Commerce now has a Mercantile Division. Why? Because—the most important man in the modern city is the retail merchant.

Some may doubt this statement—but, in the general cycle of merchandising, there are four groups of business interest involved: The producer of the raw product, the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer. If the retailer fails he owes his bank and the wholesaler; should the wholesaler fail he owes the manufacturer, and should the manufacturer fail he owes the producer of the raw material. The reverse of the situation is not true. Figure it out. Therefore, upon the success of the retailer depends the entire success of all the other three groups.

Again—the Retailer should be the strongest mentally, financially and in every other way. He should be the big man of the community He must lead in civic activities and be foremost in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the community from which he derives a livelihood.

A group of busy, hustling, red-blooded and long-sighted business men—realizing that they are dependent upon better conditions in the community for better conditions in business and the growth of the community will result in an enlargement of business—have formed themselves into the Mercantile Division of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce. The members realize that in the united effort for the betterment of the community they must experience better business. They are the power for a progressive, prosperous and predominating Peabody.

Who holds riches untold in the palm of his hand? The Retailer—for his riches are in the form of a latent and hitherto unrealized power.

The Moor in Spain.

The Moors sprang from Saracens, that nomadic tribe of Arabs, which in the Eighth century overran southern Spain. They settled under the genial skies of Andalusia and found their surroundings so ideal they were contented to leave the northern portion of the country to the natives. It was galling to the Spaniard to behold his beautiful valleys and vineyards in the possession of the invaders and to see the crescent take the place of the cross; but, although much blood was shed in the interim, it was not until the Fifteenth century that Boabdil, the Moorish king, took his last look at Granada on the spot that has been practically named "El Ultima Sospiro del Moro," the last sigh of the Moor.

Old London Bellmen.

Other bells than those attached to churches used to disturb the slumbers of Londoners. Prior to the institution of watchmen every parish had its bellman, who used to stalk the streets all night. At irregular intervals he would ring his bell loudly and cry out. "Take care of your fire and candle, be charitable to the poor and pray for the dead." If he met any malefactor, he rang unceasingly until the neighborhood was roused to his assistance.

ROUND ABOUT

Failure to give ample publicity to the state wide plan to have whistles and fire alarms blown at 9 o'clock last Monday to usher in "Dont Get Hurt Week" might have had a serious aspect in Peabody. The A. C. L. whistle fire alarm was answered by a motor kit from fire headquarters proving that the firemen didn't know in advance that the factory whistles were to blow at the appointed hour. Peabody square was covered with scurrying automobiles and the wonder is that no one was hurt. Someone blundered and much of the criticism may be laid to the fact that not enough publicity was given a most important detail in a worth-while program.

General Francis H. Appleton presided at the dedication of the new Cadet armory in Boston last Saturday, having as honored guests Gox. Cox on one side and Major General Edwards on the other side at the head table.

The presence of a traffic officer at the junction of Lowell and Newbury streets is having a desired effect with the result that speed maniacs at the wheels are compelled to respect the uniform and make safe traffic at this dangerous corner. The auto horns are sounded and due care is being taken. The uniformed officer is responsible and justifying his hire.

My attention has been called this week to the fact that eight children of school age living on Forest and Newbury streets are compelled to walk a mile and a half to the West school. Here is another problem for the school committee to remedy, as it should be. On top of this comes the announcement that the man having the contract for conveying the pupils in West Peabody is to ask for more pay.

Three Peabody women will long remember the Topsfield fair of last week for they boarded a train in the quaint village and supposed they would reach Peabody. Finally they woke up to the fact that their train was stopped in Lynnfield Center, six miles from home. They walked home.

According to rumor, "Billy" Woods and "Dick" Welch will not dare declare themselves as champion whist players in the future, especially while Jere "Shorty" Callahan and John Kennally are within hearing distance. In a recent series "Shorty" and John won all three games, so naturally claim the championship.

Walter L. Williams, president of the Peabody Club, is hailed as the champion bridge whist player in Peabody. He added to his laurels at Coonticook, N. H., last Saturday, when he was high man among such capable rivals as John O. Power, William Hill and Ernest Coombs, the latter the host. Messrs. Power and Coombs, old-time partners in business and sports (particularly A. B.), won the honors for the best pair.

Citizens have first call on city jobs, according to City Engineer Frank Emerson, who takes exceptions to a question in this paper last week, asking if all the men employed on the new sewer work on Milk street were citizens. All are but two, and these two have their first papers.

Former Councillor Cornelius A. Giles, who relinquished his public duties last year, is adding weight, so I observe. Absence of political worries has made for a better appetite, and he has enjoyed the past summer more than any other for some years. I have frequently seen him this past summer busily engaged in caring for his garden on his estate on Lynn street. He is a foreman at the Turner Tanning Machinery Co., where he is held in popular esteem. Giles was a good loser and no one wants to see Mayor Shea get a square deal any more than does this South Peabody citizen.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, chairman of the Simmons College endowment fund committee, that Miss Elizabeth G. Putnam, 33 Holten street, Danvers, has been appointed local chairman in charge of the coming campaign in Salem, Peabody, Danvers, Manchester, Beverly, Beverly Farms and Marblehead. All local activities of the Simmons girls in the interests of their endowment fund will come under her direction.

In many ways the Simmons campaign is unique among the multitude of college appeals. As the college trains girls to earn their living, it appeals particularly to those of small means. For that reason the alumnae are not wealthy and in a large measure they have had to "earn" their endowment.

The campaign is scheduled to begin in all parts of the country on October 10 and continue until $1,000,000 is raised. Already more than $125,000 has been contributed by the alumnae alone, and the general education board has promised to give the last $300,000. The slogan of the campaign will be: "Simmons College—Efficient Womanhood in Home and Business."

Why Rich Men Want More

The reason a rich man is not satisfied with the size of his fortune is not necessarily because he is acquired a kind of hog instinct but rather because his knowledge of affairs and his breadth of vision have grown until he sees bigger and bigger things that he wishes to do and his ambition to accomplish is always a few leads ahead of his capital. The richest men in the world are usually the greatest borrowers, because they are in a position to see the most to be done. Hence any man setting out to accumulate might as well recognize at the beginning that from the very nature of things, he can never hope to feel that he has enough.—Fred Kelly in the Nation's Business.

South Peabody

Miss Ethel Brown of Lynnfield street was surprised by a group of friends from Salem and other places last Friday evening. Music and games helped to make the evening pass pleasantly, those rendering solos being Charles Hilton of Peabody and Misses Marguerite Smith, Irene Kelley and Ethel Brown, all of Peabody. Miss Fannie McDonald of Chelsea and Charles Mullin of Peabody won prizes in the games.

Miss Ella Reed of Lynn street is enjoying a vacation at Rutland, Vt., as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bergstrom.

Herbert Adams of Providence, R. I., spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Adams of Lynnfield street.

Miss Margaret Sylvester of Winnegance avenue was united in marriage to Chester Hay of Peabody last Friday evening. Rev. W. S. Milburn of Salem performed the wedding ceremony and they left for a wedding trip to Portland, Me.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Congregational church will take place next Wednesday instead of the second Wednesday in the month, on account of Oct. 12 being a legal holiday. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Swett and Mrs. Tedford, both of Lynnfield street, had a delightful trip to Holbrook last week, as guests of Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Walker. The day after their arrival they took an automobile trip along the South shore and called on Rev. J. Thomas and family, who was a former pastor in South Peabody.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ricker of Winnegance avenue took an auto trip to Portland, Me., last Sunday.

Miss Doris Goodwin of Amesbury is spending two weeks with her aunt, Mrs. B. W. Goodwin of Lake Shore Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles King of Dexter street are the proud parents of a seven-pound boy born Monday at the Thomas hospital. They have named him Donald Cowin King.

The prayer meeting will be resumed tonight at the Second Congregational church and it is hoped that a large attendance will show that a mid-week meeting at the church is desired.

Mrs. Harvey Court of Bartholomew street is ill with the grip.

Rev. Thomas Burns and family of Medford were visitors here Monday evening.

Among the list of prizes awarded at the Topsfield fair were the following from this locality: Mrs. Byron Goodwin received first prize for collection of jellies, second prize for collection of canned vegetables and third prize on pears. Mrs. William Watkins received first prize for a crocheted rug. Grace Batchelder took the first prize for needlework in the children's department, and W. E. Reed took two prizes for apples.

Ladies' Aid Society of the Lake Shore Park church met with Mrs. Sadie Rainford Thursday afternoon.

The Neighborhood Club and B. I. Club will start their winter meetings next Tuesday evening, when they will meet with Henniker Foster, Bulfinch street, East Lynn.

Mrs. Thompson of New Brunswick is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alex Smith, on Lynnfield street.

There is some comment about the Eastern Mass. R. R. reducing their fares in the Lynn district so that patrons are to receive 18 rides for a dollar, starting tomorrow, while the Peabody and Lynn patrons are still to get 15 rides for the same money.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah Strout of Lynnfield street was held in Dickson Memorial chapel, Salem, Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. M. Partridge officiated and the W. R. C. services were conducted. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Melinda, wife of Frank Giles, died Saturday evening at the age of 64 years. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. H. A. Childs of Lynn and Miss Gladys Giles of Peabody, and one son, Reuel Giles. Funeral services were held at her late home on Lynn street Tuesday afternoon at 2.30.

Services at Lake Shore Park church, Harry Hill pastor: Morning service, subject, "A Lad's Lunch Basket." A sermon for children, followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper. An afternoon service at 3 o'clock for men only; subject, "The Marks of a Man." Evening services at 7 o'clock; subject, "Making the Unprofitable Profitable." Every one invited. Men are especially urged to attend the afternoon service. Prayer meeting this evening at 7.45. The pastor will speak on "The Pure in Heart."

The Hill's class was entertained at the home of one of the members, Mr. Stanton, and spent a pleasant evening.

Boys of South Peabody—watch this column next week for something of interest. Signed, Cecil Young.

INJURING SCHOOLS

The School Committee has reason to be worried over the depredations of grownups who loiter around the schoolhouses early evenings and cause damage to public property. The police may be asked to take a hand and scare away some of these vandals. The Samuel Brown school is subjected to some of this mischief.

Real Cattle Stampede Shown In 'Sky Pilot' Film at Strand

A cattle stampede, so realistic that even the most blase of motion picture fans will sit up and gasp, is a feature of "The Sky Pilot," an adaption of Ralph Connor's world-famous book of the same name which will be the extraordinary attraction the Strand will offer for today and Saturday.

Since the beginning of motion pictures, directors have attempted to reach the superlative in making their audiences thrill with emotions of fear and suspense; and many times have they succeeded. But never, it is declared, has the equal of King Vidor's striking stampede scenes been alloyed with celluloid. Four thousand head of cattle in a mad lunge toward the camera provide dramatic tension that stands by itself in motion picture production. In order to film these scenes it was necessary to "plant" cameras in an eight-foot-deep pit. Nine cameras and camera men were called upon to get this "shot." Of added interest is the fact that the characters appearing in "The Sky Pilot" actually comprise an all-star cast. John Bowers, who takes the part of the Pilot, has carried the leading role in a number of the biggest successes of the day. Collen Moore, playing the leading feminine role, will be remembered as the pretty little Irish collen in "Dinty," and David Butler has been starred during the past year in his own productions. All told, "The Sky Pilot" is a distinct achievement in the history of filmdom and one that will take its place as one of the greatest western pictures of all time. A Brownie comedy and Ann Little in "The Blue Fox" will be the other attractions on the bill for today and Saturday.

MADGE KENNEDY,

Mary Miles Minter in "The Amazing Imposter" will be the main feature on the bill for Sunday evening. Miss Minter has a large following here in town who will welcome this announcement. Pat O'Malley in "The Heart of a Woman" will also be shown on Sunday.

"Roads of Destiny," adapted by Channing Pollock from an O. Henry story, with Pauline Frederick in the leading role, will top the double bill for Monday and Tuesday. The picture is really four pictuers in one and provides roles of great dramatic strength for the star. Miss Frederick is seen as the mistress of an Alaskan gambling house proprietor, a woman of questionable reputation in New York society, a demented and discarded sweetheart of a cad and a girl who has loved "not wisely but too well." In each part she is called upon to give portrayals which equal in dramatic power her famous mother role in "Madame X."

Douglas MacLean's latest starring vehicle, "The Home Stretch," will be the second feature on the bill for Monday and Tuesday. This is race track story and concerns the adventures of a young racehorse owner who meets with many set-backs until he finally overcomes his desire to gamble.

"The Affairs of Anatol," the current sensation in the film world, has, according to Manager Chet Bent, been secured for Peabody and will be shown at the Strand a week from Monday. This is one of the biggest pictures ever made and that Peabody is to have this picture so soon after release is a triumph for the N. H. Ware Co. who have successfully operated the Strand for the last five years.

Essex "Aggie" School Notes

The trustees have employed Miss Margaret A. Hastings of Hadley as an instructor in the Homemaking Department. Miss Hastings is a graduate of the schools of her own town and also of Hopkins Academy of the same place. She later trained at Simmons College and at the Worcester School of Domestic Science, graduating with the class of 1916.

Football

Instructor Page has taken active control of the football work. Already enough men have reported for practice to allow for two full teams and a chance to line up for practice games.

Field Day

Efforts are being made to arrange for a union field day and athletic meet between the County Agricultural schools and the Agricultural Departments in high schools in Massachusetts. It is hoped that this field day will be held at the Essex County Agricultural school in November. Emphasis will be given to both agricultural contests as well as field events.

Taxpayer Asks Ward 1 Leader To Explain Act

265 Lynnfield St.,
Peabody, Mass.

Editor of Enterprise:

My Dear Mr. Penniman.

Will you kindly grant me space in your paper to voice in behalf of the residents of Lynnfield street their disapproval of the action of the Councillor of Ward 1 relative to his remark, "That if the Eastern Mass. had money enough to put the cars up Lynnfield street, they could very well afford to pave between the tracks on Washington street themselves," which to my neighbors as well as myself surely shows how much Lynnfield street has been represented or misrepresented through our present Councillor since he has held the office

Surely there cannot be much prospect of the cars running up Lynnfield street as long as Mr. McKeen follows such unwarranted tactics.

Respectfully,
SAMUEL T. RITCHINGS.

WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The Women's Association of the South church will hold its first meeting of the season on Tuesday afternoon October 4 in the church parlors at 3 o'clock. All ladies of the church are cordially invited to be present.

Leather Plants Begin To Speed Production-- Less Men Are Loating

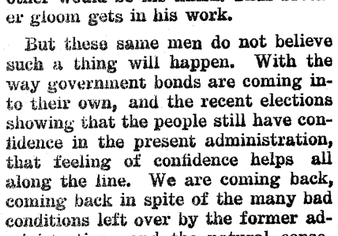
(By ENERGY)

There has been so much in the papers of late about the large number of men out of work, as reported from sources who apparently mean to make all the trouble they are able to, that it seems opportune to mention the report of 21 Chambers of Commerce situated in the manufacturing districts. These reports tell us the average of men loafing is but little over normal. A report coming from such sources cannot but make most believe them. Organizations of this kind are composed if representative men and their word is respected.

There was a case this week of a Bower's machine operator being wanted. Several men qualified, refused to take the job, although loafing. What does this mean? It means that in every community there is a small percentage of men (thank Heaven it is small) who will not work if they can possibly help it. These same men stand around and talk about the rich or successful men as being everything but what makes for the community. I suppose it is no different today than it ever was, for always there are people on this earth who if they had their way, would take from their neighbors, or in other words, soviets and their relations. Perhaps Russia today has room for such people, and if so transportation should be provided.

The shaking process which has been in vogue for two years is nearing its end. No doubt there are weak spots which must be bolstered, and it would not be strange if trouble did occur in some quarters. But all feel that the worse is over. When the crash came after the war, Saturday night, everything seemed right; Monday morning the business seemed like the devasation of an earthquake. Short notice, you will say, so say I. This fall some figure a repetition might take place. It's just like an automobile accident. After one has been through one, that fear of another is something one cannot help. it is natural. So this fall the fear that another slump might occur, keeps many from embarking largely in business. The tanner in particular who must carry large stocks representing hundreds of thousands of money gets a jolt when these things happen much larger than in most other business. He got an awful poke two years aog, and another would be his finish. Thus brother gloom gets in his work.

But these same men do not believe such a thing will happen. With the way government bonds are coming into their own, and the recent elections showing that the people still have confidence in the present administration, that feeling of confidence helps all along the line. We are coming back, coming back in spite of the many bad conditions left over by the former administration, and the natural consequences of war. All must admit that President Harding has selected the biggest men to handle matters, men who have been tried many times and never found wanting.



I have often wondered why calfskins are not finished with the hair on for ordinary use. True it is many such skins are found in fancy goods, but what would happen if sohrt-haired calfskins were finished with the hair on and placed either inside or outside of a shoe as was demanded? Oh, what a dream you say. Yes, but in moving the hair you are taking away something that the Almighty placed their on the animal for its protection. Why not keep it there for the use of us animals? Who says it cannot be done? Why that same fellow who will not have it that conditions are better.

Some years ago I was much interested in the measuring of leather. I went so far as to look after the measuring in several factories here. By this I mean I watched the measuring performance and corrected any evil I might detect. I presume the same conditions exist today, for they cannot but always exist, for human nature and self protection keeps all of us watching for our end and many times we over-step the bounds. Not deliberate stealing, but a white lie like. Who could blame a man who stands at a measuring machine all day and every day in the week, when he gets to be a part of the machine itself? Therefore some outside force must watch, for the small fraction on each skin mounts into big money at the end of the week. I hope some day to be a factor in the measuring game, to the extent of showing that my pains are worth something to all concerned. Experience counts, and surely I have had that.

So the labor leaders are anxious to get together with the manufacturers in Lynn and sign a peace agreement. It is about time they woke up to the fact that business is fast leaving Lynn because of labor troubles. It is about time that the workmen put men in power who will represent them from every angle. The time has gone by when the shops will run under labor rule. By this I mean the many foolish rules which some unions have placed in force, are utterly unfair and will be no longer tolerated. In fact a majority of the men do not believe in them.

Get together gentlemen before it is too late, and that time is not far away. Some may tell you the business will come back, but talk is cheap or those making such talk would not be heard. Fairness on both sides is the only outcome to success, and by success I mean a fair profit to the manufacturer, good wages to the workmen and a steady business brought about by all working for the same end.

Factory Fives Form Winter Bowling Bee

Through the efforts of Henry L. D'Entremont, manager of the Victor bowling alleys, the largest bowling league ever put together in this city, was organized last Tuesday evening. The league will be known as the Victor Inter-Factory League and comprises the following factories:N. H. Poor Leather Co., Capt. Charles Caden; B. E. Cox Leather Co., Capt. Robert J. Feeley; Danvers Bleachery, Capt. F. Lawless; L. B. Southwick Co., Capt. George Manning; Green & Hayes, Capt. Ernest Sullivan; Richard Young Co., Capt. Frank Cronin; Morrill Leather Co., Capt. George Jaques; H. S. & M. W. Snyder, Capt. Morgan Hunt; A. C. Lawrence Leather Co., Capt. John Doherty; Pearse Leather Co., Capt. Dennis Murphy; Korn Leather Co., Capt. Joe Altshuler; National Calfskin Co., Capt. Michael Desmond.

The meeting was held at the Victor alleys and Robert J. Feeley was elected chairman, Ray A. MacDonald, treasurer, and F. Lawless secretary. Much enthusiasm was shown and the bowling will start next Tuesday and continue until March 10th, 1922. It was voted to give cash prizes amounting to $75, and to devote the balance of the money collected toward a "general good time" after the season is over. The George H. Jacobs Co. are offering a special prize and other business houses may follow suit and offer some other special prizes, which would be good advertising for them.

Henry is also forming an Inter-Lodge Bowling League and the captains will meet at the Victor alleys at 8 P. M. next Saturday for organization. This league will comprise six or eight teams and lodges who have not already reported are requested to have a representative at that meeting.

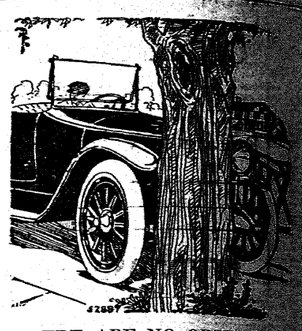
Rotarians At Fall Conclave

Vice President George A. Blaney, John O. Power and Joseph E. Noyes are representing the Peabody Rotary Club at the fall conclave in Poland Springs, Me. The convention opened Wednesday night and concludes tomorrow with dinner at the Portland Rotary Club headquarters.

John E. Fitzgerald, vice president of the Turner Tanning Machinery Co., will give a talk before the Rotary Club members next Tuesday. Each member is to give a personal sketch of his life by way of introduction, with the view of getting better acquainted. Judge William H. Fay will follow at the meeting on Oct. 11.

PICRIC ACID



The distribution of picric acid, a high explosive used during the war, which the United States Department of Agriculture is making available to farmers at cost, for clearing land, is to be handled in Massachusetts by the State Department of Agriculture.

Picric acid is being distributed at cost to farmers by the Department of Agriculture to stimulate in clearing land, and 24,000 pounds have been allotted to Massachusetts. The total cost to the farmer is approximately 10½ cents a pound, including freight, which is equivalent to 18½ cents worth of dynamite, according to the Department of Agriculture. Orders should be sent to the State Department of Agriculture, State House, Boston.

ly and flatly refused information while others, knowing that if the issue were pressed they would have to submit, have found ways and means to sidetrack inquiries which may prove embarrassing.

In the case of marriage records it is clearly the intent of the law that publicity shall be given to the announcement of marriage intentions and no city clerk has any right to prevent free access to the records. Many an improper marriage has been prevented by the advance publicity which the law clearly requires. It is not the privilege of a city clerk to find that there is no necessity for the publication of some of the applications that are filed with him.—Lynn Telegram News.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

What is the purpose which the Commonwealth of Massachusetts proposes to serve by requiring the filing of marriage intentions? Is publicity a desirable feature toward that end, or was it the intent of the state that publication of intentions filed shall be at the discretion of the city clerk who incorporates them in his records? Those are the questions raised by City Clerk Edward J. Dowd of Peabody in refusing to permit the Peabody Enterprise to have access to his record of marriage intentions, and the Enterprise has done well to submit them for settlement to the supreme court. Last Tuesday Mr. Justice Peirce heard the case in which the Enterprise petitioned against Mr. Dowd for a writ of mandamus to compel him to give the paper access to his record of marriage intentions. Justice Peirce showed very clearly his astonishment that any one should have questioned the newspaper's right to access to the records. He stated that the object of the five-day law was to give opportunity for publicity and that it had always been understood that public policy required publicity. Judge Robert W. Hill, counsel for the Enterprise, referred to a Pennsylvania decision rendered in an exactly similar case where the desirability of publicity in connection with all intentions of marriage was upheld.

The case was continued for two weeks in order to give Mr. Dowd opportunity to file an answer, but there is little doubt that the decision will go against him. Quite aside from the newspaper's rights in the case, public interest requires that the issue at stake shall not be clouded. The marriage intention law would become a farce if it were left to any public official, no matter how fair minded or well meaning, to decide what intentions should be made public and what should be treated as matters of private concern.—New Bedford Standard.

J. H. Finn Answers His Critic On Federal Control of Railroads

Editor Peabody Enterprise:

Answering the article of Sept. 16, would say that I have traveled quite as much as others on the railroads during the past thirty and more years. During that time I have also made something of a study of the railroad question.

No sane man can accept the ideas of the writer who objects to public ownership of railroads together with public ownership of water works, power, light, etc. Nor can any man with brains in his head, instead of sawdust, believe that it shows an advance when farmers of the west are compelled to burn food supplies to keep warm when they are unable to get coal because of the breaking down of the railroads.

There are many who would have us believe that the government was the cause of the failure of the railroads and that this failure dates from government control. Nothing could be further from the truth and when we come to look over the history of the past we see this all the more clearly.

As far back as ten years ago the railroads had gone to ruin to such an extent that the legislature of Massachusetts opened up several hearings to determine the cause. And those who can remember about those hearings will recall the scandals which were unearthed. Some of our biggest roads were all but ruined and had to be put into the hands of a receiver to keep them on their feet and in some kind of running condition.

The trouble today with the railroads is like that which comes to the individual who becomes physically weak by reason of non-use of functions. In other words, the people are now suffering because of their failure to assume functions which properly belong to them. As life becomes more complex greater intelligence becomes necessary if society is to advance. This is a truth that is being slowly forced upon us, but which we are so slow to grasp. And our failure to grasp it has resulted in our present condition. Industrial progress as well as social development are automatically checked.

In the rude stage of development the making of highways was left to the individual. The latter exacted a toll. In time it was seen that the system was bearing heavily upon the people and was most inconvenient. Regulation by government was tried but proved no remedy. Finally, as social advance went on, the private highways were taken over and from that time forward the making and maintaining of the common roads was assumed as a governmental duty.

Later on the invention of the railroad merged the business of carrying both freight and passengers, but up to the present the people have not come to realize that the very same reasons which rendered it necessary for the government to make and maintain common roads applied with even greater force to the new system. And so the railroads have been left to private enterprise to build and private greed to manage and here in the United States, where railroads are of more importance than anywhere else in the world, we have done nothing apart from making a feeble attempt to regulate fares and freights.

Notwithstanding all the talk of the great ability of private enterprise to operate and manage the railroads, there is not a single road but is today leaning upon the government and some of them are borrowing money from the government. No sooner did they revert back to their owners than the latter advanced fares some twenty per cent. and freights as much more. At the same time they took measures to cut the pay of the section men and the others who are the lowest paid of all. Instead of reducing the pay of the eight-dollar a day men they reduced the three-dollar a day men. The latter did not get more than $1.75 per day, in the old days, and that would probably be the wage if the roads had their way today.

All over the west railroads parallel each other to such an extent that there is an added burden placed upon the people. It is a sheer waste of capital and labor to build a new road alongside another, yet that has been done with an annual loss to the people of millions and millions of dollars. The stockholders must have their six per cent., which is guaranteed by the government, and the whole amounts to something like fourteen hundred millions per year. This is added to the cost of operation, all of which is saddled upon the people.

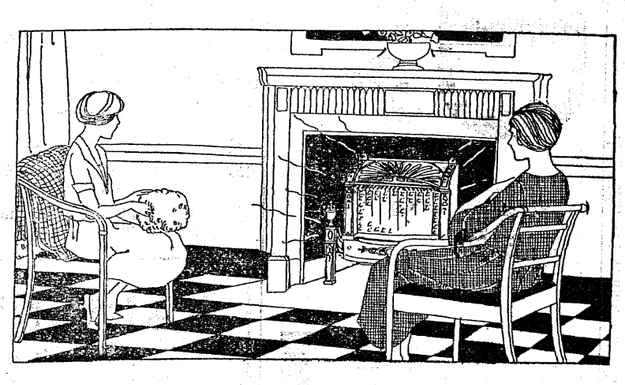
The railroad managers cannot keep out of politics even if they wished. At the same time it may be said that the present difficult conditions do not arise from the fact that the roads themselves are in the hands of poor managers. The present difficulties arise from the very nature of the railroad business. This is the most important of any in the country because of its intimate relation to all industry and to all other interests.

So long as the railroads remain in private hands they will be a corrupt element in politics. Most people will agree that any interest having business with government is more corruptive of government, when acting upon government from without, than could possibly be the case when government had assumed that business.

Big corporations are always maintaining paid lobbies whose business it is to procure favorable legislation or prevent legislation in the interests of the people. No matter what inefficiency and extravagance there may be the lobby will see to it that it will not come under the public eye.

The railroad systems of this country today are not managed in the interest of the people. They are managed in the interests of their owners. Of course we have no right to complain of this for it is in the nature of things that the owner of a business should try to get the most for his money. The writer has always claimed that so long as the roads were privately owned the owners should get a fair return. The man who invests in a tannery or in a shoe factory must make a profit and why not the man who invests in a railroad.

What the undersigned would have the people consider is the effect of private ownership of a function that is so vitally necessary to the proper conduct and expansion of industry and business. Here in the east we need the corn that the roads are unable to bring to this section and which will be burned this winter because the roads have fallen down in the matter of coal deliveries. If the farmers cannot sell their foodstuffs, how can they buy the leather and shoes of this community?



I maintain that it is better to manage the railroads in the interest of industry rather than in the interest of unscrupulous adventurers whose business the whole day long is to bull and bear the stock market and who make the property they manage subservient to their personal interests.

Every business that is in its nature a monopoly is properly a function of the state. And if we are to progress as becomes an intelligent people, we must control or assume them. This is the truth which we have ignored and so civilization has failed to blend society and bring on an improvement which is always present with the growth of public spirit.

CITY HALL

Vacations are over and City Hall employes are on the job, in the same old ruts. From now on until next year there will be little to disturb the even tenure of office. The exception would naturally be the assessor's department, where kicks are registered the year around.

—*—

A large part of the property advertised for the taxes has been paid. In some cases mortgagees have paid the tax. These hard times make payments doubly hard on the tax payers, but everything points to better business soon.

—*—

We note in Beverly that three lieutenants will be added to the police force. It sounds to us like an Mexican army, as many officers as men. We have no lieutenants, although in most cities inspectors rank as such.

—*—

The school committee are having some trouble in getting a quorum at their meetings. It has been found necessary several times recently to adjourn without a quorum. The new schoolhouses are completed inside, and the grading will soon be accomplished. We are told that the Thomas Carroll school ranks one in point of numbers, the high school excepted. It shows where they are raising young Americans, over the balance of the city.

—*—

The big drop in attendance at the Center school is due to the fact that the new school in Ward 2 has taken them away. The Center school has been crowded for years, and no doubt better results will be obtained there from now on.

—*—

That sedan driven by Jim Ray surely needs paint. There was a story going the rounds that he was to have a new machine for his work. We should judge the mileage of this machine would mount well into the thousands. Jim is a busy man.

—*—

Now that Judge Manning will preside over the local district court, the many wagers that have been made will be settled. A large majority felt that Associate Judge Farnham would get the appointment, backed as he was by James F. Ingraham, our councillor. But those who knew all about this matter were doomed to disappointment.

—*—

The case of Horace P. Farnham is a repetition of his father before him. The latter had a strong indorsement for the local judgeship when the late Judge Hall got the plum. Such is life and politics.

—*—

The sewer situation has quieted down so far as Salem is concerned. There has been no injunctions for some time, and what the next move is to be, we know not. We do know that the engineering department are making every effort to keep the manufacturers from emptying solids in the sewer. But larger pipes must eventually be the outcome. Where water even with sediment can run freely, it will carry it off, but let it have a chance to settle, then comes the trouble.

—*—

Some suggested that a large settling basin be constructed somewhere near the Salem line, where the last settling process could be done, thus delivering to the Salem sewer under the watchful eye of an employe of the city. The sewer problem is the worse one the city has to face, with the ever increasing sewerage.

—*—

Politics about City Hall are not even warm. It will soon come time for the city election and primaries, and there is liable to be a hot fight in some of the wards for councillor. Walter Brown retires, and Clarence W. Barnes is to be a candidate for the Ward 6 berth. Ex-Councillor Cotton claims he will land in Ward 3, basing his claims on the women's vote. Den Hogan will run again in Ward 4, where he has a large following. We hear of no changes in the other wards, presuming that the present councillors will succeed themselves.

It has cost the city about $750 to repair breaks in the cement lined water pipe on Andover street so far this year. The pipe is continually breaking. The pipe line is under the electric car tracks. City Engineer Emerson asked for $17,000 to replace all of the pipe this year but the Council cut out the appropriation.

—*—

Who will pay for Superintendent King's auto? The city fathers say nay, but it is whispered the law gives Mr. King the right to do certain thngs without the sanction of the powers. We are curious to know what will happen.

—*—

Talk about dull business, there has been nothing in City Hall this week to disturb routine business. No scandals, no war of words, no one seeking jobs of those already planted, in fact everything points to disarmament here as in the rest of the world.

—*—

The high tax rate is still rankling in the minds for many a tax payer. While the Assessors are hardened to the abuse by receiving it in such quantities, one cannot blame people for kicking on paying out the increase, for the cream is gone, and we of Peabody must live on skimmed milk or stand an even higher tax rate.

—*—

Frank Emerson's car has been doctored at the municipal garage of late, but still refuses to be good. That talk in the Council recently that Ford cars should be the thing for all municipal employes sounds good to us. The city would save many dollars each year.

—*—

There are but few parcels of land advertised recently for the 1919 taxes that have not been paid. Few people will let their property go by default and at the last minute find the money to pay.

—*—

Councillor George Eagan of Ward Three has his papers in circulation for a renomination and his friends believe he will come through.

Community House Opens Next Monday

The Community House will open next week. The first day in the girls' department will be Monday, October 3d, and the boys' first day will be Tuesday, October 4th.

As in other years the gymnastic classes for boys under 14 will be held in the afternoon and those for the older boys will be held in the evening.

There will be a football team this year and already the boys are practicing for it. There will be classes in carpentry, printing, wireles, drumming and dancing, and further information concerning these will be given when the classes are ready to open. The evening school classes in English for ailens will be held at the house, as was the case last year.

Mrs. George Dean will again have charge of the girls' and women's gymnastic classes, the grammar school girls coming Monday afternoon and the high school girls and women meeting in the evening. Miss Grace O'Keefe will be the teacher of the women's dressmaking classes. These classes meet for the first time on Wednesday, October 5th, there being an afternoon class from 3 to 5 and an evening class from 7 to 9. Classes in millinary and cooking will begin soon.

MOOSE LODGE

Peabody Lodge of Moose will hold a meeting next Tuesday night. Members interested in a pool table are requested to attend.

Mrs. James Brown of Chipman, N. B., has been the guest of Mrs. Edmund Dixon, Clement avenue.

G. Freeman Woodbury, Elbridge G. Kelley and George Griffin attended the Essex County Plumbers outing at Chebacco Lake, Tuesday.

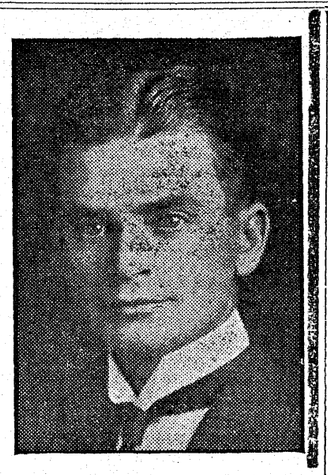
Judge Manning Resigns S. P. C. C.



Judge Daniel C. Manning resigned as president and director in the Peabody Branch of the S. P. C. C. to Children yesterday following his induction to his new office as judge of the district court. His successor will be chosen at the November meeting. A crowded court room greeted the new Peabody judge as he took the bench, Peabody and Salem bar members being present in large numbers. Judge Fay represented the local attorneys and Judge Hill and Judge Jackson spoke for the Salem bar. There were many floral pieces and Judge Manning received many congratulations.

"All Aboard" Big Success

Leo Guild players covered themselves with much glory in their production of "All Aboard" in City Hall last night before a big house. It was easily the snappiest musical comedy ever staged in Peabody with plenty of high-class chorus work and enough specialties to give the production the professional tinge. Excelling the usual amateur production "All Aboard" got away on time and "docked" on schedule, the show being over at 10.30. 10.30.

Miss Mary L. McCarthy in the leading role gave a finished production and her singing was one of the feature hits of the evening. Mrs. Katheryn Conlon as the mother with watchful

GEN. APPLETON TO ADDRESS ROTARY

General Francis H. Appleton will be the principal speaker before the Peabody Rotary Club next Tuesday noon. Judge William H. Fay, a member, will give a short personal talk. Rev. Thomas P. McGinn, pastor of St. John's church, gave a very interesting discourse at the meeting of the Rotary Club this week.

Mrs .George C. Farrington and Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Smith leave tomorrow for a motor trip to Montreal. They will be gone several days. Mr. Smith will attend the Montreal Rotary Club dinner next Tuesday.

NAVY DEPT. ASKS PEABODY MAN TO BE NATION'S GUEST AT BIER OF UNKNOWN DEAD

Patrick F. Bresnahan of 54 Tracey street the only Peabody man to have a Congressional medal of honor has been invited by the Navy department to be a guest of the government in Washington on November 11 at the funeral of an unknown veteran of the world war. He will accept the invitation which carries with it all expenses.

Bresnahan served 11 years in the navy and for his heroism in saving the battleship Iowa during a boiler explosion he was awarded the medal. He was a first class water tender and when the explosion occured at Culebra off the Island of Porto Rico in 1905 Bresnahan went down into the boiler room and drew the fires, thus averting a total destruction of the warship. He was in the Spanish-American war and carries a Sampson medal in recognition of his war service with the American fleet.

Aerial Truck Exhibits Here

Peabody witnessed a demonstration of the La France aerial ladder truck yesterday when the 75-foot ladder was swung onto the L. B. Southwick Co., National Calfskin plant and the administration building of the A. C. L. Leather Co. The ladder reached the top story of the A. C. Lawrence buildings and the roof of the Southwick plant. The aerial truck was the property of Salem fire department and was brought here by Chief Kimball and Capt. J. P. Buckley, who climbed the ladder. Mayor Shea, Chief Barrett and Fire Engineers Carbrey and Hutchinson witnessed the exhibition. Veteran firemen Charles Smart and William Joll rode in the chief's car. The ladder is hoisted by hydraulic pressure, the wheels of the tractor being secured by blocks. The cost of the truck is $15,500.

MARBLEHEAD GAME

The Peabody-Marblehead football game will be played at Emerson Park tomorrow afternoon, instead of in the rear of the high school.

Peabody Grange initiated 15 candidates last night in the first and second degrees before a large crowd, including many out of town guests. Worthy Master George LeCain and officers conferred the first degree and the Men's degree team gave the second.

Auto Kills Danvers Man

Elmer Putnam, well-known ice dealer of Danvers, died at the Thomas hospital early last evening from concussion of the brain, caused by an automobile accident at the junction of Collins and Sylvan streets, Danvers, at 6.30 last night. A car driven by Roland A. Hinckley of Charles street, Danvers, side-swiped the Putnam car which was at a standstill with Mr. Putnam fixing a rear tire. In the Hinckley car were Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Foster and child and Mrs. Agnes Weinburg, all of Danvers. The Hinckley car passengers escaped with bruises. Both cars were badly damaged.

YEOMAN GIRL TO WED

Cards are out announcing the coming marriage of Miss Helen M. Sullivan of this city and George J. Donahue, a government instructor in Maryland. Miss Sullivan served as chief yeoman in the navy during the war and is now a federal board teacher at the Parker Hill hospital. She is an active member of the auxiliary of the American Legion and enjoys the honor of being the only woman clerk appointed as a substitute at the local postoffice. The couple will be married at St. John's church on Columbus Day morning, the nuptial mass being at 9 o'clock.

City Hall Notes

The school committee have finally obtained their appropriation from the Council for grading the new school additions. There will be large sums carried to next year's budget. This must mean a tax rate as large if not larger for next year.

—*—

The new addition to the high school makes an imposing looking structure. The schools should now suffice for years to come. Local young Americas can look back on their school days in the years to come with the satisfaction of having the best to work with.

—*—

Since the new water main was installed on Lynn street the water pressure which registers in the engineer's office at City Hall shows 60 pounds pressure most of the time. The variance in pressure can be accounted for only that large quantities of water are used certain times, which takes time for the pump to replace.

—*—

Small hall has been cleared again for dancing. The former mayor declearing is large. Now others will again for this purpose. The work of clearing is large Now others will claim the right. Trouble ahead.

—*—

The tree warden has been clearing the trees adjacent to City Hall on Chestnut street. Once noted for its trees, Chestnut street is fast becoming as are the hairs on some people's heads we know of. New macadam streets and sidewalks are fast depleting the trees of Peabody.

—*—

Engineer Emerson tells us many are wondering what he is doing with so many receptacles. Some are unkind enough to intimate that home brew may be connected with his labors. No doubt some of the home brew hereabouts tastes some like the sewerage he is testing.

—*—

The police appeared in new caps this week, the latest in their equipment. The short visor is fashioned after the German military cap, but that does not matter. The numbers on the caps are larger than the old ones and some complain they are too large. We call these caps an improvement.

—*—

Janitor Russell is very thoughtful of the comfort of City Hall employes. A little steam these cool mornings puts the joy in life, even if others take it out.

—*—

Did you ever visit City Hall back of the curtain? There are enough ropes there used to hoist scenery that would answer for a full rigged ship. More ropes than scenery.

—*—

We note the late Judge Hall's office equipment is for sale to be sold as one lot. His former office is to let, one of the most attractive offices on Peabody square. Judge Hall will be missed many ways.

—*—

Keeping a policeman on Newbury street and vicinity is a good move. The fact that many were hailed into court for disregarding traffic rules on that street will have the effect of better manners. The trouble, the fine and the joshing by one's friends makes a lesson that will be remembered always. Keep up the good work Chief.

—*—

What are the pols going to do this fall, with only minor elections to follow. It will surely take the joy out of life, but think of the fun you have had on the other fellow's money. Pretty soft sometimes.

—*—

That building on the corner of Chestnut and Lowell streets, opposite City Hall, is a blot on the rest of the neighborhood. Such a building should be condemned for the good of the service.

—*—

President Duggan of the City Council told Judge Pierce in the supreme court that City Clerk Dowd was acting under the instructions of the City Council when he refused to allow the record of marriage intentions to be available to the Peabody Enterprise. He did not say that he himself, as President of the Council, had directed City Clerk Dowd in this matter. Up to date no member of the City Council has supported Pres. Duggan in the statement to the court. There's a discrepancy here somewhere that may find an echo in the next hearing before the supreme court. From all information so far it appears President Duggan alone ordered City Clerk Dowd to shield the record of marriage intentions from the Peabody Enterprise.

Water conditions are better today than in many years at the same date. Spring pond is 70½ feet, which is within three feet of full. Suntaug is one foot from full. The consumption of water is about 4,000,000 gallons or normal. The reports that the factories are doing little is not justified by the consumption of water.

—*—

Councillor Francis L. Poor's condition is somewhat improved. He is having a long siege, but his courage will pull him through. We all have our troubles, but his case is far worse than most of us have to endure. His friends are pulling for him to win out.

Peabody High Will Christen New Gridiron

Peabody high football players will dedicate their new athletic field in the rear of the high school tomorrow afternoon with the strong Marblehead high team as the drawing card for a crowd of fans that should total over 2000. Coach Marty Donovan will send his trongest lineup into the play and the Tanners will be on edge from the start. The week's practice has put the local boys in tip top shape and they expect to crowd home a victory over the Headers.

Admission will be charged to the grounds as the fans enter the playlot. A police protection will be given and the local fans are likely to witness a gridiron game under the best auspices. The Marblehead team will bring several hundred rooters over to the game.

To the credit largely of Dr. Francis J.Marrs, member of the school committee does the opening of the new football field come for he has insisted on getting the field into shape. Grading is being rushed to make the playing field in shape for the big contest.

This year the players will be numbered and the ten-yard lines indicated by the erection of stakes with the proper distance marked thereon.

Dr. J. W. P. Murphy, the P. H. S. A. A. physician, has examined the boys and with a few exceptions found them to be in excellent condition.

The annual dues of the Athletic association for all who wish to be members of the P. H. S. A. A. are being collected. The dues for the year of 25 cents are collected in the fall of the year and a button given as a receipt, to be worn on the clothing in a conspicuous place.

All members of the Athletic association are provided with schedules, admitted to all home games at a reduced price and are eligible to vote in the annual election of officers next week.

Holding that his opportunity for service was greater in his new capacity, Clarence W. Seymour, Hartford, Conn., sent in his resignation as state senator immediately after he had been elected commander of the American Legion of Connecticut. The Legion forbids its officials to hold political elective office.

South Peabody

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen of Lynn street and Mr. and Mrs. W. Gregory of Bartholomew street are enjoying an auto trip through the White Mountains. They will spend two weeks visiting the points of interest.

John Clift and family who have just arrived from England are occupying Mrs. Hall's cottage on Bartholomew street.

Mr. and Mrs. Winn Broughton of Cedar Grove avenue have returned from a trip through the White Mountains.

Miss Gertrude Holden of the A. C. L. office force is enjoying a week's vacation at Populatic Lake, Medway.

Miss Madeline Foley of Water Works road celebrated her 19th birthday last Tuesday evening. Miss Foley is stenographer for Cobb Bates & Yerxa Co. and about 30 of their employees were present. During the evening she was presented with a beautiful silk umbrella. A dainty collation was served, after which dancing and songs were indulged in, all having a most enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Rust and baby of Gloucester spent four days with Mr. and Mrs. Savage, County street.

Miss Cecelia Lynch, Samuel Brown playground instructor entertained a number of children at her home in Lynnfield last Saturday. She was assisted by Miss Jessie Lynch and the children were given a fine time. Part of the afternoon was spent under the trees around a camp fire and frankfurts were roasted. A tempting lunch was served and everyone reported having a delightful day. The following children were present: Marjorie Smith, Wilberta Smith, Hazel Hetherington, Grace Batchelder, Ruth Evans, Georgia Smith, Ruth Rich, Myrtle Smith, Earl Rich, Donald Legro and Edmond Smith.

Services at Lake Shore Park church. Morning service at 10.45. Subject: "The Obligation of Soul Winning." Sunday school at 12.10. Classes for all ages. Evening service at 7 o'clock. A Sunday school rally service will be given.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Young of Lynn street attended the Rotary Club conclave held at Poland Springs, Me. Mr. Young is a member of the Lynn Rotary Club.

Arthur Weeden of Lake Shore Park is ill with the measles.

Miss Agnes Brown of County street who was sick last week is improving.

It is with regret that we note the complaints against the High School pupils who ride on the South Peabody cars. One instance happened recently that should be a lesson. A lady was holding a two months old baby and a book was thrown and hit the baby's head. This might have resulted in serious injury or perhaps death. Passengers are disgusted with the rudeness shown and we hope these pupils will show their pride of their home city and residents will watch for a marked improvement.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Cong. church was held Wednesday evening. Supper was served at 7 o'clock with the following ladies in charge: Mrs. Ray Newhall, chairman; Mrs. Nellie Annis, Mrs. Mellie Julian, Mrs. Marion Parker, Mrs. Susie Le Cain, Mrs. Emily Gregson, Mrs. Alice Batchelder, Mrs. June Bakeman was chosen President to succeed Mrs. Rose Holden who has resigned. In behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Adams presented Mrs. Holden with a set of table linen and cold meat fork. There was a large attendance, 93 being served at the supper.

J. E. Perkins of Lake Shore Park, who has been in the ice business for a number of years celebrated his 60th birthday Saturday. He was presented with a nice reclining chair by his friends. Fred Coombs making the speech.

The Philathia class held a baked bean supper at the Lake Shore Park church last evening.

Ladies' Aid Society of the Lake Shore Park church will hold a meeting next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Platts.

Rev. Robert Bakeman went fishing Saturday and brought home two good-sized cods, one of which tipped the scale at eleven pounds and the other one weighed six pounds. This was quite a haul for an amateur fisherman.

The annual fair is to be held in the Second Congregational church the last week in October. A harvest supper will be served on the first night and the sale continued two nights after.

CIVIC HOUSE AGAIN MAGNET

The girls' classes opened Monday with a large attendance in spite of the rain and the dressmaking classes on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Dates of millinery and cooking classes to be announced later.

The boys' department opened on Tuesday and judging from the first day's registration a promising season is ahead. The evening classes especially were the largest of any first night in the last three years.

Probably few people in Peabody realize the number of boys and girls who use the Community House. Last year's figures show a total enrollment of 937 and a total attendance of 30,959. Not only the children but the grown people also use the house to a large extent. Last year 193 women were enrolled in the dressmaking, millinery, cooking and gymnasium classes. Approximately 75 men were enrolled in the evening classes in English for foreigners. One needs only to visit the House to see the extent to which it is used. Visitors are always welcome and anyone coming after school hours is quite certain to find the house, gymnasium and grounds filled with youngsters.

The House is badly in need of a small pool table, dimensions 3"x5". The present one is pretty well worn out. Anyone who has such a table stored away and wishes to donate it would confer a favor by notifying Mr. Killam at the Community House.

PERFECT PACKAGE WEEK

All trades and industries have been invited to take part in the "Perfect Package Movement," to be inaugurated by the railroads, steamship lines and express companies in the United States and Canada in November, which has been designated "Perfect Package Month."

The purpose of the movement is to stimulate further public interest in good packing of shipments and to enable the carriers to improve their service. During November, an examination of all shipments sent by freight or express will be conducted by the transportation lines, and all "exceptions" to "Perfect Packages" will be noted on special reports

These reports will be sent to the shippers of the packages on which errors have been found and the number of "exceptions" found reported to the local Chamber of Commerce or other shippers' organization, co-operating with the carriers.

Extension Department Activities

The Home Demonstration Agent is engaged in arranging details for the classes in dressmaking and millinery. These classes, in some cases, have already commenced. They are being held at various points throughout the county. Classes already underway are as follows: North Andover, Bradford, Swampscott, Lynnfield, Merrimac, Lynn (Wyoma).

Athletics

Football practice has now commenced in earnest. All of the classes are in session. About 30 candidates are trying for the team. The first game of the season will be played at Danvers Park on Saturday afternoon, October 8th at 3.00 p. m. The visiting team is Pinkerton Academy of Derry, N. H.

Work of Graduates

Miss Evelyn Bodge, Class of '18, of Peabody is taking special work in dietetics at the school.

Frank J. Croughwell, Class of '16 is developing a very fine herd and building up a dairy business. His farm is located on Lowell street, West Peabody.

Seasonal Notes

It is well to bank fresh soil about the trunks of young orchard trees. This will prevent swaying of the tree in the winter winds and also repel vermin.

Why not mark a few prolific wild grape vines and move them or take cuttings of the same for the home fruit garden? Wild grapes are best for use in some of the preserving operations.

Rhubarb, peonies and iris can still be lifted, divided, and transplanted to good advantage. A liberal mulching of leaves or straw insures the best of success.

The orchardist should now see to it that all leaves, grass and other rubbish are removed from the base of fruit trees. This goes a long way toward preventing injury by mice and other vermin.

Green tomatoes may be carefully picked and placed on shelves in a moderately warm room or under a sash for late continuous ripening. They should be harvested before frost reaches them. Some gardeners pull the vine entire and suspend in a moderately warm room or cellar thus securing good results.

The winter supply of celery should be stored before the end of October. For good results, lift the plants carefully, shake a portion of the soil and plant in a cool dark storage or cellar. The soil which surrounds the roots should be kept moist but the plants kept dry. Under favorable conditions a home supply may be maintained until late in the winter.

West Peabody

Alonzo Small has gone to the Old Soldiers' Home at Chelsea to spend the winter.

B. P. Danforth is enjoying his vacation. William Mackie, substitute, is supplying as rural carrier.

The swings at the West school belonging to the playground have been taken down. As there was no supervisor there, it was thought that the children might injure themselves.

Mr. Mattscott will preach again Sunday at 10.30 o'clock and at 7.30 o'clock. Sunday school will be at 11.45 o'clock. The Y. P. S. C. E. will be at 6.30. A large attendance is hoped for. Everyone is welcome.

Mrs. Lizzie Felt spent Thursday visiting a friend in Danvers.

The primary department of the West Congregational church held a party Saturday afternoon. A large number was present. They played games and refreshments were served.

Lawrence Durkee has returned from his visit in Washington and New York.

Miss Grace Packard has returned to school, where she will resume her work at teaching.

The junior department at the church held their quarterly party this afternoon. This was a reward for those who had made a good record of attendance.

The Ladies' Aid met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Southwick on Newbury street at 2.30 o'clock.

During the literary hour at the Grange a box party will be enjoyed this evening.

Walter Southwick of Newbury street has purchased a new Ford touring car.

All roads will lead to Martin's pit Wednesday, Oct. 12, when the Young Men's Social club will hold a clay pigeon shoot at 9.30 a. m., which is open to all members and friends.

Suitable prizes have been purchased and are on exhibition at Southwick's store. In the afternoon a tug-of-war between the married and single men will be staged, with Ernest Southwick holding down the anchor for the single men, while Carl Kiley, West Peabody's "Babe Ruth," thinks that he can keep the married men's anchor fast. There will be dashes for young and old and a doll carriage parade will be held, also boxing bouts. Much interest is being shown in the Miss West Peabody contest for young ladies.

There will be a baby contest and all parents are asked to enter their babies.

In the evening a dance and whist will be held in School hall. Then there will be the midway all day, where the hawkers will hold full sway.

The committee in charge are Lawrence Durkee, chairman, with such old-time gunners as Neal Shannon, Charles E. Whitehouse and Ernest Leach ably assisting. This committee are working to make this an even greater success than the Fourth of July celebration. Remember the time and place. All are welcome.

So. Peabody Scouts Organize Oct. 17

Monday evening, October 17th, the boy scouts will meet in the church to form a new club.

As most of the boys are getting beyond Scout age and still desire to stick together this new club, to be known as the Bosco Club, will at that time start its organization.

The club will have subordinate branches such as a Debating Club, Gun Club, Physical Culture Club, Wireless Club.

For the younger boys the Scouts will be continued.

The annual camping trip will not be dropped.

Leather Concerns Will Benefit By Storehouse

By ENERGY

A public store house for Peabody is announced as coming from the Chamber of Commerce. Without commenting on what has been done in former years, the present Chamber is doing things. Building houses to sell at cost, and now a public storage building which is needed here as much as are shoes.

—*—

There are many tanners during the year who need just such a building. Hides and sheepskins are bought in quantity when occasion requires. Prices have much to do with buying, and in hides the short-haired variety are preferred. Years ago enough hides were purchased in the fall to last until late in spring. Such hides made more leather per pound because of less hair. Some manufacturers of sheep leather plunged when prices appeared attractive and added storeroom was necessary. There is every available space now being utilized by some local tanners for their skins, and so this proposition will be welcomed as being what is needed.

—*—

A. H. Whidden and Sons having purchased property on Lowell street, mainly for storage, perhaps had something to do with starting the Chamber of Commerce venture. With side track facilities, this concern propose to have a modern plant for the many articles they need to store, and it may be that there will be plenty of room for other buildings of the same type.

Progress can be measured by the push of those who are at the helm. The present Chamber of Commerce is composed of men who have the push to do things, and their efforts are bearing fruit. To get enough of them interested to risk their money for the public good is a step which means much to our city. Some will tell you they are feathering their own nests, but too much cannot be said about the new ventures they are pushing through, for it means the beginning of an era of building homes and business blocks which Peabody needs and needs badly. When 500 families would be housed in Peabody if houses were available, it shows that the present population would be increased at least 2000. It is estimated 500 men labor here and live elsewhere, because they are compelled to.

A general improvement in the leather business is noted. Some will tell you the future is dangerous, and so is life. But every day the papers quote conditions improving, which to my way of thinking effects all business to a degree. Patent leather is moving, a great improvement being noted. Calfskins are selling freely, and only what has happened in the past makes the calfskin tanner hesitate. Sheep leather is selling, with prices cut to get the business. The return to cut methods is only a repetition of what has been. Normal times always witnessed cuts and always will. No tanner has a reputation which will sell his leather when the other fellow who makes a skin practically as good undersells him. All are struggling for the almighty dollar and there, friendship ceases.

Freights have become a factor in business costs. Once was the time little attention was paid to freight costs. But these costs have mounted to the extent that auto trucks have made big inroads into the railorad's receipts. The railroads recently have

ATHLETIC FIELD

There are many citizens who will applaud the efforts of the school committee to provide an athletic field for Peabody high school where an enclosure will aid in the financial end of this important undertaking. The proposed stadium must wait until the city treasury warrants a larger expenditure. The fame of Peabody high has been kept at a high standard in its athletics, both baseball and football and the prowess of the players has been a good advertisement for the city. No worth while athlete has ever been a poorer citizen and the training he received in his school days made him a better man when he had laid aside his lessons of the class rooms. The men who made the best soldiers were men familiar with diamond and gridiron training. This was the type of soldier who saved the world from tyranny at the hands of a mad ruler. The athletic training given to boys in their school days is of paramount importance and we do well to encourage the athletic training. We congratulate the school committee on its attitude and energy.

AUTO THIEVES

One of the great problems of today that the police have to deal with is that of auto thieving, which seems, if anything, to be on the increase. Peabody has seen several cases of late that bring home pretty strongly the necessity of taking strong measures to put an end to this class of crime. The courts can not deal too harshly with the organized professional auto thief when he is brought to justice. Just what should be done with the youth who pilfers a car either from maliciousness or in the spirit of having a joy ride at someone else's expense, is a different question. The shame of arrest and a light sentence should be sufficient in his case, provided the machine is recovered in good condition. One thing is certain, it should be easy enough to trace the stolen cars when resold, and if certain people are found to be making a business of handling this kind of property, a trap properly set should round up most of the gang implicated. Every owner owes it to himself to put private identification marks in various spots on his car that may assist later on in proving his property, and should be reasonably careful when parking his car. Beyond that it seems to be up to the police and the courts to check this nuisance.

ESSEX COUNTY MILK

The movement set on foot by local dairymen to organize and boom Essex County milk for Essex County people has the hearty endorsement of the Enterprise. While it is probably true that the present herds of the county are unable to fully supply the population, there seems to be no good reason why these herds can not be augmented and milk produced that will excel in quality any that may be imported at a price consistent with its freshness and quality. Local milkmen are delivering fresh-from-the-cow milk today at the same price of out-of-the-state milk. The new organization is planning on standardizing the grade of milk produced so that any milk put out under the label of the Dairymen's Association will be superior milk. This movement is found to work out to the benefit of Peabody people. It will insure them even a better and more uniform product than they are getting today, and may possibly increase the agricultural efforts of the city. We wish the new Association of Essex County dairymen the best of success in their worthy combination for the advancement of their industry.

KILL THE K. K. K.

In calling for a quarantine against the Ku Klux Klan, Canadian newspapers show their vigilance and good sense. They say this is one thing they don't want to have imported from the United States, whence so many good things come. And we don't blame them. The existence of any secret organization which assumes to be an "invisible government" is a reflection upon the efficiency and integrity of the real government. Loyal citizens in increasing numbers, having become aware of its true nature, are declaring they wish to have nothing to do with the Ku Klux Klan.. It is now being made the object of investigation by our federal authorities. In various sections of the country private organizations have been formed to combat its secret activities. Good citizens don't like its looks. It is operating on a wrong, an un-American principle. And any such organization is not likely to last long.—Chelsea Record.

Last Offensive Use of Arrows.

The last offensive use of the bow seems to have occurred in 1791, when two gentlemen fought a duel with bows and arrows at Edinburgh, shooting three arrows each without damaging each other.

MERCANTILE DIVISION ITS ESSENTIALS AND PURPOSE

By Don S. Roby,
Secretary Peabody Chamber of Commerce

In last week's issue you learned that the Retailer was considered, and rightly so, the real power for the uplift of the community. When the Retail Merchants realize this fact and form an organization for constructive merchandising, as is Peabody's fortune, the result felt by the city should be appreciated by every inhabitant.

What can the Mercantile Division accomplish? Much! The hopes and aspirations of the organization are embodied in the currents of activity which will characterize this division. It is to become a collective effort which will neither transgress the power nor inhibit the function of the individual member.

The Mercantile Division of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce is to become, then, a force—in which many individuals give a part of their time, a part of their thought and a part of their effort, and each throw into the scales his spare effort and his influence with those of the others. The result? An efficient piece of mechanism shaped by a collective influence and a combined thought and action.

The modern Mercantile Division is limited in its usefulness only by its membership—and any one interested in this branch of the Chamber activities is eligible to membership. The efficiency of the organization rests primarily upon an accurate understanding of what Peabody is, what it may become through thought and action rightly directed; its needs and its possibilities, the opportunities and progress already afforded it and in securing for the leaders of the division men who will set into action the principles and policies which have been agreed upon by discreet and judicious consideration on the part of all.

The Mercantile Division of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce is to be a power for good—an efficient piece of mechanism, almost unlimited in its usefulness, having at its birth a clear conception of the possible and the impossible, the feasible and the infeasible, the obtainable and the unobtainable, and relying entirely upon the intelligent crystallization of public sentiment to further the accomplishment and achievement of its primary and all-important purpose—To Promote Peabody.

FOR WINTRY SETTING

Here is a wrap that will delight those women who admire handsome embroidery and rich fringes in the company of luxurious looking furs. It is made of a fine coating of the velours type, which lends itself to these decorations and is entitled to be classed as a superb coat.

AMONG SMART FURS

Among smart furs there are coats that maintain their style supremacy without going to great lengths. One of these shorter models, which may be made of mink, squirrel, sealskin or other fashionable skins is shown here. It meets all the requirements of the new season

Or Burn the Bridges.

Be sure you are right, then go ahead, but don't destroy your return ticket.—Wayside Tales.

ROUND ABOUT

I am frequently asked why the Peabody firemen do not have regular drills. It seems a fair question and one which Chief Barrett and fire engineers may concern themselves for the best interests of the permanent firemen who now have loads of time on their hands which is not being turned to best advantage. The fire drills are a part of the routine in other cities. Chief Barrett says the idea is all right but that until the number of permanent men becomes large enough the fire drills may have to wait.

—*—

Apropos of Chief Barrett, he tells me he is off for Atlanta, Georgia tomorrow accompanied by his wife to attend the national convention of fire chiefs. Fire Engineer Arthur P. Bodge went over the road last week to Atlanta accompanied by his friend "Jack" Adams of Marblehead.

—*—

Edward J. Croughwell the sign painter is one of the leading exponents of horseback riding in Peabody. He and his thoroughbred mare are daily seen emulating Paul Revere through the bridle paths that abound in the western section of the city. His steed took a ribbon at the Topsfield fair recently against a field of championship exhibits including some Myopia Club horses.

—*—

West Peabody apple orchard owners are harvesting good crops, so I observed on a ride through that district one day this week.

—*—

Another traffic policeman (silent) has been ruthlessly annihilated, so I observed the other day at the junction of Tremont and Central streets. The identity of the motorist responsible is still a mystery. Councillor Brown's suggestion to do away with the traffic posts and mark white lines instead will eventually end the present expense of adding new posts at dangerous corners.

—*—

Frank Berryman, manager at Sawyer's store is to entertain his sister Miss Jessie Berryman of Boston this coming week. Miss Berryman is a well known illustrator and has done some very clever work.

—*—

Football practice by Peabody High players at Emerson Park is witnessed every afternoon by a large gallery of spectators who are convinced that P. H. S. has another championship eleven this fall. Coach Marty Donovan is directing the work despite a badly sprained leg received in a recent baseball game.

—*—

The many friends of Dr. Harry Kennard will rejoice at his convalescence at the J. B. Thomas hospital and will be glad to welcome him once more at his profession.

—*—

I had to travel some distance from Peabody to learn something about the boyhood days of George S Curtis, Peabody druggist, who has been sojourning on his annual fall holiday. It appears that the day was once when he rode one of those high seated bicycles with the big 80-inch wheel, and it is needless to remark he was the object of envy among his boyhood chums. I am told also that he was some speed king and his agility on the ancient type of pedal locomotion was heralded far over the domain of Essex County. George is a native of Danvers and it was from the lips of another Danvers son that I gathered this information. This perhaps explains his willingness to try aeroplane flight as he did in California some winters ago.

—*—

It takes 20 minutes to walk from Town House Square to Peabody Square. This time has been set by Milk Inspector Edward J. McHugh, who made the feat late one night this week to satisfy a crowd of debaters.

—*—

Several Peabody girls are enrolled as students at the Essex Agricultural school, so Director Fred A. Smith tells me. From the first when this school was opened Peabody has been represented among the student body and all have been diligent pupils. The school is taxed to its limit this fall and could use one or more class rooms.

Tom Meighan In Daring Escape From Prison Tops Strand Tonight

Should an innocent man who has been sent to prison on circumstancial evidence seek escape or should he resign himself to fate and serve the term? That is the question which provides the drama of Thomas Meighan's picture "The City of Silent Men" which comes to the Strand today and Saturday. This is a screen adaption of John Morosco's novel. As Jim Montgomery, Mr. Meighan contributes a part which is remarkably rich in its human appeal, in fact the finest characterization he has given since "The Miracle Man." Jim might have become reconciled to his fate had it not been for the fact that his mother was dying from grief. He finally makes his escape, but arrives home just in time to see his mother's funeral cortege leaving the home. He goes west, and in new environment, builds his life anew. He is traced by a detective, and he knows that he can be identified by finger prints. How does he win his freedom? The answer is so unusually strong and dramatically effective that to relate it here would be destroying interest for the spectator. Lois Wilson heads Mr. Meighan's supporting company. Larry Semon, the inimitable comedian, in his new laugh producer "The Bell Hop" is another decidedly worth while attraction for today. Mr. Semon has a brand of comedy all his own and may always be safely counted upon to make all who see him perform enjoy themselves to the utmost. Ann Little in "The Blue Fox" will also be shown today.

Dorothy Dalton in "Chicken Casey" and Paula Shay in "Like An Old Fool" will be the double feature bill for Sunday evening.

Cecil B. DeMille, perhaps the foremost motion picture producer in the country, will display his genius at its best in his new film sensation "The Affairs of Anatol" which will be shown at the Strand on Monday and Tuesday. From every standpoint—investiture, its all-star cast, sumptuousness of settings, brilliance of directorial execution, richness of costumes, general artistry and quality of story, this picture marks an epoch in screen production of the decade.

The story written by Jeanie Macpherson, and suggested by the famous play by Arthur Schnitzler, deals with an impressionable young man of wealth who finds time to interest himself in the affairs of others and who learns by practical experience that it pays best to attend to one's own affairs and let others do the same.

The cast is superb and includes such stars as Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Elliot Dexter, Bebe Daniels, Monte Blue, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts, Agnes Ayers and Raymond Hatton. Their portrayals are artistic and add greatly to the value of the production. Take it all in all it is the outstanding film success of the year, a picture that has played to standing room only wherever it has been shown.

Manufacturers Bowling League Season Opens At Victor Alleys

The Inter-Factory Bowling league started the ball rolling last Tuesday evening at the Victor alleys and if enthusiasm displayed by the packed house which greeted the bowlers is any criterion, it is safe to predict the greatest bowling league ever organized in this city. The Bleachery Five won first honors with a total of 1374, and S. Bailey of the B. E. Cox team was high man with 302. Six teams, whose scores are printed below, made a good showing on the start off, and the six other teams will bowl this evening.

There will be great rivalry between the factories and the N. H. Poor Leather Co. has come forward with a generous spirit, and will pay all the expenses of their team, besides offering to give their team a cash prize of $50 if they win first place and $25 if they come out second. These tokens of generosity and good fellowship on the part of the management of a factory goes a long way toward a better feeling of comradeship between the employers and employes, and it is hoped that all the factories, who have teams in the league, will follow the good example of the N. H. Poor Co. and offer some cash prizes, both for team and individual bowling for their team.

called the local expressmen together with the idea of getting back this business. In order to do so it becomes necessary to cut the rates, and it is reported the rates will be cut to the point, which will attract business. This cut will extend throughout the country, and the question arises what effect it will have on auto trucks. In many localities these trucks have acquired a strangle hold. Many with experience will tell you the cost of running them makes money making out of the question. But they still hang on and are a source of worry to the railroads. Low railread rates will win, the railroad officials say. It looks that way, but time only will tell. But one thing is assured. Freight rates will be lower and it will cut costs of production to some extent to say the least.

I hear that the United Shoe Machinery Co. have started to improve leather machinery. A German company has been a keen competitor of the United Shoe for some years in shoe machinery. This German company have been in competition with local companies on the leather machinery, and as the United Shoe have taken over the Turner company, I am told they are working on a measuring machine which will be much improved over the present ones. This company have always had the faculty of turning out machinery which has been the marvel of engineering genius. I am looking for a measuring machine from them which will be in the same class. This machine when completed will be the beginning of a new era in leather machinery. It is to mean that all such machinery will be improved, and not only this company but the others in the same line will now put forward their best efforts to improve, which will mean much to the tanner. Perhaps it would appear that I consider the present machinery unfitted for use. Far from it. Only keen competition improves any output. There has been no such competition in leather machinery. Therefore, it has not been the policy of leather machine manufacturers to change types of machines only by slow processes. It was not necessary. But the reputation of the United Shoe has been to produce the best and to that end big money has been spent to accomplish it.

Church Notes

First Baptist Church

Rev. C. N. Bartlett, Pastor. Sunday, Oct. 9—9.30 a. m., Bible school 10.45 a. m., "A Great Baptist Pioneer." (A biographical sermon.) 5.45 p. m., Christian Endeavor. 7 p. m., "A Triumphant Victim." Third in sermon series in "Modern Echoes from Ancient Dramas." Service in the auditorium. Special music.

Monday, Oct. 10, 8 p. m.,—Illustrated lecture on "The Beauties of the White Mountains," by Richard Mackintosh. This lecture is under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood and is open to all the members of the church and congregation.

Sunday, October 2nd was observed as Rally Day in the First Baptist Sunday School. An interesting program greeted the large number at the early hour of 9.30. Having the Sunday School hour just previous to the church has been successfully introduced into many of our neighboring churches. It is to be given a fair trial at the First Baptist. A large number of the pupils went to the auditorium for the service following. The Lord's Supper was observed immediately after this service. At seven in the evening the second of the series of popular Sunday evening sermons was given by Rev. C. Norman Bartlett, pastor, "The Wounded Wrestler" being the title. Special music, with a solo, by Mrs. Albert Bailey made the service most attractive.

An open meeting by the Brotherhood next Monday evening will enable many to hear a lecture on the White Mountains with lantern slides by Richard B. Mackintosh.

St. John's Church

Rev. T. P. McGinn, Pastor.

Sunday—Masses at 7, 8.30, 9.45, High Mass at 11. Children's Mass at 8.30 (lower church).

St. Paul's Church

Rev. Francis L. Beal, Ph. D., D. D., LL. D., Rector. Trinity XX. 9.45 a. m., holy communion. 10.30 a. m., morning prayer and sermon. Prelude for boys and girls: "The Sea Wall." Sermon topic: "The Sin of Worry." 12 m., church school. 6 p. m., confirmation class. 7 p. m., choral even song and sermon. Topic: "Prayer in Song." This is the first of a series of choral services to be held on the second Sunday evening of each month. The service will be musical throughout and should appeal to the many lovers of good music in the community. All will be welcome.

Tuesday, 7.30 p. m., Knights of King Arthur.

Thursday, 8 p. m., Sunshine and Shadow bag social. Entertainment and refreshments.

Unitarian

Preaching at 10.30 by Rev. E. D. Towle, "Justice exalted in Massachusetts." Church school at 12.

Methodist Church

Evangelist Powell will speak at 10.30 a. m. on the subject, "Love Four Square", at 3. 30 p. m. on "Walk With God", and at 7 o'clock, "The Perfect One."

Every members of the Sunday School should be present at noon to participate in and enjoy the song service. Monday evening the Evangelist will speak on the topic, "Gossip".

Evangelist Felix, will preach tonight and tomorrow evenings, at 7.30. He has been heard through the week with keen interest, and has shown himself a man of much resource, having a fine vocabulary, gifted in sermonizing, humorous, sympathetic, and dramatic. He has a fine tenor voice, which he uses much in song, plays the cornet well, and is a master at leading and directing congregational singing. The weeks services have proven very helpful to many, their primary purpose being to create an atmosphere of christian thought and feeling, in which it will be easy to live and serve. These special services will continue, each evening, through the coming week. A most cordial invitation is extended to every one to attend.

South Peabody Church

Robert A. Bakeman, Minister. 10.30, subject: "The Hidden Christ." 12, School of Religion. 7. p. m., The Chambered Nautilius, "Build Thee More Stately Mansions O My Soul." Prelude: "The Klu Klux Klan." Is there room in America for anti-race and anti-religion crusades? Mid-week service this evening.

LEATHER SALES SHOW IN GAIN

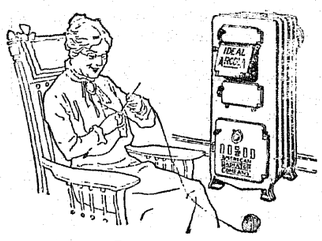
Sole leather trading runs mostly to heavy leather. Small lot purchases are the general rule. Sole cutters are buying a longer range of weights. New York reports general situation better. More hemlock sole inquiries reported. Hemlock bends are moving for export. Volume shipped continues small. Heavy weights of finders' leather command premiums. Buyers are purchasing light weight bends in order to get the heavies. Chicago notes increased inquiry as well as increased sales of finders' leather. Philadelphia reports 5c. advance on heavy bends. Offal markets unchanged. Purchasers buying in hand-to-mouth manner. Sales large enough to prevent accumulations. Side upper leather fairly active. Leather at a price still in demand. Choicest tannages are steady in price. More inquiry and more buying of combination tanned sides during the week. More general export buying of upper leather of late. Purchases consist mostly of small lots, including side leather for work shoe purposes, patent sides and glazed kid. Calf leather trading slowing up, light weights particularly. Patent leather still in demand. More demand for lower grade sheep for inside purposes. Better grades of kid continue to sell faster than standard tannages can be produced.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

LODGE BOWLERS TO OPEN SEASON

Captains and representatives of the Victor Inter-Lodge Bowling League met at the Victor Alleys Wednesday evening and organized a league. On account of four lodge nights per week it was decided to make it a six team league and have all teams bowl on Wednesday night. Bowling will begin on October 19th and continue for twenty weeks. Prizes will be offered, and a banquet will be held after the season is over. Harry Hay was elected chairman and Henry D'Entremont, secretary-treasurer.

TAILORED STYLES

With lines that follow those of the natural figure, with becoming new style points in its sleeves and collar, and just enough of rich decoration in its embroidery and sash, this tailored frock for fall and winter is destined to be beloved of its wearer.



South Church

Peabody Square, organized 1713, Rev. John Reid, Minister. Sunday, October 9. Service of Worship at 10.30 a. m. Preaching by the pastor on "The New and Old in the Kingdom". Sunday School at 12. Evening service at 7. The pastor will speak on "The World's Greatest Sermon."

Friday evening, October 7. Prayer meeting.

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

Is Labor a Commodity?

We hear a good deal said about Labor being a commodity, but we use so many words without knowing what they mean and have so many meanings for the same word, that people are confused by a lot of loose talk they dont' understand.

What is a commodity? The dictionary says it is "something that is bought and sold." What then is labor? The work of men's hands or of men's brains is labor. The work of a horse or an ox or any other kind of an animal that is a helper to man, is labor also. But when you write labor with a big letter,—like this, Labor,—then nobody knows what you mean.

So labor is work and when any thing is made 80% of the manufacturing cost of that article has been paid for labor. Paid to the men who produced the raw material from the mine, from the sea, from the farm, or the forest; paid to the men who transported the raw material by rail or by boat to the factory where it was used; paid to men and women in the factories who by the work of their hands or brains made that raw material useful to mankind, giving their daily service for the good of the whole people. When that article (say a pair of shoes or a suit of clothes) is sold to the retail store four-fifths of the amount received has already been spent for labor. The other one-fifth or 20% pays interest on the invested capital, taxes to the government, maintenance, repairs, upkeep and profits.

The amount paid for labor has entered into the cost of the article which is bought and sold. The article is a commodity and the labor that entered into its value is also a commodity because as the article is bought and sold all that went into the value was also bought and sold. The labor of men's hands and brains is certainly a commodity. BUT—The men who labored with hand and brain are not bought and sold. Those men are not commodities like horses or oxen. Years ago we fought a long and bitter war because men and women were bought and sold in one part of this country. To be sure they were colored men, but they were no less men because their skins were dark. Since that day men are not bought and sold in this country. They are not commodities.

Men are free in this country. Free to work or not. Free to work for a boss they like or to quit their job when they don't like the boss. Slaves cannot be free like this; they must work for the boss who owns them whether they like him or not. There are no slaves in these United States except the men who enslave themselves by hate and fear and suspicion and distrust; these, too, may be free men if they will only believe in their job and their future and their country and their God.

It is when we begin to spell the word labor with a big L that we get mixed in our ideas. We set up a class apart and call it "Labor" and another class we call "Capital" and never stop to think what either word means. For instance, every man who has a deposit in a savings bank is a capitalist. Every man who owns a house has capital of his own. Everyone who has his life insured or owns a stock of goods in a store or who owns a horse and cart or even a pushcart, that man is a capitalist. The people of Massachusetts have put over a billion of dollars in the Savings Banks of this State,—there are over 2,000,000 of these people,—every single one of them is a capitalist and a laborer at the same time. I don't like to see Capital and Labor written this way.

Suppose we write them like this,—employer and employee; it would sound different if we said "Is the employee a commodity?" Sound a bit foolish but no more foolish than to say "Is the employer a commodity?" Why not? His labor of brain and hand and muscle and thought has gone into the cost of the article and is just as much a commodity as the labor of the employee.

And when all is said the employer and employee have have the same object in their work; to give service to the public. They are working together in that service. They are cooperating and when they begin to understand that they must give each to the other "A Square Deal" in their cooperative service, then they will know they are partners, each doing his part of the work. When that day comes (and it is on the way) we won't write the word labor with a big L, for we'll know that we all labor.

Neither will any one ask such a foolish question again. "Is Labor a Commodity?"

CHARLES H. EGLEE.

INCUBATOR BABY STRONG ICEMAN

Miss Helen Z. Gill, matron of the North Shore Babies Hospital, has had one perplexing question answered for in a way that was entirely unexpected.

That she is interested in seeing her young charges redeemed from sickness to health and grow every day fatter and fatter under her watchful care goes without question. But after they have left the hospital, what becomes of them?

"Wouldn't it be interesting" she has said to friends, "to meet some of these babies in after life and to have the satisfaction of knowing that they have grown to be healthy, able men and women!"

Then only the other day she had a glimpse into the future, for the discovery was made that the husky lad who was helping put ice in the hospital's refrigerator had been a premature baby who had been carried through the difficult beginning of his life by the Hospital nurses, until now he is doing a man's work in a man's way.

Of course Miss Gill doesn't expect every promising boy who starts under her direction to become an iceman, but she has gained a renewed faith that her charges will grow up to useful manhood and womanhood.

"ALL ABOARD"

eyes on swains seeking her daughter's hand won much praise for her able work, the more so because she was called into the play at the eleventh hour to fill a gap. There were no pauses, no player had to be coached from the scenes and the comedy sailed along with pep and melody that reflected great credit on the players. The chorus was well costumed and made up of many pretty maidens, each of whom showed the diligence with which they have rehearsed their parts.

Joseph Lalor, the comedian in the play, had the house in gales of laughter. His voice will probably carry farther tonight.

Miss Anna Hooks of Salem shared the evening's honors with Miss McCarthy for her clever acting and excellent singing. She was a bright gem in the comedy and as sister of the leading man, Henry Collins of Salem, did much to insure a safe passage of the "All Aboard." A dancing feature was given by little Bessie Hickey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Hickey. One of the best numbers by the chorus was the "Song of the Sea Nymphs" given by young girls. The show was under the direction of Victor B. Brown, representing the John B. Rogers Producing Co. Another performance will be given tonight.

The Y. M. H. A. and Firemen bowlers will clash again tonight for a blood match. The Firemen hope to even up the contest. Manager Bernstein of the Y. M. H. A. challenges any lodge team to a match.

THE GREATEST picture in cast and rich investiture ever made since the photoplay began.

Imagine scores of settings, every one of them more elaborate, more daring, more luxurious than anything you have ever seen on the screen. Now imagine twelve of the best-known players in America, working under the magic direction of DeMille.

If you can imagine one superlative picture with all this—and more—you will have a slight idea of "The Affairs of Anatol."

People have been talking about it a year in advance. They'll be talking for ten years after.

BROWNELL LEAVES MANY FRIENDS

BENJ. A. BROWNELL

Peabody friends of Benjamin A. Brownell, retiring manager at Parke Snow's, will wish him all success in his new field as manager of a large dry goods and notions store in Haverhill. In his year in Peabody, Mr. Brownell has made many friends and has been a zealous worker to boom local trade. As chairman of the mercantile division of the Chamber of Commerce, he has proved a good leader.

He was born in Dover, N. H., where he went through the schools. He entered the employ of a big five and ten cent store while a freshman in the high school and later was transferred to Malden and Boston stores of the same concern. He went with Parke Snow in January, 1920, and came to Peabody as manager in October of last year. He is a member of Jordan lodge, A. F. and A. M., of this city.

RIORDAN WINS GOLF HONORS

Michael J. Riordan, telephone lineman, will soon receive a gold medal from the Telephone Golf Association as the winner of the championship cup this season. He won the tourney at Belmont, getting possession of the first leg of the cup, which must be won three times to be awarded.

A few weeks ago Riordan topped the famous Jesse Guilford in a matched drive at Rockport and was awarded a pair of gold cuff links.

Another of his golf feats this season was making the best gross score at Tedesco links last month. Riordan began his golf instruction as a caddy at the old Salem golf club and is heralded today as one of the best golfers in Essex County. He faced some clever rivals in the telephone tourney.

McNIFF BREAKS WRIST

Peter McNiff has returned to the Lee Pharmacy after having been confined to his home since last Saturday evening when he sustained a broken wrist in an automobile accident on the turnpike. "Pete" will continue to carry it in a sling for another month but so far it seems not to have altered his genuine disposition.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dodge and Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Macdonald returned Wednesday from a motor trip that took them into four of our New England vacation states. They reported perfect weather and beautiful foliage throughout the ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Irving returned this week from Alton Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lombard motored this week to the White Mountains.

Dr. Ralph Foss left this week for Nova Scotia, P. E. I., where he will join Mrs. Foss.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Porter will spend the next two weeks at Bert E. Cox's camp in Maine.

Miss Frances Halloran of Franklin Hill is confined to her home with sickness.

Mrs. Frank T. Arnold is touring through the White Mountains resorts with a party of friends.

Oscar Lane of the Central Fish Market attended the Brockton fair Wednesday.

After an enforced absence of a month Miss Mary H. Poole has resumed her position in the teaching force at the Old High School.

Miss Ruth Farrington is spending two weeks with friends at St. Albans, Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Ingraham and family have returned from their summer home at Conomo Point, Essex.

David Aylward and family and Clarence Barnes and family attended the Herrick-Aylward wedding at Salem last Tuesday evening. Miss Nancy Barnes had charge of the guest book.

The Women's Association of the South Church resumed activities for the season last Tuesday afternoon.

Sylvester P. Taylor of Chestnut street met with a serious injury the latter part of last week when he fell in his home and in striking a piece of furniture fractured two ribs. He is confined to his bed under the care of a trained nurse and is reported this morning as being as comfortable as could be expected.

Mrs. T. Hadley Sawyer is at the J. B. Thomas hospital recovering from an emergency operation for appendicitus performed last Tuesday.

Frances Carroll of Franklin Hill returned home from a two weeks vacation at Oak Birch Inn, Alton Bay, N. H.

The new storehouse of the N. H. Poor Co. is completed and is being used by the concern. It has added materially to the appearance of the plant and will increase the capacity of one of the few leather manufacturers who have shown any evidence of being busy.

PERSONAL

Employes of the Thayer, Foss Co. contributed $38.50 for the benefit of the Peabody student who is being aided by a committee of Peabody women, including Mrs. Alice Howley, Mrs. George Millett and Mrs. R. A. Sturgeon. The committee wishes to thank Frank Perry and the employes who made up the subscription. With food sales added, the women have raised $381.14.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Doyle of King street have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Rourke of Mandan, N. D., who are motoring through the East. Mr. O'Rourke is a former Salem man and is well known here.

Mrs. P. H. Coleman and daughter Esther have returned home after a six weeks' trip to Gratiot, Wis.

Miss Louise Moxley is visiting relatives at Maplewood farm, Plymouth, N. H. She will resume her studies at Burdett College on her return.

Children living on Forest street and Turnpike in vicinity have been given transportation to school. Councillor Walter H. Brown who has the contract for conveying West Peabody pupils to the West school says that in the past some of the children on Forest and Newbury streets have refused to ride, preferring to walk. He also denies the report in the Enterprise that more money is to be asked for his services in transporting the pupils.

Peabody Lodge, No. 96, K. of P., will hold a special business meeting this evening. All members are requested by the chancellor commander to be present.

FIREMEN WILL SCALE LADDERS IN PEABODY SQUARE TOMORROW

Peabody will observe fire prevention week tomorrow afternoon with a gala demonstration of its fire fighters in action in Peabody square. The exhibition will include hose laying, putting streams on imaginary fires and shooting the deck gun. Several thrills are in store. The exhibition will be staged at 2 o'clock when an alarm from box 21 will be sent in, followed by a general alarm. A short parade of the fire department will conclude the demonstration.

The fire drill follows a conference between Mayor Shea and the Chamber of Commerce, which suggested that the public exhibition be staged. Acting Fire Chief Thomas F. Hutchinson will be in charge.

The Program

Fire alarm operator at Fire Headquarters at 2 p. m. will send out 2 rounds off box 21 on the fast and slow time together.

First Alarm

Truck 1, Engine 1, Combination 2, Hose 3 will respond.

Truck 1 will proceed to Mill St. and raise ladders to buildings.

Engine 1 will connect the hydrant at Edgerly's store and lay 150 feet of hose to center of square, put on pipe and let on water.

Engine 1 will proceed to Mill St. and take chemical line to top of buildings.

Combination 2 will connect to hydrant near Curtis drug store and lay line of hose to center of square, put on pipe and let on water.

Hose 3 will connect to hydrant at South Church and lay line of hose to center of square, put on pipe and let on water.

Second Alarm

Fire alarm operator at Fire Headquarters at 2.05 p. m. sharp will send

Carroll School Has Own Bank

A school bank with cashier and bookkeepers on the job is the innovation at the Thomas Carroll school which is adding enthusiasm among the depositors and saving much valuable time for teachers. Principal Larrabee is sponsor for the innovation which serves 385 pupils in his 11 classes. Each class files to the cashier's window and deposits his or her cash. The weekly banking today reaches $47. The idea is good enough for every other grade school in Peabody for it effects a real saving of time on the part of the teachers who are able to conduct that part of the class not depositing money.

Heraclea Calomion of 56 Northend street is cashier, Magdalene Maistrelius of 44 Harris street and Kriaki Prokopi of 12 Emmet street are bookkeepers. William Weinstein acts as monitor keeping the depositors in line. A large sign over the window of the cashier read "Thomas Carroll School Savings Bank".

CITY RENEWS NOTE

For the first time, it is believed in the history of Peabody, the city has been compelled to renew a note. City Treasurer Elmer J. Foley thus met a school note due yesterday for $150,000 by renewing the paper for six months. He was able to get a quotation of 4.969 as against 5.84 at which figure the note was converted last April.

CLERK DOWD READY TO GIVE OUT RECORDS

City Clerk Edward J. Dowd, who has refused to allow the Peabody Enterprise to inspect the records of marriage intentions on the grounds that they were not public records, is now willing to permit this paper and any citizen to see the records, according to his answer filed in the supreme court at Boston today through his counsel, Donnell and Powell, the latter handling the case.

The editor of the Enterprise asked the supreme court to issue a writ of mandamus some weeks ago to compel Clerk Dowd to allow this newspaper to inspect the records. Judge Pierce, before whom the petition was brought, intimated that the records were public property and that Clerk Dowd's stand plainly defeated the very purpose of the law which called for the publicity.

Clerk Dowd told the court that he did not consider marriage intentions a public record until the marriage return had been made to his office, and that his ruling was merely following a custom by the Poor family, whose three generations had been represented in the City Clerk's office.

President Duggan, who introduced himself, made the statement to Judge Pierce that Clerk Dowd had been acting on the instructions of the City Council. Duggan was not under oath. The City Council members knew nothing of Duggan's statement nor do they support him. Had the hearing been

PEABODY GRANGE GETS THIRD PRIZE

The Chebaco Pomona Grange held a competitive drill for the ladies' degree teams of the subordinate granges in this district at the Peabody City Hall on Columbus Day, afternoon and evening. Owing to illness, the Georgetown team did not compete. Supper was served by the Peabody Grange. At 7 o'clock the Middleton staff gave a fine exhibition. They were followed by Beverly Grange, who made the hit of the evening. Peabody made a good showing. Then came the judging and Beverly with Mrs. Katherine Page as master, was given first prize of $25. Middleton was second and Peabody third. Over 500 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Smith and Mrs. George C. Farrington returned from a motor trip to Canadian points and White Mountains yesterday.

Walter Clerk For Registrar

Mayor Shea sent in the nomination of Walter Clerk, Republican, to be registrar of voters last night to succeed Timothy Cunningham, Democrat, who has faithfully served on the board since 1905. Mr. Cunningham resigned to make way for a Republican member, as required by law. City Clerk Dowd and Thomas Butler, chairman, are the Democratic members of the board.

The mayor in another communication presented a proposed bond issue of $60,000 with which to pay for furnishings and grading of the new schools and the measure was voted advertised. By its terms the city ob-

City Hall Notes

Five manufacturing concerns have contracted for sprinkler systems to be installed in their plants. They are the Carr Leather Co., C. P. Osborne Co., Marine Harware Co., James F. Ingraham and Budgell & Harrigan. The sprinkler contractors have notified City Engineer Emerson that they stand ready to indemnify the city for the expense in opening the streets to give the larger water pipe connections.

—*—

Acting Fire Chief Thomas Hutchinson has arranged the exhibition of fire fighting for tomorrow in celebration of fire prevention week and promises to give the citizens a worth while show. The firemen are enthusiastic over the exhibition.

—*—

The City Council has appointed a Transportation Committee consisting of Councillors Jones, Barry and Brown. The Committee from the Chamber expects to invite the Council Committee to meet with them jointly for the benefit of the Cty from a moor and pedestrian standpoint.

—*—

Work of grading the High school cannot be finished this year. Only the levelling process and walks can be accomplished. It is interesting to compare the cost of this addition to the High school with that of Wakefield. A chance to save big money would be the outcome.

—*—

There is talk of starting a beauty contest among the policemen. With their new caps it would be difficult to pick the winner. We could suggest a way, but be it understood we think all would get favorable mention. It is to the credit of this department to try and outdo their neighbors in other cities as to appearance. We might add that traffic officers should wear white gloves, not only for appearance but auto drivers can see the motion of the arms much plainer.

—*—

So this department will form a sick benefit organization. An organization of this kind helps much in time of trouble which comes to all of us. The city cannot do all of this work, so we believe the police are on the right track.

—*—

The carpet in small city hall has been put down again. We think someone made an error in giving this hall over to dancing again. If one party uses it others have the same right, in all fairness. Peabody certainly needs a hall capable of housing 800 people, suitable for dancing or any other purpose required. When any new blocks are contemplated, such a hall should be one of the first matters to plan for.

—*—

Judge Hill of Salem has been occupying the bench this week, in the absence of Judge Manning. Our new judge plans to try cases promptly, and by so doing keep the cases well in hand. They have accumulated in the past thus making it a difficult matter to keep the list clear.

—*—

Many stories have been circulated as to change in the probation department. We do not believe such a change is contemplated, and as the Governor has the appointing, we expect to see Mr. Sim continue.

—*—

Another new machine has appeared, driven by Inspector Pierce. We presume somebody will pay for this machine as well as the one driven by Warren King, but how seems a question in city hall. Inspector Pierce as well as superintendent King need machines that are efficient and their records bear out the statement they are on the job. No one will object to giving such officials needed tools to work with.

—*—

Collector Sherry informs us that taxes are coming in well, even above the average. With the hard times this record is certainly commendable. Our tax rate is several dollars lower than most Massachusetts cities, even if it was raised $7.10.

—*—

The question of sewer frontage assessments has and is causing all kinds of trouble in settlement. The fact that one owns a piece of land with a large frontage in sections where the sewer is laid and little in the way of buildings, makes a tax which is unjust as compared to a thickly populated district. Many do not understand that the assessors have nothing to do with this assessment, and that the City Council has the power of abatement only. Several parcels have been advertised for this tax which holds as well as on the tax of real estate.

—*—

The collector's office is a busy place this week, when the time limit expires on the payment of taxes. The present force is handling the work without additional help, when in former years additional help was employed. The office is open evenings as well.

—*—

The city clerk's office have issued 153 gunning license this fall, which is about the average of past years. The game laws have been so changed as to hold the sportsmen down slaughtering the feathered tribe. It might be well to put a bounty on the many cur dogs that are running loose in the outskirts. They would afford a much better mark for many gunners who need a large target. After all the birds are not taking many chances with a majority of gunners.

—*—

Salem is making little noise about sewers of late. They have not used the papers much to strengthen their cause. There are too many short comings of their own to explain if the sewer question came to the court. Engineer Emerson is not worrying about the Peabody side of the case, for he believes we have done as well as Salem toward keeping the sewer free.

We all enjoy a good time.

From eight to ten cents a day for meals and a bed is the rate in a hotel just opened in Des Moines, Ia., by Sheriff W. E. Robb, who does it for jobless ex-service men in addition to his other duties. Only cards supplied by the American Legion and trades and labor assembly of the city will admit guests.

—*—

One hundred aliens manning the shipping board's fleet at Camp Eustis, Va., have been discharged and their places filled with unemployed American seamen following representations of the American Legion of the state. The fleet now consists of 320 vessels in charge of skeleton crews and 300 more ships will be added soon.

—*—

Whether to wear brown derbies or corn-stalk shirts is a question puzzling members of the Iowa delegation to the American Legion meeting at Kansas City this month. All are agreed that they should wear something distinctive. More than 1000 Iowans will attend the convention.

—*—

A former soldier, jobless, and with a wife and five children to support, had 50 offers of employment when his case became known to Kansas City citizens. Sleeping on the floor because he had no bed, the service man was roused early by a rush of calls from the American Legion's employment bureau where he had registered only the day before.

—*—

Sixteen world war veterans from one post of the American Legion in Tulsa, Okla., have settled upon government homestead land in Scott County, Southern Arkansas. By cold weather, it is estimated that 100 ex-service men will have taken claims on the land.

T. B. HOSPITAL

The defense of the tuberculosis hospital in Hathorne as outlined by County Commissioner James C. Poor at Andover last week should go a long ways toward putting a quietus on the criticism against the institution on the grounds of its cost. No one who has inspected the remarkable institution will deny the County Commissioners saw well to their task and builded a monument in their zeal to give Essex County the best in modern hospital facilities which in later years if not today will be warmly appreciated. The man or woman who enters the hospital in Hathorne has but a meagre chance to be restored to home and society because of the ravages of the white plague that holds them in its terrible grasp. Why then, should not every comfort and convenience be at the disposal of these human beings in the last days of their existence? It is true that this wonderfully equipped tuberculosis hospital cost a million and a quarter of dollars, a sizable amount, to be sure, in these days of limited money and lack of employment. Yet who is going to say that County Commissioner Poor is not right when he says the best is none too good for the sick men and women who pass within its portals? If the hospital avails in making happier the terrible ordeal of sick patients the taxpayers of Essex County have received their reward in building this great hospital. The Enterprise congratulates Commissioner Poor on his righteous defense of the institution for which he and his fellow Commissioners are responsible. It will long stand a monument to their wisdom.

ARMISTICE DAY

Plans for a fitting celebration of Armistice Day for Peabody are in the making and all citizens will be eager to have this city properly honor the anniversary day of world peace. This city sent 1068 men into the war service and 24 of this number gave their lives while in the uniform of the country. There is excellent reason why we should honor the memory of our soldiers and sailors who represented Peabody in the war service. The American Legion Post is at work arranging a program for the day and the Post leaders are entitled to the earnest cooperation of the citizens in seeing that this city does full honor to the men who fought our fight a few short years ago.

VOLUNTARY ASSOCIATIONS

The bill recently passed by the Massachusetts legislature holding voluntary associations legally responsible for their acts should meet with the favor of voters when it appears as a referendum on the ballot this fall. There seems to be no good argument against holding such a body of men responsible for the acts of their agents, and much harm may result from allowing such associations to go on without the responsibility and privilege of sueing and being sued. This bill will bring manufacturers' associations, trade uinons and similar organizations of people bonded together for the advancement of a mutual interest within the pale of the law, and when brought up in the House and in the Senate, passed both bodies by a good margin and received the signature of the Governor. It should receive the support of the people when it appears as a referendum.

CLASSES IN ENGLISH

Next week sees the opening of the classes in English for the foreign-born in Peabody, under the plan operated last year, the school board conducting the work and various local agencies, as Chamber of Commerce, Community House and factories, cooperating. With so little immigration at present, it is an excellent time to concentrate on the education of the illiterate at present within our midst, and by so doing raise the standard of our city. The knowledge of English is the first essential, and it is possible, while teaching English, to impart a great deal of knowledge of American history, government and ideals so that the foreign-born becomes more a part of us at the end of his course of lessons than as though he had been left to pick up his own English in hit-or-miss fashion from his associates. It has been proven that classes in English for the foreign-born are most successful when held in places other than schoolrooms, in spots adjacent to their work or homes as community centers or factories. Factory classes have been operated in Peabody for three years, while last year showed for the first time the benefit of evening classes in social centers like the Community House. By no means a small feature of previous year's work along the lines of education for the foreign-born has been the citizenship class held each season for those preparing for the naturalization court. Any man who has had his first papers two years and who misses registering in this citizenship class is missing a wealth of information along the very lines he needs in order to be fit to take his place as a citizen of the U. S. A. We trust that this year's work in the problem of education for the foreign-born of Peabody will be fruitful of the best kind of results, and wish the school board the best of success in their conduct of the work.

AGE IN MASSACHUSETTS

According to the census of 1920, 28.0 per cent, or nearly three-tenths, of the people in the state of Massachusetts are either infants or children under 15 years of age; 7.8 per cent are young people 15 to 19 years old; 39.9 per cent, about two-fifths, are men and women in the prime of life, being from 20 to 44 years old; while 24.1 per cent, being 45 years of age and over, are well along in middle life if they have not reached old age.

A little over three-fifths of the population, 62.6 per cent, are old enough to vote, being 21 or over; and in this class the women outnumber the men in the ratio of 106 to 100. The males of military age, 18 to 44, constitute 42.7 per cent of the male population and 21.0 per cent of the total population.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

According to the census of 1920 there are 483,762 children 7 to 13 years of age in the state of Massachusetts and of this number 464,752 or 96.1 per cent were reported as attending school. In 1910 the percentage attending school was 96.0. Of the children 14 and 15 years of age in 1920, 73.9 per cent were attending school and of those 16 and 17 years of age, 40.6 per cent.

OUR MERCHANTS

The Human Equation

By Don. G. Roby, Secretary Peabody Chamber of Commerce

Sometimes we unconsciously overlook the human equation; we forget the human element in business; we lose sight of the personal touch. To what degree this is done by the Retail Merchant may depend largely upon the Merchant himself and the extent of his success; the more successful the more human—and vice versa.

Rubbing elbows has a beneficial effect whether done literally or figuratively. Customers—when acquainted with the Merchant—lose suspicion, cease to be violently skeptical and learn cooperation. The Merchant must realize this fact and find that his hearty cooperation with his customer will hasten the loss of suspicion, will stem the tide of skepticism and his human attitude tempered with charity and justice creates an invaluable influence which spells Success.

You were told two weeks ago that the Merchant is dependent upon the community for his very existence. He is to a large degree—but his successful and continually prosperous existence depends upon the personal touch he exercises in the conduct of his business.

What do we mean by the Human Equation? The quality of the goods carried and demanded by the public plus the service—polite—courteous—pleasing—untiring—and value giving which results in satisfaction.

To illustrate the necessity of applying the Human Equation in every day business as one important factor in keeping the trade in Peabody—the following examples, authentic and recent, may be cited:

One woman needed a good iron kettle in which to fry doughnuts. She tried at every store but was unable to make the desired purchase. Had the clerks offered to get it for her it would have shown polite, courteous and untiring service—but they did not. What was missing? The Huma Equation!

A man wanted to paint his house. He bought ten pounds of pigment paint. It was not quite enough. He went back to get another can. The store didn't have it in stock—failed to suggest where it could be bought—and lost a good customer. What was missing? The Human Equation!

A woman wanted some dress shields. She wanted the type that are on a net foundation and known among the trade as Tu-pair Dress Shields. She visited practically every store. They weren't in stock—no one offered to get them for her and she was compelled to go out of town for them. While away she bought a frame for a silk lamp shade because she couldn't get that here. She had tried previously to get some fringe for the shade she was to make. No one kept silk fringe in stock—so through lack of the Human Equation she made several purchases which might have been carried out right here.

Growth—successful progress and an efficient Mercantile centre are founded upon the utilization of the Human Equation—the literal following of the Golden Rule and if we all remember to use the Human Equation we are doing all in our power to Promote Peabody and Trade at Home.

Had Sighed Over Calf's Hair.

My first love affair came to a climax when my sweetheart discovered that he had been carrying a "lock" of the calf's tail next to his heart for several months, under the illusion that it was a lock of my hair. He had insisted upon having a lock of my hair, but I, having none to spare, and finding that the color matched exactly that of my red calf, substituted that. It answered the purpose very well until a small boy gave the secret away. Then I was denounced as a true daughter of Eve!—Exchange.

ROUND ABOUT

Peabody girls who are among the alumnae of Simmons College are receiving copies of "Simmons is Awake" a four page newspaper dedicated to the million dollar endowment fund. It is a chatty little paper with a great deal of news matter of interest to the alumnae.

—*—

I walked up to the Peabody reservoir last Saturday afternoon and from the round house I was able to scan the ocean from Winthrop to the Marblehead lighthouses. The foliage-turning in its autumnal shades presented a spectacle worth going to behold. It struck me that some little attention was in order at the reservoir at the hands of the city such as repairing the wire which encircles the fence about the basin.

—*—

City Weigher Joseph Bolster is receiving congratulations from his many friends on his return to his duties at the city scales following a long seige of illness which kept him confined to his home. He suffered an attack of phlebitis in one of his legs. Joe's sunny disposition went far to get him back on his feet.

—*—

South Peabody boys and girls who ride home on the electric car from high school have been winning praise for their excellent conduct the past few days. They are making less noise and book throwing sport has ceased. Principal Woodman has a compliment for the boys and girls, so I am told.

—*—

Joseph O'Connor, former Peabody high star baseball player, was largely responsible for the victory achieved by Salem over Haverhill on Columbus day when Chick Davies shut out the Merrimac River lads 1 to 0. It was O'Connor's sharp single that put him on the bases and later put him in the way of getting home with the only run of the contest. He has been a big factor in the support given Davies this season.

—*—

General Francis H. Appleton's short address before the Peabody Rotary Club last Tuesday was well received and proved interesting, as he told of his early days in Peabody, then South Danvers. He attended the funeral of George Peabody in 1870, the General being a member of the First Corps of Cadets.

—*—

Peabody football fans who attended the Haverhill-Lynn Classical football game at Haverhill on Columbus Day were: Dr. Henry I. Yale, Philips Osborn, Harold Childs, William P. Casey, George Poeton, Roger Ferren Frank Lynch and Ralph Basford.

—*—

Friends of Capt. Louis P. P. Osborne, former member of the school committee and first chairman of the assessors under the city form of government, are urging him to run for Councillor from Ward 6 this next election. A contest between him and Clarence W. Barnes would add much interest to the off year election. I understand that Capt. Osborne is soon to announce his intentions.

—*—

In the last three weeks a break in power service at the Peabody Electric Light plant has cost Peabody manufacturers real money and in the opinion of many prompts the question why Peabody does not contract with the Tenney system at Salem to supply an emergency line here to cover these breaks and reduce the loss to the plant and manufacturers. The interruption yesterday morning lasted for 15 minutes. On two successive Fridays an interruption of some duration was recorded. Shops cannot run without power and an emergency line would seem to be good business.

The Peabody Chamber of Commerce recently purchased one hundred town plates for use on automobiles. These plates were received a short time ago and already some twenty-five sets have been secured by those who drive automobiles. There are about twenty-five sets remaining which may be had at the rate of one dollar per pair or singly at fifty cents each. Civic pride and a just desire to make the city known on the State Highways prompts many to place these attractive plates below the number plates of their cars. The plates are in dark blue with PEABODY in raised white letters.

CREPE AND BEADS

It appears that georgette crepe and seed beads were made for one another, and it is useless to try to keep them apart. In the new blouses for fall and winter they show their fitness for each other as set forth in the model pictured here. Beads in two colors make a rich and very tasteful embellishment for this blouse.

Facts.

A fact is an excellent thing and you must have facts to write about; but you should realize that even a fact before it is ready for presentation must be cut and polished like a diamond.—James Bryce.

Essex "Aggie" School Notes

County Poultry Winner

Philip Dimlick of Salem street, Andover who is a graduate of the Stowe School, and now a student at the Essex County Agricultural School, is receiving congratulations upon being chosen the poultry champion of Essex County. Philip made five dollars per bird in the Poutry Club Contest. He hatched over two hundred chicks and had a cockerel weighing six pounds at four months of age. He plans to enter the contest again this fall with one hundred pullets which are coming along finely now.

The Trustees have appointed Mr. Charles E. Abbott of Andover as member of the Women's Advisory Council. Mrs. Abbott has been very active in woman's club work and other constructive organization work. She will be a great help in counselling the work of the school.

Trustee James C. Poor has loaned the School a valuable Holstein cow for extending testing. Never in the history of the School have the students had access to as many and as fine animals as are now available in our own barns and on adjacent farms. The results of this opportunity are constantly showing up in their work.

Seasonal Suggestions

Gladioli and dahlias should be carefully lifted now, taking care to shake away the soil and dry the bulbs or tubers moderately before placing in frost-proof storage for the winter.

Fall is the proper time to apply lime. Many gardens soils would be greatly improved by an application made in the fall. Constant freezing and thawing and washing distributes the lime evenly throughout the soil.

Many gardeners are able to practice fall plowing. This is a decided advantage since it destroys weeds, troublesome plants and many obnoxious insects. The constant freezing and thawing throughout the winter improves the average garden soil.

Fallen leaves should be composted and not burned. The practice of burning road-side leaves in the gutter is both a nuisance and a fire menace. Many gardeners will be trying to purchase stable manure next spring for the garden, when the decayed leaves might largely serve the same purpose. Thrift and good judgment both demand a more sensible use of these various fertilizing materials.

Butterick 30 Years Telephone Manager of Peabody and Salem

Robert P. Butterick, manager of the Salem and Peabody districts for the New England Telephone Co. recently completed his 30th. year as manager of the district. Telephone Topics plant magazine of the corporation in its issue for this month recounts the record of service given by Manager Butterick in an interesting article. Manager Butterick has many close friends in Peabody who will wish him 30 more years of successful service. The article in part follows:

Manager Robert P. Butterick of Salem, celebrated his 30th anniversary as manager of the Salem district on Monday, August 15, 1921.

Mr. Butterick, being of a modest disposition, told no one of this anniversary. It was only by chance that one of his office force learned of it when he dictated a letter in regard to the years of service of himself and S. Fred Smith of the Salem Electric Lighting Company, who received his appointment as manager of that corporation on the same day as Mr. Butterick, thirty years ago.

At one o'clock, Mr. Butterick and Mr. Smith celebrated by going to lunch together. The office force then got busy decorating his desk. Mr. Butterick was very pleasantly surprised upon his return.

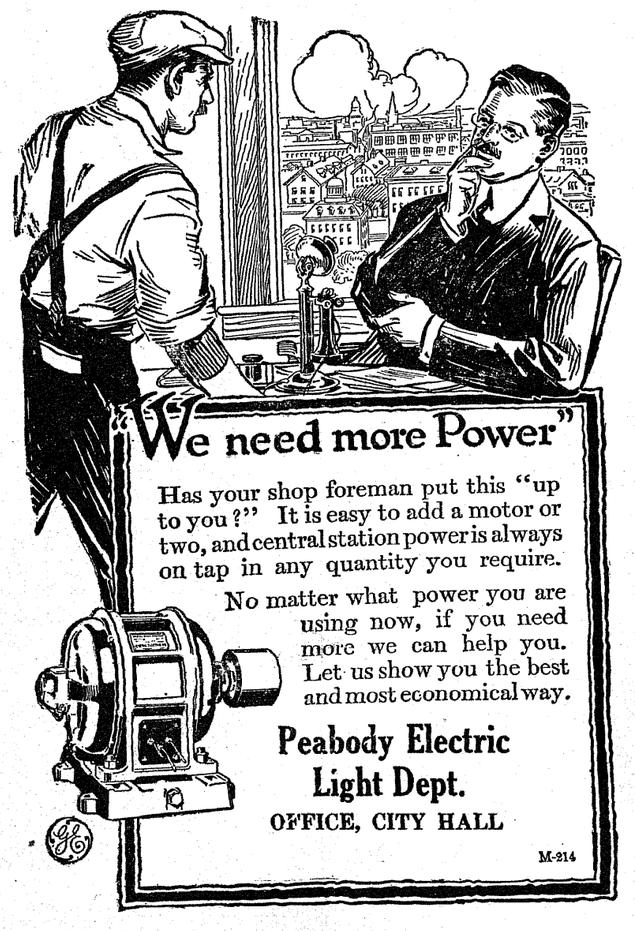
In speaking of his 30th anniversary as manager of the local telephone exchange, he recalled that in 1891, the Salem district had but two central offices, one at Salem and the other at Peabody. The total number of subscribers in the whole district at that time was less than 500, whereas today it has grown to 17,000, an increase of 3300 per cent. To keep pace with this growth, it has meant a continual change in methods and apparatus. Wires were formerly strung on poles, trees, and across house tops, none being underground. In 1892 a start was made putting wires in cables underground, and the development has continued so that today in the center of all cities and towns, overhead wires are a thing of the past.

In 1891 the force of employees consisted of a manager, three repairmen, six day operators, and two night operators, whereas today a force of about 500 are doing work on the various branches now necessary in the district.

Mr. Butterick was originally connected with the Lynn exchange, then known as the Boston and Northern Telephone Company, later being transferred to Salem, in charge of installation of telephones, which position he continued to hold until he was appointed manager in August, 1891.

Mr. Butterick entered the employ of the Company in January, 1884, and has given over thirty-seven years of loyal and efficient service. Much credit is due him for our success in the Salem exchange district.

STRAND THEATRE OFFERS 'GOLDEN SNARE' TONIGHT---THRILLING FAR NORTH STORY



"The Golden Snare," adapted from James Oliver Curwood's thrilling story of the same name, a worthy successor to "The River's End" and "Nomads of the North", two of Mr. Curwood's earlier productions, will be the main attraction on the bill the Strand will offer for today and Saturday. The irresistible appeal of the great North country about which Curwood writes permeates "The Golden Snare" just as it did its predecessors. Lewis Stone, as a member of the Royal Northwest Mounted selected to bring back "dead or alive" Bram Johnson, long wanted fugitive from justice, is the featured player. Wallace Beery plays the hunted Bram Johnson and gives a wonderful characterization, a part that compares favorably with his role in "Go and Get It." Ruth Renick portrays the girl Celie around whom the mystery of the golden snare and the madman of the barrens centers. A beautiful romance is interwoven in the story. The photography is remarkable. Night in the Artic, a raging blizzard and Bram Johnson driving his pack of savage wolf-dogs are a few of the striking scenes. Ann Little in "The Blue Fox" and one of the funny Toonerville Trolley comedies will be the other attractions for today and Saturday.

When "The Old Nest" comes to the Strand for a three day showing starting Sunday, the people of Peabody will have a chance to see a picture that has been hailed by critics and reviewers and the most satisfying all-American picture that has yet been produced. The theme, that of a mother who sees her six children leave her, one by one, is common to American families. All the poignancy of feeling that these leave-takings arouse in real life have been caught on the screen. Rupert Hughes is the author of this unusual tale of mother love. He has sought to present a cross-section of a universal theme as applied to an American family. All the joys and sorrows connected with raising a family have been dramatized. Each of the children grow to manhood or womanhood with his own individual interests, then leaves the old nest to follow the call of his desires. Only their mother is left to her loneliness and her memories. But, as in every American family the young remember the old nest and return to it.

In the cast Mary Alden plays the leading role, that of the mother. Other featured players are Helene Chadwick, Cullen Landis, M. B. "Lefty" Flynn, Molly Malone and Dwight Chittendon. Dr. Frank Crane, famous author and lecturer, was so impressed with the picture that he wrote an editorial in which he said, "Hughes has taken down one wall of the American home of today and you walk in and know the family. It is sure proof that the photoplay of today is something more than an amusement for "The Old Nest" drives home a bigger lesson than a hundred educators could produce in a lifetime."

WHITE ARROWS ON STREETS

The Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Harry F. Whidden, chairman is considering ways and means of properly lining out direction for the use of autoists passing through the square of Peabody. White arrows pointing out the directions of going around the monument are thought necessary to avert a possible accident in the future. White cross walks from the Post Office to Manning's and to Raymond's also are thought necessary for the convenience of pedestrians.

SHOE WORKERS UNION MUST AID PLANTS

(By ENERGY)

The leather industry today is in a waiting mood for the reason that prices are dropping, the shoe manufacturer as usual hammering prices down. One can sell leather today at a price. That price must be lower than the other fellow, unless it be that the leather in question has a personality which gives it preference.

It is the story I have been telling for weeks. Leather of the ordinary kind is wanted at a price. But I could name manufacturers in Peabody, whose product is selling, and that product is recognized as being better than others makes. This statement applies to calf, sheep, side leather and in fact all staples lines.

It is indeed unpleasant to the tanner to admit that perhaps his output does not quite equal the leather of his competitor. It is false practice for one to keep telling those interested that his leather is the equal of the other fellow. The best proof whether it is or not is, does it sells on today's market? The question of price comes into this argument. The tanner today must meet competition in prices. One western concern, a concern recognized as one of the leaders in the trade, is selling side leather of recognized quality for 15 cents a foot. Western shoe manufacturers are buying this leather and making shoes that are and look the money, the prices being lower than the east prouuces. We of the east are telling ourselves that the shoe business is being done in the west. Not a difficult problem to fathom, for with cheap leather and cheaper labor than we have, we lose.

Why fool ourselves as to this condition. Why not face such competition by cutting costs of production? The eastern shoemaker apparently is drunk with the idea that war prices must and will continue, and if they do not, we will not work many of them say. If this saying so will bring results, all right.

Perhaps many will say I am writing against unionism. Far be it for me to take such a stand. But one must look the situation squarely in the face. Why let the other sections get the jump on us at a time when the question of location of shoe making is liable to be settled, not for a short period, but indemnitely. Many may differ with me, but I go on record as saying that we are facing a proposition which will affect New England seriously, and as our section is isolated geographically so to speak, and the trend of business is toward the middle west, the problem is simple.

Prices of raw material and finished leather is at a low ebb. No doubt the sagging tendency has much to do with business. They tell me extreme hides, by which is meant, 25 to 40 pounds in weight, are selling for three cents a pound. This price is the lowest in my recollection. In years past, tanners would purchase hides in quantity at this price. They would do so today, but for the fact that they owe money which must be settled first. The hides quoted above are country takeoff. They are not quality to be sure, but will make good leather with the proper tanner behind them.

What a peculiar condition as regards patent leather. When other leathers are sagging, patent leather is having the call. What can it mean? We all know this leather is not durable for every day wear. If we are jazzing it fits, or any function where dress suits and low neck and back dresses are the thing. What would make the fickle public take to this leather at this particular time is beyond me. But without trying to figure out why, it is well that any leather is selling.

What we of Peabody would like to see is a kick to the leather business that would start new business. I quoted the Chamber of Commerce last week as starting the building game, and when a start of this kind occurs, it has a decided tendency to encourage others to do likewise. I do not believe there is any need of so many things in the building trade being so high. I paid 45 cents for five pounds of nails. So down the line. The exception to these prices is in the plumbing trade, I might add sheet tin trade. No one need to buy iron conductors today when copper ones are as low. Never was copper as low.

I am told that some tanners are in the throes of another commercial storm. All have weathered a similar storm which was supposed to clean up all troubles. But with prices dropping, there is trouble to face, but I expect to see all again weather the storm. It takes large sums to carry on the leather business. Even those who have money in plenty must borrow at times. The banks get their profits from these sources.

Refinishing of leather continues thrifty. The John E. Hasseltine concern who purchased the Little property on Foster street, have work enough to take them into the new year. Louis Verza and his associates are doing a big business in this line. There is always leather in the stores in Boston which does not fit the trade. Therefore by refinshing that leather into something that will sell, gives these refinishers a lucrative business. It requires genius to take leather that will not sell at any price and reproduce it to attract the buyer. This refinished leather looks and gets the money.

The feature of the sole leather market is the firm adherence to price quotations on the part of the tanner. Heavy leather is well sold up and sole cutters are buying in an active way the medium and light weight backs. Export business is improving and sole leather exports prove that some of the foreign buyers are now in position to buy American tanned sole leather, in spite of conditions. —Shoe and Leather Reporter.

Judge Manning On Committee Of Harvard Men

Harvard College alumni of Peabody, Salem, Danvers and other places in Essex County will hold an informal meeting at the Salem Golf Club next week Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing a Harvard Club of the North Shore. James D. Phillips of Topsfield is chairman of the organizing committee and James C. Turnbull of Salem is secretary. On the excommittee are Judge Daniel C. Manning of Peabody and Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester.

N. Horton Batchelder President of the New England Federation of Harvard Clubs and Prof. Clifford H. Moore of Harvard and one of the football coaches will be the speakers. Peabody has a number of Harvard alumni who will probably join the organization.

FOOTBALL CHALLENGE

The Athletics of Peabody a 13 year old football team scored its first victory last Saturday when it defeated the Spring street Stars 24 to 0 at Emerson Park. Manager Sam Lecker of 90 Aborn street wants to hear from any other 13 year old boys team in this city. The lineup of the Athletics is composed of M. Salkowitz, quarterback, H. Salkowitz, and H. Aimbinder half backs, S. Rosenstein, and Ruben guards, Pitcoff and Hoffman tackles, Isenberg and Shaffman ends, Lecker and Linsky, center.

ASKS SUPPORT FOR NEW TEACHER

Editor of the Enterprise:

May I speak for the co-operation of our entire citizenship as well as of our teaching force with our new Supervisor of Music, Miss Anna Sullivan, as she begins her work in Peabody.

Miss Sullivan comes with a rare enthusiasm for her work and a vision of a larger use of music in the community. What she did during the war for Community Singing is a part of Gloucester's history.

Way we not all join her in her effort to make Peabody a singing community?

Yours truly,
ROBERT A. BAKEMAN

FR. MATS DANCE

The annual October dancing party of the Father Mathews C. T. A. S. of this city will be held this evening at the Young Men's Hall, Boston street, Salem. Potter's orchestra will furnish the music, and a good time is assured.

TREMONT THEATRE

New York a hundred years ago, when Debrosses Street was far up town, when Gramercy Park was a pond and Wall Street the Fifth Avenue, is shown in "Little Old New York", at the Tremont Theatre, Boston. Rida Johnson Young is the author of this charming comedy, produced by Sam H. Harris and staged under the personal supervision of Sam Forrest.

It is a delightful play interpreted by a cast of uniform excellence with Genevieve Tobin in the principal role. New York then was not a 'gay', sporty place but a sedate village where the laws were enforced, a reward of $500 being offered for the capture of any rogue. To this village came Patricia O'Day, posing as her own brother Pat. To Pat has been left a fortune which the O'Day's stepcousin, Larry Delevan, had counted upon as his own. But Pat is dead and Patricia, urged by her father, has donned his clothes and comes to impersonate him. How she does this, how the girl is just a girl in spite of her clothes, how the trick is exposed and the charming ending, form the story which is delightfully refreshing.

Genevieve Tobin plays Pat deliciously. Pretty as a boy and even prettier as a girl, she plays the role with spirit and charm. Her attempts to reform that rake, Larry Delevan, are immensely funny and her song and dance in the prize ring at the firehouse causes one to rock with laughter. Incidently, the prize fight between Bully Boy Brewster and the Hoboken Terror, with bare fists, and the free fight that follows it are both exciting and funny.

Our Business.

It is therefore our business carefully to cultivate in our minds, to rear to the most perfect vigor and maturity, every sort of generous and honest feeling that belongs to our nature.—Edmund Burke.

Before another issue of the Enterprise, the special meetings being held at the Methodist church will have closed, and Evangelist Felix Powell will have taken his departure. All who have attended credit Felix with being an evangelist of ability above the average, with his very life in his work, never sparing himself in the least, a preacher extraordinary, and a brother to all. The meetings have been very helpful to individuals, and profitable to the church as a whole. For Peabody the attendance has been good, and large numbers have attended from near-by communities, Danvers, Topsfield, Beverly, Jamaica Plains, Wakefield and other places. In recent years no more satisfactory evangelistic service have been held under the auspices of this church, and Felix is enthroned in the hearts of the people, who will long look back to these meetings with gratitude.

Saturday evening is to be church night, when Mr. Powell will talk specifically to church members and their relation and obligation to the visible kingdom of God. Every member of the church should be present if possible. Mr. Powell can be very helpful to the membership if they will just give him a chance.

Red Cross Plans $5,000,000 Effort To Save Children

Medical care and clothing for thousands of children in Central and Eastern Europe are outlined as the activities of the American Red Cross in Europe for the current year, says a statement on the eve of the Annual Roll Call of the organization. These activities, supplemental to the feeding operations of the European Relief Council of which Herbert Hoover is chairman, are designed to provide the most adequate and balanced relief within the resources of private philanthropy.

Through the establishment of child welfare stations in the centers of population of those countries where adequate medical care is not now obtainable, the American Red Cross plans to provide the medical assistance needed to restore these children to a normally healthy life. The sum of $6,000,000 has been made available for this work.

NOW THE TUXEDO

When the sweater-coat began to grow luxurious and aristocratic it assumed a new name—it is now the Tuxedo. It is made in wool, fiber silk or silk, with much attention given to its design and finish. Here it is shown in silk, with self-stripe, bordered by a strip in contrasting stitch, finished by narrow fringe and belted with plaited girdle.

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

MONEY

We talk about money so much and so often that we are apt to think that it is the most important thing in life. We lose all sense of proportion and think that the more money we have the happier we are, but really money is only a tool we use in our work. It is wealth that counts for so much in our daily life, real wealth. Railroads and ships and factories and homes and schools, these are the wealth of the nation. Money is like a cart or a wheelbarrow; it moves things from one man to another or from one place to another, that is all money can do. If you want a pair of shoes you take some of your labor to a shoemaker,—what you take to him is money, but it is really some of your labor,—and you can move a pair of shoes from his shop to your home. A leather manufacturer pays money for hides, pays money for wages, pays money for freight and cartage and rent and other things and the result is he moves hides from the farmer to the factory and moves leather from the factory to the shoe maker. Money is one of the tools the manufacturer uses to make leather. That is all money is,—a tool,—and like every other tool it must be kept at work or it is useless. And that is all that money can do. It can work and move real things from place to place.

The things that money moves about from one place to another are pieces of wealth. It moves furniture into your home and you have so much more wealth. It moves buildings into a town and the town has more wealth. It moves docks and storehouses and ships and machinery and sets them all at work; the nation is wealthier. All this wealth is the result of labor, work, sacrifice, saving; all this wealth is stored up labor.

Before the war wealth was so abundant in this country that many people look at it as they looked at air or water. Our factories were always here; they were as natural as the clouds or the sky; we saw them every day. Then the war came and destroyed so much wealth that now men feel its loss as they never have before in our life time. $350,000,000,000 of wealth burned up, shot away, destroyed. Three hundred and fifty billions of dollars worth of labor thrown away. That is the real reason we are having hard times all over the world today and the reason for the high cost of living. Good times will not come again until the world has worked and sacrificed and saved all that accumulated wealth again.

Savages do not save; they do not look ahead. As civilization grows men save a little seed from their crop to plant the next year; as men get more civilized some one saves enough to build a factory and run it; a lot of men get together and build a railroad; their money is set to work to help build these things and we are all benefited. Little by little the tool we call money helps the labor of men's hands to build up prosperous business. We need both,—the labor cannot get its reward without money,—the money is idle and useless without labor.

It is not possible to think of money saved and put into a bank or invested in a factory or a railroad, without thinking at once that it is being used somewhere to pay wages, employ labor, move things that men want, build up business. The rich men who invest their money in order to grow richer are really trustees of their wealth and are using it for the benefit of labor whether they know it or not. The only way a rich man can use his money without benefiting the wage earner is to lock it up in a safe and only spend as much as he needs for his living; in other words to keep his money idle and not let it work; if it is invested in any form it is used to employ labor and pay wages. No matter how mean a rich man is he simply cannot stop his money being used just this way.

The great danger is not that men can get too much money together and abuse people by the power of their investments. The great danger is that men will lock their money up and not invest it at all; as soon as they invest it it is put to work and pays wages; but if a lot of men got together $350,000,000,000 of money and locked it up, the world would have just as bad times and high costs of living as it has now because such an amount has been destroyed by war.

ligates itself to pay $3000 a year on the borrowed capital.

In a third communication to the Council, Mayor Shea returned a letter from the Eastern Mass. St. Railway trustees who appear to be playing possum with Peabody in the matter of restoring the Lynn cars to lower Washington street. He saw no reason why the Council should change its recent vote giving moral support to the railroad on the question of repaving the tracks one or two years hence.

Councillor Barry argued for another conference with the trustees to convince them that the City Council intended to play fair, but that it could not pledge in advance the vote of the next City Council. The railroad has promised to repair the tracks on Washington street and asked the Council to vote to favor repaving the tracks later.

Councillor McKeen flayed the trustees singling out Attorney Arthur Wadleigh of Lynn with great emphasis, although without license since the hearing before the trustees some weeks ago was arranged for Mayor Shea by Attorney Wadleigh, who personally inspected the tracks and favors the railroad restoring the service on Washington street.

Councillor Ryan said that the taxpayers would have to pay the bill for repaving and that the taxpayers wanted the service restored to Washington street.

Councillor Brown raised the issue of a single fare within the city limits and his motion was finally incorporated in one, by Councillor Barry, which seeks to have the railroad trustees consider at once restoring the Lynn cars on Washington street. At the conference a plea for a single fare in Peabody limits will be urged.

Councillor Eagan spoke on the question urging getting the cars back onto Washington street to accommodate the winter travel.

Councillor Barry fathered a motion appropriating $1500 with which to extend street lighting and his motion called for a committee from the Council to confer with Manager King as to the places where more street lights are badly needed. This committee is composed of Messrs. Barry, Reed and Hogan.

City Solicitor Farnham rendered an opinion last night to the effect that Manager King of the Electric Light had a right by statute to purchase an automobile without advertising. With this ruling, City Auditor Goggin will probably approve of the bill for $1500. Councillor Brown announced that the $1000 appropriated two years ago to probe the affairs of the Electric Light plant had been turned back to the City Treasury.

City Engineer Emerson appeared before the Council last night and said the water in the new drinking fountain on Tremont street would be turned on in a few days, as soon as the concrete had hardened.

Councillor Reed introduced an order to allow the City Auditor to abate $2 on the poll tax of the firemen.

Two Jurors

Arthur Ellis of 17 Franklin street and Edwin Earp, Jr., of Glendale avenue were drawn for civil jury duty at Lawrence next Monday.

On motion of Councillor Brown of the finance committee the Council appropriated various sums to meet overdrafts in the Health and City Engineer departments.

Councillor Brown announced that the Salem Gas Co. would soon start work of extending its gas main on Forest street.

CLERK DOWD

continued today, President Duggan might have been given a chance to correct his statement.

Attorneys Donnell and Powell, representing Clerk Dowd, have advised him that the marriage intentions were a public record and that the editor of the Enterprise was entitled to inspect them as any other citizen. This advice is part of the answer filed by Clerk Dowd in court today. The full text of his answer will be published later.

Judge Robert W. Hill, who represented the Peabody Enterprise at the first hearing for the mandamus writ, quoted the only available decision which gave a Pennsylvania newspaper a writ to inspect the marriage intentions. As announced above, Judge Pierce expressed amazement that any city clerk should declare the marriage intentions not a public record, and he advised Clerk Dowd to secure the services of the City Solicitor and file an answer to the petition of the Enterprise. City Solicitor Farnham declared he could not argue the case on the grounds that he did not concur with Clerk Dowd in his stand.

Every newspaper in the state has been waiting for a court decision today and Clerk Dowd's answer will be given much publicity.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO HOLD THIMBLE BEE

The Peabody Woman's Club will hold its next meeting Friday afternoon October 21 at 3.30 in the Vestry of the South Church where a Thimble Bee will be held. The members will be entertained by the Glee Club and Club Orchestra of Peabody. Tea will be served. A large attendance is looked for.

At the opening meeting a very large audience listened to the musical ability of Constance and Henry Gideon who proved themselves excellent entertainers. At this meeting the President Mrs. Herbert H. Buxton announced that this year at each meeting a Penny Collection would be taken as the members made their exit. The pennies are to buy flowers for the sick members of the club. Mrs. Buxton proved herself a most efficient presiding officer.

NATURE CLASS

Owing to the extremely dry season, mushrooms are scarce. In order to find the greatest number of species in the shortest time it will be necessary to visit old woods. The nearest woods for this purpose are at Pride's Crossing. Take train at Salem tomorrow at 1.15 p. m. for Pride's Crossing. Return from Pride's Crossing at 4.36, due in Salem at 4.53. Those wishing to go by automobile may meet the party at 1.45 at Stamford street corner Greenwood avenue. This place is about ten minutes walk from Pride's Crossing. A mushroom hunt in this region usually nets from 25 to 50 species, including several dangerous ones.

The recent rain brought out many mushrooms and the walk tomorrow should be very productive. Over 80 specimens were found Columbus Day.

On Monday evening Oct. 17, the class will meet at the Community House at 8 p. m. for an exhibition and talk on mushrooms.

LEO GUILD

A meeting of Leo Guild will be held in K. of C. hall next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, and all members who have returns for tickets for "All Aboard" are requested to make same not later than that evening. The Guild is planning a busy season and already has been called upon to do an amount of work among the needy. The result of "All Aboard" was most gratifying and a substantial sum has been added to the treasury, which will enable the society to continue its good work.

The annual Guild banquet is being planned by the committee of which Mrs. John Meagher is chairman, and is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the members and their friends.

Mrs .T. Hadley Sawyer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the J. B. Thomas hospital last week, is reported as convalescing rapidly.

Frank H. Sanger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, returned Sunday from a four weeks' tour that included Cuba, Jamaica, Panama and Costa Rica.

Mrs. Carrie Porter of King street is visiting her niece, Mrs. Carl Woodman, at Utica, N Y.

Miss Dorothy Partridge, daughter of Rev Wells M. Partridge, former rector of St. Paul's parish, was recently elected president of the sophomore class at Wheaton College, where she is a student.

Miss Dorothy McCharles is visiting relatives at Groveland

Warbausee Campfire of Peabody, Ruth Farrington guardian, held its first meeting at the home of the guardian. An assistant guardian was appointed from an older campfire group and officers for the year appointed and the girls are planning to keep the health chart and a play is under discussion

Carl Woodman, formerly of King street, but now located in Utica, N. Y., paid a flying visit to relatives and friends in Peabody last Tuesday.

Mrs. Albert MacManus of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly Miss Clara Masterson of this city, became the proud mother of a girl born last Tuesday at the J. B. Thomas hospital.

Miss Louise King spent the week-end with relatives at Georgetown.

Miss Frances Carroll of Franklin Hill was one of the attendants at the wedding this week in Boston of Miss May Cullen, formerly of this city.

Friends of Brian Healey are urging him to run for Councillor from Ward 6. Brian has many supporters in West Peabody where he has his residence, and they feel that their district should be represented by a man living in that neighborhood. He is also strong in the lower end of the ward. He has not declared himself yet whether he will run or not.

COURT RULES CITY CLERKS MUST NOT CONCEAL RECORDS ENTERPRISE WINS VICTORY

As a result of the petition of the Peabody Enterprise for a writ of mandamus to compel the City Clerk of Peabody to exhibit his records of marriage intentions, two members of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts ruled that these records are public and as such should be open to the inspection of every citizen or newspaper. At the final hearing held in Boston last week Friday before Justice Braley, City Clerk Dowd through his counsel Charles J. Powell admitted his error and told the court that he was ready to show his records to the Peabody Enterprise and other citizens of Peabody.

The ruling by both Justice Pierce who first heard the petition and Justice Braley is a victory for every newspaper in this state.

City Clerk Dowd gave as his excuse to the court for withholding the records that he was carrying out a policy of his predecessors. He did not say how he could have proved the point. He did not tell the court that he was instructed to withhold the records by order of the City Council as President Duggan told Judge Pierce at the first meeting.

In its story of the final hearing the Salem News says the Peabody Enter-

SANGER REPLIES TO HOUSING CRITICS

A STATEMENT OF FACT BY FRANK H. SANGER

Much adverse and absolutely unwarranted criticism has been thoughtlessly hurled at the Peabody Housing Corporation and the Peabody firm of contractors now being employed by the organization.

Such criticism deserves decisive denunciation at the very outset.

The house now nearing completion on Ellsworth Road and erected under the supervision of the Peabody Housing Corporation is modern, complete and complies in the minutest detail with the Building Lays of the City of Peabody. This statement is made advisedly and on no less an authority than Michael F. Bresnahan, Building Inspector of the City of Peabody.

In order to correct any delusions on the part of those who have criticised the methods employed by the corporation, the materials used by the contractors and any other minor matters of immaterial importance, the E. H. Porter Company authorizes the statement that the second house now beng commenced will not only comply with our building code but will satisfy the most fastidious critic who has striven to mislead the citizens of Peabody.

The Peabody Housing Corporation has met a long felt want—has conducted its business in an open manner—has given employment to local people and insists upon absolute compliance with Peabody's building laws. We welcome criticism but desire it to be constructive—not destructive.

CITY PREPARES TO MEET R. R. STRIKE

Following a conference late Tuesday afternoon between the Chamber of Commerce, Mayor William A. Shea and City Solicitor Horace P. Farnham, relative to the emergencies which may arise from the threatened railroad strike, the following committee was appointed by the Mayor: Mrs. Felix Carr, Mrs. H. H. Buxton, City Councillor Brown, William F. Sawyer, Bart J. Ronan, D. G. Roby, Secretary Chamber of Commerce, His Honor Mayor William A. Shea, ex-officio.

The object of the committee is to protect the people from exploitation at the hands of dealers in food and fuel. It may be necessary to invoke war measures for this purpose. Throughout the State speculators have been making plans to capitalize the uncertainty of the railroad situation by hoarding food and fuel in an attempt to realize unearned profits. As far as we can learn this speculation has not taken place in Peabody.

The Commission appointed is to prevent any such speculation and to advise the public against any panicky action in the present crisis. In case of emergency the Chamber has sent out a letter to all firms and corporations employing the use of motor trucks requesting that they cooperate with the authorities in securing the necessary transportation of food and fuel should such a dire necessity arise.

The first meeting of this Commission will be held in the Mayor's office this evening at 8 o'clock, and it is expected that a survey will be made of the amount of food and fuel in the stocks of the various dealers and the prices paid for same in the anticipation of a grave disaster.

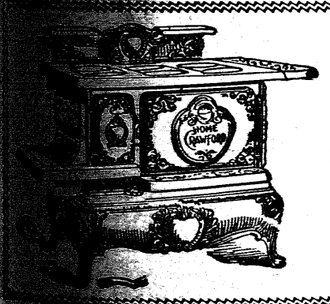
FITZGERALDS' SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Fitzgerald are today observing the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. This morning at 7.30 o'clock anniversary mass was celebrated at St. John's Church in honor of the occasion by Rev. Thomas R. McGinn. Fitzgerald is vice-president and treasurer of the Turner Tanning Machinery Co. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald have two daughters, Miss Elizabeth, who entered the novitiate of the order of Notre Dame at Waltham last month and Miss Frances, who makes her home with her parents on Perkins street, where they will entertain their friends this evening.

Keefe School Is Dedicated

The dedication of the new Daniel Francis Keefe schoolhouse on Washington street took place last night and was attended by several hundred citizens who gathered to pay tribute to the young soldier in whose honor the school was named.

The dedicatory exercises consisted of short addresses by His Honor Mayor W. A. Shea, and President of the Council, Henry F. Duggan. The principal address of the evening was splendidly delivered by Hon. James J. Mullen, Clerk of Courts at Charlestown and state organizer of the American Legion. Mr. Mullen extolled the patriotism of such young men as was Daniel Francis Keefe, and impressed on those present what a fine thing it was to have a schoolhouse, where Young America was to learn the love of country, named for a soldier who had died for love of country.



Following the speaking there was an inspection of the building and a demonstration of the fire alarm system in the school. An entertainment was given by Misses Margaret Griffin, Mary L. McCarthy, Ollie Quirk, Clarence Hartnett, Charles Enos. Dancing was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Torrey of Kosciusko street are soon to leave for Eastlake, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

prise has done every newspaper a favor in bringing this successful petition to give publicity to marriage intentions. The following article is from the Salem News:

Peabody, Oct. 15.—In the supreme court at Boston yesterday, the hearing on the petition of Frank W. Penniman for a writ of mandamus to compel Edward J. Dowd, city clerk, to allow the petitioner and his employes to examine the notices of marriage intentions filed in the office of the city, was resumed before Justice Braley, with Judge Robert W. Hill for the petitioner and Donnell & Powell for the respondent, Mr. Powell representing the law firm. After a brief hearing, in which it was admitted that the city clerk acknowledged his error and had opened the records to the public, the justice dismissed the petition without prejudice and without costs, no malice having been shown.

Judge Hill made a statement outlining the case of the petitioner, and Justice Braley asked what the clerk had to say and what justification he had for refusing to show the records. Attorney Powell replied that the city clerk had been in office only a short time and was following the custom of his predecessors and of clerks in other places, as he believed, not to allow such notices to be seen until a marriage license was issued, except by parties directly interested, as it sometimes happens that a marriage never follows the intention filed. In the opinion of the city clerk, marriage intentions were not notices of public record. Mr. Powell stated that he had looked into the law and had advised Mr. Dowd and that he should allow any one to examine such notices, and since receiving that advice the clerk had done so.

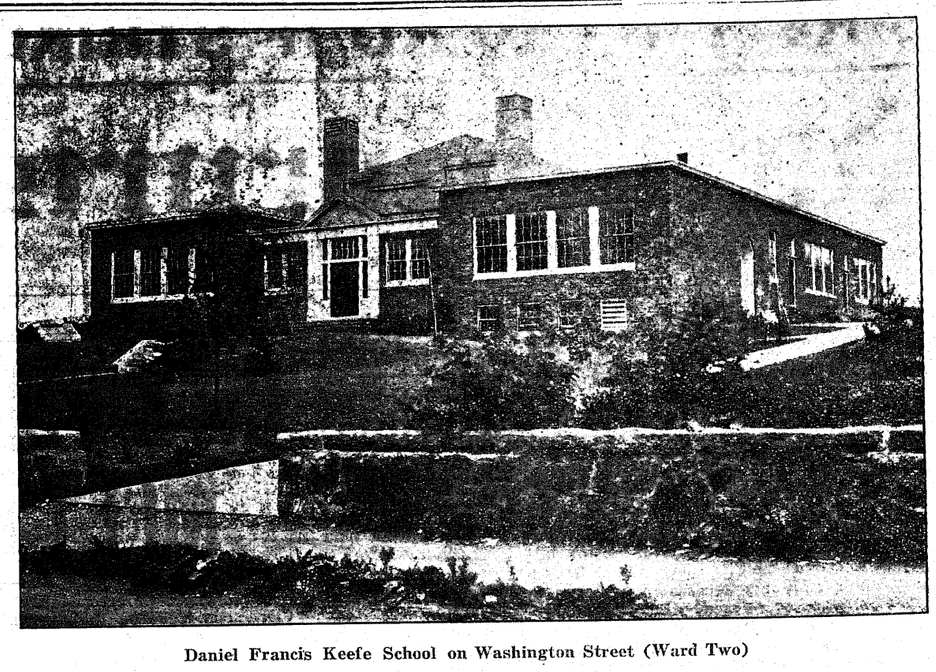
Justice Braley remarked that counsel had given his client the proper advice. He then said if there was no desire to press the petition, the matter having been satisfactorily settled, he would dismiss it without prejudice and without costs, the latter having been asked in the petition. Judge Hill remarked that his client desired to have the petition dismissed with costs, but Justice Braley said that no malice had been shown or any intention of doing wrong. He inquired if the costs would fall on the respondent, and being told that they would, he ordered the petition dismissed without costs.

This petition to make city records open for public inspection was brought by F. W. Penniman, publisher of a local newspaper, who had been refused access to the marriage intentions by the city clerk, and in winning out he has secured a victory which every newspaper man in the state will appreciate, for they have all, at times, been up against the whims and prejudices of city clerks, who have refused them access to records which they were entitled to examine. There are some notices which should not be published, and no reputable paper would publish them if requested not to do so. The outcome of this case was watched with considerable interest throughout the state by newspaper publishers and town and city clerks. Mr. Dowd is a new man in the office, without previous experience, and was following custom that had been in vogue for years, when he refused access to his records. Hereafter they will be public.



The following is the answer to Penniman's petition, filed by Dowd through the office of Donnell & Powell, which is an

and a promise to allow public access to the records hereafter:

"And now comes Edward J. Dowd, the above named respondent, and admits that he refused to allow the petitioner and his employes to examine the notices of intention of marriage filed in the office of the city clerk of the City of Peabody, but says that his reason for so doing was because of the fact that his predecessors in the office of city clerk of Peabody had not allowed any person to see the notices of intention of marriage unless they were a relative of one of the parties to the intended marriage and requested to see the record filed and also because it is the custom with other city clerks known to your respondent. It being contended by several of the city clerks that a notice of intention of marriage while required by the statute to be filed in the office of the city clerk was but a preliminary step necessary to the issuing of the marriage certificate and was of interest to none other than the contracting parties to the intended marriage and their relatives and that the public did not become interested in the matter until the marriage certificate was issued by the city clerk.

"Respondent further answering says that he is advised by counsel that said notice of intention is a public record and therefore the respondent now allows the notices of intention to be examined by any and all persons desiring to do so."

Brooklyn Girl Will Succeed To Office of Visiting Nurse Nov. 1

The Peabody Visiting Nurse Association has enjoyed a year of comparative prosperity with no serious change except the loss of Miss Noonan, who gave up her position on July 1, to resume private nursing. For four years Miss Noonan had served the association and the community untiringly, and her valuable ministry had made her a welcome visitor in homes of all conditions of society.

The readiness of Miss Dalton who had served as Miss Noonan's assistant from February to November, 1920, to accept the position made it possible for the work to go on without interruption.

In November Miss Dalton is to leave for work in the South, and Miss Lyda T. Mosher, a graduate of Prospect Heights Hospital, Brooklyn who has had ten years' experience, chiefly in public health work has been elected to the position.

"Donation Day" will be observed at the hospital in November. Mrs. Jesse F. Barrett was appointed chairman.

Carlin Will Get Support Of Merchants

Election of William F. Carlin real estate and insurance dealer as chairman of the Peabody merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce is being hailed with much satisfaction among the mercantile trade. Mr. Carlin is a hustler and with the cooperation of the merchants is bound to stimulate trade.

At the next luncheon of the merchants he promises to have a highly interesting program of entertainment and some concrete suggestions which should prove of interest to the members. He succeeds Benjamin A. Brownell retiring manager of the Parke Snow Co. who leaves tomorrow for Haverhill where he will assume management of a large chain store.

Roger H. Smith was elected one of the directors together with Mr. Carlin at the meeting last Monday. The dinner was well attended and it is believed that the next meeting will be the largest in the history of the organization.

The present Board of Directors of the Mercantile Division are: W. F. Carlin, Chairman; A. P. Ames, E. A. Croughwell, Alonzo Kimball, Arthur Lawrence, B. E. Levin, G. H. Osgood, A. P. Sillars and R. H. Smith.

MILLION DOLLAR HOSPITAL PERFORMING REAL SERVICE FOR 'WHITE PLAGUE' VICTIMS

(By Mary L. McCarthy)

Situated on the brow of a hill, commanding an unobstructed view of the surrounding country, the Essex County Tuberculosis Hospital at Middleton is indeed an ideal institution in every respect. On the approach to the hospital one is greatly impressed by the well kept grounds. The lawn makes you think of early spring it is so green and velvety and the great long beds of vivid red salvia and other bright hued flowers lend a colorful touch that blends beautifully with the varicolored autumn foliage.

The hospital itself is the last word in modern architecture and equipment. Sanitary conditions are perfect, cleanliness seems to be the watchword, and one can see at a glance that everything is being done for the comfort and welfare of the patients.

The food is of the best and served in a way to appeal to even the most delicate patient. Registered cows supply the milk and strictly fresh eggs are received daily from the Essex Agricultural School that is located but a short distance away.

Visitors are met by the matron who pleasantly directs them to the various sections of the immense building in which their friends may be. The west wing of the building is reserved for women patients, the east wing for the men. The patients are graded into seven classes, according to their condition and rules governing their diet, exercise, etc. are strictly followed.

Open air wards, large enough for eight beds accomodate a large number of patients. In one of these wards were four ex-soldiers who had been gassed or their health otherwise impaired while in the service. One young Italian boy just out of his teens seemed to be the idol of the other fellows. He served in the Italian army four years, two of which were spent in the Alps. A shrapnel wound in his lungs is the cause of his illness.

When he arrived at the hospital only a few days ago he couldn't speak a word of English but under the tutelage of his associates in his ward he has already learned quite a few words and phrases.

One thing that impressed me forcibly, and must be a source of encouragement and inspiration to the patients, is the fact that the majority of the nurses at the hospial were at one time afflicted with tuberculosis and having regained their health at T. B. hospitals and camps are now devoting their lives to bringing health and happiness to others similarly afflicted.

A number of Peabody people are patients at this health-giving institution and all are emphatic in their praise for the attention and comforts afforded them.

A moving picture show is given every Friday night in the hall of the hospital, which is greatly enjoyed. Among the equipment are pool and billiard parlors, X-ray room, barber shop, and a perfectly appointed dental office, which by the way, is under the direction of Dr. Charles H. Campbell of this city.

Visitors are welcome on Sundays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 3 to 5 and from 7 to 8 p. m. A visit to this hospital will convince one that the Essex County Tuberculosis Hospital is certainly the place for people afflicted with this malady and with its 200 acres of land its possibilities for the future are almost unlimited. It may be repeated here that everyone who inspects this hospital goes away conscious that the institution is a monument to the wisdom of the Essex County Commissioners.

ROOSEVELT DAY

"The restoration of 'Roosevelt House,' the birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt, is now well under way," today, said Mrs. John Henry Hammond, president of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association, of 1 East 57th street, New York.

"We had hoped to have it ready in time for the Roosevelt Birthday Festival, on October 27th, but as this now seems impossible we have taken Carnegie hall for that occasion. While Colonel Roosevelt's birthday has not yet become a national holiday, we believe that on that day there should be commemorated everywhere the great services which he rendered his people. To this end we are organizing the Roosevelt Birthday Festival, to be held generally throughout the United States on the 27th of October of each year."

Literal Youth.

The young man always took everything literally. He was most serious in his wooing. "May I kiss you, June?" he asked. "Mother's in the drawing room," she answered. "Oh, that's all right. Your father can kiss her," he replied.

PEABODY MATRON SHOWN KAISER'S FORMER PALACE

Mrs. Pauline M. Manning a Peabody woman and wife of John J. Manning manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co. is among the passengers on board the S. S. America due in New York tomorrow. She is returning from a six months sojourn with her parents and relatives in Germany. It was her first visit to her homeland in seven years. She toured Germany and principal cities in France and England.

In Berlin she met Hon. Ellis Loring Dresel, American Commissioner to Germany who was formerly a resident of Beverly. Mrs. Manning was shown through the ex-Kaiser's palace in Berlin.

Mrs. Manning is a niece of A. W. Klemm, the baker of this city. She is accompanied by her sister Miss Marie Klemm who is to make her home in Peabody. She will resume her position with the telegraph office in this city under her husband who left today for New York to greet his wife.

FOX SCARFS POPULAR

Mary had a little lamb, but that was in the distant past. Now she has a little fox—for everywhere that Fashion goes the fox is sure to go. Fox scarfs have proved themselves the most beloved of furs, and they are universally worn. There is a considerable range of color in them and a very great range of prices. In any case, the fur is soft, silky and becoming.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Part of the men will spend the winter on their land, clearing timber, building, hunting and trapping, for the tracts abound in deer, fox and lynx. The sixteen who have already settled are preparing to establish a central trading point and town which they will name "Legionnaire." Four of the pioneers are married and all have had farming experience. Homesteading is now possible in the following other states: Washington, Michigan, Montana, Arizona, New Mexico, Wyoming, Louisiana, Alabama, Colorado, Idaho and Oregon.

A family which in itself is a thriving war veterans' society has come to the notice of the American Legion in Independence, Kas. Thirty-three able-bodied men and women call the Civil War veteran, Manna C. Bruner, by the familiar "papa." Of the lot, the father, soldier of the Union in '61, is proudest of his even dozen sons who served overseas with the American forces in the World war. Of the remainder, 20 are girls and one son was too young to fight. The oldest is 42.

The Pershing estate in Tangipahoa Parish, La., owned jointly by heirs of John J. Pershing, father of the general of the armies, has been advertised for sale for taxes, according to a letter sent the general by the editor of an American Legion magazine published in Amite, La. The editor posted sufficient funds with the parish sheriff to prevent the sale and requested General Pershing to make the estate available for colonization by his comrades who are being rehabilitated, after war wounds, for agricultural pursuits. The Pershing tract contains 100 acres of the parish's best land.

For the return of a tattered old army rain-cape, almost worth its weight in gold because of sentiment attached to it, liberal rewards have been posted by American Legion service men of Toledo, O. The cape, property of Rev. H. F. McLane, chaplain of an infantry regiment in France, was used by him to cover the faces of dead soldiers lying in the Flanders mud and rain while their graves were

CITY ELECTION

With the mayoralty contest out of the city election this year much less interest is being manifested by Peabody citizens, yet it is important for the benefit of the whole citizenship that voters go to the polls and elect the best possible men to office. The condition of the city finances calls for the most capable men to sit in the City Council and the need of careful voting was never more pronounced than today. The Enterprise is not concerned in the candidacy of a single aspirant for political office. It is for the voters to say who will represent their pocketbooks in the city government. The best available man for the office is the man, however, who deserves the support of the electorate and this last fact should be emphasized because of the "off year" lack of interest in the coming election. Ward Councillors are elected for two years. The election of school committee members and trustees of the Peabody Institute constitute the ticket. Let us have the best men.

AUTOS AND FURNITURE

Furniture dealers are becoming more or less alarmed at the drop in their long established business since the inception of the automobile. With the ever-increasing number of pleasure cars sold each year, the furniture man notes a falling off in the demand for home furnishings as a direct result of the craze for motor cars. The people who used to take pride in putting their extra money into home beautification are spending this same money now in automobile accessories, and the young newly married couple decide not to furnish any more than two or three rooms, and put the rest of the money into a car. While this does not directly concern the general public, it still shows an unhealthy condition of affairs. The home should really come first in the family pocketbook. The environment of a well furnished home has a salubrious effect on the children of such a home, and the home that is only a place to come back to after an auto trip will hardly be respected too highly by any member of the family. There is no argument against the ownership of an automobile. We would like to see one in every family for they are a splendid means of education and offer recreation that can be obtained in no other manner. We do urge, though, that the home be given at least a fifty-fifty break, and better rather than worse.

TELEPHONE WEEK

Following the custom of the past few years, the telephone company has thrown open the doors of its exchanges this week in order that the public may inspect the workings of a "central" office and gain some understanding of the manner in which a call is handled by the operator. To those who have not availed themselves of the privilege, we would suggest taking the time to spend a few minutes watching the local hello girls handle with speed, accuracy and unfailing courtesy the thousands of calls coming in daily to the Peabody exchange. We have received such good service in the past that some of us are inclined to expect absolute perfection in the handling of our calls and resent it if put to the slightest inconvenience at the telephone. Nothing that depends on the human element for direction and execution is perfect, but it seems, when watching the skill of the local girls at the big switchboard, that it would be hard, indeed, to ask them to improve over their present efficiency. There is no let-up, however, in the untiring supervision and keeping up of morale in order that service may be maintained at the highest possible standard at all times with the telephone people. They treat their employees right and demand no more of them than they are able to give. They insist on service, however, and if the local exchange is a fair example of their quality, neither they nor the public can complain. Miss Ryan and her co-workers have made many friends this week by their cordiality and courtesy in explaining the handling of calls. They invite you, if you have not already done so this week, to drop in on them today or Saturday and see the girls behind "the voice with a smile".

BOY SCOUTS TROOPS

Boy Scout membership continues to increase. There are at present, according to the latest figures given out by James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, at a recent meeting of the Executive Board, 417 first class councils actively in operation and 178 second class councils. Of the 17,738 registered troops only 7,588 are not under council. The remaining 10,150 being regularly organized under local jurisdiction. This is a considerable increase and shows an encouraging growth of local organization which is the ideal of Scouting. In September of this year the records showed 410,676 registered Scouts and 119,283 Scout officials. It is interesting to note that this membership is larger than the total membership of Scouts in all the other countries associated with the International.

SUGGESTS SUPERIOR SHEEPSKIN

Editor Peabody Enterprise:

Seeing that the city leads on sheep leather I feel like asking some of the leather men why they do not improve some of the heaviest sheep so as to make it better leather and so that it will give service in the upper of a shoe to a far greater degree than it has up to the present time.

Peabody tanners are making a native sheep skin better today than ever before. They are making all their sheep better. This is due to the better process of the present.

Speaking more as a shoemaker than as a leather man the writer would say that there is room for further improvement in sheep. It is the nature of this skin to be tender. This being the case the idea of the tanner is to make it tough and strong.

It would be of advantage to the leather trade of the city if greater use could be found for sheep. When we see the sheepskin business starting in this city it is a good sign. There are many people in the country who look to the iron and steel business, to tell how the trend is in all business life. When there is a brisk demand for iron and its products there is going to be an increased demand for other products.

So with sheep in the leather trade and especially right here in Essex County. As already said this city is headquarters for that stock. And it is better than ever. It is taken off better in this country and there are more sheep being raised here.

Old tanners will recall all the experiments that have been carried on in making sheep and other leather here. These experiments resulted in the present chrome system. And when we come to look back we see how well worth while were all these experiments.

No community can afford to stand still. In fact there is no such thing as standing still. We are either going forward or backward. Therefore we must continue to experiment and not rest satisfied till the best leather is produced, even in sheepskin.

Now sheepskin has never been considered much of an upper in a shoe. The old time idea of it is that it is good only for inside wear. But whether for inside or outside wear there is much of that stock that can be made into genuinely good leather and this would bring it into greater demand than it is at the present time.

The shoe trade is the one trade to use this leather in quantity. Therefore it will pay to make it superior so that it can be used to a greater extent in shoe uppers. It can be cut more for the tops of men's and for the whole upper in women's. It can be worked into more slippers and low shoes for men and women. If used for the vamp and quarter, or the whole upper of women's, it would be in house shoe, as a rule.

It is possible to take a heavy sheepskin and by viscolizing it make it a very superior leather compared to the regular run in sheep. Any leather treated by an improved viscol process becomes tougher, more flexible and waterproof. The leather is made stronger and hence the treatment is good for sheep, especially since that leather lacks the very qualities that can be given the stock by viscol.

If sheep comes first it is up to all who depend on leather making in this city to do what they may to make this skin better and give it a place alongside the other shoe uppers in the factories of America and other countries which look to Peabody for a good portion of their leather supply.

Red Cross Trains 147 Blind Vets In Useful Work

Training designed to fit them for the battle of life was taken by 147 blinded ex-service men at the Red Cross Institute for the Blind, near Baltimore, Md., during the fiscal year 1920-1921, according to the report of the Institute for that period.

Of this number, 19 have gone on to other institutions, in almost every case to institutions where those having sight are receiving advanced education. The blind ex-service men who have entered such institutions are provided with special text-books in Braille, reading which they were taught at the Red Cross Institute.

Twelve men have passed from the Institute to successfully carry on some occupation or business for which they were fitted by special training. A few have withdrawn from the Institute because of poor physical condition, 14 are receiving further "training on the job" and 87 are still in training.

Mr. Wylie was several times candidate for Governor on the Prohibition ticket. Stamp collecting is his business and he edits a paper, given over to the work, which has a circulation of 10,000 copies. It is said by some person riding on the car that it has not been on time all summer.

Cleans Silver.

To keep plated silver clean and bright without constant cleaning, which is so injurious to plated articles, dissolve a small handful of borax in a basin with a little hot water and a little soap, put the silver in and let it stand for three or four hours; then pour off the suds, rinse with clean, cold water, and wipe with a soft cloth.

Cheerful Meals.

Air, light and sunshine are bestowers of health and cheerfulness. For this reason an effort should be made always to have meals in the brightest room, even if it means having breakfast at the back of the house and dinner at the front. It usually can be managed if the housewife wills. Meals taken with an open window also make for health; a shut door should obviate draughts, and the open window lets in blessed air and light, hand in hand with happiness.

Awful Moment.

Anxious to get to church on time, as an interesting sermon on gambling was scheduled, I hustled around getting ready. Opening a bureau drawer I grabbed what I thought was my prayer book and rushed over to the church. Marching down the aisle I accidentally dropped my muff, and, lo! instead of my prayer book, a deck of cards came tumbling out and scattered in all directions! To make matters worse, the back of the cards bore the ad of a prominent brewery!—Grit.

South Peabody

Herbert Peabody of County street is ill with scarlet fever.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harvie of Lynnfield street started Saturday for a 10-day trip through the Mohawk trail and Niagara Falls.

A sale of household goods will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of the late Ida Mansfield on Lynnfield street.

Capt. Thomas Crowley of the Portsmouth Navy Yard has been visiting George Coleman of Beacon boulevard.

About 30 friends from Lynn, Boston, Hingham, Lynnfield and Peabody gathered at the home of Mrs. Hattie Gowing of Lynnfield street last Sunday in honor of Nathaniel Gowing's 71st birthday. After getting over his surprise at seeing his friends he was presented with a nice pipe from his Lynn friends and two pretty birthday cakes from Peabody friends. Mrs. Foster had the honor of cutting the cake after which a general good time was had and all left wishing Mr. Gowing many more happy years to come.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Newhall and Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Newhall and family took an auto trip to Northwood, N. H. last Sunday.

Mrs. Annie Annis of Bartholomew street entertained the Sewso club Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker visited relatives at Portsmouth Sunday.

Mrs. Nellie Parker picked red raspberries this week from the Columbian variety in her yard. These are not the ever-bearing berries and this is the first time in 20 years that she has picked the fruit in October, as the bearing period is in July and August. Mrs. Parker is now anticipating a harvest of berries as the bushes are loaded with blossoms.

The Ladies' Aid of the Lake Shore Park church met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Elizabeth Hetherington, Lynn street, and made plans for a harvest supper and sale to be held Thursday, Nov. 3.

The Camp Fire Girls met at the church Tuesday evening.

Boy Scouts met at Lake Shore Park church Monday evening and rehearsed for an entertainment to be given next Monday evening.

A number of South Peabody members of the Grange attended a meeting of Chebacco Pomona Wednesday afternoon and evening at Marblehead. In the evening Horace H. Atherton gave an interesting address.

E. A. Earp, Jr., of Lake Shore Park was drawn on the jury at Salem and started Monday morning.

A new flag at the Samuel Brown school would be appreciated as the one that has been flying from the flag staff is in bad shape. This is one of the prettiest school houses in Peabody and deserves a new flag.

A meeting of the Men's club was held Wednesday evening at the Second Congregational church and supper was served by the following committee: John Brown, David Coombs, Winn Broughton, Joseph Annis and Rev. Robert Bakeman. Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Frank McKeen; vice-president, W. E. Reed; secretary, Carl Newhall; treasurer, Henry Shaw. At the next meeting plans will be discussed for the proposed community house.

The annual fair is to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday and a harvest supper Thursday. Wright Gregson is general chairman, with the following assistants: Supper, Mrs. Lizzie Wade; cake, Mrs. June Bakeman; vegetables, Foster Beggs; erecting booths, Joseph Annis; fancy work, Mrs. Ray Newhall; handkerchiefs, Mrs. Rose Holden; candy, Mrs. Esther Walker; variety, Mrs. Nellie Julian; aprons, Mrs. Stella Newhall; ice cream, Henry Cawley; mystery boxes, Miss Irene Skinner; decorating, Mrs. Nellie Annis; dolls, Mrs. Marion Parker; advertising, Rev. Robert Bakeman; entertainment, Ella Reed.

Myron C. Clark a G. A. R. veteran who had many friends in this district passed away at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea on October 14. He was 88 years old.

Unchanging Guatemala.

In a town in Guatemala many of the wares offered for sale are similar to those sold 400 years ago, before the Spanish conquest, and where the miscalled "Indians" are clothed in the gay, fantastic garments of pre-Columbian days.

On Sunday, busiest shopping day, hundreds of Maya men, women and children come into market from the surrounding valleys and volcano slopes, laden with country produce. A ten-mile jog-trot, with a huge basket upon her head and the latest baby slung on her back, is nothing to one of these swarthy, sturdy girls.

BETWEEN SEASON FACTOR IN LEATHER PRODUCTION

(By ENERGY)

Well, we are between seasons, summer and winter, same on shoes. The leather business which has been good in some quarters is now slack, because it is slack. There is no doubt there are other good and sufficient reasons why it is so, but please do not ask me to figure this problem out for figures do not lie, therefore I am afraid to tackle them.

The tendency of every commodity is downward. I am now refering to price only. The west is making shoes to sell for $5.00 a pair. One can take up any newspaper and read advertisements of shoes offering for the extreme low prices of $8.00 and $10.00 a pair. These ads are trying to convince the purchasing public that the prices are low and they are, as compared with war times. But in spite of the everlasting thunder of merchants that prices are to keep up, the ever existing tendency of everything is to go down, and shoes must be reckoned as one of them. The west has evidently awakened to this fact and by grasping the situation, has corralled the business, with Haverhill, Lynn and way stations in a state of coma and going strong.

What will finally come out of this situation remains to be seen and heard. I have talked with salesmen who keep in close touch with factories in this vicinity. They visit them in Haverhill, Lynn, Brockton, yes Auburn and Lewiston together with Gardner, (in Maine), where perhaps a better condition exists. But the whole trend of the shoe business hereabouts is dullness.

Naturally we all are interested to find out what is going to happen. Between seasons leather cutting is slow. The usual duplicate orders of the past are not there this year. So it is wait for spring orders. The decided uncertainty of what the public is to demand for styles is the key to the situation. Sample shoes have been made up in 57 varieties. There is everything known to the art of shoemaking. Buyers have looked over this mess and say nothing. They in turn do not know what will be wanted. It is evident that such picking is not conducive to steady business, and that the common lines of shoes are being made as ever, but by a few big concerns who have the capacity to supply the market. Will these same concerns continue to be the big noise and will the New England shoe manufacturers who in the past have made such shoes feel the competition so much as to drive them into other lines?

The cost of making leather today is a big factor in running leather plants. In the sheep end of the business, pickled sheep can be purchased for $1.00 a dozen and upwards. By $1.00 a dozen I mean that such skins are a fair assortment. Then at $7.00 the best New Zealands can be purchased. Here is a case. A lot of prime lambskins was bought for $1.50 a dozen in the pickle. The buyers figured the leather produced would bring around 18 cents a foot. These skins were made into colors, looked the money and after showing them down the line, they finally sold for ½ cents a foot. When all figures were in, this lot showed a loss. So down the line.

—*—

Some small local manufacturers claim they can finish sheep leather for two cents a foot. Others say four cents would be nearer their cost. What is the difference? It must be in labor. It must be that the two cent man is hiring men and women at prices which compare with those of pre-war times. Two cents a foot represents pre-war costs for colors. Those who are in the manufacturers association are tied as to working prices. The other fellow with no overhead and a capacity of 100 dozen daily, can figure low costs, therefore this difference of two cents a foot makes business. What will this mean later? It can mean only that the working man must accept lower wages or not work. Such a condition makes the future dark but what is to be done about it? No one will claim the leather manufacturer is thriving today. If his production shows a loss then he must either cut costs or stop business. Plain enough.

Frank H. Sanger has returned from a trip to Panama and no doubt has a store of knowledge he could impart if the spirit moved. His annual trips south has given him added stamina, although it always appeared to me he was not lacking in that direction. We hope sometime to read or listen to a description of those countries he has visited which could not but be more than interesting. Again Elliott L. Macdonald has prepared a lecture on the South with slides which will no doubt be heard later, and this gentleman's way of telling things will afford enjoyment to his hearers.

—*—

I note that several owners of factories are taking this time to make needed repairs. It is evident these tanners do not figure the world is coming to an end. When the business sun rises as it will, clear in the east, there will be little room left in factories that will not be occupied, and the past will be thought of as a hard and tough pull, but the experience will be conducive to better business sagacity and a general help to all.

—*—

I am told that A. C. Lawrence of the company named after him, has returned to his desk in the Boston office and shows big improvement in health. All must take off their hats to this man whose record in the leather business has been a grand one. He has headed one of the largest if not the largest leather corporations in the upper leather game. His efforts has made it possible to make this concern climb to the top of the ladder, and he is respected by all.

SO. PEABODY BOYS WILL ELECT OWN CITY GOVERNMENT

More than 40 boys met in the South Peabody vestry last Monday night and formed the "Bosco" club. The old Boy Scouts were disbanded and their property and company rights turned over to the new club. The following officers were elected: President, Raymond Coombs; secretary, Milton Harvey; treasurer, Lawrence Osgood.

South Peabody was divided up into four wards. There are to be five councillors at large and a councillor from each ward with a mayor who will be ex-officio, president of the council.

These members of the city government are to be chosen at the next meeting and nomination papers have been filed by the following candidates: For mayor, George Coleman, George Larrabee, George Abramson and Donald McKeen. Councillor from Ward 1, Norman Chandler, George Hames. Ward 2. Augustus Martinack. Ward 3. Howard Gregson, Gerald Gully. Ward 4. Lawrence Reed, Evans Griffin. Councillors at large, (five to be elected), Holsworth Gregson, Carl Smiley, Karl Ricker, Milton Harvey, James Foster, Harold Tucker. The next meeting of the club will be held October 31.

The meeting of November 7 will be the bi-monthly get-together. There will be a supper furnished by the boys themselves and "Chick" Davies who has done the wonderful twirling for the Salem town team this summer will give the boys some "inside stuff" about sports and sportsmen.

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

THE INDUSTRIAL PROBLEM

A friend has requested that our present series of "Little Talks" be interrupted, in order to discuss the present industrial situation and try to discover the reason and the remedy for the unemployment and unrest of today.

Who is responsible for this situation? In this country there is a great store of wealth. The people need food and clothing and great stocks of such material are ready; there is plenty of work to be done to satisfy the needs of the people. It would seem that natural conditions were all right and in consequence somebody must be all wrong. There is a cry that society owes to everybody an opportunity to work and earn a living. Not so. Society does no such thing; for society is everybody and the opportunity to work must be sought by the individual.

In this country we have a personal liberty that allows each man to find his opportunity, and put himself where he can earn wages to his liking. Nobody sends one man to the farm, another to the mine, someone else to the factory. All this is arranged by the individual; he makes his bargains in person or collectively and this state of freedom is one cause of our confusion. Until we are ready to give up this freedom and place ourselves at somebody's disposal we will be confused until we learn to work together under the Economic Law, which is the law of the greatest good to the greatest number. The experiment of making society provide a living for the individual is being worked out today in Russia; the most daring experiment ever attempted. It is resulting in a failure which brings to the people starvation and death.

We live in a highly organized, delicately balanced system of industry, which works well when in harmony, but it is a system easily disturbed. It has been disturbed by a great rise in prices and wages brought about by the war. Wages and profits were advanced because a war necessity and costs of living went up in consequence. We must remember that three quarters of living costs are produced by the farmer or miner or lumberjack.

Wages and prices went up fairly well together at first but wages always more rapidly and higher than the cost of living. In 1914 wages and prices starting equally at a base figure of 100, were in 1918 respectively 162 and 155. In 1920 they were 240 and 205, the difference being represented by a higher standard of living. Today they are represented by the figures 192 for wages, 164 for costs of living.

Farm products have had a great decline. The farmer sold his wheat in July 1920 for $2.96 a bushel, last July it sold for $1.50.—Corn was $1.81 in July 1920, 71 cents in July 1921,—Cotton last July was sold at .113 per pound in contrast with .411 one year ago,—Cattle hides July 1920, .319 and in July 1921, .114,—Sheepskins July 1920 .533 and in July 1921, .196.—The prices quoted are export prices for Wheat, Cotton and Corn, import prices for Hides and Skins.

Until the farmer can exchange a bale of cotton, a bushel of wheat, a hide from his steer or sheep, for the same amount of goods as he received when industry was in balance (say any year before Germany started to fight the world) he cannot buy manufactured goods. Until he can send his wheat to the seaboard and pay freight in the same relative value as he did in 1914, he cannot afford to buy the products of our factories.

The whole business situation is in confusion because of the high costs of operating our railroads, as well as the high costs in our industries, thus placing goods that are greatly needed beyond the purchasing power of the mass of the people. Here is the principal reason why millions are out of work and this situation may as well be understood. We cannot have prosperity while this unbalanced condition exists. We are not working for the greatest good to the greatest number. Capital is retiring from industry wherever it can and going into tax exempt security. Railroads and factories are not being built because capital cannot get interest upon its investment. The farmers have lost much money. Manufacturers have lost millions. No unemployment conferences can help the situation unless they can bring the people to understand that industrial costs must be reduced. A temporary resort to public works will be only delaying the readjustment which is necessary to restore a balanced state of industry for the greatest good to the greatest number.

The great question is to bring our railways into adjustment. Wages have been reduced 12% against which the wage earners have voted to strike and yet operating costs are too high. The issue is clear whether railroad labor shall be a preferred class supported by other less favored workers. A fair adjustment of wages and rates is in the best interests of everyone, for the destruction of traffic or ruin of the railroads would be a disaster.

Coal is an important factor in manufacturing and transportation. The coal miners have not been reduced in their pay and they say they will not. In fact they say they will ask for an increase next April. The owner of the mine bases his royalties upon the cost of mining. Labor costs of coal mining in 1914 were $1.80 a ton; today they are $4.07. Royalties are increased in like proportion and the pubile pays the bill. The public cannot continue to do so very much longer.

Shoes and leather interest this locality very greatly. The logical market for shoe leather is in nearby towns where factories are idle or running part time, but in western cities where the manufacturing costs are lower the shoe factories are running 100% full. The eastern factories are losing the business.

The Economic Law is inexorable. By pressure of the great need of the people and by the power of the people, it is slowly adjusting industry to the greatest good to the greatest number. No person or class can prevent this result.

C. H. EGLEE

Credit Bureau Aids Citizens

By Don S. Roby, Secretary Peabody Chamber of Commerce

Every community of five thousand or more population can and should support a credit rating bureau for the use and protection of the retail merchant.

In the small communities it is possible to build up and hold together a commercial organization similar to our Peabody Chamber of Commerce by maintaining a commercial rating bureau.

This activity and this alone is sufficient excuse for a commercial organization to exist. The merchant is dependent upon the community for his existence and he must, in the natural conduct of his business, extend credit. No merchant is infallible. He loses accounts now and then even though he scrutinizes his credits very carefully. A credit bureau operated accurately and permanently will supply the merchant with reliable information. This information will, in the end, save the merchant many times the original cost of his share in the maintenance and upkeep of this reliable source of valuable information.

In larger cities, like our own, for example, these credit bureaus are operated privately. It seems to be the concensus of opinion that this condition is a very satisfactory one provided the private concern operates efficiently, accurately and permanently with the local commercial organization.

Such a bureau is becoming a vital need in Peabody. While it is true that in its scope of operations it is primarily of inestimable value to the merchant, the effect—beneficial and lasting—upon the bill paying public (and that includes us all) should not be underestimated.

How Frost Penetrates Earth.

A shaft sunk at Yakutsk, Siberia, in the hope of finding water for the town, failed to penetrate below the permanently frozen ground, or "ground ice," even at a depth of 382 feet. In Alaska several shafts have been sunk about 200 feet, and one reached 365 feet without penetrating below the frozen ground.

AMERICAN LEGION

being dug. It had been torn in many encounters with barbed wire while the chaplain followed his troops, but an undiscriminating thief stole it from the minister's automobile.

—*—

The number of civilian employes in the Panama canal zone has been reduced 40 per cent. since March 4, 1921, and more than 700 former soldiers will be forced out of employment if there is not a let-up, an appeal from the canal zone to the American Legion's representatives in Washington declares. Two army officers and three civilians appointed by Secretary of War Weeks recommended the sweeping reductions in personnel.

—*—

Milady's fashionable corsage bouquet may have started life as a handful of ragweed, for disabled soldiers in Kansas City hospitals are doing a thriving business in making artificial and lifelike posies out of ordinary weeds. War mothers of the city are teaching the wounded men to color the weeds with dyes and the American Legion is helping them place the flowers with florists and gift shops.

—*—

Out of work, arrested on a charge of vagrancy and placed in a convict gang at Glenn Springs, N. J., Thomas M. Keelan, world war veteran, was flogged to death by his guards, according to the American Legion post of Spartansburg, S. C., near the scene of the outrage. A federal investigation has been demanded and two men are being held.

—*—

The body of the unknown American soldier to be brought home from France by General Pershing probably will be selected from the Argonne cemetery at Romagne, where most of the unldentified dead were interred following the fighting in the forest tangles, according to information to the American Legion shortly before the general sailed. But two per cent. of the war's dead yet remain in France.

To make former doughboys feel at home, unique plans were laid for the Nebraska state convention of the American Legion at Fremont. Military police were stationed about the city that the soldiers might have the pleasure of blithely disregarding the red arm bands of one time authority. Officers in Sam Brown belts and shiny puttees were conspicuous, but privates passed them by, cigarette in mouth, with a nod of recognition answering for the old snappy salute. Wooden shoes clattered over cobble-stones to bring back memories of French villages and to strengthen the illusion, small boys in street corners pleaded: "Give me one ceegaret, plees?" Signs on tumble-down buildings advertised "Vin Blanc" and Vin Rouge" and other all but forgotten commodities of the French countryside.

C. R. Baines, general manager of the American Legion Weekly since February, 1920, has submitted his resignation, effective November 12, to become vice president and business manager of the Army and Navy Journal. The business and editorial policies of the Weekly were approved by a surveying committee which last week made a thorough investigation of the organization's national publication. Daniel F. Steck, national executive committeeman of Iowa, was chairman of the committee. In face of the Industrial depression, it was shown, the magazine is making a profit and has virtually wiped out a deficit incurred before the reorganization of the Legion publishing corporation in February, 1920.

Marshal Foch has been voted a member of George Washington post, the American Legion, Washington, D. C., the first Legion post in the world to receive a charter. The post held that the marshal was eligible because he had commanded American tsoops in action. A motion to make the Generalissimo's dues 5,000 centimes was voted down, however.

START ON PLANS FOR POLICE BALL NEXT FEBRUARY

Peabody's first police ball scheduled for the eve of Washington's birthday next February will be a gala event according to plans now in the making. The Peabody policemen organized their Police Relief Association this week by electing Chief M. H. Grady as President.

Martin J. Quinlan is Vice President, John P. McBride Secretary, Thomas H. Grady, Treasurer, John J. Lee, Financial Secretary, Thomas P. Masterson, Patrick J. McHugh and Philip S. McGinn, Trustees. The organization is incorporated. Rep. J. Edward McVann filed the papers of incorporation.

Essex "Aggie" School Notes

If you are interested in learning how to cull the poor layers and select your best hens for breeders, write to the Poultry Specialist, Extension Service, Essex County Agricultural School, Hathorne, Mass., and arrange for a demonstration at your home.

Because of moths, winter clothes usually get good care during the summer, but what about summer clothes during the winter? All washable clothes should be washed, folded and packed away, and the others should be cleaned and brushed carefully before packing. Be sure that the delicate colors are kept far from the sunlight.

After the frost cuts down your tubrous rooted plants, dahlias, cannas, etc. Remove frozen parts, dry in a sunny room and store in a dry frost proof cellar.

Onions must be pulled and allowed to get thoroughly dry before topping. Store in ventilated boxes and in as cool and dry a place as possible.

Potatoes should not usually be dug before October 15th in the northern and western part of the state. Care must be taken not to include any scabby or rotten potatoes. Store in small bins or barrels. Potatoes need a cool (40 degrees) temperature, good ventilation and moist atmosphere.

Beets, carrots and turnips may be hrvested around October 20th, and should be pulled and topped and allowed to dry and cool in the field. Store in boxes or barrels and cover with a layer of moist sand. If the sand drys, it should be moistened.

Pumpkin and squash are very tender and must be protected from even a light frost. It is well to gather the squash into piles and leave them to ripen, care being taken to cover them at night. Do not break off the stems. Pumpkin and squash should be stored in a dry, warm place.

~Making Extraordinary Mileage a Certainty~

Car Owners want more rubber on the tread where the wear is hardest; more gum between cord plies to perfect a resilient and powerful carcass. And they want a scientifically constructed Non Skid tread with all angles and contacts to resist skidding and give sure traction. Firestone Cord Tires have met these demands of the car owners.

Read Letters Below—

Records from 29,000 to 57,000 Miles

Cord Tires built the Firestone way could not fail to produce mileage. Every day, from all over the country, comes the word that 10,000, 20,000 or 30,000 miles are frequent and consistent records. Now and then they are emphasized by unusual instances such as quoted below. Performances like these demonstrate the ultimate possibilities of Firestone Cords under careful driving.

Sept. 16, 1921

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.,
Jacksonville Branch,
Jacksonville, Florida.

Gentlemen:—

I submit herewith the history of a 33x4 Firestone Cord tire. This tire has run 57,000 miles. I have retreaded it seven times. The average mileage to each retreading was about 7,000. I think you will agree this is a remarkable record, as is especially unusual as I know the owner to be a severe driver. However, he gives his tires proper inflation. The tire in question is not yet out of service and has every indication of being sufficiently strong for another retread. I am mailing photographs under separate cover.

C. U. Penney,
Plant City, Fla.

Sept. 2, 1921

The Harvey E. Mack Co.,
Thirteenth & Harmon Place,
Minneapolis.

Gentlemen:—

It occurs to me that you might be interested in the mileage that I obtained from the set of Firestone Cord tires on my Dodge coupe. The first tire went over 28,000 miles. The second tire rolled up a mileage of between 34,000 and 35,000. These were both rear tires and had been cut considerably by chains. The two front tires have gone better than 35,000 miles and are still in good condition. I expect to get at least 40,000 miles from each of them. I need scarcely say that the Firestone Cord will be my tire choice for the future.

First Baptist Church

Rev. C. Norman Bartlett, Pastor

Sunday, October 23, 9.30 a. m., Bible School; 10.45 a. m., "Reverence"; 5.45 p. m., Christian Endeavor; 7 p. m., "A Gentle Lion".

The pastor will attend the Baptist Anniversaries in Worcester, October 25, 26, 27.

Holding Sunday school previous to the church service is helping to swell the attendance at the Baptist church. Next Sunday terminates the experiment of having 9.30 to 10.30 established as the Sunday school hour. While the attendance for the past three Sundays has been above normal there are arguments against the advisability of making this hour permanent. The Christian Endeavor had their regular 6 o'clock meeting with Howard Tedford presiding. "A fearless champion," which was the topic of Rev. C. Norman Bartlett's evening sermon, was heard by a most appreciactive audience. This was supplemented by special music by Mrs. Albert Bailey and Miss Selina Houlden. Next Friday evening's meeting will be under the direction of Mission Society, Mrs. Charles Thomas, president.

IN RED AND BLACK

The vogue for black has made such an impression on the world of fashion that designers of children's clothes have taken advantage of it in the production of new things for fall. It appears in this pretty dress with its waist of black taffeta silk and hand embroidered dots of red. The skirt is red and black Scotch plaid with a wide belt that folds over a narrow black sash of cire ribbon.

Last Week In The Provinces

Cape Breton police are searching for the crew of the American schooner Vagrant, who deserted their vessel when it was seized by Captain Bragg, a preventative officer at Gabarus Harbor. The schooner has been towed to Louisburg by the cutter Restless and the $15,000 worth of choice liquor on board will be held in a bonded warehouse here. The liquor is reported to be the property of a Boston man, who fled with the crew of the Vagrant when Captain Bragg, singlehanded, seized the schooner and found 40 cases of the real stingo hidden behind a false bulkhead. The booze was in transit from St. Pierre to an unknown destination on the New Jersey coast.

A prominent apple buyer said in Kentville this week that this time a year ago he had bought for the English market 150,000 barrels of apples, and that this year he had not bought a single barrel and would not, as the apple market in England was badly glutted, England having the largest crop of apples this year it had ever had. He said Nova Scotia, especially the Valley, were fortunate in having the United States market handy.

At Grand Pre it is proposed to erect a memorial church by the descendants of those French Acadians who were expelled from Nova Scotia in 1755. The French Acadians of Nova Scotia today are as loyal British subjects as are in the whole empire; and their efforts to erect this memorial church deserve credit. Work on this historic church will commence early next spring.

An automobile party from St. John while coming in from Fredericton Thursday evening, saw a large cow moose dash out of the woods which border the road near Welsford, and race down the road in front of the fast moving automobile. The roads being very muddy, the animal slipped and fell and but for quick work by the driver, a collision would have resulted. It picked itself up and, after running a further fifty feet in front of the car, it took to the woods and vanished.

As a result of the investigations which have been conducted by the Forest Service of the Crown Land Department in connection with the forest fires which have occurred in New Brunswick this season, one conviction was secured against Venie Dutchie, Rogersville, at Chatham, recently. The accused was charged with setting fires contrary to the fire laws, near Rogersville, previous to the Rogersville conflagration. A fine was imposed. This is the beginning of a series of prosecutions which will be conducted by the Crown Land Department. A resident of Victoria County was recently fined. Over $100 in damages was also collected from the defendant in this action.

Effect will not be given to the result of the New Brunswick referendum, which prohibited the importation of liquor into that province, until early in December, according to information received from the office of the chief electoral officer. It is expected that at least a month will elapse before the returns are completed at Ottawa and published in the Canada Gazette. When this is done the order in-council will be passed and as usual it will go into effect 30 days from the date on which it is passed.

Edward P. O'Brien of St. John was found not guilty of the charge of murdering Albert Norris by the jury before whom he was tried in the circuit court Thursday. His Honor Judge Barr then declared O'Brien a free man.

The student body of the University of New Brunswic at a meeting held last week gave permission for the university hockey team to play in Boston during the coming winter. Harvard, Dartmouth and the Technology Institute are the probable opponents.

HALLOWE'EN FAVORS

Hallowe'en favors are being featured at the Kandy Kiss Kitchen for the coming observance next week and the store is offering several novelties in its line of merchandise.

Essex County Red Men Tribes To Pitch Camp Here Oct. 29

The sixth quarterly meeting of the Northeastern Red Men's Council will be held in this city next week Saturday and with 25 tribes affiliated in this movement, one of the largest gatherings of Red Men is assured. The affair will open with a business meeting at city hall at 3 o'clock and the Great Chiefs of the reservation of Masachusetts will be in attendance.

At 5 o'clock a short parade will be held with all the tribes in full regalia. Forming on Chestnut street the parade will pass through the square down Main street to the Lexington monument, countermarch up Main street then Central, Endicott to Lowell streets and back to the square. A supper will be served by Caterer Hicks of Lynn in the South Church vestry. A band concert will be held on the square from 7 to 8 o'clock, when all will return to city hall where talks will be given by the Great Chiefs followed by an entertainment.

Every member of Masconomo Tribe of Peabody should take part in the parade as the tribe will do escort duty. Masconomo Tribe is well represented among the officers for this meeting, John H. Thomas being Chief Samoset, Joseph H. Foster, Chief Webcorvet and Henry H. Hay Chief of Records.

This affair is a big undertaking for the local tribe but under the capable leadership of Henry H. Hay, chairman, with Joseph Foster, John Foster, Fred Jordan, Clifford Shea and William Patterson as assistants, a howling success is assured and a big boost to the Red Men in this city, who are rapidly coming to the front with excellent quarters and club room open to members at all times.

BERT LYTELL 'IN TRIP TO PARADISE' STRAND'S FEATURE SHOW TONIGHT

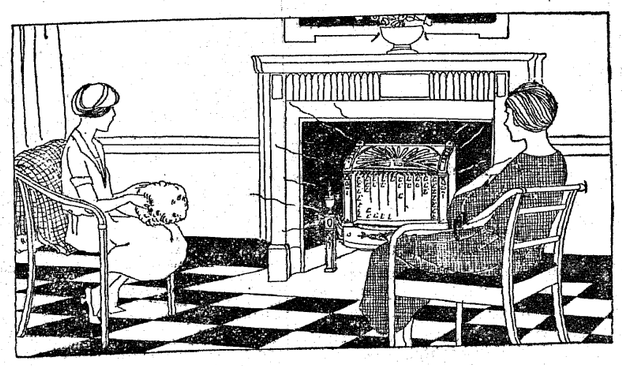
Bert Lytell's newest starring vehicle "A Trip to Paradise" will be the attraction the Strand will present today and Saturday. It is an adaption of Franz Molnar's stage play "Lilliom" which is at present running in New York. The picture version was received with enthusiastic comment by the press. Mr. Lytell appears as Curley Flynn, a Coney Island barker, working at the Widow Boland's roller coaster. Curley is an artist in his line and jazzily content until Nora O'Brien appears upon the scene. Nora fills Curley with aspirations that soar far beyond the limitations of his job. They get married with all the recklessness of young love, and Curley's sudden respectability makes him useless for the Widow Boland's purposes. Out of work and with a wife, Curley grows sourly discontented. He's ready to quit Nora and go back to the widow when he finds out that he's to become a father. Desperate with anxiety for his coming child, he engages in a safe-blowing exploit in which he gets shot. Under ether he feels himself in Paradise before God's Court. His wife's prayers have won him another chance to make good as a man. And through prayer comes his redemption.

It is a picture that will repay the spectator, for work of this kind comes to the screen but once in a blue moon. It is "different" both in the splendid acting, the remarkable plot and the unique scenes in Paradise. A Sunshine comedy entitled "Roaring Lions on Parade" and Ann Little in "The Blue Fox" round out the program for today.

David Butler, who will be remembered for his fine work in "The Sky Pilot," will appear at the local playhouse Sunday evening in "Smiling All The Way." Emily Stevens and Montague Love in "Palace of Honeymoons" will also be presented Sunday evening.

Doon Byrne's famous story "The Woman God Changed," has been converted into a special production and will be the big attraction on Monday and Tuesday. This production has the distinction of having played the Colonial theatre in Boston at dollar prices. It is the story of a beautiful dancing girl, who shoots dead her common-law husband when he seeks to desert her. For five lears she is followed by Thomas McCarthy, a detective, who finally arrests her on the island of Tahiti. However, the ship on which they take passage is destroyed by an explosion at sea, and Anna, the girl, and the detective are washed upon a desert island.

There the two find that they have fallen in love with each other, and, though McCarthy continues faithful to his duty, he promises to secure a prison term for Anna and to marry her when she is free. Years pass before they are rescued, and in the meantime the girl has been regenerated by the real love of a clean man. Taken back to America, the girl is placed on trial, and the jury is so impressed with the story of her life as told by the detective that they give her the sstrangest sentence in court history. "The Woman God Changed" is a superlative attraction and one that stands well up on the list of the season's big successes.



Inventor Well Rewarded.

For his invention of babbitt metal, a soft, anti-friction alloy used for bearings Isaac Babbitt received a reward of $20,000 from congress.

City Hall Notes

Chief Grady attended a convention of Massachusetts chiefs at Fall River Wednesday and Thursday of this week. These meetings are conducive of much fanning, and no doubt much good is derived from them. Cooperation must be one of the things this body of men must have in the police service.

—*—

Your marriage intentions are now on exhibition at the city clerk's office, thanks to the ruling of the courts. We believe now that the question has been settled, and the Enterprise is being thanked by other newspapers for the initiative.

—*—

Police Inspector Dive Pierce takes his vacation this week and next. Out in the open or the cry of the wild is Dive's hobby. The law is off on pheasants, partridge, quail, snipe, woodcock and the like beginning Thursday of this week, so you gunners can take your choice, for all are easy to kill. From all accounts the woods are full of them, particularly leaves.

—*—

City clerk Dowd must be given the palm for knowing baseball. After the Giants lost the first two games, he sent home a post card saying he expected them to win the series. His reason for it was, this team showed more baseball in their general make-up. Ed. was the manager of the Father Mathews when they were going good and drawing crowds to see them play.

—*—

So another bond issue by the city will be in the near future. This amount will cover the remaining expense of placing the new schoolhouses in proper condition. Meantime the bond issue is kept at the limit.

No municipal machines for anything but municipal work is the latest orders. If such an order was promulgated long ago, the city's gasolene bill would have been much smaller. We wonder if this edict will be obeyed by all.

At the trial of fire apparatus last Saturday, the water pressure was reduced only six pounds as registered at the engineer's office. The pressure gauge there shows an interesting chart, and one which tells the tale of each day's work.

—*—

The condition of Councillor Francis L. Poor remains the same. His many friends who have visited him report his courage keeps him striving for the health many of us enjoy. While a long pull, the doctor says he will eventually come back. We all hope so.

—*—

Councillor Hogan from Ward 4 will have formidable opposition so it is intimated. If a change takes place there the present council will be much changed, for in ward 6 a new man comes in to take the place of Councillor Walter Brown.

—*—

In the retirement of Councillor Walter Brown the city hall loses an official whose record entitles him to much praise. Many times independent, he has done faithful work for the city on the many committees he has served, and after all, these committees have the large part of the work to do. Perhaps some day, Mr. Brown may be induced to accept another and higher position in the city government.

—*—

Death and taxes we all have to endure. Many judging by their feelings had rather take death than the present taxes which coming from government, state and city, comb the cobwebs from the savings of years ago, and puts many on the road to the poorhouse. But when Mayor Donnell put the ax in tax, he must have thrown that ax away, for it has been missed since 1917.

Barry To Lead Tiger Cubs At Harvard Bowl

Arthur J. Barry of Peabody has been elected Captain of the freshman football team at Princeton College and will make his appearance in the Harvard Stadium on November 5 when the Tiger Cubs will tackle the Crimson freshies. On that same day the varsity teams of the rival colleges play at Princeton. A big delegation of football fans will go to Cambridge to cheer on Barry's eleven.

Barry is a graduate of Exeter where he was a star in both baseball and football, being elected Captain of both teams, an unusual honor but one paid him for his exceptional prowess at the sports. He was one of the cleverest backs ever to graduate from Peabody High where he was developed by Coach Leander McDonald formerly of this city. Barry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Barry. Yale College tried hard to get him.

POPPY PARTY

The poppy noveity party and dance Armistice eve, Nov. 10, to be held in K. of C. hall under the auspices of the American Legion and Women's Auxiliary, Post 153, promises to surpass anything of this kind ever held in this city before. There is a live wire committee working hard to make this year's celebration one to be long remembered. The hall will be a bower of poppies and there will be several novel features in store for those present. There will be dancing from 8 till 1. Tickets are going fast and can be procured only through the following committee: Mrs. Chester R. Brown, chairlady, Mrs. James Murphy, Mrs. Frank Bomer, Miss Jessie Fyfe, Miss Mae O'Connor, William Carlin, James Murphy, George Gillis, Edward Carbrey and Andrew Fyfe.

GEO. PEABODY CIRCLE

George Peabody Circle, Companions of the Foresters, are planning an old-fashioned Hallowe'en dancing party in Moose Hall next Thursday evening. Attractive decorations, typical Hallowe'en costumes and old-fashioned games will help make the affair enjoyable. Refreshments will be served and the Waverly orchestra will furnish the music.

The committee is Mrs. Margaret Nevins, Mrs. M. McDonald, Mrs. Katherine Bresnahan, Mrs. Mary Lucie, Mrs. Helen Bomer, Miss Katherine Meade, Mrs. Katherine Flynn, Miss Ethel Grady, Mrs. Edna Masterson, Mrs. Mary Hanrahan, Mrs. Mary Hutchinson, Mrs. Mary Connors, Miss Julia Cassidy and Mrs. Mary Smith.

EX-SHERIFF TIERNEY

Peabody friends of the late Sheriff Patrick F. Tierney of Salem join in the sorrow at his death at his home in Salem yesterday morning. He was a familiar figure on Peabody streets and numbered a large circle of friends. He was born in Ireland in 1845.

PEABODY GRANGE

Peabody Grange worked the third and fourth degrees on 15 candidates last night, the work being done by the ladies' degree team in a finished manner. A large crowd witnessed the ceremony. Supper was served.

William H. Sweeney, vice dictator of the Moose lodge, has entered the employ of the A. C. L. Co.

Peabody 'Grads' Behind Drive For Radcliffe

Radcliffe alumnae and former students have awakened to the need of an endowment fund for their Alma Mater that she may be provided with suitable laboratories for scientific research, dormitories for housing a larger number of students, and may offer more adequate salaries for courses of instruction. To this end a campaign to raise an endowment fund of $3,000,000 was formally opened on Tuesday, October 18, by graduates and former students of the college who have already secured from their own number ten per cent of the amount. To friends of the college and of such educational opportunities for women as Radcliffe can offer they will have to turn for the remaining nine-tenths,—a task requiring much patient exertion and skill from the alumnae, and a generous response from outside friends.

WINIFRED JOHNSON
Radcliffe 1921, now teacher in Peabody High

Among the devices already used by former Radcliffe women are the outdoor cafe in front of Hotel Brunswick, Radcliffe night at the "Pops" and at the Copley Theatre, the Radcliffe players who gave performances at various summer resorts; also individual methods,—selling "Radco" soap, Dutch Cottage candies, and other articles with the profits turned over to the fund, trimming hats, maintaining a taxi service are a few of the means used toward reaching the goal.

Radcliffe, in common with other women's colleges and co-educational institutions, has had a share in the training of Peabody women, and most of these have come back into the community as teachers in our schools, or later as leaders and supporters of literary, dramatic, and philanthropic activities in the community. Radcliffe alumnae from our own city are: Mary E. Poole, Mrs. Ralph Kelley, (Bessie Tighe), Ethel W. Jacobs, Marion O'Keefe, Beatrice Keith, Frances McKeen, and Winifred Johnson. Special students from Peabody were: Mrs. Wellman Osborne, (Margherita Casino), Mercides Torr, and Alice Teague. Doris Tucker has taken a graduate course at Radcliffe after receiving the A. B. degree from Smith College.

Eight of the eleven named are now living in Peabody, are serving the community in different ways, and have had a share in raising the $300,000 already pledged.

LEO COUNCIL

The newly elected officers of Leo Council, K. of C. will be installed at their regular meeting next Tuesday evening by D. D. S. K. John A. Cavan and staff of Haverhill. There will be an entertainment by a musical team from the Lynn K. of C., a prominent speaker has been secured and a collation will be served.

The K. of C. are planning an active winter under the leadership of their newly elected officers which are as follows: G. K., J. Henry Higgins; D. G. K., Daniel J. Conroy; Chan., James Murphy; Warden, N. J. Masterson; Rec. Sec., William Coffey; Fin. Sec., James L. Eagan; Treas., William Murphy; I. G., Patrick Sullivan; O. G., Louis Birmingham; Trustee, Daniel J. Donovan; Delegate to State Convention, P. G. K. William Tracey; alternates, Frank P. Sweeney, Timothy C. Carlin.

A son was born at the Salem Hospital last Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle of Salem. Mrs. Doyle was Miss Margaret Jackman of this city.

DISTRICT COURT HAD 1003 CASES

Clerk of Court Charles J. Powell has compiled the business done in the District Court of Peabody from Jan. 1 to Oct. 1 as follows:

Assault	190
Breaking and entering	12
Larceny	53
Adultery	11
Bastardy	5
Idle and disorderly	8
Vio. city ordinance	31
Carrying weapon	14
Drunkenness	247
Present at gaming	83
Running gaming house	6
Lewdness	12
Vio. liquor law	63
Vio. Lord's Day	25
Vio. auto law	84
Non-support	22
Vagrants	14
Liquor search warrants, issued	167
Liquors found	54
Number of criminal cases before court	1003

It appears that the period from Jan. 1 to March 31 in each year is the low tide in criminal busines. The first three months of 1921 produced the smallest returns for any quarter since the court was started, but the last quarter more than made up for the deficiency.

Fines imposed since Jan. 1, 1921 up to Oct. 1 were paid as follows: City of Peabody $4,848.11; County $451.58; to State $375.

Lowell Street

Although the inclement weather of the early part of the week compelled Councillor Francis L. Poor to abandon his usual outside quarters he is reported to be showing further slow but sure improvement.

O'Keefe Says Mayor's Act Saved Money

Peabody, Mass., Oct. 27, 1921

Editor Peabody Enterprise:

Kindly publish the following in your paper tomorrow:

City Electrician, Vincent P. O'Keefe has been instrumental in saving the City at least $1000 on electric light fixtures for the High and Thomas Carroll schools. In June the School Committee advertised for bids in accordance with specifications drawn by Frank Irving Cooper Corp., Architects, and received a proposal in the sum of $2700 exclusive of hanging from McKenney & Waterbury Company for fixtures for the High School. At that time the City Electrician asked the School Board to reject all proposals and discard the specifications of the Architect, claiming that the specifications were not well drawn and allowed too much variation in the grade of material to be furnished, and that he would draw up specifications that would form a good competitive basis for proposals and at the same time save the City money.

After the school board had acquiesced and new specifications had been drawn new bids were received September 21st as follows:

E. H. Tarbell	$1538.00
with a shortage of a 135 fixtures
E. C. Lewis	2915.50
Wm. Elwell	3034.00
Reliance Elec. Co.	2031.40
McKenny-Waterbury Co.	2150.00
Wetmore-Savage Co.	2048.73

The list called for 489 fixtures and did not include the Thomas Carroll School. Combined the City was compelled to purchase in all 536 fixtures or 47 fixtures more than was actually bid on which would have brought the lowest bonafide proposal up to $2358.

The City Electrician at an expense of $150 went to New York and purchased these 536 fixtures complete with glassware and ready to hang and

Governor Lauds Peabody's Zeal

The new Commission, recently appointed by Mayor William A. Shea, met Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Mayor's office to further discuss ways and means of handling emergencies which may arise from the threatened railroad strike. The Chamber of Commerce was requested to open its offices for registration purposes and to act in hearty cooperation with the State Chamber of Commerce and the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Blanks for volunteers have been received and call for volunteer service in the following occupations: Locomotive Engineer; Stationary Engineer; Fireman; Engine Hostler; Passenger Conductor; Freight Conductor; Passenger Trainman; Freight Brakeman; Teamster; Truck Driver; Passenger Car Driver; Auto Mechanic; General Labor; Clerical; Telephone Operators; Telegraph Operators; Electrician;

ALIENS EAGER TO LEARN ENGLISH

Peabody's classes for teaching English and civics to our aliens started off on their winter's course last Monday night in Russian hall, Sherman street.

Forty-seven men and five women enrolled. Only six of this number could read English. Wednesday night 89 aliens enrolled in the class at the Community House.

The Community House hasn't adequate room for the classes now attending there. If the leaders of the several nationalities will cooperate and allow us the use of their halls for two evenings a week, other classes will be formed.

The places of birth of the pupils are Greece, Portugal, The Azores, Italy, Spain, Russia, Poland and Turkey.

The classes are under the direction of Miss Katherine Logan. The teachers at the Community House are the Misses Wolahan, Healey, Griffin, McCarthy and Cody. Those at the Russian school are Miss Hazel Johnson and Miss McMahon.

CHARGES MAY FOLLOW CITY GARAGE HEARING

The latest twist to the municipal garage sensation injected into Peabody politics by Mayor William A. Shea may be the filing of charges. Mayor Shea refuses to discuss the situation and says he will not try his case in the newspapers. He is sitting tight but lets it be known that he has received many words of commendation from taxpayers for his act in closing up the garage in his effort to bring about changed conditions.

A bill for supplies filed with the Mayor this week against the Municipal Garage promises to be an outstanding feature in the present agitation. Some light may be thrown on the identity of an outside auto that drove up to the gas tank of the city garage late last Saturday night and quickly departed after finding a policeman on duty.

Except for the police ambulance and patrol, no other municipal auto will receive gas at the city garage. House cleaning in the garage is still going on and according to the Mayor there was urgent need of effort in this line. Tools were helter skelter and a barrel of oil was found leaking. The machine shop in the garage was in sad plight.

The next chapter in the garage controversy, although Mayor Shea does not permit there is any, will take place next Thursday evening at a special meeting of the Council when the latter have asked Mayor Shea to appear before them and answer several questions.

Two city machines are being repaired outside of the city garage including the city engineer's car which was supposed to have been repaired at the municipal garage only to get over to city hall and become dead. This is at Green's garage on Central street.

According to Councillor Brown last night in open Council meeting the cost of repairing these two machines may be $200.

Glackin Will Run In Ward 5

Arthur W. Glackin took out nomination papers today as a candidate for Councillor from Ward 5 to succeed Councillor Albert Reed. Glackin has long been a zealous worker in campaigns and has served as an election officer. He is a salesman and numbers many friends.

John J. Maroney of Buxton street, member of the American Legion will also be a candidate from ward 5. He served in the navy. Brian Healey announces that he will remain in the Ward 6 contest.

Council Honors Kelley's Claim

Peabody's City Council voted last night to honor a claim of $1394.82 of the Marke E. Kelley Co. for extra sidewalk construction in 1919 and 1920 after a motion made by Councillor Barry, chairman of the claims committee, who said that the committee was satisfied the city was morally obligated because ex-Mayor Donnell had personally ordered the work.

City Engineer Emerson had refused to approve of the bill on the ground that he had no right by the terms of the contract. Councillor Barry said the award carried no reflection on City Engineer Emerson who aparently was within his rights as a city official.

A letter from Mayor Shea setting forthe the fact that the Mass. Eastern St. Railway Co. wished this year's Council to enter into an agreement for the city to repair the inside of the Washington street tracks from Main street to Quinlan square, was voted re-

CITY HALL NOTES

A bomb was exploded by Mayor Shea this week in closing up the municipal garage. There has been more talk against this institution than any other department of the city government. Many have claimed that this garage could be run so as to make it a paying institution. But the point is the Mayor has the authority to close this garage under present conditions.

There is one phase of this and other similar situations which to our way of thinking should be settled by the courts once for all. The present city charter is framed in such a manner that according to our interpretation the Mayor has the power and he only, to start everything of this kind. The Council can say yes or no. Now as this power seems to be in doubt in many quarters, it is now time to settle it. The city is suffering in many ways by this conflict of authority, and the tax payers are paying the bills.

The public seem to care little about such things until the tax bills tell the story. Then instead of placing the blame where it belongs, the assessors, collectors and perhaps others are criticised, all of whom have no more to do with it than has George Washington.

The matter of several men being thrown out of work we much regret. They may have done their duty so far as we know. When the Council propose to raise money to carry the garage along, it appears to us they are exceeding their authority. That is why we repeat, let us know from the courts what is what.

Some say the Mayor is basing his claim because of the fact that the garage has not been officially made a municipal product. But as appropriations have been made several years towards its support, this fact may have much to do with its being a part of the city government.

Attorney Starr Parsons of Lynn will be the legal representative of the Mayor in this fight. He is being reckoned on to hold his own in this case as he has in many previous ones.

The police department are fortunate in having men who can tide over the present trouble by being able to run and care for the cars of their department. The world will soon be mostly chauffeurs.

This office has not received any big or small game to commemorate the gunning season. What experts of this kind are in city hall, please take notice. If rabbits, do not skin the animal as the fur is handy.

Hadley Sawyer tells us that freight rates to Maryland from Lynn are $3.00 a ton cheaper than from Peabody. Another fellow says it costs 25 cents a package to ship to Lynn from Boston and as much more from Lynn to Peabody. Leather scraps are being hauled over the road to Lynn for shipment because of this difference. Come on, Chamber of Commerce.

It seems natural to see ex-Mayor Donnell again in municipal fights. No doubt there will be fireworks and the whole matter will cost the tax payers as much as real fireworks.

No one can say, many can predict what next year's tax rate will be. This year's overdrawn accounts will be a large item, and either cuts in the running, or it might be termed less extravagance, is the only outlook for less than a $30 rate. Get out your pruning knife Mr. Mayor.

The fiscal year is fast drawing to a close, and the lessons learned cannot but help next year. The complexion of the next council will have much to do with better conditions. Such a wide gap as now exists between the two legislative departments does the city much harm. The Mayor's budget was necessarily large. The council could have pruned the first budget as they did the second one, but woke up too late.

Samuel T. Ritchings of Lynnfield street has thrown his hat into the political ring by circulating nomination papers for Councillor from Ward 1. He will contest with Councillor Frank A. McKeen.

Over in ward 3 where Councillor George Eagan is out for a reelection a close contest is being shaped between him and Ex-Councillor Charles H. Cotton. There is a report that Charles H. Cassidy, the barber, who is a resident of Sutton street, may also declare himself a candidate. It is said he is in a receptive mood and is only waiting the call to campaign.

Notice is hereby given that Bank Books Nos. 38,811 and 41,889, Warren Five Cents Savings Bank, Peabody, is lost and application for payment made. Chap. 171, Acts 1912.

PEABODY OFFICER SECRET GUARD TO GOVERNOR COX

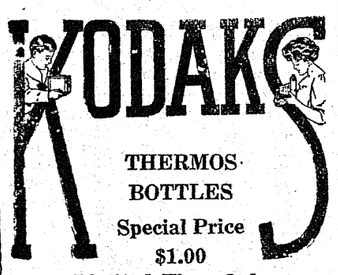
Patrolman James Murphy

Patrolman "Jim" Murphy was detailed to guard Governor Channing H. Cox last Tuesday night in Salem when the Chief Executive of the State appeared as the principal speaker before the Americanization class of new citizens. He wore civilian clothes, being one of the half dozen secret service men who were on the alert to prevent any untoward incidents.

Because of the theft of dynamite in several sections of the state and threats made by unbalanced persons against constituted authority, a sharp watch is being taken and Gov. Cox while unafraid is only heeding the advice of his friends.

Officer Murphy is credited with being Peabody's handsomest cop and his genial smile is an outstanding feature among his qualifications for wearing a policeman's uniform. He is a painstaking officer and does his duty, and his reports turned into Chief Grady are among the most intelligent copy received.

HARVARD CLUB ELECTS MANNING TO DIRECTORATE



Peabody helped to put over the organization of a Harvard Club to embrace the North Shore last Wednesday night at the Danvers Golf Club, off Margin street, this city. There were 75 alumni present. The new club has for its president James Duncan Phillips of Topsfield, member of the class 1897 who was one of the prime movers in organizing the club. Judge Daniel C. Manning of Peabody was elected a member of the executive committee. Peabody men present at the formation of the club were: Arthur W. Sim, Dr. John J. Hickey, Judge D. C. Manning, John T. Church, James E. Farley, Thomas J. O'Shea, Stuart N. Gardner and Frank W. Penniman.

FATHER AND SON DAY FOR PEABODY

By Don G. Roby, Secretary Peabody Chamber of Commerce

"Like father, like son" is so often true. Haven't you noticed repeatedly how the boy displays the business tendencies and traits of shrewdness exhibited by the older generation?

It has become a nation wide custom in cities to put on a Father and Son Night some time during the autumn. This move shows up those character-building and success-producing habits of the fathers; it causes the boys to be desirous of following the fathers' footsteps and quite often the boy can show the father a few things on short cuts to constructive development.

Peabody needs a Father and Son Night. Every city needs it. What better organization is there in our city to commence a worthy custom than our local Chamber of Commerce? And what are the possible results of such a feature becoming a popular annual event?

Is it altogether an irridescent dream to suppose that such a feature staged by our local Chamber would not be of a lasting benefit, not only to the Chamber, to the boy and to the father, but would redound to the everlasting credit of the cityy?

Such an event, properly handled would bring the fathers into closer harmony, would show the boys a new line of endeavor, would cause a desire on the part of the boy to do likewise. Result—a Junior Chamber of Commerce. And it would be a live one! The boys are quick to learn, and the parent organization would have to hustle.

Prosperity and progress are not accidental. They come as a result of planning and no small amount of effort. Take the boys from fourteen years to twenty into your confidence. Then—if you can't exert the effort—you can do the planning.

Many problems confront us. These problems will multiply and become more complicated. The only way we can meet and solve them is through the unselfish and unceasing support of the People and the united action of our citizenship. The boy of today is the citizen of tomorrow. Let him get started to cope with these problems now.

What do Peabody fathers say?

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

THE USE OF MONEY

Our little talk recently was about money and what money is. We found that money is a tool that we use in our daily life; a tool like a cart or wheelbarrow that helps us to move things from one man to another man, or to move things from one place to another. That is all that money can do. Let us keep this fact clearly in mind as we talk about money and remember that money is not wealth; railroads are wealth; ships, docks, factories, machinery, buildings, homes, manufactured goods, all these are wealth; they are stored up labor of men and as men have worked with axe and saw, with hammer and spade and other tools, so have they worked with the tool called money which has helped to produce this wealth. The axe and spade are of no value unless they are put to work. The tool we call money is equally of no value unless it is put to work and kept at work.

There is a law that regulates the affairs of men called the Economic Law. We do not understand this law very well, but little by little we are learning about it; every year we learn something. It is not a law made by men, but a law that controls the lives of men as do the laws that control the sun and moon and stars. It is a law that protects the greatest good to the greatest number and every time it is broken somebody is bound to suffer. The Economic Law governs the movement of money and the control of wealth in a marvelous way. It will not permit the use of wealth or money except for the greatest good to the greatest number. For instance;—the Economic Law will not allow money to be idle, as soon as a man gets money as a reward for his labor he must spend some of it for food, clothing, home and family and for the support of the government; if he has more than he needs for these purposes he puts it in a bank or invests it in something where it will earn interest. At once this money begins to work. The merchant keeps it in circulation and the most of it goes to pay wages somewhere. Wages to his clerks, wages to the workers who made the goods, wages to the farmer and his help who raised the food; always wages to somebody, somewhere; always moving goods from place to place.

If some of this money is put in a bank or invested in a business or in a railroad, immediately it starts on its travels paying wages, producing the greatest good to the greatest number, helping to create more wealth.

It is evident that the money a man spends will produce the greatest good to the greatest number if he spends it in his own town and what he saves he should deposit in the bank in his own town. The merchant and the banker are his neighbors and are helping him. They pay taxes to help educate his children,—to help pay the fire and police departments for the protection of his life and property,—to keep up the highways, sewerage and water systems. Every time a man goes out of his own town to spend his money somebody suffers and if everybody should do this there would be no stores and banks in that town. On the other hand the merchant must give his townsmen as good quality of goods at as low a price as he can find elsewhere or the public will not buy; he too must give the greatest good to the greatest number if he wishes the greatest reward, it is the law, the Economic Law.

There certainly is no danger to be feared in the use of the money tool in this manner and yet many people look upon a great quantity of money with fear. They wish laws made to control the use of wealth and money in some way, but every time men try to stop the working of the Economic Law they make trouble of some kind. The rich man does not keep his money in a safe, he buys something with it; a factory, a railroad, a telephone company and immediately the money starts paying wages to labor, labor of hand, or brain; the factory worker, the doctor, the priest, the engineer, the writer, the thinker, all working together building up the town and nation; building the character of men and women. This is how the money tool is used in the simplest manner. We are going to talk about how it is used in Industry and in the Government and how it is used in Banks. There is a good deal to be said about money. Some people think it is the most interesting thing that we can talk about.

WALLACE REID LEADS PROGRAM AT PEABODY'S POPULAR STRAND

The popularity of the automobile race pictures in which Wallace Reid has starred has resulted in the screening of "Too Much Speed," another original Byron Morgan story with the race track as a background. In this new picture Mr. Reid will again be seen in the pilot's overalls and helmet, speeding around the course to the speedometer's tune of a hundred and ten miles an hour, winning a race and the consent of a girl's father, to her wedding.

This picture, which will be the main attraction today and Saturday, is a continuation of the characters in "What's Your Hurry?" Mr. Reid's previous automobile picture, and the three principal characters of that story, Dusty Rhodes, played by Mr. Reid, Virginia McCurran, played by Agnes Ayers and Pat McCurran, played by Theodore Roberts, are again brought back to life.

At the start of this picture Dusty is on the point of marrying Virginia, when he races a rival dealer on the open road, and thus enrages old Pat McCurran, who declares the wedding off after they pay their fine for overspeeding. Then Dusty elopes with the bride with old man McCurran in hot pursuit. They are both jailed for being arrested twice the same day for overspeeding. After serving his sentence Dusty, with Virginia's help, secretly buys Pat's Parko racing car, which has been out of the game for two years, enters the big race and cops first place. The work of Theodore Roberts as old Pat McCurran is simply great. A Clyde Cook comedy entitled "The Jockey" and Ann Little in "The Blue Fox" will be the other attractions for today and Saturday.

Kathlyn Williams in "Just A Wife" will be the main feature for Sunday evening. The supporting cast in this picture includes Roy Sewart and Leatrice Joy. Alma Rubens in "Thoughtless Women" will be the second feature on the bill. Owing to State regulations it is difficult to get pictures for Sunday use that compare favorably with those shown on week days but this particular program is unusually good.

Another of Viola Dana's delightful photodramas will be presented on Monday and Tuesday. It is titled "The Match Breaker" and presents the star as a sort of female Sherlock Holmes who finding she is only fitted to steal other girls' sweethearts makes a professional occupation of it with the idea of rescuing susceptible males from designing females. Among her first customers are a father and son and the exciting episodes connected with vamping these two give the little star plenty of opportunity to show her peppery personality to best advantage. Frank Mayo in "The Fighting Lover" will be the other attraction for Monday and Tuesday.

Charlie Chaplin's new picture, "The Idle Class" will be presented at the Strand on Armistice Day.

Leather Trade From Nine Cities

Sole leather demand continues for heavy leather in the principal markets. Medium weight leather is coming in for little better call owing to shortage of the more desirable weights and tannages. Cut sole men are purchasing more medium and light weight union leather in Boston. Demand for heavy finders' leather continues in Boston and Philadelphia. In Boston some tanners are making buyers take a proportion of light and medium weight leather in order to get heavy. In Philadelphia a tanner who advanced prices on finders' bends has sold at the new level. A better demand for oak bellies has been noted in Boston and Philadelphia. In the latter market sales have been made on some tannages at 1 to 2c. advance. Offal trading is spasdomic in Chicago. Side upper leather in chrome tannages has been more active in Boston. Several large lots of slightly corrected grain colored sides have been moved. Western buyers are taking quantities of such stock at low prices. Chicago tanners note a better demand for veals. Better and medium grade leathers are selling well in that section. Calf leather business is still slow in Boston. Some quarters report fair orders for later delivery. In Chicago calf leather trading is confined to small lot purchases but demand is well distributed. There is a wide difference in price between best grades and the next selection. Glazed kid demand holds up well. More sizeable business is being booked from Canadian buyers.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

YOUR TEETH

By Rea Proctor McGee, D.D.S., M.D., Editor "Oral Hygiene"

HEAD INFECTIONS

The great majority of bodily infections are due to abscesses in some part of the head, usually in the mouth, throat, nose or in the little cavities that are located in a chain from the base of the nose backward to the under surface of the skull.

These cavities are called sinuses.

Whenever there is an abscess that causes absorption of the poisonous material into the blood stream, it is called a focus—a focus of infection.

The reason so much attention is given to mouth infections is not because they are worse than any other infections, but because there are so many opportunities for infection in the mouth.

There are twenty temporary teeth which, in the normal course of life, are followed by thirty-two permanent teeth. Consequently, every one of us has the possibility of fifty-two sources of infection in the mouth alone, unless the teeth, both temporary and permanent, are properly cared for.

Every infection shortens life either very slightly or very considerably. In order to keep a clean blood stream, points of infection must be removed, but how much better it is, and how much more sensible it is, to avoid these infections.

So far as the mouth is concerned, infection can almost always be avoided by proper care, in time.

The best time to begin preserving your health for the future is now. Just think of the wonderful opportunities ahead of us in this country. Only those who have health and energy can have the success of which they are capable. Pus is the enemy of success.

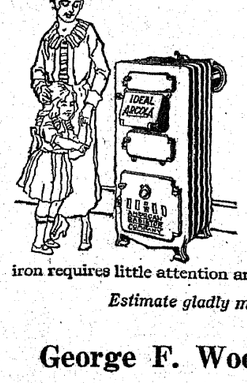
ROTARY CLUB TO INSPECT LIBRARY

Peabody Rotary Club members joined with the Salem Rotary Club last Tuesday night in the latter's Americanization night when nearly 60 naturalized citizens were welcomed and presented with diplomas. Governor Cox was the principal speaker.

Among the newly made citizens were James Grenato and Manahan P. Stone of Peabody.



Peabody members present were Thomas H. Mulherin, Max Korn, Mayor William A. Shea, Frank H. Sanger, John Meagher, Rogers Crehore, John W. Power, Donald G. Roby and Frank W. Penniman. The Peabody delegation put over the song "Down on McDonald's Farm".

At the Tuesday luncheon of the Peabody Rotarians Librarian John E. Keefe was the principal speaker. He told in an interesting manner the immense range of books and periodicals in the Peabody Institute and invited the Rotarians to inspect the library. Following his address, Dr. Lawrence K. Kelley, President of the Board of Trustees of the Institute made a motion that a committee of 12 be appointed from the Rotary Club to procure data on the needs of the library in order to supply information which every citizen, particularly every parent should know concerning the public library which was given to the city by George Peabody.

The Boys Committee of the Rotary Club is planning an entertainment in the Strand theatre in the near future to raise money to extend its work among Peabody boys. Dr. S. Chase Tucker is chairman of this committee.

MUNICIPAL GARAGE

Peabody citizens are interested in the outcome of the present status of its "white elephant" garage. The Enterprise has always defended a municipal garage provided the management was what it should be in any well maintained and efficient garage. There are many citizens who feel this way for in the last analysis if the management is efficient results are measured accordingly. The Enterprise is not receding from its expressions in the past in which we have argued for a municipal garage. We are aware of much criticism that has been directed at the city garage management. Some of the criticism has been in order. Some of it has not been, according to our best information. It may be that the manager has been giving his best effort. Results are what count. He is, however, responsible to the Mayor for his conduct of the city business at the garage and the Mayor has seen fit to close the place on the ground that the appropriation made for its upkeep has been exhausted. The Mayor is the constituted authority and as such must have his reasons.

We do not understand that anybody has been "fired". Without money the garage cannot be maintained and that is the status of the garage today. We are sorry for the men who have found themselves without a job in this incident and we do not wonder they are making a fight. What the outcome will be makes for the interest in the present muddle.

We believe that Mayor Shea is interested in doing what is right for the taxpayers and the men involved. The public is eager to be enlightened as to the true conditions that existed at the garage before it was ordered closed and a statement from the Mayor might help to mould public sentiment.

FINE EXAMPLE

Forty-four new citizens were royally welcomed into their new environment by the Salem Rotary Club this week, invited guests at the occasion including his Excellency Gov. Cox and the mayors of several neighboring cities, including his Honor Mayor Shea of Peabody. Mayor Shea declared himself as much impressed by the demonstration, and filled with inspiration toward the work of making citizens in his own municipality. Hundreds of local people need encouragement in taking the necessary steps toward citizenship. Many have gone as far as filing their declarations of intention, or first papers, and hesitated about going thru the final stages of naturalization. The process is so simple that it is pitiful to think of the numberless people who are not citizens simply because they do not know the proper steps to take to be naturalized. A man can declare his intentions, (or take out his first papers) at the age of 18, regardless of the length of time he has been in the country or whether or not he can read or write. At least two years must then elapse before he may complete his naturalization, and the law further states that before he may become a citizen he must have been a resident of the country five years, must be able to read and write and to successfully answer basic questions on our form of government. The process is just difficult enough to bar out undesirables, and yet easy enough not to discourage the person who wishes to claim allegiance to our country. Salem is doing a fine thing in making much of the new citizens. Peabody might well be inspired by her neighbor and do all in her power to encourage the worthy aliens in her midst to complete their naturalization at an early date so that they, too, might be accorded the same warm welcome as were the new citizens of Salem on Tuesday evening last.

PEABODY HIGHEST

With an unbroken string of victories so far this season, followers of the local high school football team are hoping to see "Peabody High-est" in football circles. Displaying excellent teamwork, Peabody has made short work of her opponents to date, but has the heavy end of her schedule yet ahead of her. The big objective just now is the Salem game on Nov. 5, when it is hoped to attract one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed an athletic exhibition in Essex County. The Peabody public can be depended upon to support to the limit her representatives in athletics, whether they happen to be winners or losers. This feature has enabled Peabody in the past to gain the reputation of a "good sport" city, and has been a great help to the teams in the field, who knew at all times that the city was behind them to a man. The Enterprise is glad to see the spirit shown by the student body and the clean sportsmanship of the players. There seems to be no reason why Peabody High should not finish the season with a clean slate and highest honors in the greatest of fall sports.

The Sharp Ones.

The bitterest words are those of our own we are forced to eat.—Wayside Tales.

IN EVENING TOGS

Flaring Skirts Prove Only Weak Whim of Fashion.

Straight-Line Dress Still Triumphant—Greek Drapery Provides Note of Beauty.

The Greek idea is firmly established in summer evening dresses. There has been considerable talk of flaring skirts, and a number of them have made their appearance in the shops, but, as predicted, cites a fashion critic, they have proven to be only a whim of fashion, and the straight-line dress still is triumphant. It would be impossible in the entire annals of fashion to find anything more beautiful than the clothes built on the natural lines of the body.

While dresses for daytime wear may be on perfectly straight lines, some draping usually is required for models designed for the evening, and in these we are becoming more familiar with the beauty of Greek drapery at its best—that is, when the cloth was laid in natural folds.

There is no more reason why an evening frock, any more than one intended for the morning, should be fussy. Happily, the days when this was considered necessary are passed.

Nothing could be lovelier than the white and silver evening dresses created for this summer. They are very straight of line and high of neck in the front, but with the decolletage cut extremely low in the back and standing away from the body in some mysterious way, so that while the front of the neck appears to fit rather snugly the back is loose.

The dresses themselves are much like the continuously popular chemise, except that they are draped slightly to the figure at the sides. A wide sash of the white fabric, which usually is a soft silk, may girdle such a frock at a low line. From this sash fall loops of the silk the same width as the sash and lined with silver cloth, as is the girdle, which ties in the back and hangs as many inches below the skirt as desired. If the dress is intended for formal wear the ends of the sash may form square or pointed trains. Both emerald green crepe de chine and silver and bright cerise colored silk and silver have been attractively worked out in these simpler models.

MAKING THE MENDING EASY

Have Set of Pegs Conveniently Spaced on Board to Accommodate Spools and Balls.

The best possible way to keep spools of thread and mending cotton is on a set of pegs that will fit into the hole in the middle of the spool or ball. You can buy these, though the spool holders offered for sale usually have only three or four pegs. You should have at least a dozen. A good home-made device is to get a narrow, smooth board, perhaps 15 inches long and three or four inches wide. This you may make smooth by finishing it with enamel paint. In this you should drive long, heavy nails an inch and a half apart. You might drive two rows of these if your board is wide enough. Drive them just far enough in to make them secure. On these nails you can place your threads and mending cottons.

A few hours more would be sufficient time to devote to making an excellent mending paraphernalia with a convenient place for keeping mending needles, scissors, tapes, buttons and the various other essentials of mending.

FROM 'FAIRYLAND' SHE COMES

Two heavy rows of rose satin ruching are the sole adornment of this simple little summer frock from "Fairyland" of Paris. A lightweight silk of pure white makes the body of the garment.

ROUND ABOUT

Ray E. Porter club champion for six consecutive years of the Homestead Golf Club has been deposed. The matches this year were decided at a time when the star player of the club had for a long period taken his recreation at his Conomo cottage to the exclusion of golf and found him far from his usual form. As Homesteaders say, "The King is dead. Long live the King."

DOING CHILDREN A REAL SERVICE

Is it not a wonderful thing that society has progressed so far that there exists an organization whose sole purpose is to see that no child is cruelly treated?

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children can be appealed to by any citizen whenever he believes that any child within the community is not being properly treated.

The Peabody branch of this organization has already done more than enough to justify its continued existence and it plans to make a public appeal for the necessary funds to do its work.

The membership fee is one dollar a year and it is suggested that contributions take the form of annual memberships.

(Signed) Peabody Committee.

VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION

Donation day will be observed at the J. B. Thomas Hospital on Tuesday, November 8. An efficient committee under the direction of Mrs. Jesse F. Barrett has the matter in charge and hopes for a generous response from the citizens of Peabody.

From the proceeds of the sale of Christmas seals for the past two years scales and apparatus for measuring have been placed in all the schools. At the annual meeting it was voted to use a portion of this fund to pay the expenses of a dental examiner who will spend a week in the city and examine the teeth of the school children.

Removing Mildew.

Chloride of lime, used intelligently, will remove mildew. Do not use too much. A teaspoonful to a small tub or pail full of water is plenty. Be sure lime is thoroughly dissolved, or better still, tie it up in a stout piece of cloth and run water onto it, pressing the cloth with a stick; then allow it to float in tub. Immerse article to be cleansed and allow to stand several hours. Remove and rinse thoroughly in several waters. Repeat if necessary, but do not increase quantity of lime, as it will eat the material.

Red Cross Gives $310,000 to Aid 'Clean-Up' Drive

An appropriation of $310,000 for Red Cross work in connection with the "clean-up" campaign instituted by the Government to bring the claims of all disabled service men who are entitled to Federal aid before the proper government bureau for action, has been made by the American Red Cross. The Executive Committee of the American Red Cross in making the appropriation authorized the appropriation of $35,000 of this sum to the American Legion to defray the expense of the Legion representatives assigned to the various districts of the Veterans Bureau.

The remainder of the appropriation was authorized for apportionment among the several Divisions of the Red Cross for carrying on that part of the "clean-up" work that falls directly upon the Red Cross organization.

Young America Sends Vast Relief To Needy Abroad

Various relief projects of the Junior American Red Cross in European countries resulted in helping 250,000 destitute children during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the American Red Cross for that period. The growth of the activities of the Juniors abroad is manifested by a comparison which shows this figure is 200,000 larger than that of the previous fiscal year.

The National Children's Fund raised by school children, members of the Junior American Red Cross, was drawn upon for $420,557 for these projects. Receipts for the National Children's Fund during the last fiscal year totalled $155,317.

Witness, HARRY R. DOW, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this tenth day of October in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

HORACE H. ATHERTON, Register.

(O 14-21-28)

To the Honorable the Justices of the Court within and for the County of Essex:

Respectfully libels and represents [illegible] GALANOPOULOS, of Peabody in said County, that she was lawfully married to [illegible] Galanopoulos, now of Chemnitz, Germany, at said Peabody on the ninth day of [illegible] 1918 and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Peter Galanopoulos lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, at said Peabody; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Peter Galanopoulos being wholly regardless of the [illegible] Peabody on or about the fourteenth day of August 1918, without just cause or provocation utterly deserted your libellant and [illegible] has continued from such [illegible] hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that she be [illegible] from the bonds of matrimony now existing between your libellant and the said Peter Galanopoulos; and your libellant further alleges that there has been born of said marriage a son, Christos Galanopoulos [illegible] and prays that the care and custody of said minor child be decreed to your libellant.

Dated this thirteenth day of October A. D. 1921.

MARY GALANOPOULOS.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Essex, ss. Superior Court, [illegible]

Upon the foregoing libel, ordered that said libellant give notice to the said Peter GALANOPOULOS by causing an attested copy of her said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody in the County of Essex, once a week, for three successive weeks, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within and for said County, on the first Monday of December next, by mailing forthwith, by registered mail, to the libellee at Clamata, Greece, a copy of said libel and of this order thereon, that he may appear at said time and place three months from said first Monday of December and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Attest, A. N. [illegible], Clerk.

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

NEED OF NURSES

There are few worthier or more renumerative callings open for our young girls today than the field for nursing. Girls with high school educations are eagerly sought by the leading hospitals to engage in training for the duties of a registered nurse. The wages paid at the start are better today than ever and the treatment accorded the students is such that no girl need hesitate to take up this vocation. There is urgent need of more students for nurses' training schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Gowell of California visited relatives here last Sunday. They made the trip by auto camping on the way. They have not slept indoors since they started.

R. B. Draper, the coal man, is occupying the brick house on Lynn street which he recently purchased from the Skinner estate.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Lake Shore Park church held a meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Gould.

At the conference of the Congregational churches held in Lynn Tuesday, the Second Congregational church was represented by Rev. and Mrs. Robert Bakeman, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Jordan, Mrs. Russell Walker and Mrs. Joseph Annis.

Mrs. Alice McDonald of Dorchester, formerly of Rockport, spent the week-end with her cousin, Mrs. John Powers on Lynn street.

A lot of interest is shown by the boys of the Bosco club in the coming election of mayor and council and it takes place Monday night at the church.

The annual fair at the Second Congregational church was held this week and a neat sum will be realized. The booths were trimmed with festoons of of evergreen and hemlock boughs with vari-colored chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. It showed the talent of Mrs. Sarah Swett and Mrs. Nellie Annis who are well qualified in this line. The booths were loaded with all kinds of articles and were well patronized. Tuesday evening the entertainment consisted of piano solos by Miss Beatrice Keith, vocal selections by Miss Selina Houlden and Chester Potter, who delighted the old and young by his sleight of hand tricks and xylophone solos. Wednesday evening Master Allan Anderson of Lynn gave readings, Miss Agnes Jordan played violin solos, Gustave Erickson played the saxaphone and John Barrowclough gave comic selections in costume. Very pleasing vocal duetts were given by two ladies from Marblehead and vocal solos by a gentleman who was also from Marblehead. Dressed dolls were awarded to Dorothy LeCain, Marjory Griffin and Erdine Newhall in the order named. Thursday a harvest supper was served to a large number and was thoroughly enjoyed. The fair was a success in every way. The entertainments that were given Tuesday and Wednesday were splendid and were under the direction of W. W. McGreggor.

Just one year ago Rev. Harry Hill was united in marriage to Miss Jeanette Hill and in order to celebrate the event their many friends tendered them a surprise party Tuesday evening. They were invited out to supper and about 8 o'clock were told that callers wished to see them at their home. When they arrived they found their house in possession of their many friends. A wedding cake graced the dining table with one candle burning on it. They were somewhat surprised but made every one welcome. In behalf of the friends William Duestrom presented them with a victrola and records. Ice cream and cake were served and all departed at a late hour wishing Rev. and Mrs. Hill many happy years to come.

Next Thursday a harvest supper and sale will be held at the Lake Shore Park church. The Ladies' Aid will have charge of the supper, with Mrs. Elizabeth Hetherington as chairman. The Philathea class will have charge of cake with Mrs. Edna Wilson as chairman. George Southwick will have charge of ice cream, assisted by the men's class. The Camp Fire Girls with Miss Gladys Kennedy chairman, will sell candy. Pop corn will be sold by George Hewis and Boy Scouts. Mrs. Jeannette Hill and B. B. B. club will have charge of the mystery packages.

The Philathea class entertained the men's class last evening by having a Hallowe'en party. All came dressed in costume and the customary Hallowe'en games were enjoyed.

Services at Lake Shore Park church. Morning services at 10.45, subject, "The Christian's Supreme Desire." Sunday school at noon. Classes for all ages. Evening service sat 7 o'clock. Sermon by Rev. Percy M. Hickols, pastor of Lakeside M. E. church. You are extended a cordial inviation to all of these services.

Peabody Leather Plants Eagerly Watching Move Of Lynn Shoe Workers

(By ENERGY)

For many months I have watched the news columns to see if any one was taking up the subject of shoe making in New England, and my labors have been rewarded this week by items appearing which announce that the shoe manufacturers and labor unions are waking up to the fact that business is fast getting away and is being done in the west. No doubt many interested persons have read the hand writing on the wall long before this time. It is certain the labor unions have of late commenced to realize what the condition is, and having done so must take suitable means to keep their members at work.

Dull business has been encountered in Lynn and Haverhill many times in the past. But I question if present day conditions have ever faced them. I question whether if ever before shoe manufacturing has been done elsewhere as it is being done today. Endicott Johnson Co. have been a big factory and make their goods in New York state. The other centers have been in St. Louis, and have been for some years making inroads into New England business. But with wages near equal, the N. E. manufacturer has been able to hold his business. At this time it cannot be done, for the westerners are underselling 20 cents a pair. This amount is large and far beyond former figuring, when two cents a pair represented a profit.

What does 20 cents a pair difference mean? It must mean that every thing which goes to make a shoe has been cut in price. Sole leather, upper leather, linings, and so down to the smaller costs. Then the labor cost comes in and there must be a wide variance between eastern and western labor. I am not able to discuss labor prices, and after all the total cost counts, and that 20 cents a pair means the west is busy and Lynn and Haverhill are doing little or nothing. Will the remedy come for these ills? If so how will it come and when? It seems to me the answer must come from the shoe-workers themselves through their unions. Any one conversant with leather prices knows that good leather can be purchased for 15 cents a foot. This means on the upper a saving of $1.80 a pair is made. I presume the bottoms, tops and linings can be purchased correspondingly low, bringing the cut at least $3.00 a pair. The war profits were so large that no wonder we unfortunates had to pay $10 a pair for shoes which before the war we would have hesitated to wear at all.

—*—

Drunk with prosperity, profits, and pull, by which I mean the power to exact the price for their goods, it is indeed a tough proposition to get back again with competition facing one from every angle. This war was a bad lesson, and might be likened to the young man born with a silver spoon in his mouth, to find himself later without money and obliged to face the world with no money and the worst, no experience. One brought up to knocks can stand many more. The other side is that while the rich man's son can weather them, he first must learn how. Many people have little compassion for a boy of this kind, but when he is not to blame, which is the rule, help rather than knock. Our courts help the young criminal to go right, it might be well to give the fellow I have described a boost, even if there are few of them.

I was somewhat amused this week while talking to a local manufacturer. He has looked at the dark side of business for some time. He has been fairly busy through it all, but that nightmare of going to hades had him for fair. He told me this week he had been extremely busy, but did not know how long it would last. I had a mind to tell him he little knew how long he would last. Then another manufacturer told me his concern, one of the largest in the business, was doing 75 percent, and if the usual foreign business was healthy they would be back to normal. I presume I could visit all the tanners and get all kinds of junk, but the wail would be that measily profits of 25 cents a dozen did not warrant keeping the shop open. One thing seems to me certain, those who are satisfied to take small profits for the next two years are the fellows who will represent the business.

—*—

Low cut shoes for men is the fad this winter. Some of us can remember when woolen stockings and long leg boots were popular. They were worn by those cusses who worked 18 hours a day and thrived on it. They had warm feet, and sometimes I think that lace stockings and low shoes brought about that expression of getting cold feet. I am sure the former huskies never had them, and when the glass is down to zero and blowing snow, what a comfort those stockings and low shoes will be. Some way will have to be provided to unload that snow.

—*—

Our wives and sweethearts wear low neck dreses. I wonder if the men will come to that, if so it will cost many of them double to shave. But I am serious when I say low shoes in winter are as much of a joke as straw hats. Those who will wear them will tell you they are comfortable. If one has an office, an auto, supplied with heat in both cases, in other words does his work with his head, and looks out of doors on a cold night as does a pet cat, and turns around and comes to the fireside the low shoes will do. But they are not for the husky, the real bruiser, who walks four miles an hour through snowdrifts.

—*—

So keep smiling Mr. Tanner.

JEWISH PASTOR MAKING PROGRESS

The observance of the Hebrew holidays which ended last Tuesday was a big success for the Congregation Sons of Israel of Peabody, morally and materially. Never in the history of the Peabody Jewery was the Congregation so crowded to their services, a tribute to the new spiritual head of the congregation, Rev. Mauryce Ordman, who directed the congregation at their services. The congregation also did not forget their duty where charity is concerned and pledged $4000 for a new Hebrew school and $1800 for the up-building of Palestine. The committee wishes to thank all the members of the congregation and visitors for their attendance.

A Frog Concert.

As I sat on the piazza that evening, I noticed first an ominous absence of bird voices, and next the presence of a numerous frog population about the little lake close by. The musical performances of these voluble reptiles began about sunset and increased in volume and power till nothing else could be heard. If all the thrushes in the state had assembled in that spot and sung their loudest, they could not have been heard above the awful volume of frog voices.—Olive Thorne Miller.

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE"

—Judge Rutherford

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE!"

In less than a year this proclamation has found its way into thirty languages and the message is being heralded to millions of people in thousands of cities in every land of the earth. "Millions now living will never die!" "Who ever heard of such a thing. Preposterous," you will say. So said the scoffers to Noah: they had never seen rain—but the flood came on time. "Millions now living will never die!" but will enjoy unending human life on the earth and ascend a highway of righteousness to full perfection of body, of mind, of character, in company with their loved ones returned from the grave. When the kingdom of God is fully established mankind will have no more fear of sickness or accident, old age or death; no more dread of loss of home, or loved ones, or livelihood; no more sorrow or tears.

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE!"

You may be one of them. Go! Hear the proof of these most marvelous tidings. Testimony upon testimony, evidence upon evidence, Biblical, historical, scientific—appealing to your reason as well as to your heart—will be presented without cost in the lecture by

of Lynn, Mass., who will speak on the Topic:—

'THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME: MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NVER DIE."

This lecture has comforted multitudes bereaved by the world war, epidemics, and attending sorrows. So great has been the demand that it has been amplified and published in book form, including 500 Scriptural proof tests. Those unable to hear the lecture may have a copy by sending 25 cents to I. B. Last Week In The Provinces

Decision to increase some of the port and wharfage charges at St. John to provide additional revenue in order to pay for the taking over of railway trestles from the Canadian Pacific railway at West St. John was reached at a committee meeting of the city council recently. The principal item was a charge of $2.50 a car on all traffic carried over the trestles in question.

The provincial government of New Brunswick devoted considerable time last week to a hearing of a delegation from Woodstock with regard to the deficit of the Woodstock exhibition. The request made of the government was that the province made good the deficit. Consideration was promised. Other fairs in the province are reported to show deficits and it is probable that similar requests will be made of the government from other places.

—*—

The Rev. A. R. Yeomans with his wife and sons have arrived in Newcastle. The Rev. Mr. Yeomans has been appointed by the Bishop of Fredericton as the successor of Rev. H. T. Montgomery in the parish of Derby and Blackville. Owing to the dilapidated condition of the Millerton rectory and changes proposed therewith it will be necessary for the new rector to live in Newcastle for the winter. He is especially welcomed to the shiretown, for his father was former manager of the Royal bank and he himself has many friends there.

—*—

The lobster fishing opens on the South Shore on the 15th of November. For the last three or four years the season did not open until March. This decision is against the wishes of the majority of the lobster fishermen, owing to the fall being such a stormy time of the year and so much fishing gear is lost. However it is thought that this was done to relieve the unemployment situation. The people report business pretty good. The cold storage, fertilizing plant and other industries are running full blast. The town of Lockeport is having concrete sidewalks put down, the canning factory is getting ready for the lobster season, and this will give employment to quite a number.

Fred Priest, a C. N. R. brakeman at Fredericton, has been arrested and released on bail until trial on a charge of stealing liquor from a freight car in the Devon yards or while en route to Woodstock. A cache of one of the finest brands of 25 years old Scotch whiskey was found in a deserted barn near Marysville, a cotton mill town four miles from there, a week ago, and dozens of people got drunk on the exceptionally good quality free liquor. Later on it developed the whiskey was stolen from a shipment imported by some of the leading citizens of Woodstock, N. B., from Scotland.

This week brings to Halifax the first winner in Nova Scotia of the I. O. D. E. Bursary for Canadian universities. Miss Leone Tupper of Kentville, daughter of a soldier permanently disabled in the Great War, has won the Bursary for 1921 and will attend Dalhousie university. Miss Tupper is a graduate of Kentville high school. She will reside at the Marlborough Women's residence for the winter.

After four years' blindness following a wound received overseas, Hector McDonald of North Sydney, a former soldier of the Canadian Black Watch, has had his sight practically restored to normal by an operation at Hamilton hospital, following a visit to the shrine of St. Anne deBeaupre.

Charles Delahunt, 46, chief clerk in the Moncton post office, was found dead a little after ten o'clock Wednesday morning in one of the rear rooms of the post office building. He was lying on the floor with a rifle nearby and pointing towards his head. A bullet had passed through his head and lodged in the wall.

The town of Amherst has opened a civic coal yard and is now prepared to sell coal to its citizens, in large or small quantities. Councillor Fred Leeman, the prime mover in the establishment of the yard, stated that the civic coal yard was not a money maker but simply an effort to help the people of the town to save money in the purchase price of their coal. Coal is to be sold at cost which for the present means $8.70 per ton delivered in the cellar. The coal is of the best quality and at this price a busy season anticipated by the civic fathers, as a saving of a dollar fifty per ton can thus be effected.

Capt. M'Kay To Open Lyceum Course Nov. 1

Thrills of Police Life in the Northwest will be graphically told by Captain Daniel A. MacKay at Peabody Institute, Tuesday evening, Nov. 1.

The lecture is given under the auspices of the Lyceum committee of Peabody Institute and is free to all citizens.

Captain MacKay was for many years a member of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. The subject of his talk at Peabody Institute next Tuesday evening will be: "Riding the Plains with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police."

Captain MacKay will describe in graphic language the adventure and exploits of the organization, and the thrilling incidents in his own career with this famous body of troopers, how he bunked with the son of Charles Dickens and took the long trail over the barren wastes of the Northwest with sons of nobility and men gathered from all parts of the world.

It is worthy of note that when the war broke out in 1914 a large share of the troopers resigned and entered the Canadian army and that more than 900 of them laid down their lives at Vimy Ridge, Ypres and other famous fields of battle.

COAT STYLES ARE NEW

In coats at least, the styles for fall and winter are new, showing more definition of the figure and less "wrappy" lines. Many of them have flaring sleeves and skirts decidedly full, as revealed by the model selected for illustration. In this model side panels are shirred into cut seams and ornamented with silk embroidery. The becoming collar is of beaver fur.

ELKS LODGE HAS FIRST INITIATION

Peabody Lodge of Elks, the baby antler herd of the State, went over the first hundred mark of members last Monday night when it embraced 20 more new brothers who made up as fine a class of candidates ever initiated into this great American order. The initiation held in K. of C. hall was at the hands of Exalted Ruler J. Joseph Kelley and officers of Beverly lodge. Esquire J. H. Sullivan of Beverly marshaled the candidates.

Exalted Ruler Kelley of the Beverly lodge is without a peer in the office he occupies and his excellent work was greeted by a long applause and later he and his suite were given a rising vote of thanks.

It was the first initiation put on since the institution of the Elks lodge in Peabody last June and was witnessed by a large attendance of members together with delegations from Salem and Beverly lodges.

Following the initiation the members adjourned to their own quarters in the second O'Shea building where a buffet lunch was served.

Peabody lodge now has 110 members. It is moving slowly in its selection of candidates and building a lodge that is sure to do its part in this community in everything that will make better American citizens. The lodge under Exalted Ruler Joseph A. Ryan is planning a busy winter. It's meeting nights are to be the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Rev. C. Norman Bartlett, pastor. Sunday, Oct. 30, preaching at 10.30 by Rev. John Reid, pastor of the South Congregational church in exchange with the pastor. 7 p. m., echoes from a great convention by the pastor.

MARTIN F. FAY

The funeral of Martin F. Fay, who died in Seattle, Wash., was held in St. John's Church, October 20. Requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, who also read the commital service at the grave. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Salem by undertaker Walter T. McDonald. A delegation was present from Peabody Lodge of Elks and the Brotherhood of Trainmen. Mr. W. S. Ormsby who escorted the body from Auburn, Wash., represented the Auburn Local Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Many beautiful tributes were sent.

The Magic Word.

Collier's Weekly says: "In Ohio there is one of the world's model factories. It manufactures a product known and sold the world around. It has made the man who founded it and who still owns it very rich. What is more important, it has proved the training ground for many men who have left to go into other lines of business and have, in many instances, themselves become heads of big business enterprises. A visitor on being shown through the plant notices printed cards prominently placed on the walls of office and factory rooms bearing the single word—'Think.'"

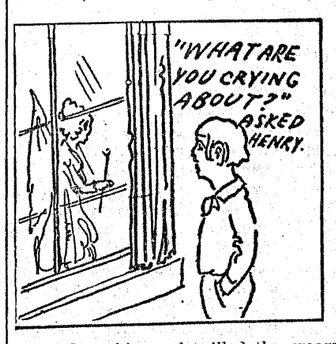
There will be a meeting next Tuesday at 8 p. m., and any member that has a new candidate should see that the application is in before the meeting.

SHIP HOME FOR LEGION

Use of one of the Shipping Board's wooden "war vessels" tied up at a wharf for more than a year as a home until permanent quarters can be constructed is being sought by Rainier-Noble post of the American Legion, Seattle, Wash.



THE SUNSHINE FAIRY.

"GOOD morning," said Father as little Henry came into the dining room, "isn't this a nice, bright morning, son?"

Henry did not answer. He jerked his chair from the table and slid into it with a sullen air, for Henry was cross because his mother had not let him put on his new shoes that morning.

"Heavy black clouds seem to be bothering you," said Henry's father. "Better drive them away or you will have an unhappy day."

But Henry did not answer. He kept his eyes on his plate, and a frown on his face, but when he pushed his dish away from him and spilled the cream his father told him to go to his room and stay there until the cloud cleared from his face.

Henry did not quite understand about the "heavy, black cloud," but he did know, of course, that he had behaved badly, so he went to his room feeling that everyone was treating him unkindly.

"Have not got a heavy cloud on my face," he said, looking in the mirror. Then he drew the shade because someone had once told him that little fairies danced in the sunlight when it streamed into the room.

"Get out of my room," said Henry. "I won't have any fairies in here. I don't like girls, and all fairies are girls. Anyway, I don't believe in fairies, only those in picture books."

Henry was very cross as you see, and he did not want to see the sunshine, so he threw himself on his bed on his back to think over how cross everything was that morning.

All at once he heard some one crying. It seemed to come from outside his window. So Henry jumped up and peeked out.

The tiniest creature dressed in silver sat on the sill of the window crying.

"What are you crying about?" asked Henry, who really was a very kind little boy.

"I can't get in to do my work," said the little creature. "It is all dark inside and they shut me out. I am the sunshine fairy and I have to dance when the sun shines and make people happy. But how can I when they will not let me in?"

Henry raised the shade and up jumped the little fairy and danced into the room on the sunshine as it streamed in.

"Oh, haven't you any face?" asked the little creature, "or is it behind old black cloud? Sometimes he does hide faces, but I most always can drive him away."

Henry went to the mirror, and sure enough this time he found that in place of his face there was a heavy black cloud, through which he could see but dimly.

He looked at the sunshine and the little fairy had been joined by hundreds of others who were dancing about in the jolliest manner.

Henry forgot all about the cloud as he watched them, and presently a stream of sunshine cleared away the cloud and Henry jumped up, for you see he was dreaming all the time he had fallen asleep.

The wind had blown the shade and into the room came the bright sun, but Henry could not find the fairies though he looked everywhere.

"They did drive away heavy black cloud," thought Henry, "and I do feel happier. Perhaps there are some fairies in the sunshine after all."

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

A band of 3,500 pieces, the largest of its kind ever assembled in the United States, will play at the national convention of the American Legion in Kansas City October 31, November 1 and 2. A contest of the 100 Legion bands and drum corps will be held to determine the three best musical organizations. The combined bands will play under the direction of the leader of the band winning first prize.

Terribly burned in a gasoline explosion, Louis Turner, world war veteran of Bloomington, Ill., was not expected to recover. In a hospital at Davenport, Ia., however, the skin of two American Legion comrades was grafted on to his body and he is now out of danger. The two men did not know Turner except that he was "a buddy, out of luck."

Cooperation of every member of the American Legion in preventing abuse of the reduced railroad fare privilege extended Legion men and their families to the organization's national convention at Kansas City October 31, November 1 and 2, is asked in a bulletin being distributed by national headquarters at Indianapolis. It is feared that the low rate tickets will fall into the hands of persons not entitled to their use.

The two half backs on the University of Iowa football team are both ex-service men and fathers, according to the American Legion of the state. Donald McRae, Council Bluffs, one of the varsity backs, has a son three and a half years old and Glen Devine, Des Moines, has a son seven months old. Donald McRae, the father, is a son of Mrs. Donald McRae, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion of Iowa, and a candidate for national head of the organization.

Veterans of the world war are given preference for postmasterships in an executive order given the Civil Service Commission by President Harding. Five points will be added to the examination rating of every prospective master in government service during the war; age limitations may be waived in such cases and the period of war services reckoned as a part of the required length of business experience.

A Congressional investigation of Fox Hills, L. I. hospital and the management of that institution is demanded by the American Legion and its Women Auxiliary of New York. The Legion charges that sick and wounded men are lodged in a fire-trap and that false reports have been sent by the hospital authorities to Washington in connection with the patients' application for government compensation.

—*—

Celebrated war slogans will decorate the boxes of the distinguished visitors at the American Legion national convention in Kansas City October 31. "They shall not pass' will be placarded in front of Marshal Foch's box while "Heaven, hell or Hoboken by Christmas" has been approved for the tag for General Pershing's. Quotations for Admiral Beatty, Baron Jacques and Generial Diaz are being resurrected by a convention committee.

—*—

"To show the world that Arkansas produces the finest diamonds," the American Legion of that state will present the new national commander, elected at the Legion convention in Kansas City November 2, a 2.32 carat flawless canary diamond. The Arkansas veterans will at the same time present Marshall Foch a scarf pin set with an Arkansas pearl.

—*—

An aerial traffic cop will operate "stop" and "go" signs above Kansas City during the national convention of the American Legion here October 31, November 1 and 2. Governors Hyde, Missouri, and Allen, Kansas, have commissioned Dudley Steele, former army aviator, to patrol the air lanes, prevent traffic "jams" and prohibit low flying and stunting over the city by fliers who take part in the aerial derby and circus. The Kansas City flying club will prosecute offenders.

—*—

Aroused by threats of violent death against prominent members of the American Legion in Iowa, federal authorities are conducting an investigation. John B. Wallace, son of the Secretary of Agriculture, was informed by a note that he would "come across with $2000 or be blown to hell." He didn't and wasn't. Harry H. Polk, Des Moines, received a similar note threatening to blow up his apartments and him, too, because he "led the boys to death on the battlefield of France."

—*—

When General Pershing visits Kansas City this month to attend the convention of the American Legion he will be received by members of his post of the Legion of Lincoln, Neb. The general, as Lieut. Pershing, was military instructor at the university of Nebraska on his first assignment from West Point, 20 years ago.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The South church Sunday school will hold a Hallowe'en and costume party Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the vestry of the church. Elaborate plans are being made for the occasion and an unusual good time is assured all who attend.

Miss Alice G. Walsh of the Income Tax Division, Treasury Dept., Washington, D. C. is spending a short vacation at the home of her mother, Mrs. Catherine A. Walsh.

T. P. Earle of Prospect street has a new Ford sedan.

Mrs. M. S. Hanson and daughter have returned home from Oak Hill, North Conway, N. H. after a sojourn of several weeks.

PEABODY CLUB STARTS WINTER LIST OF SOCIALS

The Peabody Club starts its winter entertainments Saturday evening of this week. Bob Upton and another expert will show how pocket billiards should be played. A clam chowder will be served. Everett B. Terhune is expected the following Saturday night. Once a month special features will be introduced. Elliott L. Macdonald will give an illustrated lecture in December. November 1 a billiard and pool tournament starts. Later a tournament with Now and Then association.

ment to have the city adopt Ford machines as a standard unit, declared if the Fords were in use they would go a long ways towards making the municipal garage a paying proposition. City Solicitor Farnham told the Council last night that Mayor Shea was in favor of Ford cars for city use.

Several surprises are scheduled to develop this week in the garage muddle, one of which may be a decision by the civil service commission. From a source close to the Mayor it is understood that the garage will remain "closed" until January. The Mayor is confident that he will not have to back down.

KELLEY'S CLAIM

ceived, but the Council evidently forgot to discuss the matter under the head of new business. The road officials realize this year's Council cannot bind next year's but it wants the official vote as a matter of record.

The railroad trustees say they are not yet ready to give a one-fare within the city limits of Peabody, but may be able to do so later.

Councillor Jones again called attention to the fact that the city engineer's department has so far failed to make Sanborn street safe for travel. He thought if the city could repair the entrance to the Salem Golf Club it should also do something for taxpayers on Sanborn street.

Papers of incorporation of the Peabody Athletic Club, headed by John H. McNamara and Louis Glass, were read at the Council meeting.

Councillor Hogan of Ward 4 was absent last night.

Wilbur D. Shaw gave notice of his resignation as precinct officer in Ward 1. The Council confirmed the appointment of Walter Clerk as registrar of voters.

Councillor Jones for the committee on renaming streets in honor of deceased war veterans gave notice that at the next regular meeting of the Council High street will be named to Morrigan street.

On motion of Councillor Barry, who should have been a member of the finance committee, the Council held up action on final passage of a loan order to see if the city cannot go to the legislature and borrow all it needs to meet the school house deficits outside of the debt limit. The present order calls for $60,000 which Mr. Barry said would prevent the city from any new construction loans next year unless it was borrowed outside of the debt limit. The matter was referred back to the Mayor and finance committee. Mr. Barry has an excellent chance to become the next president of the City Council.

The order for the city primary election was read and ordered advertised.

Mayor Shea and Council will parade with the Red Men tomorrow in the latter's big convention.

Councillor McKeen is partial to Ward 1. Last night he was called on to draw a juror and took out the name of Archer L. Twiss of 195 Lynn street for civil court at Newburyport, Nov. 7.

Members of the City Council will attend the special hearing in Salem tonight on the new county hospital.

EASTERN STAR FAIR

Chapter 162, Order of Eastern Star will hold a fair in the South Church vestry next Wednesday afternoon and evening. Fancy articles, food, aprons and cake and candy booths will be presided over by a bevy of young women, and it is expected that the attendance will be large. Mrs. Harry Trask is chairman of the general committee. An entertainment will be given at night.

Vose E. Cross and daughter Evelyn are spending a week in Maine.

The names of the volunteers will be held confidential and those offering their services will be notified for service when required. The Boston Chamber of Commerce has already received over 1500 registrations many of which have been made by ex-service men with railroad experience overseas and others who have been out of employment many months. These registrations will be handed to the Boston Chamber of Commerce and there carefully inspected by representatives of the Boston & Maine, New York, New Haven and Hartford, and the Boston and Albany railroads. Men with locomotive fireman's experience are being sent to Mass. Institute of Technology by the two first-named railroads for instruction on locomotive engineering. The Boston & Albany conducts its own training school. All persons desiring to assist in the threatened crisis are requested to register at the Chamber of Commerce offices, 38 Lowell street.

Milk Inspector McHugh has sent the Commission a very optimistic and favorable report on milk conditions in Peabody and this report will be carefully considered by Mrs. H. H. Buxton who has been chosen to handle the milk situation.

Peabody is fortunate in having a sufficient supply of coal on hand to carry the city through for at least thirty days after the railroads may become idle. The supply of commodities is sufficient to make the hoarding of food entirely unwarranted.

Mayor Shea and City Solicitor Farnham were complimented by His Excellency, Governor Channing A. Cox, upon the dispatch shown by His Honor the Mayor in preparing for any crisis and were further informed that Peabody was the first city to take such action and was better fitted to meet the emergency than any other city in the State.

of a grade at least 300% better than specified for the sum of $1700 delivered in Peabody. The saving to the City on comparing the actual cost with the second lowest bid received was $673 and when compared with the first proposals received in June $1000.

Great credit is due Mayor Shea for this saving as it was made possible by his executive ability as manifested in his authorizing a small expenditure of $150 for travelling expenses in order to save at least $700.

VINCENT P. O'KEEFE,
City Electrician.

SKIRTS ARE UNCHANGED

In the matter of styles for separate skirts designers appear inclined to let well enough alone. The new utility skirts for winter are still made of striped or plaid materials, and are usually plaited either in box or side plaits. Their resemblance to summer skirts ends when fabrics are considered. These are heavier and in warm, rich colors.

SOCIETY TOURNEY

That bowling is to have a busy season in Peabody this winter is shown by the fact that the Inter-City Society organized this week with teams pledged from the American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Moose, Foresters of America and the Hibernians. Another society will be urged to join the tournament. Pool, checkers, cribbage, whist and bowling will be the contests. The tournament will open Nov. 7 and continue for 10 weeks.

LEO GUILD HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

Leo Guild will hold its annual banquet next Wednesday evening at K. of C. hall at 7.30, and those desiring to atend are requested to notify Mrs. John Gallager, Clement avenue; Mrs. D. J. Conroy, King street, or Mrs. John Meagher, Gardner street, not later than tomorrow afternoon. Arrangements for the banquet are completed and the "best time ever" is assured those who attend. Mrs. John Meagher is chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by Mrs. Felix Carr, president of the Guild. The reception committee includes Mrs. J. J. Hickey, Miss Helen ORourke, Mrs. Lawrence K. Kelley, Miss Mary Carlin, Mrs. John Gallagher, Mrs. Thomas Mulherin, Mrs. Willard Burke, Mrs. Joseph Hayes, Mrs. James Rennicks, Mrs. Thomas Hartnett, Miss Mary McGrath, Miss Grace Bresnahan, Mrs. Charles Cassidy, Miss Anna Carlin and Mis Marion Ellis.

Schlehuber will cater and community singing will be led by Ollie Quirk and Clarence Hartnett. The speaker of the evening will be William D. Nugent of Natick, a cousin of Judge William H. Fay of this city. Mr. Nugent is a graduate of Boston College and a former newspaper man, and his address is sure to be most interesting.

Invitations have been extended to Rev. T. P. McGinn and his three assistants, Rev. Frs. Shaughnessy, Sullivan and McInnis, Rev. John Starr and Rev. John Ahearn, former curates at St. John's, and Rev. George P. O'Connor, Mayor William A. Shea and Henry F. Duggan, president of the city council.

A meeting of the Lea Guild chaperones will be held this evening at the house of Mrs. Felix Carr, Ayer street to complete arrangements for the Hallowe'en party to be given by them to the members of the "All Aboard" cast.

TRAINING SCHOOL

The Peabody Training school of Domestic Science will reopen on Monday, November 7, under the direction of its founder Mrs. Margaret M. Petraske. Many classes have already been formed and it is expected that the school will have an unusually busy season. Pupils who plan to take a course in cooking and domestic science at this school should register on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nichols of Biddeford, Me. spent last Saturday and Sunday with the latter's family, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Sawyer.

Little Helen Thompson of North Beverly has been spending the past week with her aunt, Alice Trask of Franklin street.

Mrs. Henry I. Yale has returned from a week's visit at her sister's home in Lynn.

Miss Marion Chandler of Boston was the guest of Ruth Farrington over the week-end.

Helen Wiggen has returned to her home after having an operation performed for appendicitis at the J. B. Thomas Hospital.

Andrew Elwell of Franklin street, being the oldest living master of Mosaic Lodge of Masons of Danvers, was an honored guest at their 50th anniversary celebration last Monday.

Following a test in typewriting given the students of Burdett college at Lynn, Dorothy Roome was awarded one of the coveted five certificates for proficiency. This allows the recipient to compete with other holders in New England commercial schools for a gold medal to be donated by the Royal Typewriter Co.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Benjamin Palmer spent the week at Jackson, N. H.

Miss Elizabeth Rossley of Elm street recently celebrated her birthday anniversary by giving a party to her friends and was presented with a string of pearls.

Mrs. F. Macallister and daughter, Patricia, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Barnes of King street.

Miss Katherine Hayes, a graduate nurse of J. B. Thomas Hospital, has left for California where she expects to make her future home, and her two sisters, Mabel and Florence from the same institution will shortly leave for Florida where they will probably locate permanently.

Residents in the locality of the Central fire station have been frequently annoyed of late through the tooting of the fire alarm whistle at 6.45 in the morning. The one blast as scheduled is quite all right, serves its purpose, but the annoyance lies in the fact it is usually followed at intervals by further uncalled for and unnecessary shrieks.

WOMEN'S CLUB

The next meeting of the Peabody Woman's Club will be held in the Peabody Institute, Nov. 4, at 2.30 p. m. At this date the district conference will be held and such noted speakers as Mr. Basely, State Commissioner of Conservation, who will speak on forest conservation and fire protection, also Mr. Bailey of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology, on the corn borer. The soloist will be J. A. Cjautreau. A large attendance is expected as many clubs have been invited.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS — PROBATE COURT

Essex, ss.

To BRIDGET LYONS of Peabody in said County of Essex, and to her heirs, apparent or presumptive, and to the Massachusetts Department of Mental Diseases.

WHEREAS, a petition for guardianship has been presented to said Court, by MARGARET T. CRUISE of Peabody and another alleging that said BRIDGET LYONS is an insane person, and incapable of taking care of herself, and praying that the said MARGARET T. MONSTER PARADE TO FEATURE BIG PEABODY-SALEM GAME

More than 1000 football fans are expected to march to Salem tomorrow afternoon for the big Peabody and Salem game headed by Lee's band of Lynn and with Mayor Shea and Councillors in line. The parade will leave the Square at 1.30. Peabody is determined to crush her old time rivals tomorrow and the home crowd will pull strong for a big victory.

A mass meeting is called in City Hall tonight at 8 o'clock when plans for the parade will be perfected. Tags are to be sold tomorrow to pay the expenses of the band.

The school committee endorsed the proposed western trip for the Peabody team at a special meeting last night and voted to have Principal Woodman, Dr. Murphy team physician and Dr. Marrs of the Athletic committee accompany the team.

Members of the Rotary Club got behind the proposed trip this week with generous pledges and much interest is being shown in the project. Peabody has a great team this year due to Coach Marty Donovan.

Albert J. Woodlock, one of the best known writers on football gave Peabody high team a tribute in the following article in the Boston Globe this week:

Sanger To Run For School Board

Nomination papers are in circulation for Frank H. Sanger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Joel E. Ballentine, master mechanic at the A. C. Lawrence Co., for school committee. They are being signed freely and promise to make strong candidates.

It is taking some time for the political pot to boil, as the long interval between election has cooled it off. But with only a ward councillor conflict that is of interest in city politics this year, Wards 3, 5 and 6 will be a battle ground. Five candidates have their hat in the ring in Ward 5, and four have announced they will fight the Ward 6 councillorship. There is one good point in the present way of election candidates, the two highest fight it out in the primaries, and those two naturally are best fitted.

The Ward 6 councillor contest between Clarence Barnes and Louis P. P. Osborne bids fair to be a hot one. Either would be a capable official, so take your choice. We are looking to see the former Giles forces line up for Barnes, and the Shea supporters behind Osborne.

There is no harm done in a contest of this kind. Many times it serves to bring out a larger vote, for there are so many who will not vote only when interest is aroused.

Enterprise Out Next Thursday

The Peabody Enterprise will go on the street next week Thursday instead of on Friday, Armistice Day.

MAYOR TO PROBE $1500 BILLS DUE AGAINST GARAGE

Hundreds of people who packed the City Council Chamber last night prepared to enjoy verbal tilts between Mayor Shea and ex-Mayor Donnell on the issue of the municipal garage got a double shock when neither of the distinguished gentlemen showed himself. Mayor Shea sent in a list of answers to the several questions asked him by the City Council concerning the garage and ex-Mayor Donnell, who represented the employes of the garage, was called to Washington on business, so the hearing consumed less than a half hour. Atty. Charles J. Powell represented the garage employes last night.

City Solicitor Farnham read the answers given by Mayor Shea, which are published below. Councillor Brown took exception to some of the answers, declaring he had visited the garage and in some ways the Mayor was not correct in his replies. He did not specify. Councillor Hogan wanted the City Solicitor to investigate whether the police department was violating the eight-hour law. The two police officers are doing the regular ten-hour duty required of all policemen in this city. Mr. Hogan thought charges should be preferred against the police department. What further action the Council will take will be known next Thursday night.

Bills dating back as far as last March against the municipal garage are being received by Mayor Shea and may form the basis of an investigation which may eclipse in interest the present muddle. A Boston supply house has a bill for oil amounting to $106.75 delivered last March and another bill for $101.15 for oil shipped to the Garage last August. The credit manager has asked why these old bills should not be paid. A statement from Zina Goodell Co. of Salem calls for a settlement of an account rendered amounting to $64.86. Lynn and

Peabody To Honor Vets On Holiday

Peabody will honor its world war veterans on Armistice Day night in City Hall with an attractive program of community singing, and addresses by Judge Daniel C. Manning and Rev. John Reid of the South church. The exercises have been arranged by a committee of the Peabody Rotary Club headed by Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, himself an overseas man with the Y. M. C. A. and officers of the American Legion Post of this city. Miss Anna Sullivan teacher of music in the public schools will direct the community singing. Peter Rooney one of Peabody's best known tenor soloists will also sing. Mayor Shea will speak for the city. Rev. Mr. Reid will pay a tribute to the "Unknown Soldier" and Judge Manning will give the oration of the evening.

ASKED FOR JAKEY GIVEN GINGER ALE

Chief Grady gets a new shock every day as a part of his police duty but this one has him worrying. A man claiming to be a Finn came into his office one day this week and exhibited a small bottle of what he told the Chief was sold to him for "jakey". The bottle contained only gingerale and was sold for 60 cents. The man said he had walked into a certain store and asked for a bottle of jakey. The storekeeper promptly handed over the gingerale and took his money.

LEO GUILD BANQUET

The annual banquet of Leo Guild held Wednesday evening in K. C. hall was a delightful affair and was thoroughly enjoyed by the 200 who attended. Mrs. John J. Meagher was chairman of the efficient committee that had the banquet in charge, and was also the capable toastmistress of the occasion. The guests at the head table were Rev. T. P. McGinn pastor of St. John's church, Rev. W. F. Shaughnessy, chaplain of the Giuld, Rev. P. F. Sullivan, Rev. C. D. McInnis and Rev. George P. O'Connor; His Honor, Mayor W. A. Shea; president of the City Council, Henry F. Duggan, William D. Nugent of Natick and William P. Higgins, G. K., Leo Council.

The toast to the guests was given by Mrs. D. J. Conroy and a cleverly written toast to the presidents of Leo Guild (past and present) was given by Mrs. J. J. Hickey. The speakers of the evening were Rev. George P. O'Conor of Boston and William D. Nugent of Natick, whose subjects were "Charity" and "Catholic Education". Both discourses were highly interesting and gave their listeners an amount of "food for thought". Remarks were made by Rev. Frs. McGinn, Shaughnessy, Sullivan and McInnis, Mayor Shea, H. F. Duggan and William P. Higgins, each of whom congratulated the members of the Guild on the splendid charitable work they are doing among the needy of the city.

Schlhuber catered and the banquet was interspersed with community singing led by Ollie Quirk and Clarence Hartnett, who also added to the evening's enjoyment by the rendition of a grou of duets.

Miss Gertrude Lawton entertained a number of Brookline friends at her home last Friday evening.

The newly acquired property of the Peabody Club has been finally transferred to its new owners, and repairs and alterations have been started. By the time that the club proposes to occupy its new quarters, fourteen months hence, the present building will hardly be recognized.

Mrs. Albert Robinson is confined to her home on Chestnut street with a severe cold.

Miss Ruth Farrington and Elizabeth Ingraham attended the Harvard-Centre game last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chaplin (nee Shirley Ingraham) of Connecticut are spending a few days in Peabody with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ingraham.

Evelyn Hall attended the big Hallowe'en party held at Hamilton last Friday night.

The winter series of assemblies under the management of former years will begin tonight at the Polish hall on Endicott street with all the assurances of past popularity.

Betty King has been confined to her home the past week by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Fellows have returned from New York.

Joseph Thorndike, Jr., is quite ill with pneumonia at the J. B. Thomas hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapin Legal (nee Alice Littlefield) are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Chapin, Jr., last Sunday.

A small black kitten with a trace of white on its breast has been missing from his home on School street since the latter part of last week and the loss is causing grave concern to its youthful owner. Any person having knowledge of its whereabouts will confer a favor by telephoning 409M.

Weighing Without Scales.

The resourcefulness of the Irish is shown in their method of weighing without scales. "To weigh a pig," said an Irishman the other day, "all ye have to do is to lay a plank across a sawhorse, place a big stone on one end of the plank and the pig on the other, then shift the plank until the two things balance. Then ye guess the weight of the stone and ye have the weight of the pig."—Boston Transcript.

Chinese Condemns Bribe.

There is a famous oriental saying condemning bribery. It is said that an ancient Chinese sage who lived in the Second century was offered a bribe. His silence being accepted as hesitation, he was assured that he was perfectly safe, as no one knew it. He replied: "Heaven knows it. Earth knows it. You know it. I know it. How can you say that no one knows it?"

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

MONEY IN INDUSTRY

Investment

All the money that has been invested in the industries of our country has come from the savings of the people. It is a mistake to suppose that industry is controlled by a few rich men. The great majority of the factories of the United States were started by men who were workers in similar factories. If we look around the leather industry in Peabody and vicinity we see that nearly all the manufacturers were once wage earners who now employ other wage earners, some of whom some day will also be in business for themselves.

Ninety per cent of all the employers in the industries of the United States employ less than 100 people each; 98% employ less than 250 men and women; only 1-5 of 1% employ 1000 or more. Thirty-one per cent of the wage earners of the country are working in factories where over 500 people are employed; 69% are employed in establishments of less than 500 employees.

The investment of money in industry begins with thrift, saving, self denial, sacrifice, and because we are thrifty and saving here in New England we lead the world in efficiency and inventive qualities. There are more people in Massachusetts with a Savings Bank account (in proportion to the population) than in any State in this country.

There is beginning to be a movement all over the country for the working people to invest their savings in the industries of the country. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company is owned by over 130,000 stockholders; more than one half of these are women; 24,000 stockholders are employees of the company; one third of the stockholders own less than five shares; 90% of them own less than 100 shares.

In the year 1919 there were 252,674 persons employed by the U. S. Steel Company. In that year 59,833 of these wage earners bought stock in the company and in 1920, 66,472 employees bought stock. When the Pennsylvania Railroad was first built it was owned by 200 people only; today there are 149,468 stockholders.

So it is all over the land; the savings of the people are invested in the industries that supply the wants of the people; the railroad companies, telephone companies, steel companies, to say nothing of the thousands and thousands of smaller companies have altogether stockholders enough to form immense armies of people; their numbers run up into the millions. Then there are life insurance companies, savings banks and other institutions holding the savings of millions of people (12,100,390 depositors in savings banks alone) all of which goes into industry to pay wages. Any wasteful laws or taxes; and disturbances like strikes or lockouts; and abuses of any kind that effect production; and profiteering and speculation to boost prices, are in every case a direct attack upon the prosperity of millions and millions of people.

We can see very plainly that the industries of the whole country are not owned by the rich. The greater part are owned by a large number of small investors. In other words they are largely owned by the people. It is the savings of the people that are paying the wages of the people.

At this point in the study of money and its uses we always run into this same question "Why cannot the Government run this great business, give fair wages to all, reduce great profits and keep everybody employed?"; this question is asked thousands of times. The answer is, because the Government is not trained to do business. All the Government can do is to make laws to protect the people and let the people attend to their own business. You know very well that a Government official couldn't run a leather factory; suppose one inspector came into a factory and set a price at which leather was to be sold and another inspector,—without regard to the first one,—set the wages that must be paid; how long would that factory stay in business? Yet that is exactly what happened to the railroads under government control. The Labor Board set the wages and the Interstate Commerce Commission set the freight rates and as a result nobody is satisfied and there appeared to be nothing to do but strike and waste some more of the people's savings.

There is a better way; when we learn how to cooperate and use our money collectively for the greatest good to the greatest number, then there will be no reason for strikes. We are learning this, very slowly and very painfully; but that day is coming.

We are just beginning to learn two things; first,—the savings of the people control the industries of the country; second,—no class or party or group of men, be they rich or poor, no individual however powerful, can for very long offend the Economic Law which is the law of the greatest good to the greatest number. The people, when they understand this law, are strong enough to enforce it.

Urges Churches To Have Dramas

Of special interest to the church people of Peabody, particularly those promoting the use of dramatics and pageants in the church and Sunday School is the announcement by Community Service of Boston, Inc., of a Dramatic Institute for Church Workers to be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from November 7 to December 12 at Union Hall, 48 Boylston street, Boston.

The Dramatic Committee, of which Professor George P. Baker of Harvard University is Chairman, announces a course in organization and directing, stagecraft, costuming, lighting, voice, pageant-writing, story-telling, story-playing and Scripture Dramatization, which will be given under expert instructors.

The course in Story-telling and Story-playing, given by Mrs. Margaret Shipman Jamison of Belmont, who is in charge of this work in connection with the University Extension Division of Massachusetts, will treat of the place of story-telling and story-playing in religious education, applying the dramatic method to Sunday School lessons using the story of Joseph, for the beginners, primary, junior, intermediate, and senior grades.

Same Idea.

The old way of saying it: "A fool and his money are soon parted." The new way: "The long green doesn't remain with the green long."

Norma Talmadge Here Monday In Channing Pollock's Story

To Gareth Hughes belongs the distinction of having enjoyed to the fullest extent the rare privilige craved by every human being, but achieved by none—that of experiencing the realization of the most extravagant dreams of youth. Just how Mr. Hughes accomplished this much-desired feat and the methods by which he makes his dream come true, forms the basis of his new starring production "Garments of Truth" which will be the main attraction on the bill the Strand will offer today and tomorrow.

In this production the young star fairly runs riot in staging a series of seeming impossibilities all designed with the sole intention of giving a pictorial version of the thrilling dreams with which every normal young man wiles away more or less of his leisure time. The picture is adapted from Freeman Tilden's story of the same name which made a hit when published in the Pictorial Review. A thrilling chapter of Ann Little's popular serial play "The Blue Fox" and a Sunshine comedy entitled "The Simp" are the other numbers on the program for today and Saturday. Jackie Saunders in "A Bit of Kindling" and Zasu Pitts in a Brentwood production entitled "Better Times" will make up the double feature bill for Sunday evening.

On Monday and Tuesday the Strand will offer a special feature starring Norma Talmadge. "The Sign On The Door," an adaption of Channing Pollock's successful melodrama which enjoyed a long run on Broadway last season is the attraction.

"The Sign On The Door" makes ideal screen material, being in plot one of the most logical and well constructed dramas ever written. The role of the misjudged wife, who successfully takes the blame for a murder on her shoulders that she may shield her husband, is one of the most gripping Miss Talmadge has ever had. In the supporting cast are Lew Cody and Charles Richman, both stars in their own right.

Briefly "The Sign On The Door" is a melodrama in which a man is killed and the police attempt to discover who committed the deed. Both the husband and the wife confess that they did the shooting, although the wife is not guilty. How circumstantial evidence supports the wife's claim, frees her from punishment, since she states that she fired the shot to protect her honor, and saves her husband from the chair makes a highly interesting and thrilling picture.

Larry Semon in "Well I'll Be——?" will be offered as an added attraction for Monday and Tuesday. Semon is one of the highest salaried men in pictures and his stunts are well worth the money.

YOUR TEETH

FILLING MATERIALS

Who invented fillings for teeth and what the first fillings were made of will always remain a mystery.

We know that this work has been done from ancient times, but in recent years there has been such an alarming increase in caries (decay of the teeth) that the prevention of decay and the repair of carious teeth has become an important subject to everyone.

There are three general classes of filling materials; plastics, silicates and metals.

The plastics are the various forms of dental cements and guttapercha.

The silicates are a form of translucent cement that is an imitation porcelain. The colors of the teeth can be matched accurately and this material will last well, preserving the tooth and avoiding unsightly disfigurement that would be present if a metal were used in the front of the mouth in a large cavity.

The metals used as filling materials are gold, and amalgam which is principally silver.

Tin and platinum were used for some years but they are now obsolete. A metal is used where there is great strain on the filling.

Amalgam, which is an alloy of silver made into a paste with mercury, is the most widely used filling in the world. It has done splendid service and is used in those cavities where appearance in a secondary consideration.

Gold is considered the most permanent of the fillings. There are two ways of using gold; one is by malleting pure gold foil into the cavity and thus making the filling in the tooth that it is to protect, the other way is to make the filling outside the mouth from a very accurate wax pattern of the cavity. This is the most modern method and is called an inlay.

MALONEY SAVES RUSSIAN WOMAN BEING DEPORTED

Congressman Robert S. Maloney and Rev. Robert A. Bakeman are directly responsible for government action which this week permitted Mrs. Beila Chassis, a Russian woman, to join her brother, Sam Tenzler, of 42 English street. But for the efforts of Congressman Maloney the woman would have been deported after spending several weeks at Ellis Island among unhappy immigrants.

It was through the appeal of Rev. Mr. Bakeman that Congressman Maloney took a hand in the matter. The woman was expecting to be met by her husband, but the latter must have had another engagement, for he failed to put in an appearance at Ellis Island, and up to date his whereabouts are unknown.

Tenzler, the brother, is a student in the Americanization classes, and Rev. Mr. Bakeman is one of his teachers. When the government authorities learned that the woman was to share a home with blood relatives the order to deport her was rescinded and she was sent on her way to Peabody.

TOWN TEAM WILL TACKLE LAWRENCE

Peabody's Town team of gridiron players who play the Lawrence A. A. at Emerson Park Sunday are giving the fans some high class football under the direction of "Tommie" Ray, one of the cleverest pigskin followers. All of the players are former school stars. Last Sunday afternoon they held the fast Brighton A. C. eleven to a 7-7 score with a crowd of over 2000 fans on the sidelines. Among the line-up are these well-known stars: Frank Lynch, Hubbie Lawrence, Chet Hay, Allan Munroe, Bill Reid, Henry Puska, Arthur Fennessey, Arthur Holden, Jim Mulcahy, Nate Masterson and Tom Ray. Richard Sexton has been doing the coaching with helpful mints from Marty Donovan.

ELECTRIC POWER

Peabody had another instance yesterday of the need of an auxiliary line to furnish electric power to the local consumers when a steam pipe broke at the Peabody Electric Light plant causing the loss of hundreds of dollars to local manufacturers. Leather plants including the Ryan Shoe Co. and plants on Lowell street including the Peabody Enterprise were without power from 8.30 until noontime. The Ryan Shoe Co. was obliged to send its operatives home. Many of the leather shops did likewise. There have been numerous shutdowns of less duration than yesterday but the loss of a single minute due to inability to have electric power is a serious hardship which effects the employee and the employer. The A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. adjoining the municipal light plant could supply an auxiliary power line. Something should be done immediately to prevent any such repetition of loss of power as occurred yesterday. There can be no worth while argument that the city has no money for the auxiliary can be negotiated without the passing of a cent. What the local electric light plant requires to increase its efficiency should be installed. An auxiliary power service should be secured by Manager King at once.

ARMISTICE DAY

The suggestion that the Rotary Club combine with the American Legion to make the local celebration of Armistice Day one always to be remembered should meet with the approval of everyone. What a spontaneous celebration Peabody had in 1918 on Nov 11! Since that time no real demonstration has been made here to commemorate the victory won with the help of hundreds of Peabody boys on the battlefields of France. The nature of the celebration should be such that the day would be filled, as a parade in the morning, when the Legion should march in a body; special church services; sports in the afternoon and a big entertainment and dance in the evening. In fact, Armistice Day should be made the biggest rival of July 4 in the calendar.

BETTER BUSINESS

Salespeople in nearly every line of trade are beginning to talk optomistically regarding a revival of business. These people have the best opportunity to judge market conditions, being, as they are, in direct every-day contact with the pulse of trade sales. They claim that once buying starts, the volume will be large and carry everything before it. The happy solution of the railroad difficulty has not harmed business prospects, to say the least. Unemployment is said to be lessening already, and prospects point to better times in the very near future.

Peabody tradesmen deserve the first call from the Peabody public and are prepared to give them a square deal when the rush in buying starts. Keep Peabody on the map by placing every possible order at home. Every dollar spent at home is more apt to come back to you than if spent abroad. Peabody First!

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"BLACKMAIL."

IF, TODAY, anyone were to accuse the editor of a newspaper of accepting blackmail when he exchanges a year's subscription to his paper for a bushel of potatoes or to state that a merchant is guilty of the same practice when he trades his goods for farm produce they would probably be sued for libel. As a matter of fact, they would be only using the word in its primary sense.

In the early days of English history "blackmail" — derived from the word "black" and the French "maille," meaning rent—was applied to the rents received from tenants in the form of work or grain, in contradistinction to payments made in silver or white money (maille blanche). Later, when the feudal barons and freebooters of many kinds roamed the highways almost at will, they collected "blackmail" in the form of forced levies of goods and provisions from the inhabitants of the countryside or from travelers who fell into their clutches and the word fell into such disrepute that, under the Elizabethan laws, it was made a "felony without benefit of clergy."

It is doubtless from this law and the practice which necessitated it that the modern meaning of the word—now synonymous with hush-money or a bribe paid for the maintenance of silence—originated.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WITH YOUR CHILD.

LET us suppose you are a parent. That you love your children and are seriously concerned about their future welfare.

They are average children, no doubt, fond of play, never still unless asleep; in mischief and out at every opportunity, and seem bent upon filling your life to the brim with ever-changing smiles and tears.

But what of it? They are of your own blood and bone.

Their tendencies in the main are inherited. Turn backward a moment and reflect.

They are entities of your infant self, in new bodies, with recently adjusted brains and of keener vision than children of a generation ago.

As the progress of the human race is towards advancement you must expect differences in temperaments, ideals and modes of expression. Like you, they are being swept forward by the invisible force whirling planets and holding in place the heavens and the earth.

To you has been intrusted their keeping.

The responsibility of parentage must be accepted in the right spirt, and when this shall have been done the proper training of these newcomers will become a pleasurable duty, fairly easy of accomplishment.

Cultivate companionship by becoming one of them in thought and act. Seek to be their best friend. These things will bring you closer to them and enable you better to understand and correct faults and shortcomings.

As a friend you can be firm without being severe.

You can lead without being suspected and mold the new life to a life of honor and beauty.

You can straighten the crooked twig by doing it gently, not by a twist or blow. Neglect it when it is tender, hope of transformation is gone.

Children are natural imitators. What their parents do and say children do and say, and plus. They put in something for good measure. So be careful of your speech and deportment.

They are the latest edition and must be read with searching eyes.

There's more in this latest edition than you may suspect, put there by a wise Creator for the development and advancement of mankind, and it depends entirely on the parents whether it shall be received by the world with censure or approval.

THE LAKE OF STARS.

When all is lovely on the lake,
No night-winds rudely pass,
Not even gentle breezes break
The water's perfect glass,
Afloat, alone, from your canoe
Look down and you will see
Reflected there the sky of blue
And all its canopy.

You will behold a thousand lights
Now near that were afar,
For only thus on perfect nights
The lake receives the star,
Seen only thus when perfect peace
Is on the quiet tide,
When all the winds that wander cease
And earth is satisfied.

But, if a breeze shall venture here,
Some tiny tempest blow,
Your lake of stars will disappear
And all be dark below.
They are not blotted from the skies
By just a moment's care —
O ye discouraged, lift your eyes,
For still the stars are there!

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"CHARACTER" AND "REPUTATION."

AVOID the common error of confounding these two words, for there is a clear and sharp distinction in their meanings. Your character is what you are, in your moral nature, your abilities, etc.; your reputation is what your friends, your neighbors, the world, thinks of you. Your reputation may be ruined by a false accusation, but your character cannot be injured by anyone but yourself.

Abbot says, "Character is what a person is; reputation is what he is supposed to be. Character is in himself, reputation is in the minds of others. Character is injured by temptations and wrongdoings; reputation by slanders and libels. Character endures through defamation in every form but perishes where there is a voluntary transgression; reputation may last through numerous transgressions, but be destroyed by a single, and even an unfounded, accusation or aspiration."

ROUND ABOUT

One of the Halloween pranks in the Eastend last Monday night was turning a long legged calf onto the highways where the animal was found wandering around Oakland street early Tuesday morning. In size the animal looked like a deer.

They've heard of "Duck" Hennessey, Peabody's star gridiron player down in Salem and judging from this incident which occurred in Curtis' drug store last Tuesday afternoon they are hoping Hennessey will have both legs broken by a falling tree before the big game tomorrow. A Salem driver entered the Curtis store to purchase a soda. At the fountain were several Peabody boys including the aforesaid "Duck" himself. The Salem driver began talking football and declared Salem would do terrible things to Peabody if only that "Duck" Hennessey didn't play. He had seen "Duck" on the line and admitted he was the famous Brickley all over. If Hennessey played he would refuse to place any wager on Salem. "Duck" did not tell his identity and the Salem driver went hopefully home.

He is interested in backing up the high school football team and hopes the plucky team may be sent to some western city to battle with middle west champions this fall. Toward that end he has pledged $100 to the public fund.

Among the audience to greet Capt. Dan McKay the famous lecturer on the Royal Northwest Mounted Police at the Peabody Institute last Tuesday night were several men and women who have heard him deliver his gripping lecture and who liked it so well that they heard it again with equal pleasure. It was highly interesting for McKay injects enough of mirth into his talk to make everyone eager to stay overtime. Capt. McKay looks something like the late Col. William Armstrong and talks like the lamented citizen. He went on record in favor of universal military drill for boys and urged parents to allow their boys to learn the manly art of boxing to instill confidence. A big house turned out to greet the speaker whose lecture opened the winter series of free entertainments by the Lyceum committee of the Institute.

Cat Mothers Fox Pups.

An Ontario reader writes that her cat fostered three fox pups since they were two weeks old. The pups were taken from the mother because it was feared they might chill. The cat had five kittens which were disposed of, and the foxes were promptly adopted in their place. The foxes are now over three months old and although larger than their foster mother, are still fond of her. They are kept now in a wire pen and kitty is quite content to remain with them all day long, enjoying an occasional frolic.

Linehan and thence running northwesterly by land now or formerly of Hannah Ray Newhall about 766 feet, to a stone post with an iron wedge in it; thence running northeasterly by land now or formerly of Keith, about 640 feet, to land now or formerly of Davis; thence southeasterly by land now or formerly of Davis and by land now or formerly of Raddin, about 730 feet, to land now or formerly of Linnehan thence southerly by said land of Linnehan about 270 feet, to said land now or formerly of Newhall and point begun at.

The above described premises are sold subject to a mortgage of $3500, held by Bessie Cocotas and recorded with Essex South District Registry of Deeds, also subject to all incumbrances of record.

WALTER H. BROWN,
(O-21-28-N-4) Deputy Sheriff.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Essex, ss. PROBATE COURT

To the devisees under the will and all other persons interested in the estate of IDA C. MANSFIELD late of Peabody in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS MAURICE A. RAMSDELL executor of the will of said deceased, has presented to said Court his petition for license to sell at private sale in accordance with the offer named in said petition, or upon such terms as may be adjudged best, the whole of a certain parcel of the real estate of said deceased for the payment of debts, and charges of administration, and for other reasons set forth in said petition.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Salem in said County, on the thirty-first day of October A. D. 1921, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each person interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks in the Peabody Enterprise a newspaper published in Peabody, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, HARRY R. DOW, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this tenth day of October in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

HORACE H. ATHERTON, Jr.,
(O 14-21-28) Register

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Essex:

Respectfully libels and represents MARY GALANOPOULOS, of Peabody in said county, that she was lawfully married to Peter Galanopoulos, now of Clamata, Greece, at said Peabody on the ninth day of May A. D. 1918 and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Peter Galanopoulos lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Peter Galanopoulos being wholly regardless of the same, at said Peabody on or about the fourteenth day of August 1918, without just cause wilfully and utterly deserted your libellant, which desertion has continued from such time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Peter Galanopoulos; and your libellant represents that there has been born of said marriage a son, Christos Galanopoulos, born March 9, 1918, and prays that the care and custody of said minor child be decreed to your libellant.

Dated this thirteenth day of October A. D. 1921.

MARY GALANOPOULOS

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Essex, ss. Superior Court, October 18, 1921

Upon the foregoing libel, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said PETER GALANOPOULOS by causing an attested copy of her said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody, in the county of Essex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of December next, and by mailing forthwith, by registered letter, to the libellee at Clamata, Greece, an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon, that he may appear at said Salem within six months from said first Monday of December and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Attest, A. N. FROST, Clerk.

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

Attest, A. N. FROST, Clerk.

So. Peabody Boys Elect Own Mayor

The Bosco Club of South Peabody, which held its primary election last Monday evening for mayor and councillors, is made up of the boys of South Peabody. The final election will take place Monday evening.

The candidates left for the finals are as follows:

For Mayor—Donald MacKeen and George Larrabee.

For Councillors at Large—Karl Ricker, James Foster, Holsworth Gregson, Harold Tucker, Earle Perkins, Milton Harvey, George MacDonald, Richard Collins, Norman Chandler, Carl Smiley.

For Ward Councillors—Ward 1: George Hames, Victor Chandler. Ward 2: Wilbur Perkins, Augustus Martinack. Ward 3: Gerald Gully, Howard Gregson. Ward 4: Evans Griffin, Lawrence Reed.

Sample ballots are on the community bill-board on Lynn street.

"ADAM AND EVE"

When most of the present plays have come and gone and the future alone tells the story of what ones have succeeded by a glance at the names of those that still remain in memory, "Adam and Eve," next week's attraction at the Empire theatre, Salem, will most likely still be twinkling in electric lights. For Guy Bolton and George Middleton have provided a comedy that runs along with a charm that playwrights so seldom achieve.

A business man who knows how to make money, but who is grossly incompetent when it comes to managing his own family, furnishes the basis for the plot of "Adam and Eve." His life seems to be just one mass of bills and expenses. In fact the "buyword" of the household seems to be "C. O. D.," which, in this case, stands for "Call on Dad." The comedy is not a preachment, but is not without a moral.

The play is not a noisy one. The laughs are not forced from stagey characterizations, but come naturally from the well-written lines and the characters drawn who are real people that every one knows in every day life. The play will be presented exactly as produced at the Longacre theatre, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Goodwin and family of Elliott, Me., visited Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goodwin of Beacon boulevard Tuesday.

Henry Jermyn of Lynn has moved to Carlton street.

Mrs. C. W. King has returned to her home in Arlington after a month's visit with her son, Charles King of Dexter street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Court have moved back to South Peabody and are residing on Water Works road.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Maynard of Dorchester visited Fred Batchelder Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jermyn of High street, formerly of Lynn street, are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a daughter born last Friday.

Rockville Campfire Girls held a Hallowe'en party at the church Thursday evening.

Residents around Keith's store are very much pleased with the good work done by the Eastern Mass. railway. The tracks have been raised and two catch basins put in to take care of the water which used to cover the sidewalk.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lane of Gardner, Me., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morse, Maple street.

Mrs. Hill entertained her Sunday school class of boys Monday evening by giving a Hallowe'en party at her home on Lynn street. Girls were invited and all had a merry time.

The Neighborhood Club and B. I. A. will meet with Wilber Smith, Lynn street, next Tuesday evening.

The E. R. C. Club held a Hallowe'en party at the Lake Shore Park church Wednesday evening.

Chauffeurs who have occasion to drive in the early morning hours or at dusk are complaining about the habit of some men who persist in walking in the middle of the street on their way to work. In order to escape a possible accident it would be wise to stay on the sidewalk.

The South Peabody school children are waiting patiently for the milk contracts to be awarded. This idea of serving milk to the children at a low price is appreciated by a large number of parents and they wish to see it continued.

Ladies 'Aid Society of the Second Congregational church will hold their monthly meeting and supper next Wednesday evening.

The Sewso Club held a Hallowe'en party at the home of Esther Walker Monday evening. Each member invited a gentleman and about 25 people took part in the fun. Three live ghosts were stationed at different parts of the house and a witch told fortunes. Lunch was served and the usual games played. Miss Beatrice Keith and Miss Marion Newhall had charge of the party.

Over 50 mothers and teachers met at the South school Wednesday afternoon to discuss plans for forming a Mothers' Teachers' Association, and some progress was made. Principal Joseph Gilmore welcomed the mothers and introduced Supt. of Schools Albert Robinson, who spoke in favor of the organization. Mrs. Frederick Foley spoke about a similar one in Rockport, of which she had been president, and she was elected chairman of this meeting. A committee was appointed to form a constitution and also a refreshment and entertainment committee for the next meeting, the date to be announced later. Meeting adjourned, after which refreshments were served by the teachers of the school.

A Hallowe'en party was given to the Sunday school pupils of the Second Congregational church Wednesday evening by the teachers and a good time was the report from the children.

Next Monday is the "father and son" night given by the Bosco Club of boys and a good time is predicted to all.

No sessions in the public schools today, as the teachers are attending a convention at Boston.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Lake Shore Park church was omitted this week as the members held a harvest supper and sale last night.

Services at Lake Shore Park church, Harry B. Hill, pastor: Morning service at 10.45; subject, "Disarmament, America's Opportunity." Sermon followed by the administration of the sacrament. Sunday school at noon. Classes of all ages. Evening service at 7 o'clock; subject, "A Second Chance." Everyone is cordially invited.

CLEAN UP SQUAD WILL AID VETS GET RELIEF

Disabled ex-service men of Peabody and vicinity will soon be offered an opportunity to present their claims against the government for speedy adjustment. At a recent conference between representatives of the Veteran organizations, the Red Cross and the advance agent of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, arrangements were completed for the government clean-up squad to visit Salem, from November 14th to November 15th, inclusive.

The clean-up squad will have headquarters in the American Legion rooms and will maintain office hours from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. The squad will serve disabled veterans from the following places: Salem, Peabody, Beverly, Danvers, Middleton, Topsfield, Ipswich, Hamilton, Wenham, Marblehead.

Every ex-service man who wishes to file a disability claim, whose claim has been adjusted to his dissatisfaction, or who wishes any information in regard to compensation, vocational training, medical treatment or government insurance should not fail to appear before the clean-up squad while it is in Salem.

Slocum Machine Company Will Establish Peabody Plant--- Leather Output Is Brisker

(By ENERGY)

There is little to talk about in the leather business, only that better business is expected at some future date which has not been announced. Prominent leather manufacturers have such a variety of ideas as to what is and should be that one can sit back and take his choice. We know that general business averages better than six months ago. We know that commodities have dropped in price more or less. We feel that the bottom has not been reached, therefore that uncertainty still exists that always exists when the market is sagging. Like the tide ebbing and flowing, there is a limit and we are waiting for that limit to arrive.

But in going down the line of the leather business, the strong and weak spots stick out like a sore thumb. One hears of certain tanners being busy even to the point of rushing. Then another tanner has the blues so badly as to show blue in his face. One might analyze the conditions of these extremes and find out there is a reason for this wide difference. It might be in the line of leather he is making, it might be the quality enters into the subject, it might be the facilities of selling enters into it and there might be other reasons which are out of the ordinary. But to make our story end as is suited to end dime novels and its relatives, the tanner as the hero finishes with everything rosy, he marries the girl which means in English he has good business, and high priced automobiles are selling better.

This year has been an eventful one for the assessors. With the high tax rate, dull business, everybody short of money, there have been more kicks than a mule contains. But the leather manufacturers are to be congratulated for the way they have accepted conditions. With the staggering losses which they have faced, with the business looking like a graveyard, they continue to hang on and have weathered a storm the like of which has never before been known. Perhaps some will say they made enough money during the war to weather such a storm, yes I agree. But the losses in many cases have been more than the profits, for the reason the government has taken away sums on those war profits which have been staggering. So when the balance sheet is proved up, the big profits are more than balanced by the taxes, losses and others.

—*—

Then I will again dwell on the overhead which grew to such alarming size during the war. It got to the point that most every worker had a helper as does a plumber and tinsmith. Then the office help was gradually increased and why care, with the big profits flowing in. Then like a rich man becoming poor, it was one of the hardest things on earth to do, get back to first principles. We hear tell of spoiled children; just the same case.

—*—

But in a factory as certain ideas are located, one thing adds to another, and like a river with the many small streams feeding it, it becomes large without being noticed. So the process of cutting expenses treads on the toes of many a person whose living depends on the job. He or she must look elsewhere for a living and that elsewhere in many cases is nowhere. But expenses must be cut, and only those whose work is indispensible, remain.

—*—

It comes back to the young men and women who by a large majority are fitting themselves for office jobs, or anything where the work means clean hands and no muscle necessary. This class has grown to the extent that there is a surplus of help. Our high schools are turning out each year thousands more who are doing likewise, and so the future for such people is far from bright. No back to the farm, no back to the beamhouse, tanhouse or finishing room. But until such time that more young people will turn to muscle rather than brain work, dark days are due.

—*—

As I am nearly over my head in this subject, I might as well try and finish, even if it is my own. I presume most people think they are gifted with plenty of brains. Why not? the other fellow has proved he has them so let us try. If there was some way for all of us to weigh ourselves and by so doing find out for what we are best fitted, it would stop much misery in this world. We have schools which teach us this and that, but if there was some way to teach people their capacities, tell them what they are or are not fitted to do, it might work wonders. It might be difficult to tell some person he or she had so few brains as not to be able to fill certain positions, but that same person sometime in his life would be thankful for such advice. So perhaps what I have written might be put in these words, fit one's self where one's capacity fits.

—*—

So the Slocum Machine Co. will have a place in Peabody. This addition to the machinery business will be an asset to Peabody. This company is one of the oldest in the trade. They made themselves a factor when they placed on the market a staking machine which has been the leader in the tanning business. They also make other machines which have been winners, in fact to my way of thinking, they have aimed to produce a finished product. It is evident that the capacity of Peabody to produce leather has been the attraction, and it speaks well for the future.

I presume Peabody has the same sewer that Salem has talked about, but evidently it remains under the ground, and is doing its work without further comments by our neighbors. Let us hope this sewer will behave, so that all interested will be happy.

AMERICAN LEGION

Construction of two national hard surface highways, one from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the other from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, is urged upon the government in a plan originating in Denver, Colo. The national organization of the American Legion has been asked to endorse and support the proposition, the originators pointing out that it would give work to thousands of unemployed ex-service men.

—*—

For the burial of one of their war dead, American Legion men of Marshfield and North Bend, Ore., posts were required to travel seven miles in an open boat and then hike two miles with the casket over a muddy road in a drenching rain. All roads were impassable for the stage which is the sole means of travel.

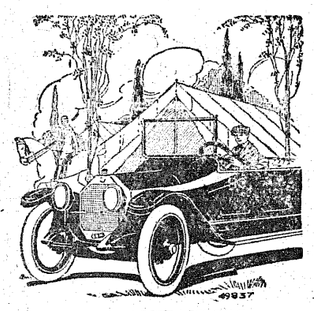
—*—

Unable further to witness the suffering of her invalid husband, an ex-service man, Mrs. Madelyn Taylor, living in the country near Little Rock, Ark., published in newspapers an offer to sell herself into servitude to get hospital treatment for him. American Legion posts of Little Rock immediately brought Taylor to a hospital and ordered treatment for him. They will foot the bills.

—*—

A strong French heritage of the A. E. F. was responsible for a touching scene during the Oklahoma convention of the American Legion. Pinning a gold medal for service on H. B. Fell, retiring state commander, James A. Ingraham, Cleveland, heard shouts of "Kiss him, Kiss him" from 1,100 delegates present. He did—on both cheeks.

—*—



Wounded in action and left permanently maimed, John Hansen was only able to do a house-cleaning job found for him by the American Legion employment bureau at St. Paul, Minn. But the buddy behind him in line had been out of work five weeks longer than he had, and Hansen surrendered the position to him.

—*—

President Harding was commended for calling the international conference on limitation of armaments and American delegates to the meeting were urged to use every effort to make disarmament a fact in resolutions adopted by the Oklahoma department of the American in state convention.

Packard

single-six

"The Ten-Year Car"

Now Reduced from $3640 (the price one year ago) to $2350.

Effective October 24

OUR first inclination was to make our announcement of this reduction in the price of the SINGLE-SIX in the few simple words above, but we realize that it is not consistent with Packard policy and quality to make an appeal for public consideration on the basis of price alone.

WE therefore wish to say simply and emphatically that the SINGLE-SIX is every inch a Packard, and that Packard quality is higher today than it has ever been. Yet in spite of this fact this new price is the lowest price ever placed on a Packard motor car during the history of the company since 1899.

Buy a Packard SINGLE-SIX on trial

We want you to own a Packard SINGLE-SIX. Buy one to-day —and if you find it is not all we represent it to be, or you expect it to be, we will take it back at the end of a week and return to you the full purchase price.

Baptist Church

10.30 a. m., "Launching the World's Most Momentous Conference Upon a Flood Tide of Prayer." 12 m., Bible school. 5.45 p. m., Christian Endeavor. 7 p. m., illustrated lecture on Burma by Rev. J. F. Ingram.

South Peabody Church

Robert A. Bakeman, Minister. 10.30 a. m., subject, "The Unknown Soldier." 12, School of Religion. 7, Subject, "America's Opportunity—The Disarmament Conference of the Nations." Prelude: "Has America Given Her World War Veterans a Square Deal?"

Monday night—Father and Son's night. "Feed" at 6.45. Final election for Mayor and City Councillors. "Chick" Davies of the Salem Town team will speak.

Friday night at 7.30, mid-week meeting.

Wednesday night—Ladies 'Aid.

Last Sunday through an exchange in pastors, the Baptist church had the pleasure of listening to a sermon by the Rev. John Reid of the Congregational. His subject, "Who Is Thy Neighbor?" was rendered most effective by showing how science had brought the east and west very near together.

The Christian Enedavor held a successful costume Hallowe'en party on Monday night in the vestry, which was prettily decorated in yellow and black. William Howard was voted by the judges to have the most interesting costume. The evening was spent by playing games appropriate to the occasion. Coffee and doughnuts, candy and corn balls were on sale.

This evening there will be prayer meeting at the usual time, 7.45.

By a vote of the Sunday school the hour for their service has been changed back to 12 m. There seemed to be no special benefit derived from having their hour from 9.30 to 10.30, which was tried out through the month of October, so the Sunday school will meet as in the past, from 12 to 1 o'clock.

Universalist Church

George H. Howes, Minister. Morning service at 10.30, appropriate to the coming observance of Armistice Day. Sunday school at 11.45.

The Men's Club will hold its first meeting of the season Monday evening, November 7th. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock, followed by an address.

The Mission Circle will meet with Mrs. H. A. Harrington, 82 Andover street, Thursday, November 10th, at 3 p. m. There will be a speaker to address the members.

South Church

Peabody Square, Organized 1713. Rev. John Reid, Minister. Sunday, Nov. 6, service of worship at 10.30 a. m. Sermon by the pastor on "Capitalized Christianity." Communion. Sunday school at 12. Evening service at 7 in the vestry. The pastor will give the final address in the series on the Beatitudes; subject, "Blessings Upon Blessings."

Prayer meeting on Friday at 7.30 p. m. Preparatory service. Subject, "The Gospel of Sacrifice—from the Patriarchs to Christ."

Methodist Church

"Living Broad Lives in Narrow Alleys" is the sermon subject for the 10.30 a. m. service. The pastor, Rev. I. F. Lusk will preach. At 7 p. m. Mr. W. A. Halfyard, a Lay preacher from Everett, will preach. Sunday School at noon. Prayer Meeting Wednesday evening at 7.30.

The Ladies Auxiliary will give their Annual Fair, the evenings of Nov. 17th and 18th. Every member and friend of the church is expected to help them in this wofk.

St. Paul's Church

Rev. Francis L. Beal, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D., Rector. Trinity XXIV. 8.00 a. m., Holy Communion. 10.30 a. m., Service in Commemoration of the Centennial of the Missionary Society of the Church. Procession, Solemn Te Deum, Holy Communion and Sermon. Sermon topic: "A Century on God's Firing Line." 12 m., Church School. 3.00 p. m., the Bishop's Visitation for Confirmation. (The 7 p. m. service will be omitted.)

Monday, 7.30 p. m., Business Meeting Women's Guild.

Tuesday, 7.30 p. m., K. O. K. A.

Wednesday, 2 to 5 p. m., Sewing Meeting Women's Guild.

Friday, Armistice Day—12 to 12.20 p. m., Special Service. Come right from work. The service will close promptly at 12.20.

Friday, 8 p. m., Vestry.

St. John's Church

Rev. T. P. McGinn, Pastor.
Sunday—Masses at 7, 8.30, 9.45, and 11 a m. Children's Mass at 8.30.

Union Church Service—Armistice Day

At a meeting of the Protestant ministers of Peabody held at the Unitarian parish house, Tuesday afternoon, it was voted to have a joint service at noon on Armistice Day. The service will be held in the South church at quarter to twelve and will last about twenty minutes. The minister in charge will be the Rev. Mr. Towle of the Unitarian church. A unique feature of the service will be the observance of the two minutes of silence at the stroke of twelve, in memory of those who gave their lives in the great war.

West Peabody

Miss Doris Durkee entertained her friends at a Hallowe'en party Saturday evening. Games were played and refreshments were served. An enjoyable time was had by all.

Twenty-three members from the West Peabody Y. P. S. C. E. went to the Dane Street Congregational church in Beverly Sunday evening to hear Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the World's Christian Endeavor Society deliver the address.

Everett E. White, Curtis Rankin, Howard Johnson, and Edward White kindly gave the use of their cars for the transportation of the members.

Miss Julia Ziskowski of Winona street is spending the week end at Back Bay with her cousin Miss Wanda Dymsza.

Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Evans spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Durkee on Goodale street.

Milton Simpson from Groveton, New Hampshire spent a few days with his sister Mrs. John McDonald on Goodale street.

Miss Ruth Walker had about twenty of her friends at a Hallowe'en Party Friday. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Ernest Richardson and son Harold of Danvers spent Hallowe'en with her mother Mrs. Edward Durkee.

Miss Lillian Rankin and Raymond Burlingham have accepted the positions of Recording Secretary and Coresponding Secretary for the remainder of the year in the Senior Christian Endeavor.

A pleasant time was had by all who attended William Mackies' Hallowe'en Party Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Craig of Rumney, New Hampshire, spent a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Danforth of Lowell street.

Mrs. Roy Condon entertained a number of her friends from Peabody, Monday evening at her Hallowe'en Party.

Miss Lois Hunt of South Peabody was the guest of Miss Susan Danforth on Hallowe'en.

Ernest Southwick entertained his friends at Pillings Pond at a Hallowe'en Party the past week.

Mrs. Raymond Nichols and daughter, Marylyne have returned home from Lynn.

The Annual Meeting of the Ladies' Aid met Wednesday with Mrs. B. P. Danforth. The officers for the year were elected.

The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold their monthly Social Saturday evening.

Gilbert E. Lame was one of the speakers at an open meeting of Hawthorne Division No. 8 Brotherhood of Railroad Employees, held in Eagles' Hall, Salem last Sunday afternoon. He presented ten questions pertinent to the object of the meeting.

POSTER EXHIBIT

Posters made by Peabody school children during the North Shore Babies' Hospital contest are being exhibited for the first time in Peabody at the Library this week and next. The contest included schools in Salem, Beverly, Danvers and Peabody, and it is interesting to note that Peabody captured several of the prizes in both the grammar and high school classes.

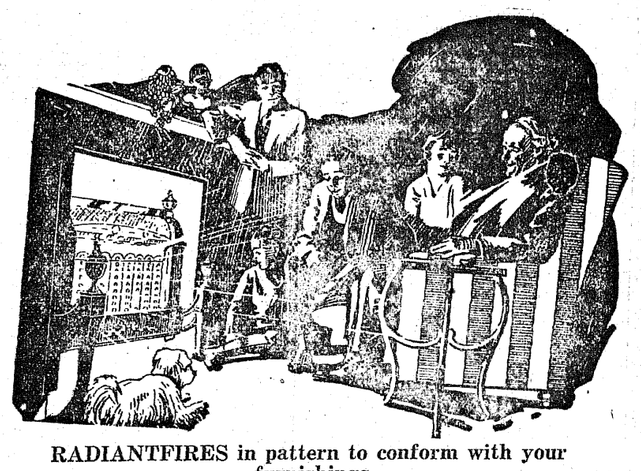
The posters were made by pupils from the fifth grade thru the high school. The numerous ideas and clever work shown in the drawings are bringing forth much favorable comment from all who have seen them.

BETTER SPEECH

The educational committee of the Peabody Woman's Club wishes to remind the public there will be a drive for better speech during the week of November 6-13. No one will be asked for money, but to improve speech.

WALTER FOSS HAS CARRIED MAIL 16 YRS.

Uncle Sam keeps in close touch with Peabody residents of upper Washington street and Lynn street as far as Water Works Road by the personal touch of Letter Carrier Walter S. Foss who has been covering that route since he was made a regular carrier on July 1, 1912. He had been a substitute carrier for six years previous to receiving his appointment as a regular and was consequently qualified to jump into the service and produce results.



WALTER S. FOSS
Peabody Letter Carrier

Foss shares the distinction with some of his fellow carriers of not being very loquacious but his record is one of zealous endeavor with complaints entirely absent from his work.

For 15 years prior to his donning the letter carrier's uniform, Foss was employed in the sheepskin department of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co., where his work was of high order and the firm was sorry to lose him. The outdoor work appealed to him and when the appointment was tendered he quickly accepted.

Foss was born in Peabody on July 15, 1865 on the last lap of the civil war. He went through the public schools and then took up the leather trade. He was married but lost his wife in 1912. He has made his home with his sisters at 74 Sylvan street, Danvers, for the past several years.

ing, has a formidable eleven this Fall, coached by Marty Donovan, once an Exeter and Brown University athlete. The team has not suffered a reverse as yet in five games, and its goal line has only been crossed once this Fall, by Sweetland of Marblehead High who intercepted a forward pass and ran for a touchdown.

The North Shore League leaders have proven themselves a strong scoring eleven, having registered 149 points against 7 for their opponents. The team is captained by Ralph Holden, regarded as best guard in the North Shore League of a year ago. He had played guard for two seasons and his work has been more brilliant than ever, this Fall, when he was shifted to center.

"Duck" Hennessey, who hails from Crowe Village in Peabody, is another veteran and is at right end. He was an All-North Shore League Interscholastic center choice in 1920. His work this Fall has stood out equally prominent. When he was shifted from center to end many did not expect that Coach Donoan would keep him there, but he has developed into a fine tackler and gets down the field under punts with the best of them.

Crean Got Most Touchdowns

Crean at left is one of the shiftiest ends in the State. He has scored more touchdowns than any other member of the team. He is an adept in handing forward passes and is depended upon in the pinches to make his distance. Crean sometimes plays quarterback, and when he is stationed in that position Sweeney takes his berth at left end.

Munroe at left halfback is another athlete who has been of great importance to the Peabody High eleven this Fall. He is a clever dodger and very elusive. He is about 5ft 6in in height and only weighs 135 pounds. Pappas at right halfback is a hard running back and a tough player to check, once he gets in action. He is a fine defensive player.

Jack Lawrence, the fullback, is another veteran whose work has stood out prominently in every game played. He is the best plunging fullback that Peabody has ever had. As a defensive player he has few equals. Luz is the substitute fullback. He hits the line hard and is a punter of first-class ability.

Conolly, right tackle, is a hard man to gain through defensively and has a happy faculty of opening holes which gives his backs plenty of latitude when carrying. The other tackle, Gavigan, is a veteran, and his work, offensively and defensively, has been of topnotch variety.

Donahue, a veteran of the 1920 team, is at right guard and Costos is the left guard. Donahue is one of the largest players on the squad, being 6ft 2in in height and weighs about 180 pounds. One of his strong points has been in blocking kicks, which has made it possible for Peabody to tally a few of its touchdowns. Costas, a light player, has proved his ability. He was unable to continue through the 1920 season with the eleven because of an injury.

Buckley, 120 pounds, the lightest of the Peabody eleven, is quarterback and manages to get plenty of work out of the team. Considering that this is his first year he has done exceptionally good work. He does all the punting and is a drop kicker of repute.

McCarthy and Dennis, the two substitute halfbacks, have performed well when called into service. Other substitutes are Dee, fullback; Gray, tackle; Murphy, guard; Viles, quarterback and Bodge, halfback.

VISITING NURSE

The Peabody Visiting Nurse Association will conduct the annual canvass for membership fees and donations during the month of November and any who have been contributors during the past two years may expect to be visited before December. New members are also desired.

HOLTEN LODGE

Holten Lodge No. 104, I. O. O. F., will work the initiatory degree on a class of candidates next Tuesday evening. Dr. George L. Marshall, P. G. M., who has been drilling the new first degree team for the past month, will take part in the degree. A collation will be served.

Oscar Ballentine of Vancouver, B. C. is the guest of his brothers John O. and Joel E. Ballentine.

BOARD OF FIRE ENGINEERS
Proposals for Hook & Ladder Truck
Peabody, Mass., Nov. 3, 1921

Sealed proposals will be received by the Committee on new Hook & Ladder Truck to furnish the City of Peabody Fire Department with a motor driven 4 wheel tractor and a 75 foot aerial ladder and all necessary equipment.

Proposals and specifications will be received and considered by the Committee Nov. 18, 1921 at 8 o'clock in the Engineers' Room Central Station. The Committee reserve the right to reject any or all proposals.

Committee on New Hook & Ladder Truck,
MAYOR WM. A. SHEA, Chairman.

CITY HALL NOTES

Collection of taxes, water and the rest in October mounted to over $800,000. Taxes alone was well above the $400,000 mark, or 2-3 of the total amount. Considering the times, the collections are considered good.

—*—

Mayor Shea says the garage is closed and will be until such time as better arrangements can be made to practice economy. Judging from what we glean from public expressions, the move meets with the approval of those who pay the bills, and the only criticism we hear is, it should have been remedied before.

—*—

Had Sawyer, sealer of weights and measures, reports a new law gone into effect, that packages put up by a grocer or provision man on the shelves must be marked what it is and the weight. Track and platform scales, he says, are much better than formerly. The Boston & Maine railroad have a car with 25,000 pounds of weights, which visits Peabody at intervals and puts at least one scale in order as a guide for the rest. Thus, by testing this scale and then 30 or more others, all are adjusted to weigh close to each other. When 10 tons can be weighed and only a difference of 25 pounds found, it spells correctness. Even this difference could be laid to wind, and only a covered scale can be assumed to be right with everything working correctly.

Joseph W. Bolster, the keeper of the city scales, is doing good work for the city. There is one position in the city that brings back the money, and is an institution which must form a part of the city. Weights and measures are becoming important from the public's standpoint, and it is about time weighing should be recognized as money saving, when attended to.

—*—

There may be plenty of game this fall, but it appears most of the gunners cannot hit the mark, judging by the small kill. We are told there are plenty of birds in some sections, but far be for us to disclose those parts.

—*—

The books showing the distribution of the taxes on corporate franchises laid by the Commissioner of Corporations for 1921, and of the taxes of 1921 on National Bank shares are completed, and will be open for the inspection of assessors on November 7. Notices of the amounts credited to each city and town will soon be issued by the State tax department.

—*—

The 1919 taxes will soon be cleaned up and the books balanced. This means uncollected personal bills that cannot be collected will be abated. The practice of waiting two years as has been followed in Peabody for years, should be changed so that such taxes are collectable the same year. It is done in Danvers and Marblehead and no doubt other cities and towns. The city loses thousands of dollars by the present system.

—*—

Mayor Shea carries a smile these days, and no doubt has learned to carry the duties of his office more lightly than when he first assumed the reins.

—*—

Practically all of the large tax payers have paid, and no doubt those remaining unpaid, at least 75 percent of them will be settled by January 1rst.

Garage Bills Prove Need of Accountant

Swampscott motor supply dealers are filing bills. Local dealers apparently did not get much of the city garage business.

Mayor Shea is investigating the origin of certain telephone toll charges against the garage, for which bills are in his hands. The telephone company is owed money for September charges. Whether these calls were for city business is the concern of Mayor Shea.

The bills now in the hands of the Mayor are said to total nearly $1500. It will be recalled that the Mayor tried to install a bookkeeper in the garage to get the garage on a business basis but the City Council refused to appropriate any money. The Mayor thinks a bookkeeper would have saved the city money and there are citizens who will agree with him in the light of the present unpaid bills.

ANSWERS TO THE QUESTIONS PROPOUNDED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF PEABODY TO THE MAYOR.

1.—Do you intend to submit a supplementary budget to pay the running expenses of the Garage for the balance of the year 1921?

Ans.—No.

2.—Do you intend, in so far as you have the power, to abolish the Municipal Garage, and if so, at what date?

Ans.—No.

3.—In as much as you have declared that you closed the Garage on Oct. 22nd, why are you now keeping the Garage open day and night, with help always upon duty?

Ans.—The Police Equipment is being housed and cared for by the Police Department, for the general protection of the City. To that extent only is the Garage open.

4.—In view of the fact that you gave notice of the closing of the Garage upon Oct. 22nd, why are you permitting the men now upon duty there to give out gasoline, and oil, and other supplies, and do other work about the garage?

Ans.—The answer to question 3 sufficiently covers this question.

5.—Just what do you mean by your notice and statement that you have closed the Garage?

Ans.—The notice speaks for itself. There are no funds with which to continue the Garage in operation.

6.—Having stated in your letter to the employees of the Garage that you had closed the Garage, and that there was no money to pay salaries, why didn't you adopt the same course in all the other Departments whose appropriations are overdrawn? Do you intend to close the other City Departments as fast as the appropriations are overdrawn?

Ans.—The Departments most essential to the welfare of the City must be kept running. I do not think I am obliged to commit myself as to matters of future policy. I expect to meet emergencies as they arise.

7.—What have you done, and what do you intend to do about housing the City machines, and caring for the same in the future?

Ans.—The City machines are being housed and cared for in the same manner as heretofore, except the machines of the City Engineer's Dept., which are now stored in the old pumping station.

8.—How do you expect to pay the new men now upon duty in the Municipal Garage inasmuch as there is not enough money in the Police appropriations to pay the regular police salaries for the rest of the current year?

Ans.—There are no new men upon duty in the Municipal Garage. The Police kit is being cared for by regular men in the Police Department.

9.—By what authority do you claim the right to discharge employees who are veterans of the World War or abolish their employment inasmuch as the Statutes place that power in the hands of the City Council?

Ans.—I claim no such right. I have neither discharged employees nor abolished their employment. I have simply notified them that there are no funds available with which to pay them, and that therefore they are not required to render services.

Following discussion on the proposed $60,000 loan order, it was voted to have City Auditor Goggin and City Treas. Foley appear before the Council next Thursday night and give information regarding schoolhouse construction expenditures.

"And It Cannot Warp"

Made from rock, encased in a heavy protective covering, Sheetrock takes any decorative treatment. It can be papered, painted or paneled.

And Sheetrock is fireproof. It cannot warp, shrink or buckle. It protects the building. An insulator of heat, Sheetrock makes the building cool in summer, warm in winter, and cuts fuel bills.

You will also be glad to know that the cost of Sheetrock—for new construction, alterations and repairs—is actually less than that of frail, unsatisfactory wallboards. We suggest that you call on us today and see for yourself what a wonderful material this standard wall and ceiling unit really is.

A. C. LAWRENCE CO. SUPPLIES POWER TO CITY PLANT

Manager Warren D. King of the Peabody Electric Light plant, has succeeded in arranging with the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. plant for an auxiliary power line to the municipal power house. The power line was in operation last Monday and for a period that day part of the power sent through the municipal plant was fed to it by the big leather concern. The laying of the feed cable was made at a cost under $200 to the city. The auxiliary line will take care of the entire city if called on.

Officials of the Swift interests who control the A. C. Lawrence Leather plant are benefited by the auxiliary line,: for because of it they may secure a reduction in their plant insurance rates and the line will also permit of the city of Peabody furnishing the big leather plant with power if needed.

Lynn Dynamite In Storage Here

Eight hundred pounds of dynamite was brought through Peabody streets this week to be placed in the storehouse of the Essex Trap Rock Co. on Buxton's hill, which is kept guarded day and night. The dynamite was shipped from Lynn by order of Mayor Creamer after special arrangement had been made with the Peabody concern to house the explosion.

WILL PAY HOMAGE TO DECEASED VETS

Peabody will pay homage to her brave sons who laid down their lives in the world war and those who stood ready to make the supreme sacrifice if called on, with solemn church devotions on Friday and in the evening there will be appropriate exercises in City Hall under the auspices of the Rotary Club and the American Legion. At 11.55 Friday noon, City Electrician O'Keefe will blow the national salute of 21 guns on the fire alarm whistle.

The patriotic exercises in City Hall Friday night will include an oration by Judge Daniel C. Manning, a tribute to the unknown dead by Rev. John Reid and remarks by Mayor Shea. There will be community singing and solos by Peter J. Rooney. The public is invited to assist in these exercises.

Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, chairman of the special committee of the Rotary Club, will preside at the citizens' meeting Armistice Day night in City Hall. He outlined the program of the exercises before the Rotary Club members last Tuesday noon and called on the members to help put over the songs of the evening.

Protestant churches of Peabody unite on Armistice Day at the South church in a community service with the exercises beginning at 11.45. Rev. Edward Towle, minister of the Unitarian church, will preside. Promptly at 12 noon George X. Bernier, ex-service man, will play a cornet on the steps of the South church and at the end of the two minutes universal prayer as asked by President Harding he will blow "taps." The church services will occupy about one hour.

POST SEASON GAME

A meeting of citizens committee to plan a post season game for Peabody high either in the South or Middle West will be at the Chamber of Commerce at 5 o'clock today (Thursday).

Dr. H. K. Foster Seriously Ill

Dr. Horace K. Foster, one of Peabody's foremost physicians and chairman of the board of trustees of the J. B. Thomas hospital, is seriously ill at his home on Main street, having been obliged to take to his bed. Enjoying a very large practice for many years in this city, his name is a by-word in many households. Both in his practice and outside, he has made many friends who will wish him a speedy return to health.

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

MONEY IN INDUSTRY

Wages

About fifty years ago two sayings were published by a writer, that were then accepted as the truth and have been so considered until quite recently. The first statement was,—"The employer controls wages". The second,—"Wages control living conditions". Both these statements seem to exactly fit the conditions and both were easily understood.

The wage earner of today says,—"Of course the employer controls wages. My boss makes my rate of pay; he can make it more or less as he wishes, I see this every time I ask him for a raise. He is making all the money he can and giving me as little as possible." This seems to be exactly the fact and yet it is not true. The employer does not control wages nor do wages control living conditions. Both statements are false.

The fact is that the employer has very little to say about wages. Wages are determined by the will of the purchasing public and by the supply and demand of the worker.

The employer must first consider how he can make his goods so that someone will buy them. He must calculate the cost of his material, the cost of his factory and machinery, the cost of manufacturing of which wages are a part. The great public fixes all these costs by its buying power.

The public will pay $100 for a small diamond but will not pay $100 for a pair of shoes. The public will pay high wages to a doctor who can cut out an appendix, but only small wages to a man who cuts wood. Who sets the wages of a doctor, or a singer, or a lawyer, or a man who writes books? All these people are wage earners but who makes their rate of wages?

We can easily understand that the employer cannot have much to say about wages; they have gone up and the employer couldn't stop them; they are coming down and the employer cannot stop that either. The public always makes the price of the goods, the profits and the wages. When any of these are too high the public will not buy and the factories close down.

This truth is being worked out in Lynn today right under our eyes. The public has refused to buy shoes that are made in Lynn because the price is too high and in consequence wages and profits go down at once. The manufacturer if he sells shoes at all, sells them at a loss in order to keep his trade. The worker accepts half time, loses half his wages and in many cases loses all his wages, because factories are closed.

The great buying public has said "your manufacturing costs are too high; get them down; we don't care how you get them down, that's the business of your manufacturers and your workmen; but high priced Lynn shoes we will not buy." The public is buying shoes in Maine, in St. Louis, in Pennsylvania, in Chicago and workers there are getting wages for full time every week, while in Lynn the manufacturers and workers who ought to cooperate are disagreeing about rates of wages. A wage rate is of small consequence when a man gets no wages at all, or even when he works one quarter of the time. What the wage earner wants is a full week's pay for fifty-two weeks every year.

When these Lynn people wake up to the fact that it is the buying public that makes the wages then the Lynn factories will run full time and we will sell them our leather; but, if they are too long in learning this simple truth, their factories will close because the public will give its trade elsewhere, and then some leather factories in Peabody will close too.

Suppose for example that wages in Lynn, were $200.00 a week for everybody who worked on a shoe; it would look well on paper and could easily be arranged between employer and worker, but would Lynn be prosperous and work be steady?

Lynn would be ruined and Peabody would be nearly ruined for never again would a single shoe be made in Lynn. The public would rise in wrath against that city and it would be known all round the world. No! the employer does not set the amount of wages. He has very little to say about it.

Again;—why does not the girl selling tinware in the basement of a big store get as much wages as the girl selling millinery upstairs? She works just as hard, perhaps she works harder, the employer would be willing to pay them equal wages provided the public would pay more for the tinware; but, would you trade in that store if you knew that both those girls were getting the same wages?

Would you trade in any store where everybody was paid the same wage? You are part of the public and the public always controls the price of everything. The Economic law regulates the use of all money for the greatest good to the greatest number.

The second statement is, "Wages control living conditions." This is equally untrue. Wages rose steadily from the year 1914 to the year 1920, and at the same time costs of living went up, extravagant desires increased, the jazz and the jag and the joy ride were the most important things in life and when we woke up we found we were no better off than we used to be at lower wages.

Today wages in the United States are about double,—in many places more than double,—the wages of 1914. What about living conditions? Do these higher wages make living easier? No! these higher wages make living conditions harder to a great many people.

The high wages are making living conditions so hard for the farmer that he cannot buy shoes, or clothing, or furniture, or carpets, and in consequence millions of workers are idle because the farmer cannot buy.

Whenever a class or group or combination of men band themselves together to get all they can, either for bigger profits or higher wages, then the buying public wakes up and watches the game.

Whenever any such group refuses to give the public a square deal, refuses to cooperate for the greatest good to the greatest number, refuses its service; then suffering begins.

The people are learning these truths every day, little by little; perhaps Lynn will learn co-operation some day and we will sell them our leather once more.

CHARLES H. EGLEE.

Clarence W. Barnes was recently elected secretary of the Colonial Club in Salem.

'Billy' Mahoney P. O. Stamp Clerk Also Valiant Peabody Fireman

Stamp clerks are the postoffice employes who represent Uncle Sam in dealing with the public. By their attention to duty they enhance the postal service in the eyes of the citizens. Affability counts heavily whether it is passing out a postcard or dollars' worth of postage labels. Peabody has two stamp clerks who are striving their best to please the public. They are William C. Mahoney and Arthur T. Welch. Our story this week deals with Mr. Mahoney.

He took the examination for carrier back in 1906 when he was but 18 years old, and for four years did substitute duty delivering mail. Then he was transferred to the rating of substitute clerk under the late Postmaster William F. Wiley, who liked his services so well that he recommended his appointment as a regular clerk in 1913.

WILLIAM C. MAHONEY

"Billy," as he is popularly hailed by legion of friends, won't admit that his middle name is Courtesy, but his service as stamp clerk would give him a logical license to the name.

He was born in Peabody June 12, 1884, and attended the Wallis school. At 14 he had graduated and when some of his playmates began making money in the leather shops he heeded the call to employment and went to work for the late A. B. Clark, who started numerous successful men on their way in the leather trade. Later Mahoney entered the employ of the National Calfskin Co. as a tacker and they say he was an expert.

He is one of the leading members of George Peabody Court of Foresters, having served two years as Chief Ranger and 11 years as its financial secretary, rendering a high service. He represented the state at the National convention in 1909.

For the last 17 years he has been a member of Engine 1 in the fire department and is known as a valiant fire fighter with a real love for the thrills that make this service alluring to so many citizens. On the death of the late John F. Morland, assistant postmaster, who served so many years as secretary of the Peabody Firemen's Relief Association, it was natural that "Billy" Mahoney should be elevated to the important position.

He has been holding this job for the past three years. He is a member of the state firemen's association, being a member of the committee on accidents and deaths. He is married and has one son, William Jr., who attends the Wallis school. The family home is at 21 Osborne street.

Peabody Man Killed In West While Hunting

News of a fatal shooting in which Louis P. Lindquist, husband of a former Peabody girl, lost his life in Chewelah, Washington state, has been received by friends of Mrs. Lindquist, the widow, who formerly lived in West Peabody. Mrs. Lindquist was Miss Theda Shirley before her marriage. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Shirley, are now in the northwest at the home of their bereaved daughter, who is left with four children, the eldest of whom is a boy of eight years. According to the news, Lindquist and another man were deer hunting when several bullets came their way, one of which penetrated the lung of the victim, killing him almost instantly. The men had been away from the Lindquist home less than an hour when the fatality occurred. Arrests are expected to follow the investigation by the coroner. The dead man was employed on the Birnot farm in the Chewelah Creek district.

PERSONALS

Frank S. Hunt has gone to Labrador to visit his brother Philip Hunt. The latter has been in the far north country for the past 15 months in the trading business. He is planning to return home for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Arthur K. Manning of Andover street entertained the King's Daughters at her home last Monday evening.

Walter Creese of Danvers will speak at the Peabody Club Saturday Nov. 12 on his trip through France and Germany.

Hoyt Foster and Stuart Woodbury were with a delegation of boys of the Salem Y. M. C. A. to spend last Friday at the navy yard.

Mrs. Sarah H. Carter of Concord, N. H., sister of Charles H. Smart of Peabody, died at her home on Nov. 2 at the age of 73 years. She is also survived by her husband, daughter, Miss Susan Carter, and sister, Mrs. Augusta Flanders, and brother, Joseph H., all of Concord, N. H.

KEEP IT ALIVE

In the last "News Letter" of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce appeared a list of 32 worthwhile accomplishments of the Chamber since last April. Every one of the 32 had to do with the advancement of Peabody's interests. They ranged from securing nation-wide publicity for Peabody and her products to such local matters as ash collection and street loitering. The point is, the Chamber feels that no matter concerning the welfare of Peabody and her citizens is too large to handle or too small for consideration. Perhaps the most noticeable of the Chamber's many recent accomplishments is the Housing Corporation, which has already started to build two houses, the first of which is already sold. It is to the advantage of every property holder in Peabody, whether in business for himself or employed in the business conducted by another, to have such an organization working in the community along civic, commercial and industrial lines as the Chamber of Commerce. Most of the leading citizens of Peabody are already allied with the Chamber and active in the causes for which it is organized. There are still many men, however, who benefit directly or indirectly by the Chamber and who would regret to see it break up who have not given it the support of their membership. Keep the Chamber alive by adding new life. Join if you do not belong.

INDIVIDUAL DUTY

There is always an element in every community that has no civic pride in it, and the last thing it does is to help the city or town where it happens to live. Its attitude is that of letting the proverbial George attend to it. What is everybody's business is frequently nobody's business, and the ultimate result is that a great many needed things are not done because George is too busy to do everything that comes within his vision. Every citizen, man or woman, ought to be willing to do something for the old home town. We all owe something to the place where we live and if all hands would do some little thing, or commend those who do, it would help a great deal. Every individual benefits from all the good things done for any given municipality, whether it be a city or town. Everybody should be glad to put his or her shoulder to the wheel for the benefit of the great public into whose constituent elements we all enter in our daily lives. Do some thing for the place of your residence and at least encourage George when he attempts to do it from time to time.—Malden News.

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES

The high school and college football teams are not the only factors engaged in playing intersectional games at this time. Cities in the middle west are vieing with New England cities in securing new industries, and threaten serious inroads in local manufacturing circles at this writing. Already the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce are soliciting the idle shoe factories of Lynn, urging the manufacturers who are unable to do business in that city owing to uncertain labor conditions to come to the new "shoe city"—St. Louis. Some people read this and other signs as foretelling the decline of the shoe and leather trade in what has been one of the world's leading markets for years. Others insist that the shoe and leather workers will rally and help open the idle factories before they will allow the source of their daily bread and butter to take a jump of over a thousand miles away. The Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' Association and a joint committee of shoe workers unions are endeavoring now to get on a working basis. It is to be hoped that they come to a live-and-let-live agreement before the hustling middle west grabs the choicest plums of Lynn's industrial tree.

Handsome Alice Terry, the "movie" star, is eighteen years old. Nature has fairly showered her with beauty. She is rather above medium height; her skin is like silken damask, tinted with rose pink. She has an oval face, crowned with a mass of spun gold hair; eyes of blue and a winsome mouth.

THE RIGHT THING AT THE RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

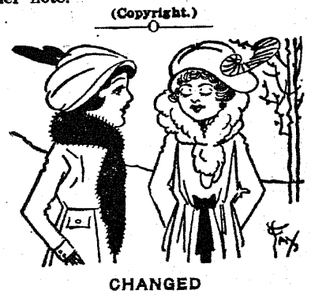
THE YOUNG MAN GUEST

Life is not so short but that there is always room for courtesy—Emerson.

STRICTLY speaking the invitation bidding a young man to be the guest of a household should come from the mother or wife, or whoever acts as hostess of that household. Actually one young man often invites a chum of his to be a guest for a day or two, and the mother does not send the letter of invitation that the strictest good form would demand. There is no great crime in this, only the young man who writes the invitation should word it so as to make it evident that his mother extends the hospitality, and in answering the invitation the one invited should be sure to bear this fact in mind and whether he has met the hostess-to-be or not he should express his gratitude to her for her kindness in wishing him to be a guest.

If you have visited in the house before it is courteous to take to your hostess, or have sent, so that it reaches her shortly before you do, with your card enclosed, a few flowers or some bonbons.

Never smoke without gaining permission of your hostess. If there are no other smokers in the family do not ask for permission.



If you see that others make a habit of smoking in the house then you may ask for permission to smoke even though none of the others are smoking at the time.

Do not plan to accept outside invitations or to leave the house when you are a guest without consulting your hostess. She may have something arranged for the same day and hour. If you are to have very important business engagements that cannot be broken during your visit you should make the fact known at once so that no plans will be made for the time involved.

Remember that while you are the guest of the family you should show many little courteous attentions to the women of that family. If there are young daughters it would be decidedly rude to devote yourself markedly to some other young woman whom you perhaps might feel more interested in than in the young women of the family where you are visiting.

Remember that it is just as important and necessary for the young man to write a bread-and-butter letter to his hostess as it is for a young woman to do. This letter should be written within one or two days of your departure. A married man may leave this to his wife to attend to but the unmarried man must write for himself, even though perhaps he has a sister who has been a guest of the same household and is willing to include his expression of gratitude in her note.

ROUND ABOUT

Judge Daniel C. Manning of the district court issued a sound warning to all bootleggers who try to peddle contraband goods in this city by fining two men $150 each last Monday. The men were selling "jakey" from their pockets at 90 cents a bottle. This same "remedy" used to sell for 15 cents before prohibition days.

One of my readers tells me that although you may see farm yard fowls in abundance that's no sign that eggs are plentiful. He tells me that last Sunday he stopped at five or six farms in Boxford and Tops field in quest of eggs but at no place was he able to buy the hen fruit.

Horace A. Wilson, employment manager at the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. is well situated in his new office on Crowninshield street. The sun shines in his office practically all day with the rays so warm in the morning that window shades have to be drawn. The office is heated by electricity with facilities for four burners. It's an ideal office.

William F. Carlin alternate delegate to the American Legion convention in Kansas City last week lined up Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and other state delegations to vote for Raymond O. Brackett of Marblehead for Vice Commander. Mr. Carlin now in the real estate and insurance business was formerly a post office inspector and covered the Southern States in his work. In this way he became acquainted with many war veterans whom he met at the big convention.

Postmaster Dennis J. Dullea urges a rigid enforcement of the regulations governing the preparation of parcels and their admission to the mails in order to insure safe shipment and permit the contents to be easily examined with the view that the source of complaint and expense can be almost wholly eliminated. In addition the active cooperation of all business and civic organizations is solicited to assist the postal workers in urging all patrons of the postal service to see to it that all articles to be sent by parcel post mail are properly packed in substantial containers to endure the course of travel and handling enroute to addressee. The local post office force will aid the patrons in every way.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Essex, ss. PROBATE COURT

To BRIDGET LYONS of Peabody in said County of Essex, and to her heirs, apparent or presumptive, and to the Massachusetts Department of Mental Diseases.

WHEREAS, a petition for guardianship has been presented to said Court, by MARGARET T. CRUISE of Peabody and another alleging that said BRIDGET LYONS is an insane person, and incapable of taking care of herself, and praying that the said MARGARET T. CRUISE or some other suitable person, may be appointed her guardian, agreeably to the law in such case made and provided.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Lawrence in and for said County of Essex, on the fourteenth day of November A. D. 1921, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a guardian should not be appointed as aforesaid.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to cause you to be notified of the time and place appointed for the hearing of said complaint, by serving said BRIDGET LYONS and said Massachusetts Department of Mental Diseases with a copy of this order, seven days at least before said Court, and by mailing said heirs apparent or presumptive at the last known post office address of each a copy of the same, seven days at least before said Court, or instead of said mailing, by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Peabody Enterprise a newspaper published in Peabody the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, HARRY R. DOW, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-seventh day of October in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

HORACE H. ATHERTON, Jr.,
(Oct.-28-N-4-11) Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Essex:

Respectfully libels and represents MARY GALANOPOULOS, of Peabody in said county, that she was lawfully married to Peter Galanopoulos, now of Clamata, Greece, at said Peabody on the ninth day of May A. D. 1918 and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Peter Galanopoulos lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth, to wit, at said Peabody; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said Peter Galanopoulos being wholly regardless of the same, at said Peabody on or about the fourteenth day of August 1918, without just cause wilfully and utterly deserted your libellant, which desertion has continued from such time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Peter Galanopoulos; and your libellant represents that there has been born of said marriage, a son, Christos Galanopoulos, born March 9, 1919, and prays that the care and custody of said minor child be decreed to your libellant.

Dated this thirteenth day of October A. D. 1921.

MARY GALANOPOULOS

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Essex, ss. Superior Court, October 18, 1921

Upon the foregoing libel, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said PETER GALANOPOULOS by causing an attested copy of her said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody, in the county of Essex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of December next, and by mailing forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at Clamata, Greece, an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon; that he may appear at said Salem within six months from said first Monday of December and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Attest, A. N. FROST, Clerk.

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

YOUR TEETH

By Rea Proctor McGee, D.D.S., M.D., Editor "Oral Hygiene"

TEMPORARY TEETH—WHEN THEY ARE ABSCESSED

If you had a pet rattlesnake around the house it might not do you any harm, but of course you could not reach an agreement upon that subject with the limited brain power of the snake and so you would be taking a big chance that the armistice would be broken.

Your child could have one or even several abscessed temporary teeth with no apparent injury to his general health, but what assurance have you that the apparently harmless collection of pus is not poisoning the child?

When the abscess really strikes and becomes acute, then there is no question about the damage it does.

Then abscesses may not only cause rheumatism and heart inflammations but the eyes and kidneys and any or all of the bodily structures may be attacked.

When a temporary tooth abscess burrows down the inside of the jaw and gets behind one of the protective walls of fibrous material that separates the layers of muscle in the neck, called the cervical fascias, a very serious infection develops which is frequently fatal.

In order to save the life of the child a very delicate operation must be performed, and that quickly. Don't take chances with abscesses of the temporary teeth. They are not only very dangerous, but the abscessed teeth cannot be used and the good teeth are not allowed to do their work because one tender spot in the mouth will interfere with chewing.

Of course, the best plan to avoid abscesses of the baby teeth is to take good care of children's teeth from the day they appear.

This is the easy method and it is also the safe, sure method. Therefore it is the common sense method. Begin at the beginning. Later may be too late.

The Bosco Club met at the church Monday evening. A fine supper was served under the expert supervision of Henry Cawley, whose reputation as a caterer has grown with leaps and bounds. A number of fathers watched their boys perform and they (the fathers) behaved very well under the circumstances.

The final municipal election took place after the supper. Warden Raymond Coombs was busy all the time and a very efficient body of checkers and clerks. Forty boys registered. The following were elected to the municipal offices: Mayor, Donald Mackeen; counsellors at large, Harold Tucker, Karl Ricker ,George Macdonald, Milton Harvey and Carl Smiley; counsellors by wards: Ward 1, George Hames; Ward 2, Augustus Martinack; Ward 3, Gerald Gully; Ward 4, Lawrence Reed. Joseph Good was elected vice president of the club. It was voted to have the council and the debating club meet once in two weeks and on the alterante weeks the Boy Scout Troop of Boys between 12 and 15 will meet. A vote of thanks was given to Henry Shaw for the artistic ballot box he made, and to the boys' work committee of the Rotary Club for furnishing the ballots which were used.

After the election Capt. Ralph Holden of the high school team told the boys why Peabody didn't make a bigger score against Salem and Cecil Young and Frank Mackeen led the boys back to the beginning of the great national game and the days of "Mike" Keiley and Herman Ling and Christy Matthewson.

The Tuesday Night Whist Club held the first party of the season at the home of Mrs. Catherine Cross, 2 Brown street, and the following were awarded the prizes: First ladies', Mrs. Leach; first men's, Mr. Gosby; ladies' booby, Mrs. Perkins; men's booby, Mr. Green.

Chamber of Commerce Doing Real Service For City of Peabody

Peabody's Chamber of Commerce has performed real service to the community as outlined in the "news letter" which was mailed to every member this week by Secretary Donald G. Roby. The latter is giving his best effort to the work and in the few months that he has been on the job has caused the Chamber to function as a real power in this city. Here is the news letter in full which should interest every citizen:

Every once in a while one hears the emark "What is the Peabody Chamber of Commerce doing?" In order that every member and Peabody citizen may know what the Chamber has done and is doing, we will enumerate a few of the activities in which we have engaged during the past six months.

1.—Advocated the passage of a suitable "Blue Sky Law" by the Legislature. Since passed.

2.—Secured the cooperation of the leather manufacturers in stamping an exhibits as "Made in Peabody" for the annual Shoe and Leather Fair held in Boston.

3.—Advocated the establishment of a State Police patrol force. Since approved.

4.—Voted on the National Chamber's referendum relative to Government employees.

5.—Conducted a Clean Up Campaign during "Clean Up" week.

Since our last bulletin appeared the Peabody Housing Corporation has become a fact. President Sanger of the Chamber was chosen President of the Housing Corporation and C. S. Batchelder Treasurer. As before stated, this is not a money-making proposition. The soil for the first house was broken on September 17. The first house was sold to a resident of Salem September 22. The second house was started September 23 and there are many who desire to purchase, although the sale has not yet been consummated.

Membership Dues

On October 1 there were 114 who were delinquent in the matter of membership dues. In response to a letter several have made up this delinquency. It is to be hoped those who have so far forgotten the Chamber will be sufficiently reminded by this notice.

Mercantile Division

The Mercantile Division is under full swing. William F. Carlin is the new Chairman of this Division and the program which he has outlined for the coming season is sure to increase the retail trade in Peabody. The by-laws have been changed, the Division has its own treasury, and many constructive features are planned for the holiday season. If you haven't already joined, do so now.

Transportation Committee

The Transportation Committee is still active. Chairman Whidden has not been able to receive a definite report from the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway but undoubtedly will be able to report before the issue of the next bulletin.

Business Men's Lunch

The next business men's lunch will be held Monday, November 14, in the Masonic Club rooms at 12.30. These luncheons are extremely interesting and beneficial to all who attend. The number attending increases with each month. Tickets are $1.00 procurable either from Roger Smith, A. P. Sillars or the Chamber office. Every storekeeper should be actively enrolled in this division.

Suggestions

Each reader of this bulletin is requested to spend sixty seconds in deciding what Peabody needs most. After making his decision he is requested to send it to the Chamber. President Sanger and directors are anxious to receive helpful suggestions from every member.

EX-SERVICE VETS TO BRING PAPERS

Arrangements are being made to accomodate every disabled ex-service man in Peabody when the Government Clean-Up Squad comes to Salem next Monday and Tuesday. The Squad will be sent from the Boston office of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, and will be in session in the American Legion Rooms. Veterans appearing before the Squad should bring all army papers.

Men who are eligible:

1.—Ex-Service men who through carelessness or because of the length of time since discharge have never filed claims for compensation.

2.—Ex-Service men who have filed claims for compensation and have been disallowed.

3.—Ex-Service men who wish to appeal their claims; who believe that their disability is greater than the present rating by the government.

4.—Ex-Service men who feel that they need immediate hospitalization.

5.—Ex-Service men who wish to reinstate or convert their War Risk Insurance.

6.—Ex-Service men who have not applied for their State bonus. This group is also for the men whose claims are not properly adjusted on allotments.

7.—Ex-Service men who wish to file claims for vocational training.

Every Ex-Service man has a right to bring his troubles to this Clean-Up Squad. The Red Cross and the American Legion are cooperating in the campaign and will be glad to supply and assist every veteran in filling out the necessary forms prior to the Squad's arrival.

STARLIGHT REBEKAH

The Starlight Rebekah lodge sewing circle will hold a fair in the Universalist vestry Tuesday evening, November 15. Supper will be served at 6.30, after which an entertainment will be given.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Thirty-two years old and the leader of a million fighting Americans. That's the record of Hanford MacNider, of Mason City, Iowa, the new national commander of the American Legion elected last week at the Legion's annual convention.

MacNider was elected by acclamation. Following his election he was carried to the platform by the Iowa delegation. He said:

"You know that the strength of the legion is in the men you represent in your posts at home, not in the national headquarters. There is where the legion is and there is where we shall try to reach. We must build this legion of ours so big, so fine, so strong, keep it so clean and straight and American that when we ask for things for the ex-service man, for the disabled man and for those who are financially disabled, our communities will say: 'If the legion is for it we are for it.' For that service and with a pledge to you of every economy and all measures possible for constructive progress, I stand at your command."

* * * *

The vice commanders elected were H. Nelson Jackson, Burlington, Vt.; George L. Berry, of Tennessee; Raymond O. Brackett, of Massachusetts; John A. McCormick, Colorado; Charles M. Kendrick, California. Rev. E. A. Blackman, of Kansas, was elected national chaplain. Mrs. Lowell Hobart, of Milford, Ohio, was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion.

* * * *

New Orleans, La., was selected as the next meeting. That city has pledged $100,000 for entertaining the Legionnaires there during the 1922 meeting next autumn.

* * * *

The presence of the distinguished military commanders—Foch, Jacques, Diaz, Betty and Pershing—brought the gaze of the world on the Legion's great meeting. Their addresses in the convention started the Legionnaires' enthusiasm on a rapid ascent.

At the opening session the Legion men honored their late commander, Fred W. Galbraith, Jr., with a memorial service. John G. Emery, the retiring commander, set off a roar of applause when he declared that the people of the United States demanded an adjustment of the economic balance between the man who went to war and the man who did not.

* * * *

The Legion's growth financially and numerically was shown by the annual report read to the convention by National Adjutant Bolles. It was reported that 1050 new posts had been added during the year. Mr. Bolles outlined the Legion's campaign to assist unemployed ex-service men.

* * * *

Major General Le Jeune, commander of the Marine Corps; General Robert McBride vice commander of the G. A. R. and George L. Berry, official representative of the American Federation of Labor were speakers on the opening day.

* * * *

The reception for Foch when 25,000 men in navy blue and olive drab, silhouetted by red fire, stood on the steps of Kansas City's new $2,500,000 war memorial in Union Station plaza waving their arms, was a dazzling spectacle.

* * * *

Another "high" of the three-day gathering was the annual Legion parade with endless columns of marching men, Legionnaire cow-boys from the west, Indian veterans in native costume and many attractive floats. With their former high commanders leading the parade, the Legionnaires marched with old-time zip of A. E. F. days. Governor Hyde of Missouri and a dozen governors from middle-west states were in the reviewing box and Vice President Coolidge, who as President Harding's representative had addressed the convention, was an honor guest.

* * * *

"The convention has convinced me that the American Legion is an established power in the United States—a power for truth and equality," declared Marshal Foch before his departure from Kansas City.

HATS THAT FLATTER

Hats are the finishing touch to the costume, and they make or mar its success. There is a hat for every face, one that will enhance its good points and be kind to its faults. Three widely different models for fall and winter, as shown above, reveal that beads and embroidery are playing leading parts in trimmings and that shapes are soft and becoming.

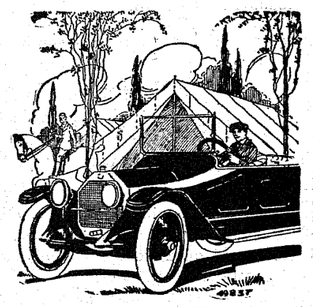
Henry Thomas has gone back to Miami, Florida for the winter months.

"BANDIT MAN" AT EMPIRE THEATRE

Manager Koen of the Empire Theatre Salem promises something exceptional in the way of a comic and dramatic treat for local theatregoers when the Luttringer Players will present for the first time in this city "The Bandit Man" the latest play by the author of "The Love of Su Shong" which local patrons of the theatre remember with such delight.

"The Bandit Man" as its title indicates, is a play the scenes of which are all laid in the revolution ridden country to the south of our own, whose people even in these modern times still dress in the costumes that seem of another world. "The Bandit Man" is a story of love divided between a young American mining engineer on one side and a beautiful little Senorita who while dangerous in her rage is yet adorable in her gentleness. Secondly it is a delightful comedy that gives forth a laugh every other moment, for it has several characters that appear hugely funny. Thirdly, the play is a drama that has more thrills in each one of its four acts than most plays have in their entirety.

Every effort is being made on the part of the management, actors, stage director, stage crew and scenic artist to outdo all their previous efforts, while special costumes are being sent from New York, and those who enjoy a good stirring play filled with the spirit of romance and adventure will be sure of finding it all at the Theatre when they visit "The Bandit Man."



PEABODY NOT TO HELP SALEM RECOUP FUNDS

Salem's only chance to stage a return game with Peabody is to agree for the winning eleven to take all of the gate receipts. This Salem is so far unwilling to agree to and the chances are held very slim for another match between the two rival high school teams.

The victory in Salem of the Tanners over the Witch City last Saturday when Peabody won 12 to 0 before a record crowd of fans is still cause for Salem being downcast. The Peabody eleven under Coach Marty Donovan, himself a Salem resident, disclosed the superiority of the Tanners in most every angle and particularly in the fighting spirit and team work.

Winning the North Shore championship means more to Peabody than defeating Salem again and it is very probable that Coach Marty Donovan will be listened to and his advice not to play another game with Salem be considered.

The citizens' committee which is trying to arrange a post-season game for Peabody with some distant team is now angling in the south where the weather would be less severe early in December than in the middle west.

BOVINGDON OVER BIG AT ROTARY

No more interesting speaker has appeared before the Peabody Rotary Club than John Bovington, who was the club's principl guest and speaker last Tuesday. His talk was on the "Psychology of Business." He is holding a series of meetings for executives of business houses in Salem and his coming to Peabody was at the suggestion of Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, who was a classmate at Harvard in a post-graduate course. Mr. Bovington went over big, giving a message to employers that sank deep into the hearts of his listeners with a lesson for everyone who deals with employes.

In substance his talk dwelt on the fact that too many employers fail to recoginze the human qualities in their employes. The biggest thing for every employer to realize, he said, was that his chief duty as an executive was to tap the energy of his employes in bringing forth ideas that promote business. Mr. Bovington is a delightful speaker. A rising vote of thanks was tendered him at the close of his address.

Louis Buddy was another speaker before the Rotary Club this week. He is a member of the Rotary Club of the Oranges, New Jersey, which numbers among its members Thomas A. Edison, the wizard on electricity. Buddy is with the American City Bureau, which promotes campaigns for Chamber of Commerce memberships. He is a good speaker and gives a pleasing Rotary talk.

A committee of three members, composed of Harry F. Whidden, Philip C. O'Rourke and Charles C. Hills, were appointed to confer with the directors of the Peabody Community House to determine what action may follow in assisting the civic house campaign for funds.

A meeting of the trustees of the Peabody Institute and a committee from the Rotary Club met last Tuesday night at the Institute to learn of conditions in the Library. Thomas H. Mulherin was chairman of the committee.

Official word has been received from the War Department granting Rotary's request to place a bronze wreath on the Arlington grave of the American Unknown Soldier.

Seventy-Five Years of Service

Seventy-five years ago people in New England were telling eath other by spoken words what a wonderful cough and cold remedy Cerizane was. Now the newspapers spread the news through advertisements. The same company has been making Cerizane all these years. Four generations of the Wilson family have prepared this fine medicine. Read what a Rhode Island man, Mr. Henry Walczak of 444 Mill treet, Central Falls, R. I., says about Cerizane.

"I had taken a bad cold and it gave me a terrible sore throat and awful cough. I could not sleep and coughed all the time. I took a medicine that helped the cough a little bit, but made my stomach bad and put me all out of condition. Then a friend, Mr. James O'Brien, of Central Falls, told me to take Cerizane Balsam. I bought a bottle from my druggist and took it regular. When I commenced I was so hoarse that I could only whisper. I was weak from coughing and was sick all over. Cerizane took the dryness out of my throat right away. In a little while the cough commenced to get easier and my throat did not hurt so much. Cerizane did not make my stomach bad like the other medicines, but let me eat all right. Then the pain in my chest went away and before the first bottle of Cerizane was all gone I was well of the cold, the sore throat and the cough. Cerizane Balsam is surely the best cough and throat medicine."

Cerizane is always to be had of the following:

CHARLIE CHAPLIN, IN "THE IDLE CLASS" STRAND THEATRE FEATURE TONIGHT

It is confidently expected that all attendance records at the Strand will be smashed this evening when Charlie Chaplin and Thomas Meighan, two of the screen's biggest drawing cards, appear on the same program. Chaplin will be presented in his newest comedy effort, "The Idle Class," while Tom Meighan will appear in "White and Unmarried," a picture that compares favorably with "The City of Silent Men," in which Mr. Meighan appeared a few weeks ago.

Chaplin's picture, "The Idle Class," contains funny situations without end, and each of them shows the screen's greatest comedian in a new light. As a golfer he is constantly evoking shrieks of laughter; and his antics with a cocktail shaker and in a suit of armor will bring down the house. A Chaplin comedy is always a tonic, and this one especially so. It was written and directed by the star himself, and Mack Swain and Edna Purviance are important members of the cast. One of the novel features of his production is the fact that for the first time Chaplin portrays a dual role.

"White and Unmarried," Mr. Meighan's feature, gives film patrons an opportunity to see how "the other half lives" in the gay French capital. Meighan has the role of a crook who reforms when his uncle leaves him half a million dollars and who goes to Europe to kill time. While there he has a romance and incidentally is involved in some desperate encounters with Apaches in Paris. It is the Paris of the novelists that is shown. The underground Paris—the Paris of the dance halls, the Apaches, the picturesque and hectic. As Billy Kane the star develops into a man of rare powress and rescues several damsels in distress. It is a vivid tale with plenty of excitement and action. Jacqueline Logan, a former star of the Follies, plays opposite Mr. Meighan. Ann Little in "The Blue Fox" will be shown for the balance of the week in addition to the other attractions.

Louise Huff in "A Dangerous Paradise" and Charlotte Walker in "Eve in Exile" will be the bill for Sunday evening.

"Dangerous Curve Ahead" will be the special attraction for next Monday and Tuesday. This is another of Rupert Hughes' pictures. Patrons of the Strand will remember "The Old Nest" the first of Mr. Hughes' features. Helene Chadwick, called "the most photographed girl in America," has the principal role. The story of the play concerns the early married life of a girl who was the belle of her community before her marriage to an easy going, domestically inclined husband. Inwardly chafing under the restraints imposed by the cares of the home, and the rearing of her two children, she seizes the opportunity to taste again of the butterfly life in society, while her husband is away on business. How she avoids the "Dangerous Curve" and is brought to her senses through the illness of her child is graphically and forcefully told. It stamps Mr. Hughes as a genius when it comes to playing upon the heart-strings of his audience. The picture is splendidly acted by Miss Chadwick, "Lefty" M. B. Flynn and Richard Dix.

Busy Classes at Community House

The Community dancing class for high school boys and girls will begin Saturday night, Nov. 19, at 7.30. Mrs. George Dean will be the teacher. Boys and girls may register for that class at any time now.

The high school gymnasium class is the largest ever for this season of the year. Ralph Holden and Leo Buckely have charge of this class.

The class in wireless is under way. There is still room for several more boys. Any boys interested should confer with the superintendent.

The classes in Americanization are taxing the facilities of the house to the limit, there being 107 present Monday night.

The King's Daughters will hold a rummage sale in the gymnasium Saturday afternoon.

The acrobatic troupe meets Thursdays at 5 o'clock. James Paige, recently elected captain of the Salem gymnastic team, is the leader.

One of the new features this year is a story telling hour for the small boys and girls. Mrs. Ernest Porter is the most delightful story teller for these small folks.

march to the church, where seats will be reserved for them.

The mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Thomas P. McGinn, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Patrick J. Sullivan as deacon, the Rev. William F. Shaughnessey, sub-deacon, and the Rev .Charles D. McInnis, master of ceremonies.

A patriotic address, appropriate to the occasion, will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Murphy, D. D., Ph. D., professor at St. John's seminary, Brighton.

Werner's Gregorian mass will be rendered by an augmented choir under the personal direction of Miss Mary Clifford, organist. At the offertory, Michael J. McGrath will sing "Face to Face" and Marion McBride Dorgan will sing "Pie Jesu" at the communion. A quartette composed of Messrs. McGrath, J. Eagan, Miss Mary L. McCarthy and Alice Mullin Quinn will render "Ave Verum" at the close of the ceremony.

Father McGinn, in making the announcement last Sunday, spoke eloquently of the patriotic observance of the day, and urged his parishioners to be loyal, not only on that day, but on all days, to the memory of those who had done so much for their country.

Peabody stores and schools will be closed on Armistice Day. There will be no delivery of mail. Flags should be kept at half mast from sunup to sundown. Peabody sent 1053 men to the war service, of whom 24 gave their lives.

LEATHER NOTES

Sales of heavy leather continue the feature of the sole leather markets. Union sole leather tanners in Boston are dividing incoming shipments among customers. Medium weights are improving somewhat. In Philadelphia the principal call for sole leather is from turn shoe producers. Chicago reports improvement in sole leather demand. Offal markets are steady. In Boston union tanned heads are improving. A slight increase in the demand for union shoulders noted in Philadelphia. No great activity in the Boston oak sole market. Heavy leather still has the principal call. Poorer grades of sole leather have improved. In Philadelphia findings and manufacturing trade have purchased more sole leather. Buyers in that market are showing more inclination to purchase lighter weights owing to shortage of heavier stock. In Chicago sole leather demand is improving. Medium and heavy weight bellies are in fair request in the East. Advances as yet are hard to obtain. Philadelphia reports advances obtained on heavy bellies. Chicago oak offal market steady with more trading reported. Side upper leather demand continues for stock at a price in the East. A wide range of prices is noted. Some tanners are firmer in their prices and are gradually working up to selling on a replacement basis. Domestic demand for shiny leather is slowing up. Export call still continues. Calf market generally is quiet. Some export demand for lower grade kid. Larger spread leather is in better demand by domestic as well as export trade.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

POLITICS

Some one predicted that politics this fall would arouse but little excitement. Whoever that party was he erred, for in Wards 3, 4, 5 and 6 there will be as much doing as at a football game. Candidates have chips on their shoulders, and in some cases at least, the voters are being harassed for votes.

Who the two highest vote getters in the Ward Five Councillorship will be is the biggest question in the coming city primaries to be held next Tuesday. There are five candidates and each is making a real fight to land one of the two places on the ballot for Dec. 6. The two to finish in the primaries will be picked from Messrs. Craig, Barnaby and Glackin.

In Ward 3, the vote promises to be close, and the winner may nose out by less than 25 votes. The fight between Councillor Eagan and ex-Councillor Cotton is to be the keener because of the entrance of William Tweed, a third candidate.

In Ward 4, Councillor Hogan has the pole with a service of two terms, but he will have to travel to beat Nicholas Cullen, whose popularity brings him to the front. This ward voted for Cox for president, and can be relied on to repeat.

In Ward 6 a merry battle is on between Clarence W. Barnes and Louis P. P. Osborne. To predict the winner might lead to the feeling we favor one or the other. But a real fight is on, and each man has political backing which will tend to bring out a large vote. There are many would-be politicians who assume they have big political influence. It is a matter of opinion whether they have or not.

Women are having their second election and their vote in these contests will have considerable bearing on the results. Many believe, as vote their husbands, so go the wives. We differ in that statement, for there are many women who will do otherwise, believing they know better than their lesser half.

The municipal garage remains closed, and bills are coming in to be paid. The Mayor's representative told the Council the garage was not to be closed, but it required money to run it. He announced a supplementary budget would not be presented this year.

So it appears the garage will be a fixture so far as Mayor Shea is concerned, but some way must be worked out to keep proper accounts. The loose way of doing business there ever since it has been in existence should be remedied before another start is made. It's all in the management, as we have always said.

The tax payers are much interested in the outcome of this garage. Many believe it an elephant, while others think if run properly it will do. All agree better management is needed, and when that comes the cost will be less.

Miss Louise King of the Electric Light office returned Wednesday after a two weeks vacation trip during which time she visited Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York.

Mayor Shea presented his list of election officers to the City Council this week.

City Solicitor Farnham declares the policemen on duty at the city garage are not violating the eight-hour law.

Patrolman James Murphy was largely responsible for the arrest of Cambridge men who assaulted a Greek barber of Walnut street, this city, and robbed him of his money. Murphy learned the number of the auto driven by the men responsible for the robbery and when the Cambridge police came here to secure a clue they were surprised to find that Chief Grady had a few hours before gotten Murphy's information. Murphy would make a good inspector.

The department of public utilities at the State House paid Manager Warren D. King of the Electric Light plant a compliment Wednesday when they asked him to preside at a conference of electric power plant managers to discuss a system of accounting.

The condition of Councillor Francis Poor remains about the same. He is to be taken to the Parker Hill hospital in Boston this week, where his condition will be closely watched by skilled doctors and nurses.

JEWISH FOLK DANCES

The Jewish Folk school will hold their second annual dance in Moose hall tonight (Thursday). There will be Armistice Day exercises.

Lowell Street

Mrs. J. Ben Palmer has been appointed chairman of the proposed Peabody committee of the Woman's National Foundation with headquarters in Washington, D. C. The Foundation will have its organization on Nov. 15. Mrs. John Hayes Hammond of the North Shore is one of the vice presidents. Mrs. Clarence Crittendon Calhoun is the national president.

Miss Ruth Farrington will spend the weekend with friends in Newburyport.

Miss Grace Cook, teacher at the Wallis school has been confined to her home by illness for the past week.

Mrs. H. V. Hunt is convalescing from an operation for appendicitis at the Charlesgate hospital in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chaplin, the latter nee Shirley Ingraham who are living in New Haven will entertain a house party of friends who are to attend the Yale-Princeton game this week. Miss Grace Teel of Salem, formerly of this city, will be among the guests.

Mrs. S. C. Tucker will entertain the faculty of the South church Sunday school at her home on Chestnut street this evening.

Mrs. William Macdonald underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils at the Massachusetts General hospital last Tuesday.

Home missionary day was observed Tuesday afternoon by the Women's Association of the South church. A very interesting talk on the "Intimate Contact with Foreigners" was delivered by Miss Esteh Kokkinen of Boston. Vocal selections were furnished by Mrs. Merle Moses Bragdon, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Gladys Ware Wilson.

Mrs. Phillips Osborn is confined to her home with one of the prevailing heavy colds

Miss Marion Pushard of Emerson street entertained a number of friends at her home last Friday evening, the occasion being her birthday.

Elmer B. Thomas, who was operated upon last Saturday for appendicitis, is progressing favorably at the Salem hospital and is now receiving callers between the hours of 12 and 9 p. m.

Dr. S. C. Tucker is spending a few days in New York city.

Joseph Gilmore has started construction of his new home on upper Lowell street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Macdonald entertained at whist last Monday evening.

Edward Carroll of Glue Hill, the veteran watchman at the L. B. Southwick Co., is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dodge have returned to their home on Fay avenue, after a summer spent at North Beverly.

ALMY'S BIRTHDAY SALE

Hundreds of Peabody people will be numbered among the patrons of the Almy, Bigelow & Washburn's 63rd birthday sale which opens Saturday of this week. Read their announcement on page 2 of this issue.

ON HONEYMOON

Mr. and Mrs. J. Joseph Sonigan, Jr., have sent home cards from Washington, D. C., where they have been spending their honeymoon this week. Mrs. Sonigan was Miss Elsie B. Mullin of Salem. The groom was one of the cleverest baseball players ever to represent Peabody high.

West Peabody

Miss Marie Carrecabe of Swampscott is making a short visit with Mrs. Richard Stocker on Lowell street.

Miss Gretchen Furbush was the guest of Miss Ada McDonald last Saturday and Sunday.

Natt Scott has accepted a call to the West Congregational church as pastor. His preaching will be from 10.30 until 11.30 a. m., and from 7.30 until 8.30 p. m. every Sunday.

Mrs. Rudolph Fisher and her two children are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kruger on Lake street. Mrs. Fisher's home is in Jamaica Plains.

Miss Ada McDonald entertained some of her friends at her birthday party the past week. Games were played and refreshments were served. A very enjoyable time was had by all who attended.

Miss Dorothy Poor entertained her friends on her fifth birthday. A pleasant time was had by all.

Mrs. Imogene Covey has returned to her home on West street, after a few weeks in Salem.

Gilbert Lame has returned home after his visit in New York with his son, Francis of Rochester. He also visited his son Herman of Jersey City, N. J.

The Young Men's Social Club will hold a "gun shoot" Thanksgiving morning at Martin's Pit. This is to be open to all gunners.

Mrs. Frederick Larrabee has been ill the past week at her home on Lowell street.

The Young Mens' Social Club is holding rehearsals for a drama to be given in the near future.

It is hoped that there will be a large number of the West Peabody citizens at the West church tomorrow evening. A reception is to be given Natt Scott. There will be an entertainment given by local talent. There will be singing and reading. Ladies are requested to bring cake and sandwiches. Don't forget to come! Tomorrow evening at 7.30 o'clock. Everyone is invited.

The Junior Christian Endeavor will meet Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Miss Dora Lame will be the leader. Her subject is "The Right and Wrong Ways of Speaking."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year at the last meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society: President, Mrs. Augusta Alger; first vice president, Mrs. T. A. Martin, second vice president, Mrs. S. P. Small, secretary, Mrs. Benjamin Danforth, treasurer, Mrs. Frank Southwick; chaplain, Mrs. Lizzie Felt; auditor, Mrs. Charles Southwick; custodian, Mrs. Lewis Felt; board of directors, Mrs. H. W. Rankin, Mrs. Minnie Legro, Mrs. T. A. Martin Mrs. Frank Southwick.

THRIFT POSTERS

A number of posters drawn to stimulate thrift are expected from Peabody high school pupils in the contest being announced by the Salem Trust Co. under the direction of its woman's department. The contest is open to high school pupils and must measure 20 by 15 inches, free of advertising matter. The contest closes Dec. 16. Prizes of $10, $7.50, $5 and $2.50 are to be awarded.

PERSONAL

Miss Mary Sheehan of Gardner street and Miss Katharine Flynn of North Central street have been enjoying a trip to New York and Washington the past two weeks.

Dr. Harris Pomeroy is attending the surgical clinic in New York city this week.

Miss Mary G. Ward has resumed teaching at the Wallis School after a long absence. Miss Ward slipped and fell in her school-room last March, seriously injuring her hip, and has been confined to the house most of the time since.

'Sallies' Ask Peabody For Needed Funds

Salvation Army officials begin work today to raise $1500 in Peabody as this city's contribution to the work of the famous organization whose "Sallies" rendered such wonderful aid to the American soldiers overseas. Mayor Shea has endorsed the drive and sent in a liberal check to D. E. Kearsley the officer in charge. Unless the "Sallies" raise sufficient funds in the campaign being waged all over the state some of their work in Boston may be discontinued. Contributions may be sent to Mr. Kearsley at the New Essex House, Salem.

It is the patriotic duty of every citizen of Peabody to lend a hand to those who are down and need lifting up to America's high standard. This can only be accomplished by such organized effort, ably directed, as the Salvation Army is now and has for many years provided.

The Salvation Army operates at the lowest possible cost. Its salaries are a minimum living wage, and the contributed funds go quickly and directly to the aid of the unfortunate, saving the lives of babies and children, providing a refuge for unfortunate girls.

ENGAGEMENT

Mrs. Ella C. Barris of 5 Jacobs street announces the engagement of her daughter, Louise S. Hutchinson, to Raymond W. Leavitt of Peabody.

Biggest Game Of Season For Tomorrow P.M.

Emerson Park should see a crowd of over 3000 football fans tomorrow afternoon when Peabody high takes on Beverly high in their league game. The Tanners will go into the fray with an edge over their rivals and with a determination to make the victory decisive. Peabody hopes to hold Beverly scoreless.

The big outstanding feature in the success of the Tanners this season is their splendid team work which reflects in no small way on the ability of Coach Marty Donovan to get results. Pappas, Crean, Munroe, Holden, Donahue and Hennessey stand out as the bulwarks of aggressive playing with every man on the first team a star in his position. Together the team works like a well oiled machine with plenty of pep and stamina which has so far made the team undefeated.

The committee having the popular subscription in hand to send the Peabody high football team to Charleston, S. C. for a game on December 10 are receiving many pledges of money. A dance is to be held in City Hall on December 5 to swell the receipts.

The dance committee are Harold Childs, chairman; Leo Sullivan, James McLaughlin, Benjamin Levin, and Councillor John Jones.

The committee hopes to raise nearly $3000. The cost of the round trip will be $105 a man. The itinerary of the trip is as follows: Leave Boston Wednesday December 7 at 7.30 evening

TO THE CANDIDATES

The rate for political advertising in The Enterprise is $1 per inch, each insertion. We do not solicit political advertising. We do not favor a candidate because he advertises or oppose him because he does not advertise. Our columns are open to every candidate on the same basis, if they wish to use this medium to present their issues to the public. If they do not care to advertise that is their business and we have no feeling against them on that account. Our office is open to every candidate who wishes to consult us but it is a rule not to show copy of advertising matter to opposing candidates or to peddle political secrets from one to another. I desire to treat all candidates fairly. If they dont treat me fairly, thats their lookout. I ask no special favors of the mayor, councillor, or any other candidates after their election. My only interest is that they shall do their best to give the city a good administration. I can take this position because I own and control The Enterprise and I alone am responsible for its conduct, be it good, bad or indifferent. No attacks upon the honesty of any candidate will be printed the day before the City election without giving the person assailed an opportunity to reply in the same issue.

CHAMBER EXPANSION BOUND TO PROMOTE WELFARE OF PEABODY

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce held in the Salem Club Thursday noon, His Honor, William A. Shea, was unanimously chosen as chairman of the executive committee to conduct the expansion campaign which has just been launched. This expansion campaign is the result of a vote taken by the directors Monday afternoon at their regular monthly meeting.

The American City Bureau was invited by the board to come to Peabody for the purpose of carrying through a movement to enlarge the Chamber of Commerce and awaken a greater spirit of service and co-operation for the up-building of the city of Peabody through more definite and larger activities of the Chamber of Commerce. Peabody is to be considered extremely fortunate in securing the services of Lewis Buddy as manager of this expansion movement, inasmuch as Mr. Buddy is a member of the board of

A handsome collie dog run over by a Lynn car in front of Hose 5 last Tuesday morning lay 26 hours in a field not 100 yards away until a woman telephoned to the Enterprise office with the request that the attention of the police be called. Chief Grady at once sent officer Keane to the scene and the dog was relieved of his misery. The dog had one of its hind legs almost severed and another badly mangled when it ran from behind a team in front of the car. Officer Timothy Dullea on duty at Ward 1 voting precinct saw the dog run up the street but made no effort to locate the animal. South Peabody men and women are bitter in their comment. Chief Grady says the policeman should have left his duty at the voting booth and dispatched the dog at once. The dog lay all night bleeding to death.

Craig Would Add Strength To The Council

David Craig one of the nominees in Ward 5 for Councillor comes forth from the primaries a formidable candidate with great promise of his being elected. It happens every so often that a really big man enters the political arena bringing to the office he aspires to all of the fundamentals that insure an intelligent non-partisan and strictly honest tenure of office. Such qualifications stamp Mr. Craig as a man who would do honor to the office he seeks that of representing his own ward and all of the citizens on questions properly before the City Council. Mr. Craig is a past President of the National Association of Master Plumbers, having served first as its vice president. Under the old form of government he was frequently heard on the floor in town meeting and always his remarks carried conviction. He has resided on Andover street for the past ten years.

Mr. Craig would enter the City Council wholly independent and unpledged to any political schemers.

It is generally known that George Barnaby was induced to run by the forces at City Hall that are trying to ridicule Mayor Shea.

Douglas MacLean In 'Passing Thru' At Strand Tonight---Hart Coming

The blowing up of a brick bank building, within which are all the principal characters of the story, is but one of a number of the thrills to be seen in "Passing Thru," Douglas MacLean's new Paramount-Ince production which will top the Strand's program for today and Saturday. This big scene comes during the latter part of the picture and its bearing upon the plot and outcome is both unusual and entirely unexpected. There are many other equally sensational scenes in "Passing Thru," including a wild chase of bank bandits and a vivid train wreck. The comedy incidents, however, are the outstanding features of the production, Doug MacLean and his supporting company getting the most out of every one of the story's humorous twists. Madge Bellamy heads the supporting cast. Ann Little in an exciting chapter of "The Blue Fox" and a Clyde Cook comedy will be the other attractions for today. Clyde Cook will be presented in his new comedy entitled the "Sailor." As an acrobatic comedian, this man Cook is in a class by himself, and some of his positions into which he twists himself in this comedy are almost unbelievable.

Zena Keefe in "The Woman God Sent" will be the feature attraction on the double bill for Sunday night. "The Handicap," with an all-star cast, is the second number on the bill. "The Handicap" is a story built around the race track and a spirited race is one of the big features.

William S. Hart, who is probably the biggest of our ocal favorites, will the biggest of our local favorites, will Monday and Tuesday in his special feature, "The Whistle." In this offering the popular interpreter of western roles is seen in a new characterization. He does not ride over the plains in search of bad men, nor is he a bad man himself. Instead he is seen as an apostle of labor in its age old battle with capital. Mr. Hart gives a rugged portrayal as Robert Evans, who endeavors to square accounts with the magnate in whose employment he works as a factory hand. He would like to find a way out of his drab existence, but the whistle blows and he realizes that he must work, that his motherless boy may not want.

One day his son is caught in the belt of the machinery and his life is snuffed out. So Robert Evans becomes a victim of hate against the capitalistic classes. He kidnaps the magnate's boy to bring up as his own—intending at some future time to wreak vengeance. But it so happens that the blows fall hardest upon the little boy's mother and wrecks her happiness. Eventually Hart realizes that mother love is too strong a force to overcome and relinquishes his claim to the youngster. This bare outline hardly does justice to the story which is at times thrilling and at times tender and appealing. Myrtle Stedman and Frank Brownlee head the supporting cast. Richard Hedrick, the new child star, plays the part of the child.

Red Cross Is World Nurse Enrol Today

The annual roll call for membership for the American Red Cross now being carried on in this city is meeting with a hearty response and under the capable direction of Mrs. Alice G. Howley chairman of the local committee, many new subscriptions have been added and old ones renewed. Assisting Mrs. Howley in this great humanitarian work are Mrs. George Millett, Mrs. Mabel Williams and Mrs. John J. Shanahan. The solicitors are Mrs. Everett Goodwin. Miss Ruth Stockwell, Mrs. Raymond Vorel, Miss Fannie Gay, Mrs. Margaret E. Messer, Miss Leslie Gardner. Headquarters are at the Chamber of Commerce rooms and those who have not been reached by the solicitors are urged to send or bring their subscriptions there.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Members of the American Legion, who served with the United States forces in France, will be called upon to give facts relating to Senator Watson's charge that American soldiers were shot and hanged in France without the formality of a court-martial. Secretary of War Weeks in a request to Commander Hanford MacNider for the Legion's cooperation said the War Department desired to proved or definitely refute the Georgia Senator's allegations. Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the Legion said he was sure the National Commander would cooperate.

There is one officer to every seven men in the United States army, according to information received by the American Legion. It was explained by the War Department that the high proportion was due to the present army policy of maintaining an army capable of quick expansion in time of war. The army today numbers 138,000 of which number 18,000 are officers.

The first official act of Hanford MacNider, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, was his attendance at the Armistice Day ceremonies at Arlington as representative of the majority of ex-service men in the United States. He will remain at Washington during the disarmament conference. MacNider's election has been approved by Legionnaires everywhere. "He is exactly the type of man we want to lead us", seems to be the unanimous comment. The impressive things about the new commander are that he went into the army a buck private and came out a lieutenant-colonel with 11 citations and nine decorations; that at the age of 32 he is head of a large banking business in Iowa and that he is a "Harvard man without the Harvard accent." He has been hailed everywhere as a "real soldier."

A post of the American Legion composed entirely of World War veterans of Polish descent has been formed at Toledo, Ohio and is known as Argonne post. Frank Szumigala is the commander, Stanley J. Grzezinski is vice commander and Joseph Malinkonski is adjutant.

Roy Phillips, member of the American Legion at Nashville, Tenn., received a five-pound box of candy in the mail and wondered who loved him. After eating some of the candy he was sent to the hospital, where physician pronounced his condition critical. The candy contained poison and Phillips is now wondering who hates him. The police are investigating.

A chicken that come into the world "shimmying" and grew to full size in spite of its affliction, was one of the attractions at the "Joy Day" celebration of the Hedrick, Iowa post of the American Legion. It was billed as "the world's only shimmying chicken."

A five-mile walking race will be held Thanksgiving Day by the Charles A. Learned Post of Detroit. Mich. Both men and women have entered the contest. Only Legionnaires are eligible. Prizes valued at more than $1000 will be offered.

* * *

Joseph Semtich, a world war veteran who lost a leg in the Argonne, walked seven miles at the head of the Shelbina, Mo., post of the American Legion in the Legion parade at Kansas City. Semtich gets around with the aid of a crutch.

* * *

Flying a kite "to keep the wolf away from the door" is the occupation of a World War veteran who during the war flew an airplane in France. The veteran was jobless and the only work the American Legion Employment Bureau at Minneapolis, Minn., could find for him was flying an advertising kite for a film company.

* * *

Buck privates had the pleasure of seeing former commissioned officers doing kitchen police at an American Legion banquet at Terre Haute, Ind.

* * *

The home in which the daughter of Betsy Ross, maker of the first American flag, lived at Fort Madison, Ia., has been purchased by the Fort Madison post of their American Legion for a club house.

Reunited after seventeen years separation, Frank and Joseph Payne, who had been placed in an orphanage in St. Louis in early childhood, found in comparing the war experiences that they had sought safety in the same shell hole in the Argonne but did not at the time know they were brothers. The reunion occured at Kansas City, Mo.

The mayor and chief of police of Lincoln, Neb.. have endorsed a plan for the employment of jobless ex-service men as night watchman to aid the police department in suppressing crime.

ENGLISH CLASSES

Over two hundred pupils are registered in the Evening Americanization classes. These classes are held in the Community House, in the Russian Hall on Sherman street in the Finnish Hall on King street and in the High School Annex.

Forty-five men attended the class in citizenship which was opened in the Chamber of Commerce last Monday evening.

LEO GUILD

At the regular meeting of Leo Guild to be held in K. C. hall next Monday evening an interesting cooking demonstration will be given by Mr. Gillespie of the "Wear-ever" Aluminum Company. Among other novel demonstrations Mr. Gillespie will make a pot roast without water; griddle cakes without grease; coffee without boiling, and will bake a cake on top of the stove. These seem almost like impossibilities but Mr. Gillespie says they can be done and done easily. Guild members may bring a guest with them and a very small fee will be collected to cover the cost of materials used at the demonstration. No orders for aluminum will be solicited and the members are assured of a most interesting evening.

BRISKER CALL FOR LEATHER

Demand for heavy union sole continues. Boston tanners report a good week. Philadelphia tanners are receiving instructions to hold up shipments preparatory to inventory taking. Sufficient new orders have been booked, however, to maintain an even business. Chicago sole and offal markets have improved. The feature of the sole leather markets has been the increase in foreign orders. Considerable stock is still being shipped to overseas trade. Side upper leather trading has slowed up in Boston. In Chicago the medium grades are still in demand and stocks have been greatly lowered. The calf markets of Chicago as well as Boston are quiet. Patent leather demand has slowed up somewhat. Western and foreign buyers are the principal buyers of shiny stock. Foreign buyers have been more numerous but they also are looking for leather at low prices. Sheep leather business of volume is obtainable by concerns willing to sell at low prices. Considerable low price stock moved during recent weeks. Medium grade kid is improving in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago markets. Several thousand dozen large spread blacks of medium grade sold by Boston tanner for domestic consumption.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

EMPIRE STOCK

There are no perplexing problems to worry one in "Turn To The Right!" which comes to the Empire Theatre, Salem, all next week by the Popular Stock Company. The play does not meddle with the moral tap nor will it call a blush to the cheek, but it will warm your heart, make you laugh and perhaps weep just a little.

Winchell Smith, who, with John E. Hazzard wrote the play, understands the small-town people. He makes them human. That was why "The Fortune Hunter" was so successful and "Turn To The Right!" is full of just the same kind of folks. It is humorous, sentimental and wholesome, bringing home to his mother a boy who has spent a year in prison.

With the erring youth come two of his former prison pals and they, too surrender to the gentle influence of the little gray-haired mother—after they have flim-flammed the village skinflint. Inasmuch as "Turn To The Right!" will be one of the best plays to be seen here this season there is likely to be a rush for seats when the advance sale opens.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Waterhouse and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Childs motored to Kennebunkport, Me., over the week-end where they were the guests of Mr. Waterhouse's parents.

Timothy Mahoney, war veteran, has invented an instrument which will aid dog constable O'Brien to handle ferocious dogs. The instrument is a five foot iron pipe through which a slip-noose is drawn to permit of the dog being secured about the neck and then be held at a safe distance. A second piece of pipe is welded to the iron pipe to make the slip-noose easier to catch the dog.

Warren D. King, manager of the Electric Light plant attended the joint meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and American Society of Mechanical Engineers held at Harvard College last Wednesday evening. Radio waves was the theme of the evening. A concert music received by the gathering by wireless from Pittsburg was one of the evening's novel features.

Rev. Thomas P. McGinn, pastor of St. John's church shook hands with Marshal Foch in Boston Monday at the reception given the French General at the residence of Cardinal O'Connell. Rev. Fr. McGinn who was a chaplain in the war service also attended the banquet given Marshal Foch at the Copley Plaza.

CHARLES H. EGLEE SPEAKER BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

CHARLES H. EGLEE

Charles H. Eglee, whose articles in the Enterprise and other papers are doing much to get employer and employe to have a better understanding of each other, will be the principal speaker before the Peabody Rotary Club next Tuesday noon at its luncheon hour. Several prominent leather men who are not members of the Rotary Club have been invited to hear Mr. Eglee give his discourse.

Mr. Eglee believes that no longer can the issue of capital and labor be waged on economical lines but rather must co-operation be brought about by recognizing the great human side. He is a speaker with a punch behind his words and his message is bound to prove of deep interest.

In its further efforts to be of service to the boys of Peabody, the Rotary Club is to equip 40 Boy Scouts and provide them with a scout master. Horace Bodge of Andover street has agreed to take charge of the boys and Andrew Fyfe will be one of the advisers.

It is planned by the boys' work committee of which Dr. S. C. Tucker is chairman to have an entertainmetn at the Strand theatre on Tuesday night, Nov. 29, to raise the necessary money. A drill by Boy Scouts will be an added attraction to a Mary Pickford picture. The Boy Scouts are to sell the tickets as their part in helping themselves to uniforms.

Rotary Glub members volunteered this week to take one or more world war veterans from the Parker Hill or Chelsea naval hospital as their guests on Thanksgiving day.

AMERICANIZATION

John J. Mahoney, state supervisor of Americanization who has aided in the local work paid a fine tribute to the Associated Industries of Massachusetts which organization he declared blazed the way for the already successful handling of the work among their aliens on their payrolls. Teaching of English in many of the factories notably in the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. plants in Peabody have done much to enhance the statewide work.

A NEW MARY PICKFORD SONG BY A PEABODY COMPOSER

Henry L. D'Entremont, manager of the Victor Alleys, has signed a contract with the James S. White Co. of Boston, for the publication of a new song which will be placed on the market on January 1st. The title of the song is "AMERICA'S SWEETHEART" and the millions of admirers of Mary Pickford will be glad to know that it is dedicated to her. The publishers are negotiating with her Picture Corporation for the right to use her picture on the cover. It will be one of the "hits" of 1922.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL'S STIRRING PLEA FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

Cardinal O'Connell's pastoral letter which was read in St. John's church at all masses last Sunday has elicited much favorable comment from the mass of citizens regardless of creed. It is a direct message to the employer and employe. The Enterprise has been requested to publish the letter which follows:

To establish peace in the world Christ came among men. The pagan nations, ignorant of God and His laws, had attempted, with but small measure of success, the reconciliation of human and divine rights and duties. They knew no law but the law of force. Brutal tyranny stalked abroad. Gods there were, but none with power to help the weak. There was a god of war and a god of wealth, a god of beauty and a god of pleasure. There was no god of poverty, of humility, of pain. Envy, jealousy, hatred of man for man, of tribe for tribe, of nation for nation naturally followed the rule of might. There was no place for justice and charity. These emanate from God—and when He is banished from society peace and good will among men are banished with Him. Modern paganism, too, has its gods. Peace is not among them.

The heart of the world is tired of strife. Peace—Peace is on every lip, the echo of every heart. But there is no peace, and there will be no peace until the cause of strife is removed. It would be false optimism to say, "All is well," when we know that with the rapid growth of wealth the selfishness of men has kept pace; that the gap between rich and poor is constantly widening; that the very basis of society is being disrupted; that irreligion and infidelity are blasting away the very foundations of faith. Not with a wail of pessimism do we raise our voice but with affectionate warning. Modern paganism has done its work, but the God of our fathers is with us still. He will save us. We have but to put into practise the justice and charity of Christ. When christian ideals rule the world, then, and not till then, we shall have peace. "Jerusalem, Jerusalem, if thou didst but know the things which are for thy peace!"

The existence of deep-seated discontent and far-reaching resentment in the industrial world of today is not to be questioned. Wage-earners are restless; the wealthy are apprehensive; petty strikes are of daily occurrence; great strikes threaten national disaster; class consciousness is on the increase; class hatred is being fomented by unscrupulous agitators.

The Remedy for Strife

Over a quarter of a century ago Leo XIII with unerring instinct placed his finger on the sore spots of the modern industrial world and offered religious ideals for labor and capital. He pointed out that large number of workers were destitute and that "To exercise pressure on the indigent and the destitute for the sake of gain, and to gather one's profit out of the need of another, is condemned by all laws, human and divine. To defraud anyone of wages that are his due is a crime that cries to the avenging anger of heaven..... The rich must religiously refrain from cutting down the workman's earnings, whether by force, or by fraud, or usurious dealing; and with all the greater reason for the laboring man is, as a rule, weak and unprotected, and because his slender means should in proportion to their scantiness be accounted sacred..... Were these precepts carefully obeyed and followed out would they not be sufficient of themselves to keep under all strife and its causes?"

No one can doubt that had the voice of the Pontiff been heeded the world today would be immeasurably better off. But the new paganism of materialist philosophy has passed the portals of the schools and has poisoned the very sources of civil and industrial life. "Might is right," "the survival of the fittest," "the battle to the strong"—these are principles of action in the industrial world. The general public has grown distrustful and suspicious, and the consequent note of pessimism has wrought incalculable harm to the business prosperity of the world. Misguided men, oftentimes ignorant of the true issues involved, have lent themselves to the propaganda of radicalism. Not only are present systems of government the object of increasing attack, but even the more fundamental ideals, the ideals of the family, of religion, and of authority itself.

Without minimizing the evils of the present industrial system, we nevertheless refuse to believe in the hopelessness of the situation. We believe that the present evils can be gradually remedied; that reforms can be introduced, and that the world will go forward to better and higher things.

We believe that labor and capital can get together. Labor needs capital, capital needs labor. In the recent hour of national distress, labor and capital worked together for the successful prosecution of the war. There were mistakes and treachery and greed here and there, but they were exceptional. This shows that they can work together in peace and harmony for the common weal.

It would be particularly sad at this time, when the world has been torn apart, when large sections of Europe have been devastated, when famine and plague are raging, if we, the leaders in world production, should lose this blessed opportunity of rendering service to stricken humanity, friend and foe alike; if we who were so ready to furnish weapons of destruction should fail so lamentably in the work of reconstruction.

The fundamental mistake in the attempts at solution is a mistake in the point of view. Statesmen and legislatures, philanthropists and economists have persisted in regarding the problem as a merely economic one. Economists, philanthropists and statesmen may alleviate distress. They cannot heal the wounds of society. These lie too deep. For underneath the turmoil lies a wrong philosopay of life, a misunderstanding of the ... ny of man and his relations ... s Creator. The question of human and divine rights involved in the industrial issues of the day is a moral question. The well-being of individuals and families is concerned. The reciprocal rights and duties of those who make claims and of those who resist them give the problem a moral aspect which cannot be ignored. It is above the domain of mere economics.

To find a remedy for the evils of the industrial world, to reconcile conflicting interests, to make practical application of the religious ideals of Christianity in everyday life, to restore peace on earth, is a work which should appeal to every lover of his faith and of his flag, and to which every christian and every patriot may well consecrate his most sacred endeavor.

No crusade for social betterment can succeed without justice and charity. Men and nations must return to truth, to a sincere and persevering effort to practise Christian virtue, justice, equity, brotherly love. The principles underlying social reform must postulate the existence of God and the immortality of the soul. God is Creator and Lawgiver. His laws may not be violated with impunity by state or individual. His sanctions are inevitable. Social action must be based on love of God and love of neighbor. Without these principles there will be no solution to the difficulties with which we are beset. This is the teaching of the Church and "we affirm without hesitation that all the striving of men will be in vain if they leave out the Church."

Standing securely upon the foundation of Jesus Christ, she approaches the question with confidence in the exercise of rights which manifestly pertain to her. She says to every man born into this world, rich and poor, powerful and weak: Harken to the Gospel of Christ—listen to the principles on which alone society can stand. She is by right and principle

LYNN CAR ROUTE

We dislike to believe that the Trustees of the Mass. Eastern St. Railway Co .are dodging the recent issue of the return of the Lynn cars to Washington street, but in view of what has transpired certainly the citizens of Peabody interested in the return of the cars have a right to believe that the Trustees are not over anxious to abide by their promise. When Mayor Shea first interviewed the Trustees they declared themselves willing to heed the popular petition of citizens in Ward Two and Three to have the cars removed from Foster street and placed back on Washington street. As their single promise the Trustees asked that the 1921 City Council go on record as favoring the city paying the cost of paving inside the tracks when new rails were laid in 1922 or 1923, and with this favorable vote by the City Council the railroad agreed to make temporary repairs to the tracks from Main street to Quinlan square and restore the cars this fall. The traffic on the Lynn cars is a considerable revenue to the railroad. The City Council of 1921 obviously could not bind the Council of one and two years hence, yet this year's Council by a majority vote gave its moral acceptance to the proviso of the Trustees. Apparently this vote did not satisfy the Trustees, and in their opinion left a loop-hole through which the Trustees have crawled with a sardonic smile at Peabody. Peabody is getting an unjust deal at the hands of the Trustees, for instead of fostering a sympathetic people the Trustees are alienating this public support and making many citizens wish that the jitney busses were back in service. The Trustees are not doing the equitable thing by Peabody in refusing to give us a single fare within the city limits. It is high time that Peabody got a square deal which from known facts we are not getting today at the hands of the railroad Trustees.

GOING SOUTH

The parties responsible for suggesting and arranging the southern trip of the high school football team are to be commended for their good judgment. The lads have surely earned the opportunity through their efforts this season, and the encouragement of athletics in the public schools is a public duty. Every athlete who plays on the school team must, under the rules, be proficient in his studies as well as being physically fit. This combination of mental and physical worth is pretty nearly absolutely necessary for more than ordinary success in the business grind of today. These intersectional games do much to encourage interest in schoolboy athletics. They are also educational in themselves, inasmuch as travel can be said to be education. The color plates in the school geographies will not begin to be as graphic to the student as the timetable he holds on his trip to the South. The entire city is behind the Peabody lads in wishing them a glorious trip and a successful one. They realize the long hours of hard drill that have been necessary to weld the raw material into a winning team. To the boys themselves, their coach, and the originators of the grand finale of a successful season, the Enterprise extends its best wishes for a grand windup victory in Charleston.

BUSINESS BETTER

Peabody has its unemployed but the number of men forced into idleness is not such a staggering proportion as some calamity howlers would have us believe. According to Manager King of the electric light plant, his records show that the municipal power plant is putting out between 30 and 40 per cent. more power today than one year ago. This power is being used by the manufacturing plants of this city. It is true that here and there a leather plant is closed, but many of the plants are enjoying a brisk business ,and unemployed men are not seen in any large numbers. The record of the local power plant is a strong point in favor of better business at hand.

OPPORTUNITY NOT DEAD

Many of us are apt now and then to chirp mournfully that there is no longer any opportunity for a poor man to become even moderately successful. We claim that all the chances are in the hands of those with much money with which to gain their ends. Then we pick up the morning paper and read of some lowly immigrant of twenty or more years ago, landing in America penniless, leaving an estate upon his demise amounting to several millions of dollars. These cases are probably one hundred times more frequent now than two decades ago. Far from being dead, opportunity is more and more within the grasp of the exceptional young man today than ever before. The same old rules apply now as applied in the cases of most successful men—work, work, more work. To the man who is willing to give of himself freely to the cause to which he devotes himself, success is practically certain.

$10,000,000 AID FOR VETERANS

Red Cross Provides Friendly Service of Many Kinds to Army of Disabled.

BULK OF WORK BY CHAPTERS

2,397 of These Are Helping Ex-Service Men Obtain Benefits U. S. Provides.

One field of Red Cross service alone, that of assisting disabled veterans of the World War, entails expenditures $4,000,000 greater than the aggregate receipts of the Annual Roll Call of 1920, the American Red Cross announces in a statement urging a widespread increase in membership at the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24. At the present time National Headquarters and the nation-wide chain of Chapters of the Red Cross is spending approximately $10,000,000 annually for the relief of disabled ex-service men and their families, while the aggregate receipts from last year's Roll Call were approximately $6,000,000.

It is in the 2,289 of the 3,600 Red Cross Chapters which still are helping solve the veteran's problem of adjusting himself to a normal civilian status that the greater part of the cost of this service is borne. Of the total sum spent for veterans' relief last year, National Headquarters expended a total of more than $2,600,000, while the remaining disbursement of approximately $7,000,000 represents the contribution of Chapters in this country-wide effort to assist the Government in providing the aid sorely needed by these men and their families.

An Ever Expanding Problem

That the problem of the disabled service man is ever-expanding and probably will not reach the peak before 1925, is the assertion of well-informed Government officials and that 2,397 Red Cross Chapters regard it as their most important work is evidence that the expansion is in nowise confined to a particular section but is, on the contrary, nation-wide. At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1921, there were 26,300 disabled service men in the 1,692 United States Public Health Service, Contract and Government Hospitals and Soldiers Homes, and that number is increasing at a rate of 1,000 a month.

Thousands of these men receiving medical treatment, compensation and vocational training from the Government today, started their efforts to obtain them through the Red Cross Chapter. The Chapter, acting as the disabled man's agent in claims against the Government, informs the man as to the procedure necessary to gain for him that which is provided him by Federal statute. His applications for compensation, medical treatment and training are properly filed with the aid of the Red Cross Chapter.

Many Forms of Assistance

If there is delay before the man's claim is acted upon, the Red Cross Chapter lends the man money to meet the imperative needs of himself and his dependents.

Most vital to the man's gaining full benefit from the Government's care is keeping his mind free from worry about his home. Keeping the veteran's family from hardship of every kind and informing him of its welfare is another province of the Chapter. Free from fear on this score, the man's recovery and advancement usually is rapid.

Every month during the last year, the American Red Cross has given service of one kind or another to an average of 129,215 former service men and their families. An indication of the extent of the faith reposed in the Red Cross Chapter is to be found in the fact that there were 356,544 requests for friendly aid in the solution of personal problems.

448 Workers in Hospitals

While the man prior to entering Government care deals largely with the Chapter, afterward he comes into contact with the service provided by National Headquarters. There are 448 Red Cross workers in the United States Public Health Service and contract hospitals and other institutions in which these men are being cared for, whose duty is to provide for his recreation, help him with his compensation claims, keep him in touch with his family; in short, meeting his every need outside of that provided by the Government. While these are a few of the responsibilities of the National Organization, they are by no means all. Among other Red Cross accomplishments for the year are:

It handled 70,732 allotment and allowance claims.

It delivered through its Chapter organization 63,655 allotment checks to veterans who had moved from the addresses furnished to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

It provided a special fund of $10,000 for medical assistance to men under vocational training.

It made 32,495 loans totaling $450,000 to men taking vocational training, of which 85 per cent has been repaid.

ROUND ABOUT

Peabody's police ambulance attracted much favorable criticism at the Parker Hill hospital last Monday when it was used to convey City Councillor Francis L. Poor to that place. Officials of the hospital declared the Peabody ambulance to be the finest and best equipped ever to appear at the hospital. Later at the state house the ambulance was inspected and again given much commendation. Andrew J. Fyfe was in charge accompanied by police chauffeur Robert Keane.

One of my readers who appears to be familiar with the electric light plant declares that two new boilers are urgently needed and if installed the local plant would be able to furnish all the power needed for some years to come. He declares that Manager King is not being supported as he should by the city government.

Batchelder of Clement avenue is among the candidates who may win the award of the Bauer prizes at the Essex County Agricultural school this month. Graduation day is Nov. 22. The Bauer prize is $100 in gold. Miss Batchelder had a successful season as playground instructor in Salem this past summer.

I have heard many compliments for the George H. Pickering Coal Co. for its outlay on its new office in the Allen block. The new front given to the building makes the office one of the most attractive in Peabody Square. Leonard Pickering, of the concern who is in charge of the Peabody business has become one of Peabody's foremost business men. The Pickering coal yard on Walnut street is one of the best equipped coal depots in the county.

I noticed a crate of live chicks at the station the other day marked Indiana. I couldn't see whether they were going or coming but either way it's a long trip.

Some criticism is voiced this week at the placing of "no parking" signs near the soldiers' monument in Peabody Square. It has long been the custom for auto drivers to park their machines back of the monument while they are eating at the restaurants and no accidents have resulted. It appeared to be a logical place to park.

Rev. Robert A. Bakeman who had charge of the Armistice Day exercises in City Hall deserved the commendation given for the successful program. It was a fine tribute to the Legion men living and dead and the only criticism was in the fact that too few citizens attended. The addresses by both Judge Manning and Rev. Mr. Reid were excellent tributes to the world war veterans.

Dr. S. Chase Tucker was honored last week by being reelected Secretary of the Clinical and Surgical Association of Massachusetts at the annual meeting held in New York City where the members attended clinics at various hospitals. Dr. Frederick E. Jeffrey of Salem formerly resident in Peabody was named a member of the publicity committee.

Miss Anna Sullivan, the new supervisor of music in our public schools well displayed her qualifications for her important work when she led the community singing at the Armistice Day exercises in City Hall. Miss Sullivan is enthusiastic and she put much "pep" into the singing. She struck a responsive chord when she bemoaned the fact that many school children knew popular songs and too few were familiar with the old ones. Miss Sullivan deserves to be very successful in Peabody.

A LINE O' CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs.

WEAKNESS.

I'VE known a human of such strength
That he could hold at fullest length
The full weight of a man, yet he
Was weak as foam upon the sea,
For when by some misfortune stung
He had not strength to hold his tongue,
And with lament and wrathful curse
Made bad enough so much the worse.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

MARCIA.

MARCIA has an ancient origin. In early Rome there was a famous gens of Sabine origin which gave a king to Rome and was called Martius. Martius in turn is said to come from Marcus, a name about which there is much contention among etymologists. However, the consensus of opinion seems to be that it was derived from Mars, the war god, and one of the chief of the old Latin deities.

The daughters of the Martius family were called Marcia. Another spelling was Marsia. Reaching France, the name became Marcie and of late years when Marcia returned to vogue she was used as the feminine of Mark.

Martina is another form of Marcia, the original Martina being one of the young Roman girls who endured the fiery trial of martyrdom under Emperor Decius. For some reason which history does not explain the maiden hair fern became identified with her and its prevalence in Roman gardens and as an ornament to Roman fountains is said to be in her honor.

Her name penetrated Italy, France and even England, where it was used as the feminine of Martin. But it has almost dropped out of usage, Marcia alone surviving.

The cat's-eye is Marcia's talismanic stone and is a charm against evil spirits. It is said to protect her against the treachery of others. Thursday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

HOME HEATING PLANTS.

THE first attempt to heat houses by hot air was probably made by Benjamin Franklin. The first hot-air furnace was built at Worcester, Mass., in 1835. Heating by hot water is of great antiquity, the Romans having used this method in their great baths. In 1777 M. Bounemain proposed this method for heating the hothouses in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris. The first idea of heating by steam was introduced in England in the Eighteenth century by William Cook of Manchester.

SHIPP—MANNIX

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth M., youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Mannix, and Warren L. Shipp, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Shipp, both of this city, took place at the rectory of St. John's church on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, Rev. P. J. Sullivan performing the ceremony. The bride wore a suit of midnight blue broadcloth trimmed with mole skin and an ostrich-trimmed hat of black panne velvet. Her bouquet was of white chrysanthemums. She was attended by Miss Mary L. McCarthy of this city, who was gowned in brown chiffon velvet with peacock blue velvet hat and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The best man was Thomas E. Mannix, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, rear of 24 Northend street, which was attended only by the immediate families. Mrs. Matthew E. Dowdell was in charge of the gift room, where the many beautiful presents received by the couple were on display.

Mr. and Mrs. Shipp have gone on a short trip to Gardiner, Me., and will be at home to friends after December 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fay and family are now occupying their new home on Lowell street.

PEABODY LEATHER PLANTS ARE INTERESTED IN LYNN SHOE PACT

(By ENERGY)

What appears to be either free shops or a reduction in wages, faces the shoe industry in Lynn. The public by this time must know the why's and wherefore's of the controversy over costs of making shoes in this city. The labor to make a pair of shoes in Lynn is said to be about 90 cents. In St. Louis it costs 40 cents a pair. In Lynn all is labor union. In St. Louis free shops. If Lynn is to manufacture shoes, it must meet this problem of labor, and in some manner overcome the difference in costs.

It is said that the workmen of Lynn are more skilled than those in the west. In my opinion they are, therefore in many cases their wages should be more. But shoes are shoes. They sell for so much a pair wholesale, and business being business and going to the fellow who can undersell his competitors, something must be done to produce shoes as cheap as the other fellow. Whatever has been is not the question in Lynn today. It means that labor must cut prices or suffer the loss of the shoe business. Whatever sympathy one might have, whatever names can be given to the westerners who are willing to work for less money, it will not cover the facts, and the fact remains that facts are facts.

—*—

I did not read the article in a Boston paper recently on five dollar shoes. I was told the article dealt with the problem of such a price for shoes, and said it could not be done together with quality. There is something rotten in Denmark and way stations when shoes are offering for $15 a pair. If the retailer can get the public to fall for such a price, it is surely good business. We all know there are people in this world, with more money than sense, who delight to announce they have paid such a price for their shoes. They no doubt think they peeve their friends. I do not know what their husbands think, and in most cases those husbands will not express their opinions openly, particularly if they happen to know shoe and leather costs.

—*—

There is one concern who make shoes only from the best part of a skin, or I will say the center of the skin. The balance is sold to some other fellow who makes a cheaper shoe. There may be others who do the same thing, but I never heard tell of them. Leather cut from that part of the skin looks the money, and the shoe attracts the eye of the big majority who know not why they wear shoes only that other people do. But while those shoes look better, I will venture an opinion that leather taken from other parts of the skin will outwear the chosen few.

—*—

Because I am writing each week a something on leather, my eyes and ears are always primed to get something interesting that I may appear wise. I watch the shoe store windows about the business section, and once in a while see something new under the sun. I note the many new ideas to attract one's pocketbook, and this year there has been more jazz stuff if I may use that phrase, than ever before. White leather and black all in one shoe, and made evidently to copy from the gods of old. They have come dangerously close to the Cleopatra sandal in some cases. Then the wearer of those sandals have come pretty close to imitating Cleo and we have Mark Antony in the roll of paying the bills. That was in war times, but—now fewer Cleos and marks.

—*—

But getting back, there were times when only the southern darkey would think of wearing such a conglomeration of ingenuity. So as the public or at least a part of them wanted the loudest there was, the shoe manufacturer gave it to them. Someone must help the retailer to get rid of those shoes, or ship them south, for the fickle buyers hereabouts will not want them when another change arrives.

—*—

I find from the best authority that the shoe and leather business will continue. Shoes will be made in the future as in the past, of leather and perhaps wooden heels and pancake soles. There will be a right and a left shoe, as now, and in putting them on be careful to pick the right one. It appears many will wear low cut shoes in winter and are thinking of high cut ones next summer. But it makes little difference to the tanner and shoeman, how they do it, just so long as they do. I am told one can pay as high as he cares to for the same shoe, even to $25 each but if our forefathers could visit us, some would receive a lesson more lively than a football game or an attack by Indians, which amounts to the same thing. We would come down to first principles which those husky bucks would make plain to us.

—*—

There is a lull in the business. It does mean that trade has flattened out in some lines only to turn to others. I am told that the present liveliness in patent leather is occasioned by a foreign demand together with prices cut to the extent that profits are nil. There are opportunities to purchase hides at figures which attract even the wounded. But as one of them put to me, I do not know what to make them into. Aye, there's the rub, and if you want to know what is the matter with the leather business, it is that while leather can be made, what to make is the question.

—*—

So keep your courage up if it is not lost, wear the smile of a bar tender, that was, and put an addition on your pockets to make ready for what is coming, for the world still revolves on its axis.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY FOR WINCHESTERS

A surprise birthday gathering was observed last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Winchester, 3 Beckett street whose birthdays occur but one day apart. Mrs. Winchester's birthday came last Saturday, while Mr. Winchester's occurred on Sunday.

The latter day was selected for the double surprise anniversary, that day being the most convenient, upon which to get all the members of the family together, the affair being carried out in a pleasing manner. By 3 o'clock all the members had assembled to offer their congratulations.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Horace Winchester, with Miss Elene, of Danvers; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Withrow with Miss Mildred Elizabeth and Master Harold Blake, of Danvers; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Winchester, with Augusta Edwina and Master Frank Proctor, of Salem. Also, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Larrabee of Beckett street. The latter was sponsor for the successfully planned affair.

Ice cream and fruit punch were served when the birthday cakes were cut, the grandchildren blowing out the candles and carrying them away as souvenirs.

All are looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the Thanksgiving home-coming.

ALIENS ONLY 35 PER CENT OF RESIDENTS

Peabody's claim to having a cosmopolitan population is borne out by the report of the federal census for 1920 which was sent to the Enterprise office this week. According to this report, there were 7095 aliens in Peabody in 1920, representing the following countries: Armenia, 40; Azores, 200; Austria, 46; Canada-French, 213; Canada-other, 563; Czecho-Slovakia, 21; Denmark, 2; England, 216; Finland, 314; France, 14; Germany, 46; Greece, 1305; Ireland, 1222; Italy, 163; Lithuania, 98; Newfoundland, 2; Norway, 21; Poland, 678; Portugal, 318; Russia, 1111; Scotland, 42; Sweden, 34; Syria, 2; all others, 424 (including Spanish, Chinese, Sweden and Bulgaria). Aliens represented 35 per cent. of the population in Peabody in 1920, which was given as 19,665.

West Peabody

George Russell, a resident of West Peabody forty years ago, is in town looking up old acquaintances.

Elmer Grant and Miss Jennie Stevens of Salem spent Sunday with Mrs. Roy Condon on Lowell street.

William Burlingham and son Howard of Marblehead spent the holiday with Mr. Burlingham's father, William Burlingham on Lowell street.

James P. Eaton spent the past week with friends at Wells, Me.

The Misses Eleanor and Louise Jago of Dorchester spent the week-end with Mrs. T. A. Martin of Pine street.

A dance was held Tuesday evening in schoolhouse hall by William Waldron. Potter's orchestra furnished the music.

Miss Ada MacDonald spent Wednesday and Thursday with her brother, Frank MacDonald, in Salem.

Miss Grace Packard spent Thursday with Mrs. Edward E. White of West street.

Mrs. Frank McIntire has been ill at her home the past week on Lowell street.

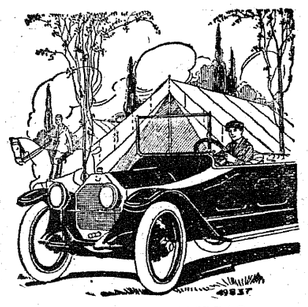
Miss Lizzie Roberts of Lexington was the guest of Mrs. Oscar Goodale of Goodale street the past week.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the Junior Christian Endeavor meeting next Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Miss Mildred Tenney is the leader. Her subject will be "Why Mission Work Is Needed Among the Indians."

The Y. P. S. C. E. will meet Sunday evening at 6.30. Miss Lillian Rankin will be the leader and a very fine meeting is expected.

The first "big social of the season" is to be held tomorrow evening at the West church by the Y. P. S. C. E. The social committee is making big plans and a very fine time is expected. All young people fourteen and over are invited to come. Everyone is asked to "bring some one with them." Don't forget! Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The Peabody chemical had a call to West Peabody last Monday evening to the aid of a burning garage at the New England Sand and Gravel Co. This fire caused the loss of a Ford truck, a Saxon automobile and a motorcycle.



Miss Evelina Martin, who is attending Jackson college, spent the week-end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Martin.

Miss Mildred MacKenzie is spending a two weeks' vacation with her sister, Mrs. Day of Needham.

Charles E. Leach, Ernest Leach, Robert Gallop and Leroy Foster were all members of a successful hunting party last Friday at Rowley. Among the party twelve partridges and one rabbit were shot.

Miss Bernice Hayward and Everett E. White, were among the students of the Boston University who assembled at the Boston Arena, Monday evening to honor Marshal Foch.

The office girls of the National Calfskin Co. have taken up bowling for the winter at the Victor Alleys. In last week's bowling, several strings over 90 were recorded.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL MAKES PLEA FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

the unflinching defender of the people's rights. She alone has taught the rich their duty to the poor, the divine authority of law, the personal responsibility of every man. Today she condemns the cruel arrogance of wealth and power; tomorrow with voice no less authoritative she condemns mob law and mob violence. If she espouses the cause of the poor it is only on condition that right is with them. She is no truckler to majorities, no mere timeserver. She can lose and wait. Time and the all-prevailing justice of God is her vindication. She protects the state and the trampled rights of the minority when right and justice are on their side. She faces with unflinching courage both the unjust violence of mobs and of kings.

She has defended and ever will defend rights inalienable to men, such as the right to live, to be educated, to enjoy liberty, to labor, to rest with recreation, to worship God. These rights spring from the very nature of man himself. They are not concessions from the state or from society. Under no condition can man be deprived of these rights. They are personal, inalienable, inborn. It is true that these rights carry with them corresponding obligations and duties, chief of which is the duty to work.

Labor a Blessing

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." "If any man will not work, neither let him eat." There is no place in the modern world or in society for the idle. Activity of either production or service is obligatory on all. This is an obligation which springs from the need of society, but even more so from the need of the individual. Work is our protection against moral, intellectual and physical atrophy. The rich man is not freed from this obligation. He is released from the common burdens, but by this very fact, he is the more obliged to serve society.

However ,we must not look upon labor as merely the expenditure of muscular or intellectual energy, or as a commodity to be bought and sold. There is a moral element which must be considered. Man is not an irresponsible machine. He has intellect and free will—an immortal soul. He is personally responsible for his acts.

Even before the fall of man, "the Lord God took man and put him into a paradise of pleasure to dress it and to keep it." With the fall of man the rich fertility of the earth was gone. "Cursed is the earth in thy work, in labor and toil shalt thou labor all the days of thy life." But the true man still finds, even in irksome toil, some traces of that primitive joy which filled the heart of man as he labored in the garden of Paradise.

To till the earth, and subdue it, and rule it, was part of God's first commandment to men. Without labor the earth would be wild and uncultivated. Without labor there would be no progress in civilization. Christianity has sanctified labor. To the pagan, a laborer was a slave. To the Christian, he is a son of God. St. Peter was a fisherman, St, Paul was a tentmaker. Indeed, labor is the university in which all men are trained. We learn obedience, self-sacrifice, patience, fortitude, and oftentimes humility when we compare our work with that of our fellow workmen. The good workman, when treated as he should be treated, is happy in his work.

To enjoy work, however, man must be maintained in a state of physical efficiency. Suitable wages are necessary that he may have food, clothing, shelter and recreation. Demands on endurance must be reasonable. Working conditions should be pleasant and healthful as far as possible. The workman thus treated should be honest, subordinate, devoted to the interests of his employer, and considerate of his associates. He should be conscious that he is carrying out the divine command to labor. If society is to be improved, the worker must do his part. The Church is not afraid to demand that the laborer fulfill his rightful obligations. He should be honest in his labor. Just agreements made with the employer should be faithfully kept. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." The worker should safeguard the property of the employer as if it were his own. He should make the interest of the firm his interest. He should be reasonable in disputes and urge his claims in a fair and just way.

The Duty of Employers

We have counseled workers to be just and charitable. We preach the same commandments of Christ to employers. We would even urge them to do more than justice demands and to emulate the charity of Christ and His Apostles which knew no limit or bound. As an obligation, not of charity, but of strict justice, in which if they fail they will be answerable to God, if not to men, the employers should see to it that of their profits a fair amount is set apart for the wage of their workingmen, that they, too, may live and may support their families. Employers should be faithful to the just agreements which they have made. Let them remember that before God, who is no respecter of persons, all men are equal. Let them see the image of God in the workingman for God has created every man to His own image and likeness. Let them have regard for the dignity of the workman, his right to health, to safety and to recreation, that he may restore the energy expended in toil. Let them see to it that ample time is given not only for requisite recreation but for the due performance of civil, domestic and religious duties.

The evils and abuses of the present industrial system cannot be too strongly deplored. The aloofness of the employer from the worker, the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, the oppression of the worker, are abuses which, while not universal, are still altogether too common. Stories of excessive profits and low wages, of heartless dismissals, of inhuman disregard of labor, are a disgrace to our democratic state. Happily, there are exceptions. Some industries are conducted in a manner which reflects credit on capital. Health, morals, culture, and the economic prosperity of the workers are regarded. These exceptions make us realize that what is needed is transformation of men and methods. Greed and avarice must be checked whenever possible. Living in society and thriving on society, the social responsibility of the wealthy is self-evident. When, however, capital is obdurate in its evil ways, and abuses its strength, there is only one refuge left to the oppressed, and that refuge is Organization.

Workers' Rights

The right of men to organize is a natural, inalienable right. Capital enjoys it and justly. Labor enjoys it and justly. It is manifestly unjust for capital to vindicate its own right to organize and to deny the same right to workers. Nor can the State, which is founded to maintain and guard the interests of the individual and the family, invade these rights. This is one of the points in which Catholicity differs sharply from Socialism which unduly exalts the rights of the state and gives it supreme jurisdiction over the natural rights of the individual and of the family.

In the Middle Ages, guilds of workers flourished for centuries in Catholic Europe. These great medieval trade unions were suppressed after the Reformation in England and France, and it is only within the last century that labor has forced its right to recognition upon the modern state. The modern state has been loathe to recognize the natural right of labor to organize, a right which no state can justly contravene, a right which the Church has always defended.

Of such associations, Leo XIII says: "It were greatly desired that they should become more numerous and more efficient. They exsist of their own right .... They cannot be prohibited," and he defines their purpose "to help the individual to better his condition to the utmost." Labor unions, then, exist to protect the weak against the strong, to help the employee in collective bargaining, to defend the interests of the worker against the aggression of powerful and organized capital. Strong and well-conducted unions generally see to it that agreements are kept.

The hostility to employers, the tendency to drift toward radicalism or into harmful political activity, the fostering of useless strikes, the limiting of output, the demand for wages independently of merit and skill, are evils incidental to unionism but not necessary. The more intelligent and better disposed trade unionists greatly deplore these abuses and earnestly seek to remedy them. They are striving to establish industrial peace.

However, until due recognition and help come to the worker from state or employer, he will be justified by self defense in resorting to strikes. It is a natural right of man to give or withhold his labor. It is man's defense against injury and oppression. Man's right to strike is then a natural right.

The Strike

A strike can be just and may be necessary. A strike is not war, save figuratively, but like war it should be considered a last resort. Workmen should think, long and earnestly before using this weapon. They must see to it that the strike is just; that fellow workmen are not intimidated by their action; that no just contract is violated; they must weigh well the chance of success; they must ask themselves if their prospective gain will compensate for the suffering and loss inflicted on themselves, their family, and the public at large.

Experience shows that a large number of strikes have failed and failure has often been disastrous to the worker and has always lowered the prestige of the union. Partial failures have ended in compromise which might often have been reached by arbitration without the bitterness of conflict. When moral principles are not involved expediency may be consulted and, even though there be cause for the strike, public sentiment or necessity may make action inopportune and seriously endanger the chances of success. Wise counsel and prudence, exercised recently in the calling off of the threatened railway strike, should then prevail. Even victory at times does not compensate for losses sustained in conflict. The strike, like war, can be justified, but, like war, it is the court of last appeal.

The state has the right to suppress a civil war, but a strike should never be civil war. Sometimes incidental to a strike, but not at all necessary, and greatly to be deplored by true friends of labor, are intimidation, disorder, riot and violence. A strike of itself does not imply any disturbance of the peace. The state should always maintain discipline and order but the state has no right to prohibit a just strike. That is a natural right of man. It is man's natural defense. It existed prior to the state itself, and is a right which no society can annul.

Strikes are called more frequently on account of failure to pay a just wage than for any other reason. If employers would recognize man's right to a just wage, another great milestone of progress toward industrial peace would be passed. "Remuneration ought to be sufficient to support a frugal and well-behaved wage earner." There should be enough for the worker and his family to live in decent comfort. There is plenty to go around in this rich country of ours and where the just wage, which often ought to be more than a living wage, is not granted by obdurate employers, the moral law of natural justice should be enforced.

With a just wage secured, workers in America could well learn from workers in Europe habits of thrift and frugality. The sinful extravagance of some workers is to be condemned. Extravagance is just as sinful on the part of the rich, not economically but morally. It breeds cupidity, class hatred, and envy on the part of the less fortunate. It is courting disaster. Inordinate attachment to pleasure, abnormal and unprecedented craving for showy luxury is out of keeping with Christian civilization and with American ideals of simplicity of life.

Christianity's idea of wealth is stewardship. Life is short. No man can take wealth with him. The rich man is bound by the obligations of charity and service—"the poor you have always with you." Even with no poverty, extravagance would be wrong. "It is lawful for a man to hold private property,' says St. Thomas, but he also says: "Man should not consider his outward possessions as his own, but as common to all, so as to share them without hesitation when others are in need." "Blessed is the rich man that is found without blemish: and that hath not gone after gold, nor put his trust in money nor in treasures."

Justice and Charity

Religious ideals, then, which alone will bring lasting peace in industrial relations are the ideals of Jesus Christ—Justice and Charity. Justice alone is not sufficient. Justice looks to order and peace, but a world ruled by Justice alone with its rigid standards would be a cold world. "Above all things have charity, which is the bond of perfection and let the peace of Christ rejoice in your hearts." Christian charity is not almsgiving. It is unselfish love. It is not mere philanthropy or humanitarianism. These can never take the place of true charity. "And if I should deliver all my goods to feed the poor and if I should deliver my body to be burnt, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."

Charity sees Christ in every man. "As long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to me." Charity is the characteristic and distinguishing mark of the Christian. "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, if you have love one for another." It springs not from mercy but from love; not from the pity with which men regard inferiors, but from the noble Christian sentiment that we are all brothers in Christ.

Our Duty

Obeying the divine command to preach Christ, we exhort all to enter upon this holy crusade to establish the reign of Christian Justice and Charity in the industrial world; to make every effort for a lasting peace. We exhort Catholic employers and employees to avoid extremists and disturbers; to be loyal adherents of the Church; to follow faithfully her teachings, that human passions being laid aside, the Prince of Peace may reign over a tranquil and contented people.

We solemnly charge those having the care of souls to instruct the people on the true religious ideals in industrial relations; to teach that peace and contentment rather than silver and gold are the richest possessions of life; to point out that religious ideals give the only true and lasting foundation of peace and happiness here and hereafter. Let them announce fearlessly to the rich the duties of their state and the responsibility of their stewardship. Let them courageously stand, as the Church has ever stood, defenders of the poor, the weak, and the oppressed.

We appeal to the Justice and Charity of the American people to take up this work of Christ—the restoration of peace and confidence in the industrial world today. Let America, a true republic, lead in this work and by the force of its just and charitable public sentiment give an example of practical Christianity to the world—that all men may know that this government of the people, by the people, and for the people respects the rights of God and man, and consequently will not perish from the earth.

A PATHETIC CASE

EIGHT YEAR OLD BOY LEFT IN AWFUL CONDITION BY THE 'FLU.' COUGHED FOR A YEAR. HAD TO SPEND NIGHTS IN A CHAIR. COULD NOT SLEEP. PARENTS ABOUT GAVE UP HOPE.

WHAT CERIZANE DID FOR HIM—THE FOLLOWING FROM A LETTER WRITTEN BY A GRATEFUL FATHER IS DESERVING OF THE ATTENTION OF ALL PARENTS.

"In 1919 my son, Camille Renaud, was a victim of the 'Flu.' He was eight years old at the time of his sickness, and was very ill. After the Flu left him, he still had a bad cough, and instead of getting better, it grew worse all the time."

So writes Mr. Arthur Renaud, 164 Oak St., Blackstone, Mass.

"Medicine prescribed by doctors and cough medicines that friends recommended did not help. The child could not sleep because it was impossible for him to lie down without choking, so that he had to sit in a chair all night. Most all our friends believed that he would never get well, and many that he would not live much longer. This awful condition lasted for over a year. Then it was suggested that we try Cerizane. I did not have much hope, but was willing to do anything that could possibly help our son. At the time we commenced Cerizane, the coughing was so severe that it seemed that each spell would choke him, but the very first bottle of Cerizane brought relief. After four bottles had been used, the cough and pain were entirely stopped, and our son commenced to gain in strength and flesh. Now he is well again, and we believe that Cerizane saved his life."

Cerizane Balsam has been successfully used for 75 years for the relief of all sorts of coughs, hoarseness, sore throat, chest pains and other forms of suffering caused by colds.

Any obliging druggist will supply you with Cerizane. The following will do it gladly: A. F. French.

J. O. Ballentine Bags 2 Bears

John O. Ballentine, real estate dealer and contractor secured a deer and two bears in Bear Mountain not far from his summer bungalow at Jackson, N. H., last week when he was host for a part of nine clergymen. The party comprised Rev. J. E. Coons, Lynn district superintendent of Malden; Rev. O. E. Poland, First church, Waltham; Rev. E. R. Myers, Mt. Pelligham church, Chelsea; Rev. M. S. James, Revere; Rev. Adolph Lyngfeld, Boston University, Boston; Rev. Chas. Jeffras, Lafayette street, Salem; Rev. R. M. Pierce, Greenwood Memorial, Dorchester; David L. Martin, Dorchester; Rev. I. F. Lusk, Peabody.

Delicacies That Do Not Travel.

Least appreciated, relatively to their gastronomical merits, are the soft-shelled turtles, native of the large streams and lakes. They are hardly inferior to the diamond back terrapin, but are seldom seen in the markets for two reasons—because they do not ship well and because local demand, where they are caught, uses up the supply. They are home-consumption delicacies, like the honey banana, the emerald-gem muskmelon and the fall pippin apple—too good for the ordinary market and sure to lose their original flavor in passing through the hands of the middleman.

Wisdom Lies in Correction.

Don't make too much of the faults and findings of those around you; even be good to yourself, and don't harry yourself over your own blunders and mistakes.—Ada C. Sweet.

The condition of Miss Grace W. Cook teacher at the Wallis school who was operated on at the Deaconess hospital, Boston, is reported as much improved and her early return to her school duties is anticipated.

Miss Flaherty Aids Veterans For Red Cross

Miss Mae E. Flaherty, executive secretary of Home Service for the local branch of the Red Cross was appointed by the Essex County Chapter to assist the "Clean-up Squad" of the Veterans' Bureau in Salem on Monday and Tuesday.

During the past year, the local branch has given financial aid to more than thirty-five families, to some of these through several months of unemployment. The work for disabled veterans will still continue, and the taking on of additional activities by the branch will depend upon the cooperation of citizens in rendering service, and in receiving membership in the Red Cross.

JUSTICE SERVICE CO-OPERATION

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

The readjustment of Industry
Wage reductions

In this series of "Little Talks" we have endeavored to show that our exchange of money and of goods between man and man must be in balance, or, distress and unemployment will surely result. The prices of goods must be such that the farmer can exchange a bushel of wheat or a load of wood for the same amount of goods that he did before the war, in order to buy our shoes, clothing and other supplies. The farmer has not been able to do this for the past year or more and the whole country has tried to get prices of goods low enough to tempt the farmer to buy.

Almost the whole cost of manufactured goods is made up of wages. When the farmer buys anything he is paying 80% of the price for wages; the other 20% pays taxes, upkeep and profits. These wages go to the men who produce the raw material from forest or mine or field; to the men who transport this to the mill or factory; to the factory workers and to the people who sell the goods. Eighty cents out of every dollar.

When all these wages are high the farmer simply cannot buy and therefore all over the country wages are lower because factories are closed and the workers prefer to work for smaller wages than not to work at all. In one factory in Peabody two weeks ago the leather workers requested the manufacturer to pay them lower wages rather than close the factory, for they knew he had been losing money steadily for the past seven months and he must either sell his leather at a less price or go out of business.

All over the land this lowering of wages is going on; it is called an "Industrial Readjustment of Values". Nothing can stop it for the people are determined to have goods at a lower price. Everywhere they are crying out for a $5.00 shoe and a $25.00 suit of clothes. The shoe workers do not like this; neither do the garment makers; they are trying to prevent it by combinations, threats of strike and various other methods; but, it is like trying to stop the tide in the Atlantic Ocean. The great buying public is adjusting prices to agree with the Economic Law which is the law of the greatest good to the greatest number.

In this gradual pressure of lowering prices which has been going on since last January, the Massachusetts Leather Manufacturers Association has endeavored to keep the wages above the general level. After the reduction of May first they told their employees that wages would not be reduced before September and very naturally the workers expected a reduction on that date. The time passed and no cut occurred as the manufacturers found they could still meet prices although not a single one was doing more than clearing expenses and many were not doing that. Meantime other manufacturers outside the Association cut their wages,—in some instances very much indeed,—because the men who were out of work were willing to accept almost any wages at all.

October first came and again the working men and women looked for a notice of reduction, but in the October meeting of the Association man after man stated he was not making his expenses and yet he didn't feel it was fair to reduce wages until the time came when he must go to his men and say to them "Boys, I have to close the factory or you must help me out," but that month was passed and still no wage reduction.

The time has come when the leather workers of Peabody and the towns and cities nearby, are called upon to cooperate in keeping our factories open, by accepting a reduction in their pay. It is not pleasant or agreeable to look for a smaller weekly income just as winter is upon us and many think that a greater reduction should have been made last May. It is very doubtful if such a course would have saved the situation; the buying public would still have demanded a cheaper leather.

There is this much comfort in the present situation. The wage cut does not reduce wages to as low a scale as some manufacturers are now paying and not nearly so low as the wages paid in the West. The Western leather is sold at a lower price than our leather and this price must be met or our factories must go out of business. Still we can afford to pay higher wages here because we seem to be able to either produce more or to make a better quality.

The people are demanding cheaper shoes. We are all of us trying to satisfy this demand of the public.

directors of the American City Bureau and represents the New England district and Canada. As a general rule, Mr. Buddy will only give his personal service along these lines to the larger cities. Mr. Buddy is assisted in this work by Samuel Godfrey, who will take care of the office work.

The American City Bureau is an old established organization of high reputation that has specialized in Chamber of Commerce work for ten years, and has given service to a large number of cities throughout New England and nearly 400 cities throughout the United States. A number of cities in Massachusetts have had the benefit of this service and the results have been successful. Among these are Beverly, Gardner, Greenfield, Westfield, Webster-Dudley, Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River, Holyoke, Pittsfield, Great Barrington, North Hampton. Mr. Buddy has recently conducted campaigns in Newburyport, where 620 members were secured, and Gloucester, which resulted in over 700 members.

The movement is already gathering impetus and the campaign organization for the present program is developing rapidly. An executive committee of representative citizens will start with daily meetings as an advisory group on Monday, the 21st.

With the splendid spirit that has always been shown in Peabody previously in connection with other city-wide movements, the success of this activity is assured, and as a result Peabody will have a well-manned, well-financed, central organization that will be worthy of our city and equal to any city of its size in the state.

Mr. Buddy, the campaign director, has visited Peabody a number of times in the past and comes with the genuine interest and enthusiasm for the work to be done here. He expressed himself as being confident to the people of Peabody, and will develop the same interest and co-operation in this movement which has resulted so successfully in many other cities throughout New England.

As is the case with these cities they have fundamental features and methods, such as a standard rate for dues which is now involved in over 90 per cent. of the vital organizations of the United States. The organization will be made essentially democratic in all its features, that is to say it will be controlled by the membership. To this end, the members will decide the important policies of the organization by definite suggestions which will develop a program of work; they will nominate and elect the directors, and a large proportion of the membership will continually be active on special committees for carrying out the planks of the program of work.

Many other cities in our State and throughout all New England are progressing under a Chamber of Commerce operated on similar lines. Peabody possesses as fine a spirit as any other city in New England. It needs only an awakening. Our citizens, I believe, need only to realize their responsibility for cooperative service, for the upbuilding of the community, and an understanding that practically anything can be accomplished in the way of perfecting present institutions and the launching of new movements by team work through a well-organized, central body of people as the expanded Chamber of Commerce will be. Many other cities are accomplishing big things and developing a fine spirit because their eyes are set to the future and their people have experienced the joys of rendering unselfish service for the common good.

Peabody is your home—it is ours. Together we can make the Chamber of Commerce an incalculable power in the city's upbuilding.

I have accepted the responsibility of this work in the firm belief that throughout this immediate expansion movement we will have the strong co-operation of all our citizens who have the welfare of Peabody at heart.

Mayor Asks Citizens' Aid

Following a conference with Mayor William A. Shea yesterday the result of which was his hearty acceptance of the position of General Chairman of the Executive Committee conducting the Chamber of Commerce expansion movement, Mayor Shea made this statement:

"I belive strongly that the time is at hand when the men in the business, professional and industrial life of Peabody, as well as the women, should get together in a strong, concerted, central organization to advance the civic, commercial and industrial welfare of Peabody to a degress that has not been possible because of membership and income in the past.

Grange Elects New Officers

The regular meeting of Peabody Grange No. 332 was held last evening at their hall on Main street, at which it was voted to contribute $25 toward the South Carolina fund for the high school boys.

After the business of the evening the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Worthy master, Rev. N. C. Bartlett; overseer, Leonard Ives; steward, G. Percy Watkins; lecturer, Mrs. Susie Ferguson; assistant steward, R. H. Upton; lady assistant steward, Alice G. Pyne; chaplain, Mrs. Ricker; treasurer, William Watkins; secretary, Miss Clara Beckett; gatekeeper, Otis Brown; series, Mrs. William Coffin; Pomona, Charles Wells; Flora, Mrs. Henry Lord.

Mrs. Chester Bent entertained a number of friends at a whist party held at her home last Tuesday evening.

Mrs. William Noonan of Franklin street has returned from the J. B. Thomas hospital.

Clarence W. Barnes' fortune followed him from the polls to Pushard's on election day where his opponent of the day drew his number from among sixty-six and he became owner of a toilet set offered by the popular druggist.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Ingraham were guests at the reception and banquet to Marshal Foch at the Copley-Plaza last Monday evening.

Miss Elizabeth Lummus is confined to her home with tonsilitis.

Miss Pauline Lawton entertained a number of friends at a party held at her home on Thursday evening.

The extra tooting of the fire alarm whistle which so annoys the residents in its vicinity is distinctly on the increase and its additional morning blasts have been extended over into the evening late.

Nancy Barnes spent the holidays with friends in Swampscott.

Elmer B. Thomas who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Salem hospital is so far recovered that he will be discharged from that institution tomorrow. Mr. Thomas and family plan to leave Boston in about three weeks for a winter in California.

The Woman's Association of the South Congregational church will conduct a lobster salad and cold meat supper in the church vestry Wednesday evening December 7 next. Tickets are now on sale.

Miss Dorothy MacCharles entertained Dorothy Penniman formerly of Peabody over the week-end.

Owing to the absence of Ruth Farrington her group of camp fire girls were entertained last Wednesday evening by Mrs. N. P. Elwell at her home on Franklin street.

Group I Girl Scouts of which Mrs. Geo. H. Howes is captain have formed two teams for basket-ball and play each Wednesday at the Community House gymnasium under the direction of Ruth Batchelder.

Miss Mildred Orton bookkeeper at the Hamblet Hardware Co. underwent a series of operations this week at the J. B. Thomas hospital and is reported to be as comfortable as might be expected.

Elliot L. Macdonald is scheduled to give his southern travel talk at the Peabody Club on the evening of December 10. It will be illustrated by about two hundred attractive slides made from pictures taken almost entirely by members of his party and is sure to prove one of the most interesting evenings of the winter season at the club.

Mayor Shea, James F. Ingraham and Raymond E. Porter attended the banquet to Marshal Foch in Boston Monday.

PERSONAL

George L. Swan will spend the next few weeks at the home of his parents on Lynn street. He is one of the engineers of the committee of engineering standards of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, now surveying the city of Salem as to its fire fighting facilities, and the conflagration hazard.

Each of the three engineers has a particular branch of the survey, that of Mr. Swan being the fire department and fire alarm system.

Mr. Swan plans to make an official investigation of the new Peabody fire alarm system in the near future.

C. of C. Directors Resign To Help New Program For Expansion

The entire board of directors and officers of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce have submitted their resignations to become effective as soon as their successors have been elected, and have qualified. This action was friendly, and taken in order to facilitate the expansion of the Chamber. They have issued the following statement:

We, the undersigned members of the board of directors and officers of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce have tendered our resignations as an evidence of our sincere desire to aid in every possible manner in the expansion of the Chamber of Commerce along lines which have been found by actual experience in other cities to work with the utmost satisfaction. These resignations are to become effective when a new board of directors and officers shall have been selected and a majority have accepted and qualified for such positions.

"In recent years Chambers of Commerce throughout the United States have become more and more the recognized units through which communities may express themselves in matters pertaining to their development along civic, commercial and industrial lines. Broader vision and unselfish service have thrust aside former narrow, selfish purposes, and organizations have been established on principles which have justified the expenditure of time, talent and financial backing by men and women in various walks of life.

"A campaign has been undertaken for the expansion of the Chamber of Commerce to make it a body truly representative of the civic and commercial interests of Peabody, to increase its financial strength to the point where it may be able to accom-

HOLDS DULLEA BLAMELESS IN NOT KILLING DOG

Mr. Penniman,
Peabody Enterprise:

I wish to make clear that Officer Dullea is not to blame for that maimed dog laying for 26 hours suffering from a pair of disabled legs near hose five. I saw the whole thing, after the car hit the dog he rushed down towards a swamp and headed for home. I told officer Dullea I would put him out of the way as soon as he came home. When I came home and saw the dog was not there I went back and looked all over the swamp but found no trace of him. I thought he must have died on the way home. I should think some of those people who hollered at the officer to shoot him would have tried to locate the dog so he could put him out of the way, and do less talking about it.

R. L. Smallwood,
Overlea.

WOUNDED VETS ENTERTAINED IN PEABODY HOMES

Forty-three wounded and gassed veterans from the Chelsea naval hospital brightened the homes of nearly as many Peabody families yesterday as Thanksgiving dinner guests, and later were given a fine entertainment at the hands of the American Legion Post of this city. It was a happy day for the visiting veterans of the World War, but a far happier one for the families who entertained and for the Legion boys and Ladies' Auxiliary who provided the day's program.

Several families who had volunteered to take one or more disabled veterans in their homes for the holiday dinner were disappointed in not having the privilege of entertaining a veteran. There were far more offers as hosts than the number of men who came and the Legion committee is extremely sorry that it caused disappointment.

Following the dinner at the homes the visitors were returned to the Legion rooms, where an interesting pro-

The first get-together meeting in connection with the present movement for the expansion of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday evening, Nov. 28, in Odd Fellows' hall. Congressman Begg of Indiana will be the principal speaker.

Invitations to the citizens to attend the meeting make the following announcement of the objective:

"The new movement for united effort on the part of all our citizens for the developing of a Chamber of Commerce that will enlist the active interest of a large membership, is gathering momentum every day.

"This means the development of a new spirit in Peabody. That it is the most vital community enterprise that Peabody has ever undertaken will be increasingly recognized.

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE MEETING

There will be a meeting of the citizens' committee of 36 in the Council chamber of City Hall this afternoon at 5 o'clock. This will be a very important meeting and every member of the committee is urged to be present. An invitation has been extended by W. F. BURGLARS LOOTED FARRINGTON HOME AT HAMPTON BEACH

An insurance man who sells burglary insurance is probably covered against burglary. If this supposition is correct it may be presumed that George C. Farrington suffered no material loss when thieves entered his summer home at Hampton, N. H., and removed almost every thing of value. Since the season had closed it has been discovered that the house was demantled of practically every personal belonging, silver, linen, wearing apparel, including gifts upon which Ruth Farrington had spent hours of work during the summer for gifts for her personal friends. The looting of the Farrington cottage was only exceeded by the complete cleaning out of summer homes in the immediate vicinity, where even the furniture was carried away.

'Energy' Not For Lower Wages To Reduce Production Costs

(By ENERGY)

The all absorbing topic in the shoe and leather business today is cost of production. I have frequently of late written and written about costs. I have quoted from undisputed authority of the lower costs of labor throughout the shoe and leather centers in the west. I have hammered these facts as best I could to show that we of New England must meet the western prices, or let the business get away.

It is not that I favor cuts in wages, for it is my belief that good wages are the best for the country. But there is but one way of looking at situations of this kind and that is squarely in the face. We must not let our sympathy get the better of what is. So at last a movement is gaining momentum that we of New England must take our medicine. Lower wages must rule and it shows conclusively that the sentiment favors accepting a reduction.

In Lynn recently, a 20 per cent. reduction is favored by the unions. They also ask that the books of the bosses be open for inspection, which as a matter of course will be denied. But having accepted a cut, the union workmen have paved the way for the shoe business to start in Lynn. Many factory owners in that city have moved their business elsewhere because of the labor troubles, and such manufacturers will no doubt stay away. In Derry, N. H., there are three large shoe factories, which had been located in cities where shoe manufacturing specialized. They moved to this country New Hampshire town and are doing a large business. One at least makes 9000 pairs of shoes daily and the others are not far behind. The Walton company have a shoe factory in Lynn as well as Derry, and Lynn has lost to Derry. There are scores of such cases. I have been told that many of the large plants scattered throughout Massachusetts are making shoes for Endicott Johnson Co. and the International Shoe Co. It would appear that these two concerns are today doing the principal shoe business of the country. It would appear that such mammoth corporations will be an injury to the business, but what can be done about it?

The American Hide and Leather Co. formed a big combine years ago to try and capture the leather business. The Central Leather Co. did the same trick in sole leather. It never did prevent small fellows from doing business, in fact it held the umbrella over them and kept prices of raw material from the violent fluctuations that had previously occurred. So why will not the same thing occur in the shoe industry?

It may be that overhead charges can be better handled in the future than has been past experience. Most of the large corporations have been troubled with the ever increasing overhead. I am inclined to think that this overhead matter has been eliminated by Endicott Johnson to a large extent. Their system is different than most of the others I am told. Their counting room contains few clerks as compared with others I could mention.

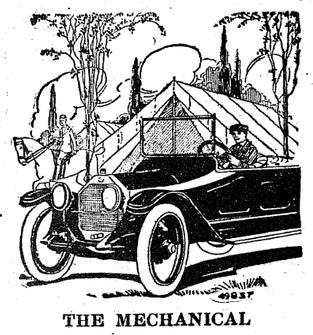
So if manufacturing costs can be brought down by the big fellows on a plane with the small chap, the distinct advantage of buying in large quantities, everything needed to make shoes, gives them the whip hand. That new ideas have been injected into large corporations as to management is true. A study of overhead charges has been going on as never before. No one cared a rap in war times about such small matters, but the last two years has changed that feeling, and everything pertaining to manufacturing costs has been hashed and rehashed, with the result that office help is far less in numbers, and many fool ways of proving accounts that have been proven so many times as to be groggy, are now back numbers, as they should have been before started.

The low prices of raw stock have tempted many to purchase hides, sheep in the pickle, calfskins and in fact all skins which suit their purposes. Leather from these skins can be produced at prices which would make war prices look like a bout with Jack Dempsey. This low level has stimulated buying to a considerable extent, and it must be that all high priced stock has been charged off, and losses taken. Being on this new level, it would indicate business on a paying basis. Not such a paying basis as during war times, but normal. It seems to me that manufacturers as well as labor have now come down to pre-war basis, which naturally comes hard, but like taxes, sure.

Hides of the late summer and fall take-off are the bets of the year. If business was shaped so as to know what to manufacture, these hides would be purchased and stored for future use. But there is still an uncertainty as to what is to be, therefore all hesitate.

The National Calfskin Co. have arranged to install a special pump at their new well on Walnut street. Quick sand was the stumbling block, and the new pump is expected to cover the difficulty. Believing that Peabody will face a water shortage when a dry season comes, this corporation is preparing for it.

The sewer is attracting attention from many manufacturesr, all striving to better existing conditions, even if they are acceptable to the authorities. If the money spent to better sewer conditions was figured up, it would send all the kids in Peabody to the football game in the sunny south next month.



Eglee Urges Square Deal For Employes

Charles H. Eglee, industrial counselor, gave an unusually strong address before the Rotary Club of this city last Tuesday noon, in which he called on employers to get the viewpoint of their employes and to cultivate a more friendly feeling toward the actual producer. He decried the common habit of "feeding the employes too much candy" when they needed something more practical by way of friendly concern.

He recounted an incident which occurred in a nearby factory where he talked with a machine operator who of alien parentage was startled when he found himself in a conversation with some official of the plant. It was drawn out that while this man had been working at a machine for the past five years, it was the first time that anyone had asked him about his family and home conditions.

The incident, Mr. Eglee advanced as typical of the need of a new endeavor on the part of the employers to know better the men they employ and to emulate the trinity of "justice, cooperation and a square deal." He called on employers to post in a conspicuous place the triangle sign carrying these three cardinal principles.

Mr. Eglee was invited to speak before the Lynn Rotary Club at an early meeting following his talk here. Henry Pelton, one of the directors of the Lynn Rotary Club, extended the invitation after hearing Mr. Eglee.

ADVANCED ACCOUNTING CLASS

A class is being formed in "Principles of Accounting" under the direction of the State University Extension Course, and is open to all who are qualified to attend.

This course deals in advanced accounting and all students must have had Bookkeeping or Elementary Accounting in order to be eligible to enroll. Class will be held one evening a week for an hour and one half's duration in a central location and the fee is exceptionally reasonable due to the support given this department by the State.

Anyone who is interested should at once get in touch with Mr. Weaver of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. or Mr. Conroy of the National Calfskin Co.

Graphite.

Down to 1850 graphite was obtained chiefly from the Borrowdale mine in Cumberland, England. Since then a supply has been drawn from eastern Siberia; from Ticonderoga, New York state; Buckingham, Quebec; and Bohemia. Graphite is also produced in Ceylon, and Madagascar. Artificial graphite is also being manufactured.

Ethel Clayton Headliner At Strand Tonight

Ethel Clayton's new picture, "Wealth," which is adapted from Cosmo Hamilton's popular story, "The Almighty Dollar," will be the main attraction on the program the Strand will offer for today and Saturday. It is based upon the idea that wealth is indeed a curse when it removes the incentive for creative work. The principal figure is Mary MacLeod, a Greenwich village artist. At an entertainment she becomes acquainted with a young millionaire named Phillip Dominick, who is noted for his daring exploits. Weeks later Mary is aboard a train enroute for home when she discovers the loss of her pocketbook. Dominick, also a passenger, gives up his drawing room for the night and retires to the smoker. From this beginning a romance develops between the two characters, which is not sanctioned by the young millionaire's mother, who is determined to marry her son to a wealthy society girl. The couple marry, however, and the young bride is soon disappointed at the parasitic condition of her new life. The conclusion is highly dramatic and the acting of the husband, played by Herbert Rawlinson, is worthy of much praise. Miss Clayton is noted for the superiority of her gowns, but in no previous picture has she worn costumes as stunning as those which she displays in "Wealth." They constitute a veritable display of the latest Parisian fashions and every woman admirer of Miss Clayton will relish the showing. In addition to the feature a Clyde Cook comedy entitled "The Sailor" and "The Blue Fox" will be presented. Clyde Cook's comedy is unusually funny.

In "Through the Back Door," Mary Pickford's current release, this clever little artist is afforded an opportunity for the display of talent equalled only in such previous productions as "Daddy Long Legs" and "Pollyanna." Arrangements have been completed by Manager Chet Bent to show this production for three days, starting Sunday evening.

It is the first picture in which little Mary ever worked under the guidance of two directors. Alfred E. Green and Mary's brother Jack sponsored this production and the result of their combined efforts is said to prove conclusively the old adage, "Two heads are better than one."

The outstanding feature of "Through the Back Door" is the delightful comedy sequences scattered throughout the picture. In a little girl role Miss Pickford has a chance to become involved in innumerable complications all productive of mirth, yet touched with that pathos which stamps this greatest of all ingenues as mistress of her art.

In addition to the clean, wholesome fun with which this feature abounds, there is found running thru it a counter-plot of gripping drama in which filial devotion becomes a dominant factor. The picture opens in picturesque Belgium, then jumps to Long Island and closes in business-like New York.

Next Tuesday evening a benefit for the Boy Scouts will be given at the Strand under the auspices of the Peabody Rotary Club. Mary Pickford's picture and an entertainment by the Scouts will be the features of the program which is given to secure funds with which to outfit two more troops of Scouts in this city.

Benefit Show At Strand For 40 Boy Scouts

In its efforts to equip 40 Boy Scouts at the Community House with uniforms, the Peabody Rotary Club, through its boy work committee, will present a fine entertainment at the Strand theatre next Tuesday night, Nov. 2. In addition to one of Mary Pickford's latest films, there will be an exhibition of athletic stunts by the boys who are anxious to become Scouts.

Dr. S. Chase Tucker, chairman of the boys' work committee, has had the assistance of his committee in the project and the sale of tickets has been especially gratifying.

The proceeds from the entertainment will be used to buy uniforms and other equipment needed and to pay for the services of a scout master. The boys are organized but without uniforms. Two troops will be equipped as a result of this project.

High School Notes

One of the new and welcome features of the new high school building is the library on the third floor at the front of the building. The room is very attractive, and will doubtless be used extensively by the pupils in the future.

Gov. Cox has urged that the students in the colleges and high schools of Massachusetts follow carefully the proceedings of the Armament Conference. The senior classes in United States history and civics are devoting a part of the daily recitation period to a discussion of the problems of the conference as they are made public.

There has been no music so far this year, on account of the unfinished condition of the assembly hall.

Members of the faculty are organizing a Book Club. The present plan is for each teacher to contribute one book to be circulated among the members and returned to the owner at the close of the school year.

In addition to her regular duties, Miss Katherine Duggan of the Domestic Science Dept. is assisting in the principal's office.

Miss Phoebe O'Connor, president of the class of 1924, called a meeting of the officers and executive committee, Wednesday noon. Plans were made for the payment of the yearly dues. Friday speeches were made in the sophomore rooms urging the members of the class to pay their dues promptly each year.

Dr. J. W. P. Murphy will accompany the boys on their trip south. Dr. Murphy is the physician for the team and is giving time and services freely.

Miss Mary Burke, class of 1918, has recently graduated from the Newton hospital. She will go to New Hampshire in the Exeter hospital as supervisor.

Maurice Harris, a member of the football squad, who met with an accident early in the season, expects to be able to resume his studies in a short while.

Thanksgiving day will mean the closing of the football season for most of the local teams. Then the indoor game will start in earnest. Thus far the high school has never been represented by a basketball team, but there is no reason why there should not be a team this year. With the new gymnasium almost ready and with such basketball players as Hennessey, Crean, Holden, Luz, Buckley and Harris, a championship team is possible. Now that Peabody high has made a name for herself in athletics, let her not neglect basketball.

The net receipts of the Peabody-Beverly game were about $1090.

Roanoke, Va., which may be visited by the P. H. S. A A.. in December, is the home of a former Peabody high school student, Charles E. Moore, P. H. S. 1911, and Tufts College 1915. Mr. Moore is electrical engineer and assistant superintendent of the Roanoke water works.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Johnson of the Underwood Typewriter Company, the pupils in the typewriting classes have had the opportunity of examining and operating the Portable typewriter. This little machine weighs six and one-half pounds. In the traveling case it weighs eight and three-quarters; and when packed, ready for mailing by parcel post, nine and one-half pounds. Several years ago a pupil in the evening school used to bring with him his tiny Portable, preferring to use the small machine rather than the standard size.

BUDDY TO TALK BEFORE STUDENTS

With the expansion campaign of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce under full swing and interest running high, Campaign Manager Buddy feels that the citizens of tomorrow should realize the possibilities of an up-to-date city and the responsibilities which will be thrust upon them in the years to come.

With this end in view the campaign manager has completed arrangements with Principal W. W. Woodman of the Peabody high school to speak to the entire student body in the new high school auditorium Monday, November 28, at noon.

Mr. Buddy, because of his past experience in Boy Scout work, will undoubtedly bring a message to the students which will not only be forceful and inspirational, but entertaining as well. His subject on this occasion will be "The Threshold of Citizenship."

REBEKAH LODGE

There will be a costume party after the next meeting of Starlight Rebekah Lodge on Monday, Nov. 28. This being the celebration of the anniversary of the Rebekah degree, a large attendance is looked for. Many prizes will be offered and refreshments will be served. The Sewing Circle will meet as usual at 2.30.

Cities do not happen, co-operation builds them. Be a builder through the Chamber of Commerce.

Nature gives cities opportunities, but only the energy and intelligence of men make them great. Bring the energy and intelligence of Peabody together in a Chamber of Commerce.

Empire Stock To Give 'Rosary'

How many homes in this city are being wrecked through the husband not appreciating the true, honest and sincere love of a good wife? How many husbands are imbued with the spirit of atheism while their wives, women of serious conviction regarding faith in the things of life unseen, sacrifice the unequalled love of true, honest and sincere creatures? These are two of the questions that are forcibly brought to the attention of all who witness the performance of "The Rosary," next week's attraction by the popular stock company at the Empire theatre, Salem.

"The Rosary" deals with the lives and fortunes of a little group of people living in the beautiful Westchester country near New York City. The husband is a disbeliever in all religion. His wife a woman of serious conviction regarding faith in the life of things unseen. Strong in his belief and thoroughly human, a priest moves through the subtle story.

In the fourth act during the scene in the chapel of the church, which has been presented to Father Kelly by his former pupil, Bruce Wilton, "The Rosary" is sung. The stage settings are unique in their way; the first act occurs in a wonderfully beautiful grape arbor, the second and third act are laid in a charming interior showing the atmosphere of serene home life, while the fourth act is the new church.

SURPRISE PARTY

A surprise party was tendered Miss Evelyn Pitman last Wednesday evening at her home by her many friends, in honor of her birthday. Miss Pitman was presented with a handsome ring set with a topaz. Games were enjoyed, and refreshments were served. Solos were rendered by Miss Selina Houlden and Nelson Washburn.

If Peabody is worth living in, it is worth working for.

White Sole Leather Due For Record Breaking Call

J. H. Finn of Peabody, writing in "Shoe Topics," declares white sole leather is bound to be become more and more popular. His article, in part, reproduced herewith, is of interest to all Peabody leather manufacturers and employes:

"From inquiries that have been made about white sole leather, of one kind or another, the writer feels that this kind of leather is little understood among a good section of shoe men. This ought not to be so as such stock is bound to be used more and more in the very near future and especially in all kinds of white shoes for both men and women.

"White sole leather is something different from anything we have ever had in the shoe factories of America. The kind of sole leather that is so well known to all shoemakers include hemlock, union and oak. I am speaking now of sole leather exclusively. Of course there are many combination soles of part rubber and part other material, but these do not come under the head of sole leather as shoemakers know sole leather. On the other hand the white leather does come under this head as it is all made from first class packer hides which come right to the tannery with the hair on.

"The leading concern on white sole leather, and the original firm to get it out, as far as the writer knows, is that of George C. Vaughn of Peabody. The city of Peabody is the largest producer of upper leather of one kind or another in the world. It was always so as long as any old shoemaker can remember. And not only does it turn out upper leather of all kinds, but there are several firms that now produce other leather and among them is the Vaughn concern, which makes the well known Ivory white sole leather that is becoming so well known everywhere where shoes are made.

"Before they had white sole leather many in the trade used a white stain or paint on the edge of the sole of the white shoe. This was done because there was a general desire among women to have a shoe that was all white, sole as well as upper. But white stain or paint would not stay on the edge as it would wear off like the finish of the bottom wears off. The result was a red edge on the forepart and all around the sole, while the rest of the shoe was white.

"In the case of this Ivory sole leather it makes no difference how long it may be worn it always stays white on the edge. Any sole will be soiled more or less in wear, but the white is still there if the dirt is removed. It is white all the time because the leather is tanned white clear through. The sole being white and the heel also being white the whole shoe is white, providing it has a white upper. And it always remains white, which fact is highly pleasing to the growing number of women who wear white shoes and especially during the summer.

"As for the working of this white leather in the shoe factory this part may not be as well understood as it might be. At least there are some shoemakers, stockfitters as well as bottomers, who do not understand about working the sole. They think it ought to be tempered as other sole leather is tempered, but this is a mistake. In its tanning it is made waterproof and this is what puzzles some who think that it has to be tempered.

"Ivory sole leather can be worked dry just as it is. It works all right this way. If it must be tempered slightly, heat will do it. Warm water will do it and we have an idea that the heat from a steam dryer will also temper it to some extent. On the latter point, however, we are not quite certain, but we have always had that impression.

"In the matter of wearing qualities, which is the main point in an outsole, it is claimed for Ivory sole leather that it will wear as long or longer than anything else put on the bottom of a shoe. This is a claim we have heard made by many people who have worn the sole and are wearing it now. In one case a pair of shoes were seen in wear that had been worn every day for 277 days without a rest. These had Ivory soles and were being worn by a pretty active man who weighs 172 pounds and who claims that he walks fifteen miles every day in the week.

"These soles had outworn four pairs of heels and they withstood all kinds of wet and other weather. They were worn by an individual who appeared to be rather rough on shoe leather, too. But they were standing up no better than another pair which the writer saw, and which had been in wear six months. These were worn in workrooms where there was plenty of acid and lime on the floor and they had not come to tapping at the time they were seen. The soles were perfectly good after six months' use.

"The idea of making this sole waterproof is so that it will not take water in wear. This is one of the strongest points about a leather sole. At the present time there are mighty few outsoles, on either men's or women's shoes, that are waterproof, and it seems to the writer that it would pay leather men who make union oak or hemlock, to use some waterproof process that would help a sole repel water when the shoe is in wear."

Why Beverly Was Penalized

Fred Lewis of Beverly, referee at the Peabody-Beverly game last week, explained his reason for penalizing Beverly in the fourth period in the following letter to the Beverly Times:

There seems to be so much doubt in the minds of those who saw the game at Peabody last Saturday, in regard to a play that came in the fourth period, that a word of explanation would not be amiss at this time.

At the conference between the coaches, captains and officials before the game, it was decided to use ground rules, on account of the seats along the side lines being so close to the playing field. It was feared that some one might get hurt scrambling for a ball out of bounds.

The rule adopted was an official ruling laid down by the rules committee, to cover just such a condition as existed Saturday. The rule reads as follows: A fumbled ball which goes over the side line (which is out of bounds) shall belong to the side whose player last touched it in the field of play at a point where the ball crossed the side line. This rule not to apply to forward passes.

The play in which this rule was used, started with Gray's punt to Crean who in trying to make a low "scoop" catch deflected the ball so that it went out of bounds, where a Beverly player seized it and ran to the goal line. Had there been no rule, the run would never have been allowed because the ball was clearly out of bounds, which made it dead, but the ball would have gone to Beverly. This is the reason why the ball was brought out and given to Peabody at the spot where it went out of bounds.

I want to commend the Beverly players for their clean playing and gameness. Not once during the game did a Beverly or for that matter, any player of either side, forget themselves and their conduct was that of gentlemen and Beverly should be proud of them. To be beaten by one of the best school boy teams in the state is certainly no disgrace, and by their conduct Saturday, they paid a high tribute to their school, coach and city.

Challenge from Gary, Ind.

The Beverly High School Athletic committee has received a letter from Gary, Indiana, trying to arrange a post season game with the local high school out in Ind. Due to present day conditions there is little hope for such a game. The Athletic Board is not in a position to finance such a trip and to call upon the citizens of Beverly to offer assistance is hardly proper, considering how the money might be spent in helping the needy.

DRIVING FORWARD

Determined that Peabody shall occupy the place in the State and Nation to which its location and natural resources entitle it, the Chamber of Commerce has embarked on an expansion campaign. The American City Bureau of New York has been engaged to conduct the campaign. The goal is a minimum of four hundred. At dues of $25 a year, which is to be the new rate, an income sufficient to make the Chamber an efficient organization will be secured.

With an adequate membership and an income for three years assured,, a working organization, democratic in structure set up by representatives of the American City Bureau following the membership drive, and a definite program of work framed by the members, this community body will be in a position to drive forward. With the power generated by the spirit of the community, and focused by the expanded Chamber of Commerce, Peabody must go forward.

ON THE HABIT OF ENJOYING POOR HEALTH

I visited in a town last year where nobody had a good word for anybody. The people are God-fearing citizens in their own esteem, who pay taxes, raise children and attend dutifully to the other obligations of life.

But good news is an outlaw in that community; and an enthusiast would be regarded with suspicion as one who was probably trying to "put something over."

A cold, rainy day seems to bring a sort of grim satisfaction, particularly if it follows a period of sunshine. Folks go around dripping and declaring that they knew well enough such good weather couldn't last. "We was due for a spell of rain, and I guess it come, all right."

Merchants positively glow when they tell that they "ain't got" what you want. And there is more joy over one sinner who is caught in the act and whose sin can be told about, than over ten righteous persons who need no repentance.

In all the week I was there, I never once heard anyone say a gracious, enthusiastic thing about a fellow-human-being. Where the facts were such that they could not be given a gloomy turn, they were uttered grudgingly, as though no mortal had a right to such good luck and it certainly would not last.

The inevitable result is that the town is dying. Its industries dried up long ago. Occasionally a newcomer will try to start something; but he withers finally under the cold glances of those who are waiting around to see him fail. And when he leaves, they tell you that they always told you so.

There has been recently a considerable criticism of the Pollyanna philosophy of life. That philosophy can, of course, be carried to extremes. There is something the matter with a man who whistles while his leg is being cut off, or fails to grumble when the coffee is cold.

But between Pollyanna and the average citizens of the community which I visited, and to which I shall never return, give me Pollyanna every time. As a matter of cold dollars and cents, to use no higher standard, the Pollyanna stuff pays.

NAPOLEON was called a "one-hundred-thousand man" by his enemies, because they feared the effect of his enthusiasm on the battlefield more than an extra hundred thousand men., Would he ever have achieved his results if he had "enjoyed poor health?"

"Men are nothing," Montaigne said, "until they get excited." And it is such men—excited by their visions of great achievement, by their faith in their fellows, or in a cause or an ideal, who have founded cities and built railroads and won battles and transformed the world.

The book of Genesis would tell a very different story if the writer of it had lived in the town to which I have referred.

The thirty-first verse of the first chapter now reads: "And God saw everything that He had made and behold, it was very good."

A citizen of this complaining community would have written: "And God saw everything that He had made, and sighed and said: 'It ain't what you'd call good, and in my opinion, it'll be a whole lot worse before it gets any better'."

PERTINENT QUERIES

Are you a citizen, or do you just live here?

Did you aid in the correction of any wrong conditions in the community last year?

If everyone in Peabody was to leave the city, what would you give to bring them back?

What kind of a city would Peabody be if everybody was just like you?

Your prosperity depends on that of your neighbor. The Chamber of Commerce helps bring prosperity to all.

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

HONESTY IN YOUR JOB.

HONESTY is a subtle thing. Often a man or woman who would rather die than steal a cent manages to be more or less dishonest every day.

Too many girls who are employed in business fail to realize that in stealing time they steal the equivalent of dollars. If you waste time, idling in whatever way, you are not being honest in your work.

If you slur details, confuse items, forget instructions, if you use only half your brains and half your energy, you are being dishonest. When you accepted the position you implied that you were fit for it. It is on that basis you are paid.

You may argue that it makes very little difference whether or not you are guilty of these dishonesties. But you ought to realize that it means a lot to you. The ancient adage that honesty is the best policy applies especially to these aspects of honesty. In the end you harm yourself by faults of this sort.

If you hate your work you ought to get out of it. Work is often more thrilling than anything else that we do. Love your job; work hard at it with enthusiasm and a growing skill, and you will be a happy woman.

This is old stuff. So old that most of us never think of it. But it pays to think of it. Use your work to aid you in making your life worth while as well as simply a means of earning a certain sum weekly.

Peabody for all—all for Peabody.

ROUND ABOUT

I observe that Fred E. Ellis, prominent engineer with legion of friends in Peabody, has been named one of the directors of the American Road Builders' Association. Mr. Ellis enjoys a wide acquaintance among contractors and was at one time plant manager of the Essex Trap Rock Co. He is now in the general contracting business.

—*—

The many friends of Dr. Harry D. Kennard will be glad to know that he was discharged from the J. B. Thomas hospital a few days ago and is convalescing at his home on Main street, where yesterday he enjoyed his Thanksgiving dinner. He will be welcomed back to his practice.

—*—

Proceeding for the eviction of a tenant who has been convicted of illegal keeping or sale of intoxicating liquor, following written notice from the court of such conviction, are required of landlords under the Massachusetts statutes, says Boyd P. Doty. General Counsel for the Anti-Saloon League for New England, in calling attention to a recent decision of Judge Heady of the Springfield court, in which reference was made to this law. Failing to take action such landlords become subject to a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100 and to imprisonment for not less than three months or more than a year.

—*—

Copies of the Old Farmer's Almanac for 1922 are being issued this week among Peabody people by courtesy of the New England News Co. of Boston. It is the 130th annual edition.

—*—

Dr. Henry M. Fox, the dentist, was awarded a 15-pound gobbler for his Thanksgiving day dinner yesterday, as a result of a contest by the Y. M. H .A. of this city. His chance was ten cents.

—*—

Among the notable Thanksgiving dinners in this city yesterday was the one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Fellows on Lowell street, where a party of 17 sat down to the royal feast.

—*—

Mrs. Mary Barrett, aged 68, who broke both of her wrists in a bad fall she encountered last October, is convalescing at her home in Lake Shore Park and slowly regaining the use of her arms. Despite her advanced age she has shown the pluck of a young girl and this rare quality has gone far to aid her convalescence. Mrs. Barrett is held in high esteem by all of her neighbors.

—*—

Sam Godfrey, graduate of Princeton college, is the first lieutenant with Lew Buddy, the man who is putting over the Chamber of Commerce expansion. Sam is a recent benedict, having brought his bride of a month to this city while he is engaged in his present work. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey are domiciled at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry I. Yale during their stay in Peabody.

—*—

I understand that an effort is being made to induce John Bovington, industrial welfare counsellor, to come to Peabody and conduct a class in the psychology of business such as he held in Salem. Mr. Bovingdon was a recent speaker before the Peabody Rotary Club and several of the members are eager to get him to launch a class in this city.

—*—

I observed that Chief Grady was among the police heads to review the state constabulary at Framingham last week when a demonstration was given this newest police force which seeks to make the highways safe for travel.

—*—

The re-election of Mayor Walter Creamer of Lynn is a foregone conclusion, following the result of the primaries in that city Tuesday, when he polled a big majority of the votes parcelled out among five candidates. Mayor Creamer measures up to the very best mayoralty timber and his tenure of office for the past four years has made him a powerful vote getter. His administration has attracted much favorable comment, both in the state and outside.

YOU!

If you think you are beaten, you are.
If you think you dare not, you don't.
If you like to win, but you think you can't,
It's almost a cinch you won't.
If you think you'll lose, you're lost;
For out in the world we find Success begins with a fellow's will—
It's all in the state of mind.
If you think you're outclassed, you are;
You've got to think high to rise;
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the man who thinks he CAN!

HOLTEN LODGE

"Experience," a photoplay which concerns the morals of every young man and woman, is to be shown at the Strand theatre on Tuesday evening, Dec. 13, when Holten Lodge of Odd Fellows will control the house by an arrangement with Manager Chet Bent. Over three hundred seats will be reserved for the membership and ladies of the lodge and the balance will be open to the general public at 35 cents a seat.

The Chamber of Commerce is a clearing house for community thought and action—Join.

Five hundred citizens united in a common cause can accomplish anything within reason for Peabody.

Stores and Stars

"Hitch your wagon to a star," said Emerson, the poet philosopher.
Business men should hitch their wagons to stars.
What did Emerson mean?
The "star" meant an ideal to Emerson. Men should seek to realize ideals.
Business men of Peabody have ideals and are working to realize them.
The "Star" being emphasized just now in Peabody is SERVICE.
That is the "star" of this store.
We believe in hitching stores to stars.
That is why THIS STORE is enthusiastic for the Expansion of the PEABODY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.
We believe it will develop a new spirit of community service in our city and help it to become a still finer place in which to live and work and do business.

The modern Chamber of Commerce makes people think, then transforms that thought into community action.

This is the age of service. Serve Peabody and the Nation through the Chamber of Commerce.

This isn't your town nor my town, it's OUR town. Let's join the Chamber of Commerce and work together for OUR town.

The strength of the Nation is in well organized cities. A Chamber of Commerce provides the channel of organization.

When someone plans to help your city, plan to help that plan. Join the Chamber of Commerce.

The dead town believes in yesterday. The live town believes in tomorrow. A Chamber of Commerce translates tomorrow into today.

AN IDEAL CITY

A city, sanitary, convenient, substantial;
Where the houses of the rich and the poor are alike comfortable and beautiful;
Where the streets are clean and the sky line is clear as country air;
Where the architectural excellence of its buildings adds beauty and dignity to its streets;
Where parks and playgrounds are within reach of every child;
Where living is pleasant, toil honorable, and recreation plentiful;
Where capital is respected, but not worshipped;
Where commerce in goods is great, but no greater than the interchange of ideas;
Where industry thrives and brings prosperity alike to employer and employed;
Where education and art have a place in every home;
Where worth and not wealth gives standing to men;
Where the power of character lifts men to leadership;
Where interest in public affairs is a test of citizenship and devotion to the public weal is a badge of honor;
Where government is always honest and efficient and the principles of democracy find their fullest and truest expression;
Where the people of all the earth can come and be blended into one community life, and where each generation will vie with the past to transmit to the next a city greater, better and more beautiful than the last.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

One grand assault on the magnificent digestion was expected during the visit to that great Amerique. Tres bien, and one had been in the training for the glorious eatings. But, pour l'amour de Mike, it is les chevaux of other colors to train for the unexpected company of a wild bob-cat, is it not that it is?

Consequently the undomesticated kitten presented Marshal Foch by Montana members of the American Legion now bays the moon in a cage at the Bronx Zoo, New York and Le Marechal sleeps of nights.

The untamed tabby, brought 1500 miles by airplane by Montana Legionnaires and given the marshal at Kansas City, rapidly changed into a white elephant. The Foch party carried it in a strongbox from the west and through, several eastern cities newspapers men of the special train standing guard. But when the Foch special stopped in New York for an hour en route to Princeton University and while the allied generalissimo was still abed, the Montana mascot was quietly transferred onto a truck and hurried through the early morning hours to the zoological gardens. The spirit of the Montana Legionnaires and their bobcat was highly appreciated, but "Voila!" as the French said it.

Disinterment of the bodies of American soldiers buried in Brest, France, during the war, has been completed, according to word received by the American Legion. Army authorities have forwarded to the four permanent American cemeteries in France 1080 bodies, removal of which to the United States was not requested by relatives.

More than a million members of the American Legion have pledged themselves to assist in the American Education Week campaign, December 4-10, under the auspices of the Legion and the National Educational Association composed of school and college teachers. The purposes of the campaign are to inform the public of the accomplishments and needs of the public schools and to secure support and co-operation of the public in meeting these needs.

A bronze tablet has been erected at Brookline, Mass., to the memory of Albert E. Scott, a former newsboy known as "Scotty," who was killed behind his machine gun in France. He is believed to have been the youngest American soldier killed in the World War. The American Legion participated in the unveiling ceremony.

An effort to prohibit the holding of dances in the public schools at Katonah, N. Y., was defeated by the American Legion and the Village Improvement Society of that place.

—*—

In a campaign to collect overcoats for jobless ex-service men in New York, John Golden, the theatrical producer, offered one of the best seats for his play, "Thank You," to every person bringing a discarded overcoat to the theatre. Several hundred coats were obtained and distributed through the American Legion welfare organization.

—*—

More than 15,000 members of the American Legion representing every one of the 48 states participated in the ceremonies honoring their unknown comrade of the World War at Washington Armistice Day. National Commander MacNider, in the name of the Legion, placed a huge wreath of flowers on the flag-draped casket.

—*—

Hundreds of letters and telegrams have been received by the War Department from members of the American Legion in all parts of the country in refutation of the charges of Senator Watson of Georgia, as to the hangings without court-martial and other direlictions in the A. E. F.

A few hours after he had been released from the military prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, where he was serving a sentence for a "buddy" who had saved his life in France, Harry W. Haley was greeted at Springfield, Mo., by several thousand citizens of that place headed by the American Legion. Haley is now ensconsed on a ranch near Springfield, where he is the guest of Col. R. P. Dickerson, commander of the National Loyalty League.

SUPERVISOR AT HOSPITAL

Why Dues Are Set At $25 By Civic Bodies

In answering the oft-repeated question of "Why are dues in the Chamber of Commerce to be $25 per year?" Mr. Buddy said:

"A membership fee of $25, or a greater fee, pledged for three years, is a plan of financing the Chamber which has been adopted by all the successful Chambers in America. It is the result of years of experiments and experience. It was standardized by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, following an investigation in which it was discovered that it cost from $17 to $19 to carry a member in a live, going Chamber.

"Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade have experimented with graduated dues. The members who contribute little to the income give little to the Chamber, either of time or of interest.

"Eighty per cent. of the worthwhile Chambers in this country have dues of $25 or over. They adopted these dues after striving for success with smaller dues and meeting with failure. These organizations are made up of hard-headed business men who would rather invest $25 in a genuine unqualified success than give $10 to a partial success or a failure. Experience has shown that there are only a given number of men in any city who will take part in a movement of this sort. A few more may sometimes join at $10 than at $25, but the difference is not sufficient to make up for the loss of income in the case of lower dues.

"Entirely apart from the financial contribution, a ten dollar member is not worth as much to the organization as a twenty-five dollar member. His interest is commensurate with the amount of money which he pays. Interested members are the ones most desired.

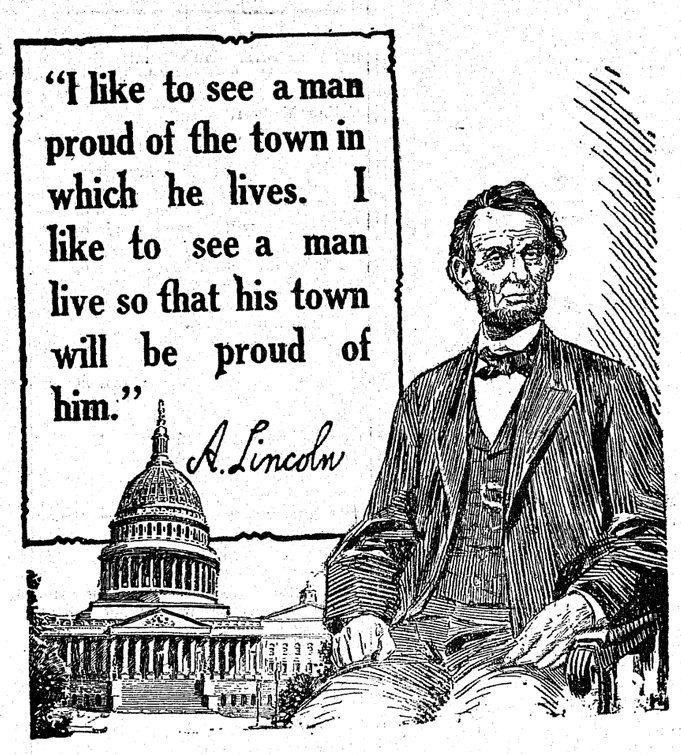
"In place of the now discredited policy of accepting $200 for a membership from a big corporation, the modern Chamber has developed the plural membership plan. There are eligible to membership in the Peabody Chamber of Commerce a considerable number of concerns and a few individuals whose interest in and responsibility to the community are so large that they should give more to the support of the Chamber of Commerce than the individual of small means. For these the plural membership is offered. Subscriptions of from two to one hundred memberships are on record.

"To guard against the charge that such a subscription offers the temptation to dominate, the plan provides that such subscribers shall have one vote only. They will assign outright all the memberships, except one, to the young men and women in the concern, or to such other individuals as may be selected.

"If the Peabody Chamber of Commerce is to do the things the citizens wish done, it must have an adequate income. It conducts many types of activities.

"There are many expenses essential if the Chamber of Commerce is to fulfill its responsibilities and accomplish its program of work. Studies may be required in connection with proposed projects. These must be made by competent persons. Sometimes it will be necessary to send committees to examine projects elsewhere to obtain the best for Peabody. The modern Chamber of Commerce representing as it does a civic and commercial center from which emanates all enterprises and activities requires the same financial backing as any successful going business concern.

"Another outgrowth of experience is the three-year program. In order that it may be practicable to have such a program it is essential the organization shall be assured of a given income for three years. The three-year basis of membership subscription has never been abandoned where tried."



SUPPORTING THE CHAMBER

The Chamber of Commerce should be regarded in the same way as are other public utilities. People pay taxes on an investment for the maintenance and improvement of the community. In the same way, only upon an optional basis, should they contribute to the support of a modern, efficient Chamber of Commerce. The expense of its service for the welfare and benefit of the entire community should be borne by those who will profit from its activities and no one should disregard the obligation to pay his share.

To enable the new Chamber fairly to demonstrate its methods and work out a broad and far-sighted program, it must be assured of adequate financial backing for at least three years. The form of membership pledge therefore is standard, and commits the applicant to pay annual dues of $25 for three years. Bills for dues will be sent annually, semi-annually or quarterly at the option of each member. There is no initiation or entrance fee.

No man is worth more to the community than he contributes to its upbuilding. He can contribute most effectively through a Chamber of Commerce.

PEABODY GOES FORWARD

A large group of public spirited citizens of Peabody have determined that Peabody shall not alone be distinguished as "The Leather City" but that Peabody shall also be known as the CITY OF STRONGER SPIRIT AND GREATER PROGRESS.

Since the Chamber of Commerce is the one central body through which this spirit can best be developed and organized, a movement has been launched for the expansion and modernizing of the Chamber of Commerce to the end that a maximum membership of both men and women will be secured and pledged to unselfish service for the further upbuilding of the community on civic, commercial and industrial lines.

The citizens of Peabody realize that the modern and effective Chamber of Commerce must stand as the central dynamic force of the community. Manned and financed by a maximum group of visioned, of unselfish spirited citizens who are not asking the pre-historic question "What will I get out of it?" but rather "What service can I render through this central organization to make Peabody a finer city to live in, to raise a family in, and in which to do business?"

Under the plan which will be developed in the Peabody Chamber of Commerce nearly 400 cities throughout the United States, a large number of which are in New England, have been rapidly going forward and getting results.

The basic principles under which the Chambers of Commerce of these cities are organized are:

1. A working membership.
2. An adequate income.
3. A definite program of work built by the members.
4. A system of committee organization and control.
5. Systematic publicity.
6. Nomination and election of directors by the members through sealed ballot.

Within the last few months similar movements and civic awakenings have been successfully conducted at Gloucester where over 700 members were secured, and in Newburyport with 624 members, besides the larger cities such as Bridgeport, Holyoke, Lawrence, Lowell, New London, Fall River. Such cities as Greenfield, Gardner, Westfield, Northhampton and others have found a new spirit and developed memberships ranging from 700 to 1500.

President Harding says:

"There has never been a time in the history of America when a Chamber of Commerce program was a necessity as it is today. Whoever co-operates in that direction is a real asset to the Nation."

Vice-President Coolidge says:

"In the critical days of the present and the immediate future, very much depends upon the influence and constructive work of great civic organizations and an efficient Chamber of Commerce will be needed as never before."

Herbert Hoover says:

"Service to the community should be the earmark of citizenship. Citizenship in these times and in all times is an obligation, not a privilege."

PEABODY CAN DO IT AND PEABODY WILL

Home Town Is First, Says Editor Crane

(Dr. Frank Crane)

Work for your own town.

Beautify it. Improve it. Make it attractive.

The World War and the Treaty of Peace and the Protective Tariff and such things are important subjects, but what's the use of cleaning up the world unless you sweep your own doorstep?

The city whose Main street is dingy, sordid-looking, cluttered, unmowed, suffers much. Such a city wants to be cleaned, recreated, made a thing of beauty, so that people will come miles to see it.

The best advertisement for your business is the town you live in.

Towns get reputation as well as men. Make your town talked of all over the state. It will thus draw people. And where the people come there is prosperity.

It does not take money. It takes something that is scarcer. It takes co-operation.

Get together. Organize for civic improvement. Develop the civic nerve.

Rid your town of one eye-sore after another. Clean up the vacant lots and plant them in gardens. Make a cluttered yard a disgrace. Make public opinion too hot for those who will not help.

It pays. It will promote law and order. It will help in the education of your children. It will draw business enterprises to your locality.

Shiftlessness, untidiness, and selfishness as shown in your streets and buildings, react on your people.

Such things make your boys and girls grow up hating their home town.

Make your home town a children's paradise, something their memory will lovingly turn back to.

Look after your amusements and your parks, playgrounds, theatres, and all your other means of community enjoyment.

Make your home town happy.

It pays.

HOW TO KILL A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

1. Don't come to the meetings.
2. But if you do come, come late.
3. If the weather doesn't suit you don't think of coming.
4. If you do attend a meeting, find fault with the work of the officers and other members.
5. Never accept an office, as it is easier to criticise than to do things.
6. Nevertheless, get sore if you are not appointed on a committee, but if you are, do not attend the committee meetings.
7. If asked by the chairman to give your opinion regarding some important matter, tell him you have nothing to say.

After the meeting tell everyone how things ought to be done.

8. Do nothing more than is absolutely necessary, but when other members roll up their sleeves and willingly unselfishly use their ability to help matters along, howl that the association is run by a clique.
9. Hold back your dues as long as possible, or don't pay at all.
10. Don't bother about getting new members. "Let George do it."

WOMEN IN THE EXPANDED CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Women are to be welcomed in the expanded Chamber of Commerce. At a meeting of the Woman's Club last Friday afternoon, Mr. Buddy, manager of the expansion movement, outlined the plan for the campaign for the expansion of the Chamber of Commerce and explained the valuable service that women can contribute for the upbuilding of the community through the Chamber of Commerce.

"The war demonstrated the part women can take effectively in community activity," said the speaker. "They filled a vital place in the line. Since then, they have been accorded the duties and privileges of the ballot. No organization seeking to be representative of all community elements and working for the general welfare of the city, can fail to take notice of the fact that women are vitally interested in whatever is done for the improvement of city conditions.

"In other cities they take an effective part in Chamber of Commerce activities, serving on committees which have to do with such subjects as Clean-up, Americanization, Education, Public Health and the like, where, as the housekeepers and homekeepers of the community they find a field in which they can be of immense service."

Referring to the interest of women in Chamber of Commerce organizations throughout the country, Mr. Buddy informed his hearers that there were nearly 200 women members in Niagara Falls, New York, upwards of 100 in the Lowell and Lawrence Chambers, over 100 in Northampton and Holyoke, and in the recent campaign in Newburyport 45 women members were secured. He expressed the hope and belief that the present campaign would produce an equally good membership of women whose service in the organization would be invaluable in connection with many of the civic projects which would be initiated.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS MAKING DRESSES FOR XMAS DOLLS

The Iriquois Campfire Girls under Mrs. Ernest Porter's leadership are very busy dressing dolls for their annual Community house Christmas tree. Each year Mrs. Porter personally visits the homes whose names she procures from the poor department and the visiting nurse, and many of these children in these homes have to be clothed to enable them to attend the tree. Last year the girls dressed 75 dolls for the girls and provided about the same number of games for the boys. This year it is planned to make the number 100 of each, and the girls have entered whole-heartedly into their task. It is hoped the public will support these Campfire Girls in their good work, as Christmas would mean little to these children if it were not for these brave girls and their leader.

Mr .and Mrs. George Felt returned to their home on Main street this week from their summer home in Middleton.

ing and have accomplished by the same methods.

"You are asked to bring a friend who should know what this means for the future of this city. Every man should be present who is interested in a finer Peabody."

The announcement also indicates that in addition to speaking there will be community singing, cigars, and a bite to eat, with no expenses or membership solicitation.

The executive committee also desires to impress upon the citizens of Peabody that every man who is interested in the future progress of this city is invited to the smoker whether he has received an announcement or not.

The committee on meetings of the Chamber of Commerce Expansion Campaign feels fortunate in being able to secure as the main guest and speaker at the Community smoker Monday night, Congressman James T. Begg. Mr. Begg is a native of Ohio. He was born on a farm in Allen County, Ohio, and lived there until his entrance into college. He studied at Lima College and later at Worcester University.

On the completion of his studies Mr. Begg entered the teaching profession and was for a number of years superintendent of schools at Columbia Grove, Ironton, and Sandusky, Ohio. He spent ten years lecturing to teachers institutes in Ohio.

In the fall of 1918 Mr. Begg was petitioned by over 1200 citizens of Erie County, Ohio, to run for congress in the 13th Ohio district. He was elected by 2800 votes, in a district that had given his opponent a 5300 majority for two years previous. Proof of Mr. Begg's ability is the fact that his constituency returned him to the lower house by a majority of over 21,000.

Congressman Begg is a forceful and an entertaining speaker. He speaks not alone from theory but from a rich fund of practical experience. The story of the progress of his home city, Sandusky, is well worth hearing. Few men in the country have had more personal experience in community problems. Mr. Begg is a member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the House.

Important Questions Answered

"Several questions are being asked the men who are conducting the expansion movement for the Peabody Chamber of Commerce which deserve special answers," said Lewis Buddy, the director of the movement, this morning. "One is, 'What will the Chamber of Commerce do?' Others are, 'What about the permanence of the Chamber of Commerce?' 'Why are the dues $25?' 'Who is going to run the expanded Chamber of Commerce?' Let me take up two of these questions, leaving the others until another time."

"What Will It Do?"

"What will the Peabody Chamber of Commerce be able to do?"

It is entirely up to the members. Whatever the members think and center upon as needful to be done and to which they will apply their energy can be accomplished. Equality will rule in determining what shall be done, for every member will have an equal voice through the referendum and the members' forum. The adoption of a proposal immediately unites the whole Chamber of Commerce behind it. In other words, it is not the president nor the directors nor the committees who are going to say, what shall be done, but the members.

This manner of determining the needs of the community is a vital factor in securing support and co-operation of the working, business. professional men and women in the community.

Following the expansion drive for membership, the work of organization will be taken up through group meetings. Answers will be obtained to two questions. The first will be:

"What as a citizen do you think is the thing of first importance for the Chamber of Commerce to undertake for the good of the city of Peabody?"

The second question is:

"What do you expect the Chamber of Commerce to do for your own line of business activity?"

The answers to these questions will be secured through meetings, conferences, discussions and other methods intended to secure from each member a frank and serious expression of opinion, or a definite suggestion. In other cities the answers to these questions are usually found to fall under a few important headings. Broadly defined, they are the planks in the platform of activities of a well organized Chamber.

The manner of securing this expression of opinion is such that the membership is practically pledged to work for the program. The duties of the officers and directors and special committees to which are committed the tasks laid out by the members may be named by the directors from among those who have shown marked interest in the different projects and who possess the ability to carry them out. The answers to the questions will show clearly who these are. The naming of such persons for special committees by the directors make certain a careful study of the planks and their execution by the citizens most keenly interested. It is through this assignment to a given member of work in which he is most interested that the whole membership is kept alive and interested.

FOUR HUNDRED MEMBERS

Peabody's goal in the coming membership drive for the new Chamber of Commerce is four hundred.

This figure was decided upon at a meeting this week of the executive committee, after a careful consideration of the possibilities based on the fast developing interest and enthusiasm in the present expansion movement.

Do Cough Syrups Make You Sick?

LAWRENCE, MASS., MAN TELLS OF A BETTER WAY TO RELIEVE COUGHS, COLDS, CHEST PAINS AND HOARSENESS

Many cough remedies are so sticky and disagreeable that, even if they do cure the cough, they upset the stomach, create nausea and put one generally out of sorts.

Mr. Joseph A. Ellis of 10 Warren Street, Lawrence, Mass., tells his experience with Cerizane. "In the early winter of 1920 I got a mighty bad cold. I was soon almost coughing my head off. I had a very sore throat, pain in the lungs and a high fever. As soon as the trouble started, I commenced to use medicines. First I just used cough drops. They did no real good, but they did start to upset my stomach. Next came cough syrups. They really made me sick. They just about killed what appetite I had and my cough, hoarseness and sore throat kept getting worse all the time.

"Then, when I was about to give up, a friend advised me to try Cerizane and when I asked my druggist about it he said it was a fine thing. I bought a small bottle and liked the taste and action of the first dose. Somehow it did not seem to go just to my stomach, like the others. It felt like a good bit of it actually stayed in my throat, so soothing and healing was it. By the time I had used the first bottle, my voice was almost clear, the pain in the lungs much better, the hoarseness not so bad and the cough not so tight. But still the cough was troublesome, especially at night. So I got another bottle of Cerizane, but did not take half of it before my cough and cold were entirely gone. Cerizane is certainly the greatest cough and cold remedy made."

All progressive druggists, including the following, sell Cerizane.

MATS ANNUAL FILLS CITY HALL

Lively ends, a good chorus, catchy songs and novel dancing specialties made the 41st annual minstrel show of the Father Mathe C. T. A. S. at City Hall, Thanksgiving eve, one of the best ever given by the organization.

The O'Brien sisters, three comely misses in farmerette costume, whose voices harmonized prettily were the stars of the performance. "The ole swimming hole" was sung so well by them that they were encored repeatedly. Miss Phoebe O'Conor made a decided hit singing "Ma" and introduced a little local color into the chorus by mentioning some of Peabody's notables.

Miss Bessie Roche sang "There's a little bit of Irish in us all" and proved the statement by giving a very clever exhibition of an Irish jig.

"When Francis dances with me," sung by Rita O'Donnell, dressed in typical bowery costume, who did a "bowery" dance with a "bowery" pal, was well done and several encores were given. "Second Hand Rose" by Blanche Levasseur and "The Cat's Meow" by Edna Hudson were well received.

A pleasing feature of the program were the whistling solos by Charles Enos. Miss Willena Fish rendered "That's How I Believe in You" very effectively and the solos by Miss Blanche Harvey, John O'Brien and Austin Curley were much enjoyed.

The end men were unusually clever and no distinction could be made, as one was as much a favorite as the other. Tom McLaughlin sang "I Ain't Nobody's Darling," James Harris "My Mammy," Tom Kavanaugh "Hortense" and Charles Boyle "Everybody's Welcome in Dixie." They were very much at home before the footlights and had a real professional style of putting their songs across.

The closing chorus featured Peter Boyson singing "Down Yonder." The show was under the direction of Leo B. Murphy, ably assisted by Miss Margaret A. Griffin as pianist.

Dancing Girls—Alice Curtin, Helen Mannix, Elizabeth Hogan, Margaret Hogan, Catherine Duffee, Margaret Gillespie, Helen Lane, Theresa Gannon, Eva Pincheon, Mary Moran, Margaret Lane, Marie Kingston, Josephine Breen, Alberta Levasseur, Elizabeth Shea, Mary Mahoney.

Chorus—Anna Buckley, Lillian Ploss, Margaret Dowling, Ruth Connell, Catherine Rennick, Margaret Thorpe, Wilena Mathewson, Thelma Henderson, Doris Poole, Helen O'Connor, Irene Essembre, Mary Devaney, Helen Wojick, Mary Konevich, Amelia Lenalski, Ida Young, Mary Thorpe, Sadie Walsh, Rose Murphy, Helen Maroney, Nicholas Clare, Ronald McGilvarry, J. Francis Howlett, John J. Canniff, Charles Coan, David O'Neil, Redmond Cassidy, Clarence Spence, Arthur O'Keefe, John Kennedy, Leo Levasseur, Joseph Lucy, William Hosman, Arthur Flanagan, Timothy O'Keefe, Myron Kerwin, William Murphy, Frank Ray, Carl Nelson, Frank Hayes.

NICHOLS--WOODMAN ENGAGEMENT

ALICE L. WOODMAN

LIEUT. PHILIP G. NICHOLS

Especial interest attaches to the engagement announced this week of Miss Alice L. Woodman and Lieut. Philip G. Nichols of the U. S. navy Miss Woodman is the daughter of High School Principal and Mrs. Willard W. Woodman of King street, and Lieut. Nichols is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nichols of Beckett street.

Both are former Peabody high school students. Miss Woodman is a graduate of Sargent school in Boston, and had a successful year as playground instructor this past summer.

Lieut. Nichols, a war veteran, who braved danger of being sunk by the German submarines off the coast of France, is a graduate of the Naval Academy and has recently returned from a cruise with the Pacific coast fleet. He has been transferred to the North Atlantic squadron. The young people have a large circle of friends.

WOUNDED VETS

gram was carried out by splendid local talent. Later a banquet was held in the K. of C. hall, at which Mayor Shea was toastmaster. The list of speakers comprised Rev. Rovert Bakeman, who represented the Rotary Club on the joint committee; President Henry Duggan of the City Council; Rev. John Reid of the South church, Commander Leo Sullivan of Post 153; Rev. Thomas P. McGinn, chaplain of the Post; John Manning of the famous 5th Marines, who received a shattered foot in the Argonne, and Frank W. Penniman. Leo Murphy led the community singing and presided at the entertainment.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion Post served at the banquet. A dozen or more autos were loaned to convey the disabled veterans from Chelsea and return. Particular credit for the success of the day's program belongs to Commander Leo Sullivan, Edward Quirk, Andrew Fyfe, Leo Murphy, Rev. Mr. Bakeman and the Auxiliary of the Post.

ANNUAL CONCERT AND BALL

Peabody Post 153 which is rapidly enrolling all ex-service men in this city is at work on its plans for its annual concert and ball the night before Lent. Leo Murphy, chairman of the committee, has called a special meeting for Sunday at 11 in the Legion rooms. The personnel of the committee:

Charles M. Boyle, Andrew Fyfe, Fred Hockenhull, Joseph T. Sweeney, Edw. Quirk, Fred Shea, John H. McNamara, Edward Carbery, Edward Byrnes, Lewis Birmingham, George Gillis, David Hallinan, James Murphy, John F. A. Feeney.

W. C. T. U.

A regular meeting of the Peabody Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Mrs. Chichester 62 Central street today at 2.30 p. m. State President Mrs. Gleason will be present. All members and friends of the cause are invited.

FOOTBALL SUNDAY

Peabody's fast traveling town team will stage another of its gridiron combats Sunday afternoon at Emerson Park, when it meets the All Stars of Lynn. Several famous football players are among the Lynn roster and Manager Tommie Ray expects a battle royal.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Callahan are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at the J. B. Thomas hospital on November 20.

Little Bessie Hickey daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John J. Hickey made a decided hit with her "Peggy from Paris" dance at the concert given in Danvers on Monday evening under the auspices of the Catholic Daughters of America. On the same program were solos by Mary L. McCarthy of this city and duets by Miss McCarthy and Frank Sonigan which were delightfully rendered.

West Peabody

Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Hunt are receiving congratulations over the birth of a daughter born at the J. B. Thomas hospital.

Miss Lillian Rankin spent the week-end with her aunt, Mrs .William Luden, at Saugus.

Miss Helen Rowes was the guest of Miss Evelina Martin at her home on Pine street the past week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Leach and daughter from South Peabody spent the holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Danforth on Lowell street.

Ernest Leach started for a trip to Canada in his Ford touring car the past week.

The Christian Endeavor social proved to be much of a success. Games were played and refreshments were served. An enjoyable time was had by all who went.

The Junior Christian Endeavor will meet Sunday at 3.30 o'clock. Miss Irene Durkee will be the leader. Her subject will be "How God Wants to Be Thanked."

The Y. P. S. C. E. will meet at 6.30 o'clock at the church Sunday and there will be a stereopticon lecture for the public on "Our Inter-Mountain Empire," taken from Utah. Forest Southwick is in charge of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McDonald and daughter Myrtle from Middleton spent the holiday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald on Goodale street.

Perley Small and son Leonard visited the former's father, Alonzo Small, the past week at the Old Soldiers' Home in Chelsea.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gifford and son Junior from Danvers spent the holiday with Mrs. Gifford's mother, Mrs. Mary Broderick, on Lowell street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Luden and son spent the holiday with her sister, Mrs. H. W. Rankin on Pine street.

Mrs. Eva Meek from Old Ladies' Home in Salem spent the holiday with her daughter, Mrs. H. W. Rankin.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Moulton spent the week-end with their daughter, Mrs. Richard Stocker on Lowell street.

Mrs. Edward Mudge spent the week-end with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Goodale on Goodale street.

Miss Helen Phillips is recovering from an attack of tonsilitis at her home on Lowell street.

Miss Bessie Taylor spent the week-end with Mrs. Guy Sanger at Arlington.

Little Doris Cranney daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cranney of Fulton is recovering from an appendicitis operation performed at the Salem hospital this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roome are entertaining over the week-end Mrs. Roome's mother and father, Dr. E. E. Murray and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Woodman of Utica, N. Y., are spending the holiday with the latter's aunt, Mrs. Carrie Proctor of King street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Learoyd entertained at whist at their home last Tuesday evening.

John S. Symonds, vice president of the Second National Bank of Boston, and for years the owner of Belvidere farm at Cross and Andover streets, leaves Boston Tuesday next with Mrs. Symonds as passengers on the newly constructed steamship Thomas P. Beel for a trip to Seattle, Wash., and return. The boat which was completed last September at Bath, Me., was named for the president of the bank, with which Mr. Symonds is (by its owners) connected and the trip is conceived as a compliment, supplementing the anniversary dinner tendered Mr. Symonds last year and upon his completion of so many years' connection with the institution. The trip will consume 12 weeks and will include stops at Panama Canal, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mrs. Symonds will spend the winter season in California, while her husband wil return home.

A peculiar incident occurred on the last registration day, when Rev. and Mrs. John Reid appeared before the assessors to have their names placed upon the voting lists. Mr. Reid came to the United States from England with his parents as a child and upon the naturalization of his father became automatically a citizen. Later he married a young lady whose ancestry dated from 1640, when her forbears settled on Cape Cod. She was denied registration until the papers of Mr. Reid's father were produced.

The Chelsea-Peabody football game was declared off yesterday but not before some of the players had appeared for dressing at the Center school, in consequence of which the electric lights in the basement burned until the janitor appeared this morning to extinguish them. It would seem that there is some lax management somewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chaplin, who spent the last week-end with the latter's parents, State Councillor and Mrs. J. F. Ingraham, were surprised by their friends last Monday evening when a bridal shower was tendered them. It will be remembered that the happy couple surprised their friends by announcing a wedding of some months' standing and it was not until the present week that the couple could be brought to task and due homage paid them.

Miss Louise McGlone of the Center school faculty has been incapacitated from duty for a few days of this week and her place has been filled by Mrs. Cephas Madison.

Mrs. Francis L. Poor has taken rooms at Dorchester that she may be near the councillor, who is under treatment at the Parker Hill hospital.

Preparations are being made by the members of the Woman's Association of the South Church for a two days fair to be held in the vestry of the church December 7 and 8. Attractions of the fair will include tables featuring fancy work, aprons, domestics, food, jumbles, children, candy, flowers. An entertainment will be given for the children on Wednesday afternoon. A lobster salad supper will be served at 6.30. The farce "A Day in the Union Station" which proved so popular when given 14 years ago will be repeated with many of the same well known citizens playing the same parts. This will be presented on Thursday evening.

OFF TO CHARLESTON

"On to Charleston" will be the slogan of a mass meeting of citizens called for Sunday afternoon at 2 in the Council chamber. Copies of the itinerary from the tourist agency of which John Doody of this city is the representative are being distributed today among the fans. Mayor Shea sent Gov. Cox a special invitation to be Peabody's guest at the game on Dec. 10 in Charleston, where he is to attend a meeting of governors.

JEWISH WAR RELIEF

Max Korn and Frank Hershenson of Peabody attended this week in Boston the most representative Jewish conference ever held in New England, for the relief of the hundreds of thousands of destitute Jews in Eastern Europe, and they will take a prominent part in organizing the local fund-raising campaign. Nearly 200 delegates from 62 cities and towns attended the conference and voted to raise $1,000,000 by February.

C. of C. Members Ballot For Board of Directors

The Peabody Chamber of Commerce has been conducting a series of group meetings of the membership each evening this week. At each meeting members have discussed those things which in their opinion the Chamber of Commerce should undertake to promote the welfare of all Peabody citizens. They have been requested to answer the following questions:

1. What do you expect the organization to do for the promotion of your own line of business or activity?

2. What in your opinion as a citizen are the things of first importance to be undertaken for the community as a whole?

These questions have resulted in many animated discussions. All those who have failed to attend these group meetings have been sent letters containing the two questions above-mentioned, together with a list of suggestions which have already been made. Members have been requested to answer the two questions and to check the things on the list which they consider important. The suggestions received are to be incorporated in a Program of Work. Some suggestions follow:

Aid Peabody Library.
Encourage Library to establish branches in South and West Peabody.
Establish a Children's Reading Room.
Support Community House.

COMMUNITY HOUSE CANVASS WILL START JAN. 14---HOPE TO RAISE $10,000

Uniformed Boy Scouts will visit every home in Peabody tomorrow with a special message for every householder, which is an appeal for financial aid for the Peabody Community House. The finance committee composed of Lyman P. Osborn, Herbert V. Hunt and Elliott L. Macdonald have prepared some highly interesting data with facts and figures to prove the value of the civic house which has now been darkened since Dec. 1, owing to lack of funds.

The apeal for funds asks citizens to become yearly subscribers in any amount they elect to contribute, and the finance committee feel sure that the mothers and fathers and all citizens will rally strong to the support of the civic house.

The Community House has been a general rendezvous for countless organizations. Here are some of the activities the Community House has aided:

TEN ASPIRANTS FOR POSTMASTER; SALARY IS $3000

Ten Peabody men aspire to be the next postmaster of Peabody, according to the certified list received in this city yesterday from the U. S. Civil Service Board at Washington. The men are Angus J. MacDonald, Phocion J. Ingraham, James J. Ray, James E. Pray, Harold G. Childs, George E. Hallowell, William F. Searle, Dennis J. Dullea, (now postmaster) John P. Murphy and Thomas V. Carroll.

James E. Pray, Harold G. Childs, John P. Murphy, George E. Hallowell and Thomas V. Carroll had not let it be generally known that they were candidates for the $3000 plum Uncle Sam has to offer in Peabody. Pray is a foreman at the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. and a former master of Jordan lodge of Masons. Childs is assistant City Collector and the only war veteran among the list of aspirants. Murphy is an attorney with offices in Salem. Hallowell is employed at the A. C. Lawrence Co. and Carroll is a clerk in the Boston postoffice.

Ability to handle men is one of the most important attributes that will count in the award of the plum.

Wm. Murphy Leatherman Near Death

William J. Murphy one of the best known leather factory superintendents in the city is making a valiant fight for his life at his home 39 Holten street, a victim of anthrax which developed suddenly last Tuesday. He passed through a most critical night. He was compelled to give up his work as foreman at the Snyder plant last Tuesday and take to his bed. The germ has penetrated the front of his neck where it made rapid progress

CITY HALL NOTES

Councillor David Craig met all expectations on his initial appearance in his new role as a city official. He has a mind of his own and the snap of a whip will not frighten him one particle. He'll play the game with all of his "cards on the table," to borrow that pet expression from the late council president.

* * *

Echoes from the card table announce that efforts to harass the efforts of President Ryan to rule impartially over the Council are in the making. Friends of the exalted ruler of Peabody lodge of Elks believe he will prove a capable man as president. Time will tell and in the meantime he is entitled to decent co-operation on the part of the Councillors. He is at least assured of a square deal.

* * *

It would have been a decent thing had ex-President Henry Duggan of the City Council moved unanimous choice of President Joseph A. Ryan at the organizing of the Council last Monday. When former President Cornelius A. Giles was defeated, he promptly moved unanimous choice in favor of his opponent. Last year when Councillor Ryan was robbed at the last moment of the necessary vote, he, too, moved unanimous choice election of his opponent. Big men are always good losers.

* * *

City Almoner James J. Ray has not put another Ford into commission, but has had his two-year-old car revarnished and made to look like new. The Enterprise reporter mistook the newly painted car evidently for a new one, which reflects credit on the painter. An effort to induce the colonel that malice had dictated the paragraph has its amusing aspect.

Sealer of Weights T. Hadley Sawyer is notifying all users of scales to get in touch with his office during the next 30 days.

Will Councillor Duggan still remain as "assistant" to the city clerk? is a question the taxpayers have a right to know. The newly elected president does not intend to have a desk room in the City Clerk's office. He says he is too busy at his own desk at the E. H. Porter Co. office.

* * *

The suggestion made in the Chamber of Commerce group meetings this week that a comfort station for both men and women should be installed in City Hall basement has merit and might be worked out with a minimum of expense.

* * *

The outstanding feature of several inaugural messages this year in Massachusetts is the determination to hold up on municipal expenditure for improvements that are not absolutely necessary this year. The same rule can well apply to Peabody, if the citizens are to get a reduction in tax rate.

* * *

The J. B. Thomas hospital was another city department that ran short of money in 1921 and is confronted with an overdraft now.

* * *

Mayor Shea will, it is believed, include in his new budget, an appropriation from the public treasury for the Peabody Institute. The trustees of the library stand ready to make needed improvements, such as a children's reading room, if the city will appropriate a sum to maintain the present expenses. This item is one of the leading suggestions which Chamber of Commerce members are discussing with a view to providing a benefit to all citizens and make the library a more attractive and efficient institution. Branch libraries should be opened in both South and West Peabody.

It is reported that the 1922 finance committee of the City Council will consist of Messrs. Barry, Craig and Sullivan. This personnel makes for a most capable committee and will probably work in harmony with the Mayor's recommendations so far as economy directs their co-operation.

* * *

Peabody voters are looking forward to an interesting fight for the Democratic nomination for Representative next fall with Councillors Jones and Sullivan avowed candidates for the mantle of their party. Councillor Jones is a World war veteran, and Councillor Sullivan is one of the most astute campaigners ever to poll Peabody. He will not receive any support from the Duggan-Dowd machine, which is said to be behind the Jones candidacy. The contest for the nomination should add a little spice to the campaign this fall. Sullivan will be a formidable vote getter at either caucus or final election.

Chairman Jere Quirk of the Board of Assessors promises to enliven the first next regular meeting of the Council on Jan. 12, when he plans to appear in protest at the nomination of Patrick J. Sheehy to fill his place. The right of Mayor Shea to name his choice for any city berth will be argued by many citizens, for on his appointments he or any other Mayor rises or falls. Sheehy's probity is not the issue. It is Chairman Quirk's avowed intention to argue against the qualifications of Mr. Sheehy for the job. Meanwhile some are asking what would Mr. Quirk rise to remark if Mayor Shea sent in some other choice for the job?

Councillor Barnes' refusal to vote for Councillor Ryan as president was because of the latter's refusal to vote for Barnes to fill the unexpired term of the late Stephen S. Littlefield on the School Board. It would have been a nice tribute to Councillor Poor, now in the Parker Hill hospital, had the minority four of the Council cast their ballot for him for president. Councillor Poor is making a brave fight to recover his health.

* * *

The public schools belong to the citizens. Progressive cities today in this and other states are utilizing the heated and lighted buildings as community centers with varied programs of entertainment. Why should not Peabody citizens have an equal benefit from these buildings? The use of the Keefe school for basketball games is entirely proper in the opinion of many until such lawlessness pervails as to end the privilege. There ought to be a parent-teachers' association in action at every schoolhouse in Peabody. Local societies have a right to use the schools where there is no conflict with the school program. A money making scheme is said to have been responsible for the criticism. The Father Mathew society, for over 40 years a power for good, was entitled to first consideration.

* * *

The first annual police ball to be held in Peabody, which comes on the eve of Washington's birthday next month, will be a big night. The Police Relief Association has met with most generous response on the part of the citizens in the sale of their tickets and advertising space, and the committee are promising a really big program of entertainment. Chief Grady is president of the association and will lead the grand march behind Mayor Shea. Secretary John J. McBride of the night force is attending

Leo Guild Tree For City Home

The annual Christmas tree given by the members of Leo Guild to the folks at the City Home will take place this evening. This event is looked forward to each year by the old folks at the home and an unusually good time is in store for them tonight. An entertainment will be given and each one will be remembered with gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Gilroy will assist the committee in carrying out the program. Members desirous of going are requested to meet at Manning's corner at 7.30, where busses will be waiting to convey them to the home.

A large number of the members of the Guild are planning to attend the "Frolics of 1921" to be given in Now and Then hall, Salem, next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of St. Mary's School Association. A number of the Salem folks who participated in the Guild's recent show "All Aboard" will take the leads.

Mrs. John J. Doody is in charge of a live committee who will conduct a food sale for the Guild at Gray's store on Saturday, January 14.

On Monday evening, January 16, Mrs. Charles H. Cassidy will be hostess at a whist party in K. of C. hall. An excellent entertainment for that evening is being planned by Mrs. D. J. Conroy and Mrs. John J. Gallagher.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

TO MASTER despair, to look beyond the earth, to minister to the suffering, to venture forth into fields of thought still unsurveyed, are achievements which call for the highest types of human quality.

The doing of such things as these develop strength of purpose and beautify character. They enlarge the heart and mind, open new vistas where scenes are changing constantly, give exquisite pleasures, besides storing the soul with knowledge found only in pursuit of the Infinite.

Can you do any one of them and acquit yourself satisfactorily?

Have you the fine patience and the penetrating vision on which you can rely when put to the test?

Going round and round, day after day, takes to nowhere beyond a weekly pittance.

The man or woman who in his or her own strength breaks through routine methods and keeps looking for substance rather than "such stuff as dreams are made of," is doing something along this line.

Both are moving towards a new world, where there is no boundary to opportunity and no limit in the field of operation.

Though up-hill intimacies are without charm of freedom, of which youths of the present seek more than is good for their bodies and souls, these close associations with difficulties, accompanied with earnest work, take by easy stages to great heights.

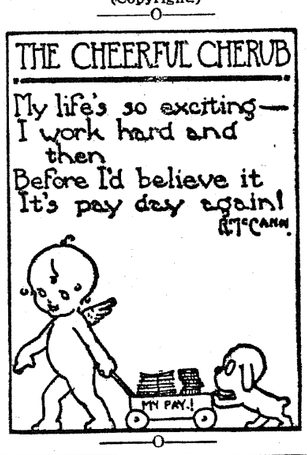
Up hill intimacies!

Are you, young man and woman, familiar with them?

Do you hold communion beneath the evening lamp with instructive, uplifting books, instead of idling your time in frivolous amusements that gnaw regularly great holes in your weekly or monthly earnings?



If you do, you will come in some solitary night of your study and meditation, face to face with smiling Hope, holding her torch high to light and cheer your way.

Then you will drink in the inspiring ether of the higher altitude and feel commendably proud in the thought that this big world is reserving a place for you, where you may sit among the honored guests at a bountiful table.

Success rests on just such a basis as this; it is nature's way of making choice and bestowing reward. Unless you pull yourself up from the lowlands you never will know the joys of a heroic life.

YOUR HAND

How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm.

THE HAND OF A SAILOR

THE hand of a successful sailor should be strong, short, firm and broad. A characteristic sign is a well-developed mount of Luna, lying on the outside of the palm near the wrist. It denotes great love of the sea. If there is a star on this mount, it means danger by water, to which naturally, every sailor is exposed.

A line of Mars, paralleling the line of life, on the inside, shows endurance and protection from great dangers. The sailor's hand contains, also, well-marked travel lines; that is, lines extending from the first bracelet and going upward to the mount of the moon, or coming in at the wrist from the side of the hand. If a travel line strongly marked is terminated by a cross appearing on it, that is a sign that a journey will end in misfortune.

The line of life of the sailor should be well separated from the line of the head, since such separation signifies plenty of self-confidence.

Suggests Re-taning of Leather

Editor "Peabody Enterprise":

Peabody is interested in leather more than in anything else; therefore anything that can be said about leather ought to make good reading for the average citizen.

What is said in this article pertains to sole leather more than to upper leather. We all know that Peabody leads on upper leather, but there is more or less sole leather of one kind or another being made here, which is used for insoles as well as for outsoles. The same particular leather may not be used for insoles and outsoles, but there are concerns in town specializing on one or the other.

In the matter of sole leather, and especially of Union, hemlock and oak tannage, there has been more or less dissatisfaction among many shoe manufacturers because of the way much of this leather was coming to them. The finishers have had trouble with some of the sole leather, and this has been going on for so long that new ideas have been brought forward to improve that leather in the shoe factory itself.

If you will read the shoe trade journals you will see that there is more or less said about formulas which are intended for re-tanning or softening soles. Some of these are so-called softeners, while others are not. But whatever may be their name, they are generally used to make leather flexible, put it in better temper for the bottoming, eliminate the water stains and other discolorations, and finally give it a clear color when it comes to the bottom finishers. All of this can be done by a re-tanning process and at the same time there is considerable wearing quality added to the bottom. It is claimed that an outsole will give at least thirty per cent. better wear; while its tensile strength is increased fifteen to twenty per cent.

In one big factory, known as the Curtis factory, located at Marlboro, they are making from five to six thousand pairs of men's shoes every day in the week. That is a very large factory and the output is also large. It is an output, too, that is increasing all of the time, which is all the more remarkable when we recall the fact that so many factories are dull and struggling along with a twenty-five per cent. output.

In this particular factory they have a re-tanning process which is not called a softener, but which is used wholly to re-tan sole leather. They have three or four tanks or vats in the sole leather room; and after the soles are blocked out, they are put into these vats in wire racks and in such a way that every part of the sole is treated with the solution, or re-tanning liquid. The soles stay in this liquid anywhere from ten minutes to an hour, but the length of time is generally determined by the desired flexibility wanted in the bottom. If they want a very flexible sole, that sole would remain in the re-tanning process a full hour; but if they did not want it extra flexible it would remain in the liquid for ten minutes or so.

Some soles should not be too flexible—such as soles for men's and boys' shoes, for instance. These soles can be fairly firm. But when it comes to women's soles and especially those intended for welts and turns, most manufacturers want them just as flexible as they can be made. In fact, many manufacturers making fine shoes for women, often law awake nights, wondering how they can make bottoms more flexible. But they are not wondering so much at the present time as they now have a process close at hand which will give them just what they want.

Another feature about this re-tanning process is that it plumps up the leather. In fact, it will add the weight of an iron to some soles, but no great claim is made on this account. But they do claim, however, that the process will bleach out a sole or make it a fine, light color, make it uniform in color and will put the sole in such temper that it can be worked six months or a year after it has gone through the process. And these soles are warranted never to spew or become mouldy, no matter how long they may be kept on hand, or even though they are kept in a damp place.

That all this may be of interest to some Peabody tanners is the assumption of the writer, because it can be worked on pigskin just the same as on regular sole leather. It is claimed that it will do very fine work on pigskin and also on flexible insole stock. Both of these are made in considerable quantities right here in the city,

Americans Find Armenians Victims of Circumstances, not Beggars

The Armenian government would soon be able to work out its own salvation if it could enjoy a brief period of peace, in the opinion of an American Commission which has just returned to the United States after an exhaustive survey of the situation in the Levant.

This Commission, which was sent out by the Near East Relief, made a personal inspection of conditions from Syria to the Caucasus Mountains. In addition, the reports of relief workers who have been long on the field and of government officials carefully examined.

"In those few districts where the Armenian has been able to live in peace he has thoroughly demonstrated his ability to care for himself and his own," declares Chas. V. Vickrey, general secretary of the relief organization, who headed the Commission.

"Naturally industrious, with an inherent distaste for accepting charity, it has been the wholesale disorders of the past year that have prevented the people from realizing their cherished dream of a stable, independent government.

"Even in the present crisis, with starvation and cholera making such rapid inroads into the population that it seems impossible for any to survive, the people are struggling bravely against overpowering circumstances.

"Armenia is starving, not because her people are depending on outside aid for their existence, but because occupation of their land by hostile forces and the consequent interruption of normal occupation, have made them helpless.

Homeless Waifs at Erivan Railroad Station.

A Victim of Scabies, Nearly as Prevalent as Starvation.

"Time after time since the outbreak of the world war, the Armenians have made a brave attempt to cultivate their land. And time after time some new disorder has prevented them from gathering their crops or laid waste their fields before the grain has ripened and been gathered in.

"After two years of American relief activity it seemed last fall as if we would be able to reduce our program in Russian Armenia to the care of the children we had gathered into our orphanages. But then came the new invasion, crops were trampled down in the fields, live stock was carried off, and the peasant population were driven from their homes.

We may not be able to save all of the helpless refugees who are now crowded in this territory, but we certainly cannot desert the hundred thousand orphan children who are now in our orphanages or under our protection in the Caucasas, Anatolia, Cilicia and other devastated areas of the Near East. Last spring, when our supplies ran low, 3,000 of these children died out of a total of 20,000 in one of our orphanages. These children are absolutely dependent upon aid from America and will perish if our aid is with-held.

Next year, if further chaos can be avoided, possibly we will be able to reduce our program, but prompt action is necessary now or for thousands there will be no next year."

Empire Stock In 'Little Girl That God Forgot'

The former international circuit success, "The Little Girl God Forgot," will be the attraction for the coming week at the Empire theatre, Salem, by the popular stock Company of Players which has come to be an established institution with the theatre-goers of Greater Salem.

"The Little Girl God Forgot" is a play that cannot fail to have its appeal for everyone. Not a morality play or a play dealing with a sex problem in any sense of the word, it does at the same time bring vividly to the attention of every young woman the necessity of care in the selection of the men with whom she associates.

In this case the "villain" (Wm. Laveau) is Adrian Morris, who tells Lucy Barlow (Leona Hanson) and others with whom he is associated with that he is an artist. To everyone he seems just what he appears and looks as if there was nothing wrong with him. To the police, however, he is known as Tango, a very clever thief, whose sobriquet is gained because he "works" at fashionable gatherings.

Nancy Barlow (Ann Kingsley) though younger than her sister, looks after Lucy like a mother and tries to keep her away from Morris, who is desirous of using Lucy for a tool in committing robberies. Nancy is trying to keep her sister away and free for Tom Ralston, to whom the mother of the Barlow girls hoped the elder sister would be married. Tom (Al Luttringer) has gone to the Klondike and returns with his fortune made. He proves a decidedly strong instrument for good and there is general satisfaction when he marries. But it isn't Lucy he marries. Other characters are excellently portrayed by the members of the company and the women have a chance to wear some stunning gowns.

Slow But Sure Signs Mark Leather Trade Outlook For New Year

(By ENERGY)

We are entering the new year with hopes that the leather business will show improvement. To my way of thinking, this improvement should come slow, for by so doing it will come sure. It is natural to want a change for the better to gain such headway as to make all tanners busy. But all signs point to a slow return, and in the meantime the manufacturers can plan what is to be.

With the long time that the leather business has been slow, many concerns have felt the financial strain, and in some cases it will require better business or failures will follow. When one stops to think, it is to be wondered at that there has been so few business reverses. In most panics such as we have experienced, many in the past have taken the count. But I presume owing to war profits, all have weathered the storm, but can they do so much longer?

I believe there has been money made in the leather business the last year among a chosen few. What is the answer? It shows the versatility of that chosen few, and had many others had it, they, too ,could show a profit. I know of one case where a local manufacturer quit doing business when the change came, and instead tanned and finished, yes, sold the leather for other parties. Many hide men were loaded with hides and skins. Not being able to sell, they put this stock into leather, thus getting cash, No doubt a loss was registered, but this loss was far less than to have the hides damaged or if not damaged interest growing from month to month.

Hide and skin prices are some higher than a short few months ago. As is usual the case in an upset market, prices were far from normal so far as value went. For instance, one could purchase veals for less money than he could hides, when such veals are worth many cents a pound more. Calfskins have had no price on them. By that I mean that cars of these skins were shipped to Peabody, the tanner making his own price. As would be expected, there were many skins that went for glue stock in some cases 50 per cent., but what was left made good leather and no doubt sold at a profit. Thus it can be seen that with prices, particularly of raw material, being uncertain, values could only be determined by results after the finished product was sold.

So with the many radical changes that have taken place in the last three years, the tanner can look back and truly say, these years have been such as to wish they will not repeat. Business is a gamble anyway, but like a game of poker, the limit was taken off. Buying raw material required men with sporting blood in their veins and plenty of it, for there has been little or no sound reason why one should do business and expect a return these times. You will hear of this and that one say skins of all descriptions are low and should show a good profit in the leather. But most of them will shake their heads and refuse to buy only in small quantities.

I often think of the late A. B. Clark, whose reputation as a plunger in the raw market was known throughout the trade. What would he do today? While he did not always hit the nail on the head, he has bought skins on some low markets which yielded big money. A. B. Clark evidently had the sporting blood I write of above. I would expect if he was with us today, he would repeat, and when the other fellows were waiting to buy skins at the bottom, this man would have his storehouse well filled with sheepskins that could not lose. But after all the wise men is he who does buy at the right time, and no doubt while his judgment would be considered the best, there is always something beyond that judgment, the luck or what one may choose to call it, which finishes the job. No doubt we will hear later of some of the wise ones who have quietly purchased skins and are waiting to know how to finish them. By everything in sight, the raw market is at the bottom, and in hides the rise has been 100 per cent. in some cases.

The big fellows come out in the papers and tell us 1922 will show far better than last year. Predictions are cheap, but I am always ready to listen to those who are in close touch with business, for they know whereof they speak.

During this dull time, many experiments have been going on, to make better leather. All realize that only the best leather can make money today. So I am looking to see Peabody leather make a big showing in the market in 1922.

When Johnson and Murphy of Newark, N. J., cut their vamps only from the center of a calfskin, selling the remainder to others, it shows that the demand calls for a skin whose surface is good even to the flanks and heads. I believe the biggest improvement that can be made is to make the whole skin suitable for vamps.. I presume many will smile and tell me it cannot be done. But when satin leather was eprfected so a sto give this result, I contend smaller skins can be likewise. In fact, the tanners are bending their efforts in that direction, and judging from what I have seen, they are getting results. No calfskin in the hair has the grain separated from the flesh. It is done in the manufacture. Can it be stopped? I believe it can, and the trouble comes with the poorer skins, which must have special treatment.

The Armstrong Leather Co. have closed their factory doors. We do not know whether this is permanent, but let us hope not. Colonel Armstrong started business their in 1895 and the business has contineud to this year.

SHOE FACTORIES BEGINNING TO HUM

The last week of the year finds many factories producing more shoes and others preparing to resume operations on a more active scale. Some orders have been placed in various markets by big buyers previous to the Chicago convention. These buyers expect heavy buying at Chicago and believe that factory congestion will endanger delivery. They have, therefore, placed some business before the convention. It is generally conceded that buying will start early in January. Fewer extreme styles are predicted which should ease up congestion in the factories. The price feature continues to lead and will for some time. There has been some increase in the demand for boots. Wholesalers are filling sizing orders which are small, but more numerous. The St. Louis and middle western factories are generally busy. These factories are featuring price. The warning is sounded by many trade leaders that quality should not be abandoned and that the low-price wave can be carried too far! that it will work to the disadvantage of many manufacturers and wholesalers later.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

RECORD ROLL-OFF

The highest roll-off ever run in this city took place at the Victor alleys last Monday, when 104 roll-offs were bowled, with ten balls to each string.

Robert J. Feeley won the first prize of $10.40 with a total of 192, which is a record for this kind of roll-off. Andrew Dzuiniesky won second prize of $6.24 with a total of 188.

Francis Beck and Tom Ray tied for third prize of $4.16, each with a total of 187. They will roll-off for the purse.

COMMUNITY HOUSE

Peabody citizens may be depended on to rally to the cause of the Peabody Community House and from their purses give the needed funds with which to again open the doors of this wonderful civic house. No more serious calamity has been recorded in this city than the announcement some weeks ago that the Community House must close its doors for lack of funds with which to entertain hundreds of boys and girls.

A positive influence for good in this city, the Community House has played a strong hand in providing a helpful environment for many boys and girls who otherwise would have spent their time in idle pursuits. A non-sectarian institution, dedicated to all the boys and girls of the city, the work of this institution in its short few years has been of inestimable benefit to our citizenship.

The history of the Community House shows that as a civic center it has rendered a great service to Peabody and by its every effort has made for friendship and deserving support on the part of the citizens. This support will be forthcoming in a much bigger way we hope in the future and the pledge system of a yearly contribution from all citizens who will eagerly endorse the work, ought to put the institution on a sound financial basis for many years of prosperity in its helpful work among the boys and girls of our fair city.

BIG NEWS

Scattered items of local news and dispatches telling of increased production here, of greater sales there, of lessening unemployment, of a general stir of action among industries, of a widespread movement among all men to go out and get business—this is the greatest news of the year.

It is the most immediately vital news to us all—to our business, our families, our peace of mind, our hopes, our ambitions.

But because great news of international significance with a bigger appeal to the imagination is coming from Washington, the greatest news of the year is passing unnoticed to the man who is not accustomed to look for it, to read between the lines of everyday occurrences. In the meagre item here and there this news does not seem of great moment, but taken in the aggregate, added to by every hour, every day and every week, the total is convincing.

We have struck a business revival. We are on the road to normal production—sales, profits. We are headed for prosperity.

Men who head great industries realize the value of this business revival. They know it can be turned into an era of prosperity if the obstacles of pessimism, doubt, fear and inaction are removed. The nation-wide advertising prosperity campaign instituted by the Rotary Clubs of United States and Canada will give the revival impetus in all parts of the country that should show immediate and unmistakable results in every community in the United States.

1922 CITY COUNCIL

Peabody citizens have a right to expect that the new City Council which organized this week will be mindful of its obligations to render to the taxpayers an honest and zealous effort to promote the welfare of all the people of our city. The Enterprise extends to President Ryan felicitations on his election, and we trust that he will have a well-merited support in everything he does in the chair. We want to see harmony prevail between the Mayor and Council, the two offices working together on the vital things of concern to every taxpayer. We expect to find difference of opinion, but we believe the great majority of citizens want to have this an honest difference and not a biased and partisan ground for debate. Mayor Shea will probably be found making mistakes and his judgment is not to be held supreme in everything as against the opinions of the City Councillors. The bickering and personal abuse which marked the deliberations at times last year in the City Council evolved no little criticism and went far to bring about a different line-up at the polls last month. The people shall rule and the voters expressed themselves emphatically that they want at least a square deal for Mayor Shea. This, we firmly believe, he will get at the hands of the 1922 Council.

"BUSINESS GOES WHERE IT IS WELL TREATED"

Advertising makes a town, therefore the men who do the advertising of any town are the makers of it and should have the credit for doing so. In Childress, as in all towns, there are some non-advertisers—men who do business, or try to, with never a cent spent for advertising. These fellows get part of the benefit from their progressive neighbors' advertising; therefore in a sense, they are mooching on their neighbors' investment. When you come to town to spend your money you should always try to trade with the firm that spends its money freely for advertising, for that is the kind of people that makes your town and keeps it going. The Post believes this is done very largely. The people are rapidly learning that it pays to trade where they are invited and many will shun the store that does not think enough of their business to solicit same. "Business goes where it is well treated."—Childress (Tex.) Post.

Incorporated Business.

An incorporated business is one that is owned by a corporation, as distinguished from one owned by an individual or a partnership of individuals. In an incorporated business liability for debts extends only to the property owned by the corporation, whereas an individual doing business in his own name is responsible to the full amount of his possessions.

Avoid World's Blind Alleys.

The young man of today does not have to follow the job his father had unless it's the job best suited for him. The wise youth finds out what most appeals to him, and then sees to it that he's the best fellow in that business. Such fellows rise to success in spite of handicaps. Then the world wonders and applauds. It's folly to remain cooped up with limitations when you might just as well be enjoying the fullest liberty. If by chance you get into a blind alley see to it that you get out at once.—Grit.

SHOES AT PRE-WAR PRICES

RALSTON and EMERSON Shoes sold for $5.00 in 1914.

In going through my stock I discovered that I have more shoes than what I want and then again they are making some new styles and shapes for spring. I am anxious to sell as many shoes as I can of those I now have on hand, so that when spring comes I can start with the newest styles.

The prices of EMERSON or RALSTON Shoes today are from $8 to $10 a pair. I have marked mine down to $5.00, in order to move them, so here is your chance to secure a high grade, absolutely guaranteed pair of Shoes for $5.00. Do not miss this opportunity.

ROUND ABOUT

Councillor Nicholas Cullen of Ward 4, who took office this week as a City Father, received a handsome basket of roses from admiring friends in the Eastend. Later in the day he took the roses to the J. B. Thomas hospital, where they gave cheer to numerous of the patients.

* * *

Peabody people who cherish the memory of the great American Theodore Roosevelt are being urged to donate funds to help furnish the Roosevelt home in New York City. Today is the birthday anniversary of the once fighting Colonel.

* * *

Election of Mrs. Frank E. Bomer as the president of the Auxiliary of the American Legion Post in this city is a tribute to her whole-hearted zeal in promoting the worthy work of the organization. She has rendered invaluable aid to Mrs. Charles H. Cassidy, the retiring president, and mother of the only Peabody boy to fight with the Fifth Marines. Mrs. Bomer's son was in the Yd division overseas.

* * *

The joke Christmas tree held by the postal employes in this city last Tuesday night caused much mirth among the postoffice clerks and carriers, and even the messenger boys who hustle along the specials. Joseph Lawless as Santa had everything in his part and presented the gifts with glowing praise for effort made by the party. Mail superintendent, I think that is George Hammond's title, received five small banks in which to store away his surplus wealth. George accepted the profusion of gifts with one of his friendly smiles and everybody seemed happy.

Timothy B. Carroll, golf instructor, and Wilbur Hutchinson and J. J. Flaherty, three Peabody men, will marshal the golf enthusiasts at the Palm Beach Country Club for the rest of the winter. Hutchinson left Peabody Wednesday, going by boat from New York to Savannah.

Members of the Universalist church are eagerly awaiting the first recital on their new church organ which has been installed and now ready for the event. The organ removed has done duty for over 50 years. The man representing the makers of the new organ who tuned the new organ has been in the employ of the Hastings Organ Co. for the past 46 years.

* * *

I happened to reach the Wallis school last Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 shortly after the alarm of fire had sounded from box 316 and I observed that Principal Bowen was outside of the school yard marshaling the young Americas and sending them on their way home with careful instructions to keep away from the path of the fire apparatus.

* * *

Every city has its midway, and Walnut street fills the bill for Peabody. There we get the foreign ways of entertainment, and with it all there is little trouble. Coffee is the national drink of the Greeks and Turks, and with other nationalities, they rule the roost on Walnut street.

* * *

It always happens in cities where so many foreigners are, that when times are dull, fires are frequent. Such people get insurance from some source or other, although most of the solid companies refuse to take such risks. A few court cases will tend to stop setting fires, as many recently were no doubt set.

* * *

A real estate man from another city has been looking over the field in and about Peabody square, with the idea of purchasing and improving the property. If one would buy the corner of Chestnut and Lowell streets and erect an up-to-date building, all would give thanks. It is evident that such men see the possibilities and are ready to take a chance.

* * *

The old Winchester building now owned by Budgell-Harrigan Co. looks better after the operation of taking away several stories. While pronounced O. K. by some mechanics, it looked round shouldered.

* * *

We note many mark-down sales in the local stores. This means many will take advantage of the lower prices. We note the public are getting to the place where they refuse to longer pay the high war prices.

* * *

Ice is ready for cutting, and soon the ice man will harvest his crop for next summer. There should be plenty of labor to do the work this year, which has not been the case for some years past. Brown pond water has been condemned, but how about the ice? The owners can sell this ice to ice cream makers, however, as was done from Putnam's pond in Danvers last year.

* * *

The property recently purchased by George Morse from the Boston & Maine railroad will be greatly improved. Already the Morse's have erected a real building over the brook, and other improvements are contemplated. This land is valuable for business purposes.

* * *

We note the silent cops are kept on Main street where the cars are entered. Why not leave the others on Peabody square as well, for they are needed in winter as much as in summer.

* * *

We do not hear of any complaints of the car service. It looks to us as though people accept the small cars as being good enough. It certainly solved the problem of running the road without a loss, and no one can complain of not setting fair service, not automobile service to be sure.

* * *

A new organ has been installed in the Universalist church. The one taken out was purchased second handed in 1855, and can still be made tuneful. The new one installed at a cost of $5000 will add much to the church's attractiveness. A recital is talked of in the near future.

* * *

West Peabody has organized a club for social purposes. A pool table will help entertain, and it will serve to give the residents there more of a chance to enjoy themselves.

* * *

The many auto accidents at the junction of Andover and Prospect street brings out the question, can anything be done to remedy the trouble? Few places offer such a bad proposition.

* * *

H. F. Whidden and Son will start in the spring to erect a storehouse on the former Davis property, now owned by this concern. There has been talk of having a public storehouse there, but Harry Whidden tells us the building will be for his purposes only. There will be something like 150 feet frontage on the track side, thus making handling economical.

* * *

I observe that William P. Connery, Jr., son of ex-Mayor Connery of Lynn, is the newly appointed private secretary to Mayor McPhetres of the Shoe City. "Billy" is well known in Peabody, and counts many friends here who will wish him all success in his new field. He served as a color sergeant in the 101st Infantry overseas, and made himself a popular idol by his clever entertaining of hundreds of disabled veterans. He played no mean part in bringing about the election of Mayor McPhetres.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Essex:

RESPECTFULLY libels and represents MARGARET C. GRANT HARVEY, of Peabody in said county, that she was lawfully married to EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY whose last known address was Providence, in the State of Rhode Island, at Beverly, in said county, on the thirtieth day of April A. D., 1912; and thereafterwards your libellant and the said EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth, to wit, at Lynn in said county; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY being wholly regardless of the same, at said Lynn (1) on the eighteenth day of September, A. D. 1916, did utterly desert your libellant, which utter desertion has continued down to the date hereof, a period of more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; (2) that the said Edward John Grant Harvey being of sufficient ability grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses or neglects to provide suitable maintenance for your libellant, and has so refused or neglected to provide suitable maintenance for her for many years now last past, since said marriage, although of sufficient ability.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Edward John Grant Harvey.

Dated this second day of December A. D., 1921.

Margaret C. Grant Harvey.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Essex, ss. Superior Court, December 6, 1921.

Upon the foregoing libel, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY by causing an attested copy of her said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody in the county of Essex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of February next, and by mailing, forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at Providence, Rhode Island, an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon; that he may appear at said Salem within one month from said first Monday of February and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Attest, A. N. FROST, Clerk.

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

Wifey (showing new bonnet to hubby)—The milliner thought that flowers were the most becoming to me. I have always adored feathers, so we finally compromised by putting on some fruit.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Supreme Court within and for the County of Essex:

RESPECTFULLY libels and represents MARGARET C. GRANT HARVEY, of Peabody in said county, that she was lawfully married to EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY, whose last known address was Providence, in the State of Rhode Island, at Bevin said county, on the thirtieth day of April A. D. 1912; and thereafterwards your libellant and the said EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY lived together as husband and wife in this commonwealth, to wit, at Peabody in said county; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY being wholly regardless of the same, at said Lynn (1) on the eighteenth day of September, A. D. 1916, did utterly desert your libellant, which utter desertion has continued down to the date hereof, a period of more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; (2) that the said Edward John Grant Harvey being of sufficient ability grossly or wantonly and cruelly refuses or neglects to provide suitable maintenance for your libellant, and has so refused and neglected to provide suitable maintenance for her for many years now last past since their marriage, although of sufficient ability. Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Edward John Grant Harvey.

Dated this second day of December A. D., 1921.

Margaret C. Grant Harvey.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Essex, ss. Superior Court, December 6, 1921. Upon the foregoing libel, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said EDWARD JOHN GRANT HARVEY by causing an attested copy of her said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Peabody Enterprise, a newspaper printed in Peabody in said county of Essex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day hereof in this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of February next, and by mailing, forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at Providence, Rhode Island, an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon; that he may appear at said Salem within one month from said first Monday of February and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Attest, A. N. FROST, Clerk.

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

Attest,

A. N. FROST, Clerk.

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

THE ECONOMIC LAW

There is a law (that men call the Economic Law) which controls the movement of wealth, labor and money among men and nations. We do not know much about this law; we only know the results of our obedience or our disobedience to its rule. It seems something like the Law of Gravitation, which, while it holds the sun and stars and our earth in their proper places, will cause a broken leg or perhaps a broken neck to a man who falls from an open window. The Law doesn't cause his suffering; it is a good law; the man suffers because of his wrong doing. His innocent child may suffer because he left the window open.

The Economic Law is the Law of Public Interest,—the Law of Human Progress. When progress is stopped by an individual, or a class, or even by a nation,—stopped for a selfish purpose and not in the Public Interest,—then suffering results; sometimes suffering that affects millions of people.

The Economic Law therefore is the law of the greatest good to the greatest number. It has been followed (so far as it has been understood) all through the progress of mankind up to our present condition.

If we look back over the history of our nation,—or of any other nation,—we see that whenever laws, or customs, or regulations have been made to benefit any class to the distress of other classes, suffering has been the result,—famine, sickness, strife, disorganization, and, at times, even war.

We do not understand this law of the greatest good. We make all sorts of experiments. We are experimenting now to determine how to justly distribute the rewards of our labors.

How much shall be paid for brain power, for inventive qualities, for management? How much for the use of capital? How much for the labor of men's hands, for transportation, for the uses of government, for national progress?

Great questions;—difficult questions to answer. We cannot answer them until we understand that the Economic Law will only permit a solution which produces the greatest prosperity and happiness to all of the people. No group, or class, of combination can permanently profit at the expense of the rest of us.

We are beginning to learn that we cannot progress as a whole unless we progress as individuals; we must obey the Economic Law as single units if we are all to go forward. Otherwise we set up a class feeling and class wars against class, church against church, union against union, labor against capital, greed and graft become powerful, and there is trouble all round.

The Economic Law is inexorable; it controls all progress, all changes in society. In action it is slow and patient, but is absolutely just in working out the greatest good to the greatest number.

The basis of the Economic Law is Justice,—a Square Deal,—the justice that has learned that "my right" is a right of self expression, which shall bring the greatest good to the greatest number, without disturbing the "rights" of anyone else. We learn this very, very slowly, but we are changing our practice of justice all the time. Every year, every generation, we are growing bigger, better, more productive, wiser in our association with each other. It is a necessity. We must.

The Economic Law is founded upon Co-operation, working together,—the co-operative industrial effort of the individuals of a whole community, or a whole nation. In New York State in the year 1919, forty-eight centuries of work time were lost because men did not know how to co-operate. Think of it! One man's work for 4800 years. Entirely lost. All that time was paid for,—all that loss made up. By whom? By you and me; by the whole people; we are working harder and earning less. The Economic Law was broken; there is no escape from the results of a breaking of that law.

We are learning co-operation by trial, by suffering, and once in a while by success. In industry we are trying,—by one method or another,—to bring capital, labor, management and the public into a wise and profitable co-operation; trying to teach the profiteer that he is hurting his own future profits; trying to teach the slacker that he is spoiling his own job; trying to teach them Service.

The Economic Law depends upon Service;—the service of the individual to the community. It offers big rewards for a big service. It shows that the man who is industrious, thrifty, fair and square, shall enjoy the greatest prosperity, because, as he promotes his own interests he promotes the interests of everyone else. But, when he plays only the selfish game of "grab it all." then some one,—perhaps many, will suffer and in the end he will suffer also.

It is in industry that the Economic Law is being worked out,—in our day's work,—especially in the industry of America, for in no other country can such experiments be made in free expression, free speech, freedom of choice. The Economic Law can be worked out only in our industry; no other institution furnishes an equal opportunity.

By some people the Economic Law is called "The Golden Rule."

The Four Horsemen of Apocalypse at Strand Opening Sunday Night

Rex Ingram's $1,000,000 production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," made for Metro, is announced by the Strand theatre beginning Sunday, Jan. 8th, and will continue to Monday and Tuesday only, twice daily, afternoon and evening only. This will be the first showing here of the screen version of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's novel that has been acclaimed in New York, Boston and Los Angeles as marking a new epoch in the development of motion pictures. At its New York opening people paid $10 a seat.

"The Four Horsemen" is the supreme expression of the Great War. Certainly no novel has stirred the universal appeal created by the Ibanez masterpiece. The monumental task of transferring it to the screen was accomplished by June Mathis, who made a scenario that from all accounts has preserved the force of the original and in many incidents heightened it.

Readers of the novel will recall that the story opens on the Argentine ranch of old Madariaga, whose territories are as extensive as those of the great independent barons of feudal times. And Madariaga rules with feudal power. A rioting, roystering despot, he is filled with Castilian pride of family and yearns for a male child to carry on his tradition. His two daughters have married ranch employees—one French and the other German. Madariaga's Latin antipathy to the German son-in-law brings with it a dislike of his half-German grandchildren, but when a son is born to the Frenchman, Desnoyers, the old man finds his dream realized. The boy, Julio, is selected as heir to the huge estate and is brought up as a spoiled prince of the realm. As a young man Julio becomes the companion of Madariaga's debauched adventures in Buenos Ayres tango resorts. But Madariago dies suddenly without making a will and the German branch of the family finds itself sharing the estate equally with the Desnoyers. With this sudden wealth, the two families leave the Argentine for Europe.

The Desnoyers settle in Paris, and Julio, an expert tango dancer, becomes the sensation of the fashionable dance place. He meets a fascinating little society woman, Marguerite Laurier, and the two of them are swept into a reckless love affair that takes no count of Marguerite's elderly husband. Their butterfly mentalities do not even respond at first to the sudden shock of war that breaks about them. It is 1914 and the Germans are advancing toward Paris. Marguerite is first awakened to the realization of tremendous events. She joins the French nursing force and sacrifices her love for Julio in order to be the constant companion of her husband, who is blinded in battle. Julio, left without the stimulation of frivolous attractions, hears the call of duty and enlists in the French army, where he meets death at the hands of his German cousin when the two face each other in a trench raid.

Through it all are galloping the four horsemen, spoken of by St. John in the Book of the Apocalypse—the grim figures of Conquest, War, Famine and Death.

OTHER PICTURES

"Big Happiness," with Dustin Farnum in the stellar role, will be the feature attraction on the bill the Strand will offer for today and Saturday. "Big Happiness" is a dramatic story with a wholesome moral. It was adapted from the widely read book of the same name by the famous author who signs himself "Pan." The plot treats of twin brothers who love the same woman.

One of the brothers, a grouchy, money-maddened financier, is called away suddenly to look over important business matters. In order to hide his movements from a group of unfriendly financiers, he persuades his twin brother, who is his exact image, to impersonate him during his absence, notwithstanding the fact that he had just married a charming young woman. He is reported as being killed in an accident and the brother is in a quandary. He fears to tell his wife and keeps up the deception. The working out of the plot is ingenious and the picture ends in a most satisfactory manner.

The final chapter of Ann Little's serial play, "The Blue Fox," and Jimmie Aubrey in a comedy entitled "The Applicant," will be the other attractions for today.

AMONG BEADED BLOUSES

Here is a beaded blouse which will compel many an admiring glance wherever it is worn. For the theater, dinner party or any other place where splendor-loving women undertake to look their best, it is sure to triumph. Those two rivals in beautiful fabrics —crepe de chine and georgettes—have joined forces in this blouse. Imagine it in sapphire blue crepe de chine with beads in sapphire blue and steel and falling flounces on the sleeves made of black georgette similarly beaded.

TWILIGHT LODGE

Twilight Lodge of Odd Ladies will hold a meeting in their hall Jan. 11, when all members are requested to be present who have not taken the pink degree. There will be a joke Xmas tree and all members are urged to bring two jokes and their penny bags.

Greeks' Christmas Starts Tomorrow

Hellenes of Peabody are making elaborate plans for the celebration of Christmas and coming of the Messiah, which will be observed tomorrow, Jan. 7. The Greek Christmas, according to the Greek calendar, takes place 13 days after that of the Romans, which we follow.

The Christmas celebration among the Greeks is one of the most picturesque among the foreign population, and in addition one of merry-making in the families of all residents.

Services will be held for three hours starting at 3 o'clock in the morning in the Greek Orthodox church, English street. It is preceded by the old custom of all members of the church carrying lighted candles through the streets to the place of worship.

West Peabody

The Boys' Club held a dance in Schoolhouse hall Monday evening.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. William Sheen on Newbury street Wednesday.

A Sunday school meeting was held at the West church Tuesday evening. The officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Many will be interested to know that a former West Peabody young man, Stephen Stickney, principal of the Center school, will speak at the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening at 6.30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to come. Mr. Stickney's topic will be "Utilizing Opportunities."

The annual business meeting of the West church was held at the church Thursday evening.

Miss Evelina Martin returned to Jackson College after a short vacation at her home on Pine street.

Melvin Durkee has purchased a new Ford touring car.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kogut are receiving congratulations over the birth of a son.

Harold Cann is ill at his home on Pine street.

Curtis Rankin has returned to Tufts College after a pleasant vacation at his home on Pine street.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner MacKenzie of Cliftondale spent the holiday with his sister, Mrs. Lewis Felt, on Broad street.

Mrs. Esther Gilson and her daughter Charlotte have returned to their home in Gardiner, Me., after spending a few days with Mrs. Lewis Felt.

Miss Louise Broderick spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Albert Gifford of Danvers.

Many children have enjoyed the past week sliding and skiing.

The installation of officers will be held Friday, January 6, at the West Peabody Grange. The following officers will be installed by Deputy George Preston of Hamilton and Wenham, assisted by Mrs. Preston. The officers to be installed are: Master, Gus L. Fisher; overseer, Edward L. Croughwell; lecturer, Everett E. White; steward, Howard Johnson; assistant steward, Newell Moulton; chaplain, Edward E. White; treasurer, Levi Hadley; secretary, Gladys Durkee; gate keeper, Lewis Felt; Ceres, Louise Broderick; Pamona, Hilda Monson; Flora, Lillian Rankin; lady assistant steward, Maude McDonald; executive committee, George Thurell, Harry W. Rankin, Frederick B. Wyman. Miss Helen Phillips will sing. There will be two woman assistants accompaying Mrs. George Preston.

A very successful New Year's party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stocker Sunday. The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. James A. Willey of Swampscott, Mr. and Mrs. Dean A. Munsey and two children, Lois and Franklin, of Swampscott, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Moulton and daughter Marion, also Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Stocker of Swampscott, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Gorham and two children, Eleanor and Frank, of Brooklyn.

High School Notes

The Commercial students met in the senior commercial room (Room 10) Wednesday at recess to organize their club. The officers elected were: President, Arthur Maguire; secretary, Pauline Wilson; treasurer, Helen Dorgan; assistant treasurer, Francis Kilderry. The club hopes to develop school spirit and create a friendly feeling among the students.

Henry A. King received a paper Tuesday from Florida, written by Professor Bailey of Tufts College. Mr. Bailey made a speech of Prof. Einstein's Theory before a Woman's Club in Miami. Mr. King read the article to the Physics classes and explained the theory.

The senior class held a dance at the Keefe school Friday evening. The hall was well filled and the seniors report a successful affair. Streamers of gold and blue, the class colors, were draped from the center of the ceiling to the ends of the hall and festooned around the stage. During the dance balls of confetti were thrown and streamers of blue, gold and white crepe ribbon. Refreshments were served at intermission. Music was furnished by Potter's orchestra. Miss Masterson, Miss Duggan and Mr. Higgins of the faculty were present. The seniors wish to thank all who helped to make the dance a success.

A Peabody alumnus asks the Enterprise why the high school does not get together a hockey team and a basketball five? The question is also asked why a debating society is not organized? The Enterprise puts these questions up to the high school students.

The first train wholly occupied by women in the history of railroad travel was that chartered by a Massachusetts delegation to attend the women's congress held in Chicago at the time of the World's fair in that city.

Atonement?

When William Butler Yeats was a boy, his family moved from Dublin to Bedford Park, as he relates in the Dial. Yeats says, incidentally, that he was not much of a churchgoer, but that he must have gone a few times because he remembers very clearly a wooden sign which hung in the church porch: "The congregation are requested to kneel during prayers; the kneelers are afterwards to be hung upon pegs provided for the purpose."

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

WITH THE FORK

No rule is so general, which admits not some exceptions.—Robert Burton.

ABOUT the fork centers a good deal of controversy, and on this subject the well-bred English person always disagrees with the well-bred American who is as yet uninfluenced by British notions. The Englishman insists that the fork, when used with the meat course, should never be taken from the left hand. and that it should be held always tines down; while the average well-bred American sees no harm in shifting it to his right hand when he is using it to convey food from his plate to his mouth, and in turning it tines uppermost when he finds that most convenient. When he does this, the Britisher says he is using his fork like a shovel, and this to him is unpardonable.

The fact seems to be that the British mode is spreading and that in many, if not most, boarding schools, where good manners are insisted on as much as French or English and rather more than arithmetic and geography, the British way with the fork is insisted upon. But remember that there is authority for both methods, and that many well-bred persons are none the less well bred because they cling to the American method.

But however you use your fork, see that you don't clutch it too greedily, and likewise see that you do not cram the fork with food with the aid of the knife. It is extremely awkward and bad manners to use the fork as a masher in eating potatoes and other vegetables. You should simply detach a bit of the potato by means of the tines of the fork, and carry this to the month without crushing it between the tines. Never put more on the fork than you can take in one mouthful. Some persons you know take a large morsel on the fork at once, and then take it in two mouthfuls at once. This is a small matter, but it is one of those little things that constitute bad table manners.

Never use the fork in order to reach for anything that is not on your own plate. If food is served to you on serving dishes, there should be service spoons or forks, and you should help yourself by means of these just as you would in your own home. If the bread plate is out of reach the very ill-mannered person sometimes reaches it by means of his fork.

Some persons forget that when the fork is not actually in use conveying food to the mouth that it must be laid across the plate. It should not simply be laid with the prongs resting on the plate, much less should it be held in mid-air. Some persons, when they wish butter on potatoes or other vegetables, take it from their butter plates by means of the fork. If there is no butter knife, then the regular knife should be used. On no account should the fork be used for this purpose.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Both eyes destroyed by American shrapnel during the World war, Franz Roheol, who served the Kaiser, now is kept from suffering by an American doughboy's discarded suit of "civvies." Someone bought the clothing at a rummage sale held by the American Legion post of Maspeth, Long Island, and sent it to a woman acquaintance in Germany. She gave it to the needy German soldier.

"Now I can use the little pension the government gives me for food and need not go hungry," the former enemy soldier says in a letter of thanks to the Legion post. Ex-Soldaten Roheol lives in Ekren, Germany.

—*—

American soldiers and marines who won the coveted congressional medal of honor during the war will receive the Italian war cross, officials of the American Legion have been informed by the Italian embassy. Gen. Vaccari, chief of staff of the embassy, already has begun distribution of the medal. Steps have been taken by the Legion to also obtain the cross for naval men who received the congressional medal.

—*—

Members of the American Legion all over the country hereafter will be kept informed of what congress and the government are doing for ex-service men through a weekly bulletin issued by the Legion's legislative committee. The bulletins will be sent to all Legion newspapers and publications and state officials.

—*—

More than 16,000 former service men are suffering from tuberculosis in Denver, according to C. J. Harris, director of the American Legion's service division, who is making an investigation of the care of these men. The situation is getting beyond the control of civic authorities and adequate hospital facilities are a pressing need, Mr. Harris reports.

—*—

Marriage after the entrance of American into the World war did not constitute an attempted avasion of the draft so as to deprive the service man of a bonus claim under the Minnesota statute, the Minnesota supreme court has ruled.

—*—

Parents or wives of Americans who died overseas during the World war and whose bodies have not been returned would have an opportunity to visit the graves of their deceased at government expense in a resolution introduced into congress by Representative Hamilton Fish, New York, a member of the American Legion. The resolution directs the secretary of war to provide transportation to American cemeteries overseas.

—*—

A request that the United States government be asked to negotiate an agreement with Great Britain for reciprocal treatment of disabled war veterans, traveling or residing in either country, will be considered at the next meeting of the legislative committee of the American Legion. Such an agreement is in effect between this country and Canada.

—*—

Neutrality of Wyandotte post of the American Legion, Kansas City, in the strike of packing house employes has been commended by the Central Labor Body in a letter signed by the president of the organization. The labor body is composed of representatives of all organized crafts.

—*—

Gen. Armando Diaz, commander of the Italian armies during the war, was a casualty following his tour of the United States as guest of the American Legion. When he arrived in Naples, it was found that he had sprained a finger from the cordiality of the thousands of American handshakes. At the Italian embassy, Washington, he shook 700 hands in one evening.

—*—

American Legion members are urged to pay poll taxes, register and make no attempt to dodge jury duty as part of the activities for 1922 in instructions prepared by Alvin M. Owsley, director of the Legion's Americanism commission. The Legion men are urged to make full use of the franchise and prevent miscarriages of justice under the jury trial system.

—*—

All American Legion posts in Missouri have been called upon by Dr. Harry F. Parker, state commander, to back a $60,000,000 bond issue for the constructiin of hard roads. Ex-service men will have preference in employment.

Would Retan Sole Leather

and probably much more leather is being made here that can be improved by a process like this.

Some tanners often have discolored and poor leather which they cannot sell except at a loss. In such cases it would seem to the writer that a retanning process would be of great benefit to them. Then again, considerable quantities of the hardest shank or skin insole stock would actually be thrown away in some cases. All that kind of stock can be flexed up and put into good condition by this process.

Of all the sole leather used in men's shoes, hemlock is the most discolored; and it seems to the writer that factories using such leather can improve it in their own sole leather rooms. They can take these black hemlock soles and make them look like oak soles, and it is all done at a very small cost to the manufacturer. At the present time, too, the buyers are more particular than ever about the color of the outsole. They want to see the grain of the leather, and because of this, they do not allow the finishers to stain the bottom or put on a paint finish that will hide the bottom. This makes the process all the more advantageous to the shoe manufacturer.

A change is going on all the time, but this must bring improvement. The greatest improvement, however, either in sole or upper leather, is in the wear. Any tanner who will get out a first-class upper leather, or sole leather, can be sure of a good market and a steady output as long as he continues to maintain his standard and quality.

WALLACE NUTTING AT WOMAN'S CLUB

One of the most interesting events on the Peabody Woman's Club calendar will take place on Friday evening, January 13, when Wallace Nutting, the most popular of the present day artists, will give an illustrated talk on "New England Homes and Their Furnishings." This talk is sure to prove most interesting and instructive to the members of the club and their friends and is being anticipated with a great deal of pleasure. The club orchestra will furnish music for the evening. Guest tickets may be obtained at the door.

Mrs. Walter L. Williams attended the civics committee meeting of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs at the Hotel Vendome, Boston. Mrs. Williams is secretary of the state committee and proved one of the most capable presidents the Peabody Woman's Club ever had.

ELKS XMAS TREE TOMORROW EVE

Peabody Elks have a big night carded for tomorrow evening in their lodge rooms in the O'Shea building with a joke Christmas tree, a smoke talk and an entertainment that is bound to please every member of the Antler herd. There will be a collation. Exalted Ruler Joseph A. Ryan has been aided by a zealous committee which has had charge of the program. It will be a humdinger and every Elk in the city will miss something big if he doesn't attend. The program will open at 8 with a bang.

Mass. Police Retard Efforts Of Local Body

Competition between the Mass. Police Relief Association and the Peabody Police Relief Association has unwittingly interfered with local support for the home police in their first annual ball scheduled for next month. The state organization sent in a paid solicitor presumably to get donations from the local manufacturers, and when the Peabody police committee began their rounds not a few of the local manufacturers supposed they had already given to the local unit. In numerous cases the manufacturers made a double donation, which will not be possible next year because the state organization is not entitled to the first support in Peabody over the heads of the local police, who now have their own organization.

Marshall Haines in his inimitable style and is said to have caused much merriment to all except the recipient of the gift.

Francis Trask of Boston spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Barnes of King street.

Vera Penley of Maine was the guest of Evelyn Hall over the week-end.

A good story is told of a youngster who attended the children's entertainment at the Peabody Woman's club last Saturday to see Chet Potter in modern magic. Wishing at one time, a handkerchief for one of his tricks, the entertainer appealed to his audience for the needed article only to have the youngster borrow one from his aunt and volunteer its use. Chet to all appearances deliberately proceeded to burn it up to the utter consternation of the little fellow who climbed upon his seat in his excitement. It is unnecessary to say that the handkerchief was later returned to its owner intact much to the kiddies' relief.

Skating Ponds For the Kiddies

Beside the regular routine business, the discussion of the playground situation in general, new locations for at least two playgrounds and permanent improvements, the playground commission voted to establish two skating ponds for the kiddies in localities where there is a demand for the same if it can be done at a moderate expense.

A communication was read from J. C. Gilbert of the State Department of Civil Service and Registration, stating that all who desire to be considered for future employment as playground workers should fill out an application and return it at once, in order that they may be notified for the examination.

Application blanks may be secured by writing for the same to the Department of Civil Service, State House, Boston 9. Further information may be secured from Chairman H. A. King of the Playground Commission.

Lynn, Salem and Beverly Rotarians will be invited to bring over their wives.

BARNES HEADS NEW CHAMBER

Clarence W. Barnes, Councillor from Ward 6, was unanimously elected president of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon. Mark E. Kelley was elected vice president, and Charles S. Batchelder, cashier of the Warren National bank, was elected treasurer. The board voted to hold a forum meeting open to all citizens to consider improving the fire department equipment. It was the sense of the directors that a new ladder truck should be purchased and all firekit motorized. This forum meeting will be called sometime next week. The directors voted to delay further appeals for membership until after the Community House project is attained.

SHEEHY CONFIRMED CHIEF ASSESSOR

Patrick J. Sheehy, expressman, ex-selectman and former candidate for Mayor, was confirmed as principal assessor by the City Council last night by a vote of 6 to 4 and would have assumed his new job today, relieving Chairman Jere J. Quirk, had not Councillor McKeen given notice that at the next meeting he will move reconsideration of the confirmation. This technicality gives Chairman Quirk two more weeks' salary as chairman. The salary is $2000.

The confirmation came following Chairman Quirk's fervent plea to the Council to keep a qualified man in this important job and after some debate on the part of the Councillors. The six men to vote for Sheehy were Jones, who was won over in the last few days, Barry, Sullivan, Cullen, Eagan and President Ryan. The four voting against confirmation were Barnes, Craig, Duggan and McKeen.

Mr. Craig got in a motion to postpone action two weeks to permit the Council considering reduction of inflated city salaries and argued that this should be done in a readjustment to reduce the tax rate. Mr. Barry moved an amendment to confirm. Mr. Duggan made an amendment to the amendment to postpone action until the last meeting of the Council next December. The amendment went down, 8 to 2, McKeen joining with

THREE BIG STARS AT STRAND

Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter in the Paramount Picture..."Don't Tell Everything!"

As its feature attraction for today and Saturday, the Strand announces the new Paramount picture, "Don't Tell Everything," which includes in its cast three of the most popular names in filmdom. They are Wallace Reid, idol of thousands of movie fans; Gloria Swanson, the appealing beauty who won so many admirers in "The Great Moment" and other features, and Eliott Dexter, who has been a popular leading man for years.

"Don't Tell Everything" was written especially for this notable trio by Lorna Moon, and is a sparkling comedy and a fascinating satire on engaged couples. It tells of the love that is in the heart of a young sporting man; a dainty society girl, and the other woman, who is an expert with the rod, gun and other kindred sports. This last girl is one of the pally sort, and when she sees that her male chum is about to be ensnared by another she exerts herself to the utmost to spoil the match. There is a real polo game, a scene in a luxurious mountain lodge, some love scenes which are most entrancingly real, a lot of rollicking yet wholesome comedy and withal the spirit of the out of doors. The climax is a complete surprise and the picture cannot help but please with such a wonderful cast and story. One of Fontaine Fox's "Toonerville Trolley" comedies and Eddie Polo in "The Secret Four" will be the other numbers on the program for today.

Bert Lytell in "The Misleading Lady" will top the double feature bill the Strand will offer for Sunday evening. The art of winning a woman by cave-man principles provides the idea behind "The Misleading Lady," which is an adaption of the stage success of the same name. Will Rogers in "The Guile of Women" will be the second number on the bill for Sunday. Will Rogers has just signed a new contract with the Paramount company and in the future will release thru this concern.

The basic theme for "The Child Thou Gavest Me," the special attraction the local playhouse will offer on Monday and Tuesday, is heart interest. To say that "The Child Thou Gavest Me" is appealing and soul-stirring is not only taking advantage of an overworked phrase, but is doing it advisedly and with full justification. A person who could sit thru this picture without being touched by the plaintive little figure of a boy who lives in a house divided and the situations which naturally arise from a condition of this sort is pretty near incapable of emotion. Little Richard Headrick, who plays the part of the son, is only four years old, but he gives a startling performance. Not for a moment does one think that the boy is being directed before the camera; he goes thru his part—and it is a considerable one—in a remarkably natural manner. Richard appears in half of the picture, and one constantly wishes to see more of him.

The remainder of the cast is of all-star calibre, Barbara Castleton, Lewis Stone, William Desmond and Winter Hall being featured. All in all, it is an excellent picture, and one which any person will enjoy.

On Tuesday evening the Peabody Lodge of Elks have secured the Strand and will give a special program of musical entertainment together with "The Child Thou Gavest Me." There will be put one show Tuesday evening, starting at 8 p. m.

Bakeman Has Strong Plea For District

Editor of the Enterprise:

I would like to suggest what seem to me to be three imperative needs of South Peabody for this present year. As I view it no section of the city has a right to ask anything that will be a detriment to the city as a whole but it seems to be equally true that the entire community is benefited when the legitimate needs of each section are taken care of.

South Peabody needs first: That there should be no unnecessary delay in taking the "Bushby" field for playground purposes and for a school house site for future use. The owners have placed what seems to be a reasonable price on the property and sound business sense as well as a thought for the physical welfare of the coming generation demands that the field be purchased.

South Peabody needs second: That there should be established here a branch of the Public Library. The Public Library is the right arm of the public school and if the welfare of our city depends in large part upon the intelligence of its voters then the habit of reading must be encouraged. The librarian and trustees of the Peabody Institute are anxious to establish branches both here and in West Peabody but have not the funds. The city ought to appropriate enough money to enable the library trustees to make their privileges accessible to all our citizens.

South Peabody needs third: That relief be given to her people in the matter of transportation. There ought to be either a straight ten-cent fare to Lynn or a ten ride ticket for a dollar and there ought to be a straight five-cent fare for the mile and a quarter ride down Foster street to the Square on either the Lynn or Lynnfield street lines.

To oblige the many people who travel every day to Lynn to pay a fifteen-cent fare or else keep two dollars tied up in two different tickets is not a square deal. South Peabody has been discriminated against here and the city officials ought not to stop this side of the State House in their efforts to relieve the situation.

I pledge my support to the fair demands of every section of our city and in return I ask only for a fair hearing for the needs of South Peabody.

Yours very truly,
ROBERT A. BAKEMAN.

HEBREW LADIES ELECT OFFICERS

The installation of the Y. W. H. A. took place Monday evening at the Y. M. H. A. headquarters when Miss Minnie Newburg of the Lynn Y. W. H. A. installed the following officers: President, Miss Fannie Paitchel; vice president, Miss Rose Gordon; recording secretary, Miss Frances Beres; financial secretary, Miss Lillian Bikozsky; treasurer, Miss Rose Ankeles; trustees, Misses Mary Gordon and Sadie Ballen. Members of the Y. M. H. A. were present and remarks were made by the newly elected officers and Miss Newburg. A prophecy of the members written by Miss Jennie Cohen was read and caused much amusement. Jack Leftin in a singing specialty was a treat. Miss Goldie Lipschutz of Salem presided at the piano. Refreshments were served.

Empire Stock Will Present 'Two Orphans'

The Luttringer Stock Company will present as next week's attraction at the Empire theatre, Salem, the immortal stage classic "The Two Orphans" which for more than two generations has charmed theatregoers in all lands and climes. "The Two Orphans" has been translated into all known languages and generations of playlovers have alternately laughed and wept through the adventures of the two girls, Henriette and Louise the blind sisters. The production of "The Two Orphans" at this time carries a special significance, for it has been made the basis of D. W. Griffith's film masterpiece, "Orphans Of The Storm" which is at present enjoying an extended run at the Tremont theatre, Boston.

The story of "The Two Orphans" is set in the days just previous to the French revolution and the plot in brief carries the two girls into Paris, to consult a specialist in the hope that he may restore the eyes of Louise to their old time brightness. Expecting to be met by a cousin who is not there they become separated and fall into evil hands, their great faith and pure innocence accomplishes the regeneration of more than one poor abandoned fallen creature and the story of their viccissitudes is one of the most moving and appealing that the stage has ever known.

"The Two Orphans" has a strong human nature appeal in the troubles and terrors of the two girls and the members of the company are all cast in strong and appealing roles. A number of extra players will augment next week's cast which calls for a large number of capable players. The stage settings that have been especially gotten up are indescribably beautiful particularly the view of Paris, showing the tall and majestic tower of Notre Dame in the distance and the setting of the scene outside the illuminated church is also deserving of especal mention.

WILL SKETCH LIFE OF GEO. PEABODY

At the January meeting of the Peabody Historical Society next Tuesday evening, Prof. Charles Peabody of the Anthropological Section of the Peabody Museum of Harvard University, will speak on "George Peabody and Prehistoric Archaeology; the Progress of a Science." As Prof. Peabody is a relative of George Peabody, it is hoped that a large number of citizens will attend and pay tribute to the memory of George Peabody for whom the city was named.

A group of young girls met with Miss Audrey Macdonald Tuesday evening to form a Camp Fire. The following officers were elected: President, Dora Lame; treasurer, Louise Small; secretary, Dorothy Danforth; feast committee, Lillian Rankin, chairman.

George Millet Chosen Leader By Unitarians

George L. Millett of the First Unitarian church has been appointed associate regional director for the national committee of the Unitarian church membership campaign to supervise its program for a 25 per cent. increase in membership, in the cities included in the Essex conference. Mr. Millett will work with Rev. Howard C. Gale of Beverly, in organizing and checking up the work in this area. Mr. Millett and his associates will report on campaign organization and progress in Beverly, Gloucester, Haverhill, Lawrence, Lynn, Marblehead, Newburyport, North Andover, Peabody, Danvers and Salem.

With Chief Justice Taft as honorary chairman, Unitarians of North America have entered upon this campaign as the newest step in "the second era of Unitarianism in America," following the financial canvass of last year when approximately $2,400,000 was subscribed for a religious, educational and spiritual campaign. The Unitarian Laymen's League which furnished the impetus for the financial canvass is now, through 259 chapters, keeping a record of church attendance as its contribution to the movement for increased membership.

CRAIG'S CANDIDACY STIRRED CITY HALL MACHINE TO HEROICS

An incident of the recent Ward Councillors' election which came to light this week was the intimation from some source or other that Mrs. Jessie Newhall, assistant city clerk, might lose her job if David Craig was elected Councillor from Ward 5. There must have been some such a report during the campaign for Mrs. Newhall got in touch with some of her friends in Ward 5 and told them her job was at stake if Mr. Craig won. Her appeal for votes against Craig got to the ears of some of the Craig workers and a committee called on the young matron who is still doing service in the city clerk's office. There had been a threat all right, or at least an intimation which induced Mrs. Newhall to engage in an active campaign for votes against Mr. Craig. Every vote counted it was probably argued and Mr. Craig sure did look like a hard man to beat. Craig won a decisive victory which was helped along undoubtedly by the vicious propaganda spread about him, voters in some instances being said to have changed their minds in favor of the new Councillor.

Councillor David Craig

Apropos of Councillor Craig, here's another bit of interesting reading. Craig was induced to run largely through the unsolicited efforts of none other than Archibald A. Mackinnon, prominent citizen of Ward 5 and long a worker for G. O. P. principles in this city. Unbeknown to Mr. Craig, Mackinnon went to Frank C. Lummus, the contractor, and asked him to request Charlie Hills of the News to put Craig's name in print early in the week. So Craig's name was announced as being urged to enter the lists. Following the election Charlie took all the credit in his exclusive announcement not even mentioning Frank Lummus, resident of Ward 6 and of course not suspecting that Archie Mackinnon was the man behind the gun and responsible.

Craig's election was forecasted by the Enterprise but not by the News. On paper good reliable George Barnaby should have won because of his popularity, but his defeat came about by over anxiety on the part of some of his supporters who failing to find any decent ground for assailing Craig applied the red torch or something equally as unsportsmanlike and counted it would defeat Craig. The Duggan-Dowd machine at City Hall didn't want Craig to win and someone messed the Ward 5 election all up.

* * *

Getting back to the assistant city clerk, Mrs. Jessie Newhall, it is probably true that Mr. Craig doesn't know yet that she holds down a nice job at the expense of all us taxpayers whom she is in duty bound to treat alike. Furthermore, she's probably in no immediate danger of losing her job for she is most valuable to the office because of her long experience. While Mr. Craig has not officially expressed himself, it is dollars to pilot crackers from the police station, that Mr. Craig will see she gets a square deal to which she is entitled even if she did get frightened during those recent election days, and do her "womanest" to beat him.

Nobody will have to help Craig over the top. He'll be up there in the lead, with both ears open and a challenge ready for every "goldurned" schemer who wants to throw a grenade into the trench.

* * *

Let's take a look again at this man Mackinnon. He's a dealer in scrap and new metal and is known throughout the county, even into Jim Curley's bailiwick, as a man who has a mind of his own and not afraid to express himself. He has trotted out for the public gaze more than one political office holder. Some of his pickings have won and some have lost, but the Mackinnon smile has never waned. It was this man Mackinnon who brought Ex-Councillor Walter H. Brown into the political ring, back in the days when it looked possible to elect him as a town father to give the loyal West Peabody Republicans representation.

Brown, who has just retired from the Council, may not know this. Yes, it was Mackinnon who picked Brown and got the backing of the old town committee to boost him. Brown made a remarkable showing when he ran for selectman and was defeated only because he was not well enough known. When he was introduced to run as Councillor he loomed so big that no opposition was made and he had no contest. Mr. Brown is not known to have helped Mackinnon's choice for Ward 5 Councillor last month. Following the election Messrs. Brown and Craig met, chatted and parted. Craig could not be shown why he should vote against President Ryan.

According to City Engineer Frank Emerson there is no ground for prohibiting ice being cut on Brown's pond. It is a fact that the State Board of Health some years ago recommended that the city of Peabody stop taking water from this pond at least during certain periods of the year. State inspectors from the Board of Health department are on duty at the pond to prevent any poor ice being harvested. A paragraph in this column last week concerning the water in Brown's pond had for its ground the report of state officials some years ago. For the benefit of their customers the ice people might procure a statement from the State Board of Health. The Enterprise will gladly publish it.

Tenth Birthday of West Peabody Grange

West Peabody Grange will celebrate its tenth anniversary Wednesday evening, Jan. 25, with a very interesting program of entertainment and a banquet at the West schoolhouse hall. Ernest H. Gilbert, Master of the State Grange, and Rev. Natt Scott, pastor of the West church, will be the principal speakers. Miss Bessie C. Taylor will give a history of the organization and its accomplishments. The Rackliff orchestra will furnish music for the banquet and dancing which will conclude the program. The committee having the plans in charge consists of William B. Moore, Harry W. Rankin, Perley C. Goodale, Mrs. Lewis Felt, Miss Bessie Taylor and Miss Grace Fischer.

FOR THE KIDDIES

The future welfare of hundreds of Peabody boys and girls is at stake with the idleness of the Peabody Community House which is closed for lack of funds. Because of this fact the campaign which starts tomorrow to secure a public subscription merits the hearty and generous support of all the citizenship of Peabody. Boys of every home in Peabody are welcomed to the recreation center provided by this institution and the closing of the house was a deplorable hardship on the youth of our fair city. Let's get behind the committee of citizens who are directing the campaign for funds and help to open the doors of the Community House. Let's do it for the sake of the kiddies who are anxiously waiting for the doors to open.

IMPOSE ON PEABODY

The trolley car management is losing friendly support of Peabody people by its methods of emptying and filling its cars in Peabody Square. The present system is for passengers to board the car near the four traffic posts in front of the national bank building and at rush hours a badly congested street is the result with hazards to people and passing autos. An equally unsatisfactory rule obtains whereby the trolley cars arriving from Salem unload passengers in front of Pickering's coal office, entirely blocking auto traffic frequently for several minutes. There ought to be some other place in Peabody Square where the trolley cars could handle their traffic with less inconvenience to general travel. There are several good places if the trolley people really wish to concern themselves with the comforts of Peabody patrons. There is also much adverse criticism directed at the trolley company for collecting fares in Peabody Square. Salem prohibits the railway from collecting fares in Town House Square for the obvious reason that traffic is impeded. Peabody is made the goat. Refusal on the part of the trustees to carry out their pledge to restore the Lynn cars to Washington street has shaken the faith of Peabody people in the sincerity of the trustees. Peabody has a series of just complaints at the trolley concern.

SKATING PONDS

Announcement that the Playground Commission at its meeting this week voted to prepare skating places about the city for the benefit of the Young Americas will find the ready endorsement of parents and all friends of the littlefolk. Swampscott has such a place for the benefit of the kids where a playground on Paradise Road is flooded with four or five inches of water. The central location keeps the children in a safe place and the few inches of water is guard against drowning. The cost of the plan in Swampscott is said to be so small that it is of no moment. There are several excellent places in Peabody that could be made to serve as safe skating places for the kiddies. Here's hoping that our Playground Commissioners carry out their plan at once.

YOUR TEETH

By Rea Proctor McGee, D.D.S., M.D., Editor "Oral Hygiene"

CHEWING GUM

The teeth and jaws and salivary glands and all of the mechanism of the mouth were made for a useful purpose.

We have invented so many tasks for the mouth that mastication is not so popular as it formerly was. Nothing we have ever done as an energy waster equals the chewing gum habit.

Everywhere there are hundreds and thousands and millions of jaws with a chronic motion, that ranges from the gentle tremble of an almost impassive face to the enthusiastic "squash" of the "mug" that doesn't care tooth substance, energy, time and saliva wasted and what of the tantalized stomach?

Should not the Society for the Prevention of the Broken Promises to the Stomach step in and do something?

Chewing all day with nothing to swallow the jaws get all of the exercise they need at mealtime and in conversation. Why not use the chewing gum energy in some useful manner?

Wherever you go stores, railway stations, churches, theatres, offices, you find gum stuck around to wait the return of its former owners; carpets, rugs and floors are ruined with gum.

When you do go to the dentist, or to anyone else for that matter, leave your gum at home.

All that chewing gum does is to make good teeth bad and bad teeth worse.

THE FRIENDLY PATH

By WALTER I. ROBINSON

"A MAN'LL work pretty hard t' loaf a little."

A strange psychology shapes the destinies of many lives. Endowed with great minds, thoroughly educated in their chosen professions or business, yet some fail to grasp the good things which are within their reach.

For some unaccountable reason they abhor work. But like the lad who has to hoe a big field of corn before he can visit the old fishin' hole, they'll wear out their minds and their bodies for the privilege of a few hours "off."

Yet when they do have nothing to do but watch time go fleeting by, they go around like lost sheep looking for something to happen.

Loafing does great harm. Everyone should not work constantly when not asleep. Health and happiness demand that each person should have sufficient spare time to read, rest and enjoy himself. But one would be far better off if he worked and slept and did nothing else if he spends his time loafing.

With so many profitable ways to occupy days and evenings "off," it is difficult to understand why men—many of them young and active—waste their spare moments, but always hang their heads and growl when the whistle blows for work.

Those who don't find reputable means of enjoying themselves and of improving their mental and physical lives during spare times seldom do the world much good. To find happiness and to advance one's position there must be constant constructive thought and endeavor.

The happiness of every individual in large measure depends on the part he plays in the progress and joy of the world.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE BEAR CUB

"I'VE tried 'em both, the truth, the lie—
The lie was often best;
There's lots of times I have got by
And no one ever guessed.
It hasn't been a habit, no,
But just necessity;
And, when I had to, I have sprung
Some fancy yarns — when I was young,"
Says Charlie Cherokee.

"But when I got a little bit
Along and straightened out
A queer experience I hit
That sort of made me doubt.
I caught a cub and took him home
And raised him tenderly—
I had a lot of fun, I swear,
A-playing with that baby bear,"
Says Charlie Cherokee.

"But that there baby grew like sin,
He wouldn't stay a cub.
At last I had to chain him in
And beat him with a club.
In fact in just a little while
He got as big as me—
And, if you want to have a care,
Just go and raise a baby bear,"
Says Charlie Cherokee.

"And then one night when home I blew
He got me in the dark
And nearly chewed my arm in two
And snuffed my vital spark.
And that's the way it is with lies,
Or so it seems to me—
A lie awhile may be your friend,
But it will bite you in the end,"
Says Charlie Cherokee.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"FIASCO"

THIS word, transplanted literally from the Italian, where it means flask or bottle, was adopted into English because of the fact that the Venetian glass-blowers, when they discovered a flaw in their beautiful bulbs, would convert them into ordinary flasks or "fiascoes." This alteration from an expensive, highly-colored and extremely decorative bit of glassware to an every-day bottle appealed to the imaginative sense of the Italians, and they commenced to apply the same word to the failure of an opera singer or the flatting of a note, crying, "Ola, ola fiasco." English travelers, hearing the word used in this connection, lost sight of the original derivation, took it for granted that it referred only to failure and used it in this connection.

A number of literary works, published during the early part of the last century, contain the word—but always printed either in quotation marks or italicized, as an indication that it was of foreign origin and had not been completely absorbed into the language.

SHOES AT PRE-WAR PRICES

RALSTON and EMERSON Shoes sold for $5.00 in 1914.

In going through my stock I discovered that I have more shoes than what I want and then again they are making some new styles and shapes for spring. I am anxious to sell as many shoes as I can of those I now have on hand, so that when spring comes I can start with the newest styles.

The prices of EMERSON or RALSTON Shoes today are from $8 to $10 a pair. I have marked mine down to $5.00, in order to move them, so here is your chance to secure a high grade, absolutely guaranteed pair of Shoes for $5.00. Do not miss this opportunity.

ROUND ABOUT

T. Henry Millea, the Foster street grocer, holds the record of being the champion player of "rummy" at the Peabody Elks lodge social rooms. He is being hard pressed for the honors by Joseph Duggan and Charles Crump. At present Millea is several games ahead of his rivals. The Elks' social rooms are witnessing some highly interesting card games.

The Enterprise acknowledges receipt of a 1922 calendar from the New York Central lines which is worthy of note. The calendar portrays rail-transportation progress of 90 years through the reproduction of the painting entitled "The Meeting of the Ways" showing the old DeWitt Clinton engine and stage-coach cars of 1831 crossing the Albany Post Road, the work of Stanley M. Arthurs, and in contrast the painting titled by the artist, William Herndon Foster, "The Twentieth Century Limited—The Greatest Train in the World" which depicts this most famous development in passenger service under full speed. The calendar is 20½x30 inches in size, and is printed in five colors reproducing faithfully the original paintings.

How greatly urgent are municipal funds for the advancement of the Peabody Institute is told in part by the statement that less than 150 new books were purchased in 1921 for the shelves. With an amount of money from the city the trustees could greatly improve the efficiency of the library.

Parishioners of the South Church heartily approve of the increase in salary given to their pastor Rev. John Reid this week following the annual meeting of the parish. In his short service here Rev. Mr. Reid has endeared himself to all of his congregation and has made many friends outside of his church. He is a great favorite with the young people and his whole regime has reflected credit on his leadership.

The scarcity in house rents has been given a hard blow by one family who are domiciled in an old electric car on the upper end of Lowell street, nearly up to the turnpike. Smoke was issuing from a stove pipe stuck through the roof of the car, and with a flock of hens in the back yard, it was plain some one is living there to escape an heartless landlord.

One of the early signs of spring this week was the spectacle of a tiny school girl munching an ice cream cone on her way home from studies on January 10.

WHY—

DO WE CLOSE OUR EYES WHEN WE SLEEP?

WE CANNOT sleep with our eyes open because to be asleep involves losing control of most of the functions of the body. When our body sleeps, our brain sleeps also—providing we are sleeping soundly and completely. A part of the brain has the power to open our eyes—to lift the eyelids—and it is only by the action of this part of the brain, either consciously or unconsciously, that our eyes remain open. When we stop exercising its power, our eyes shut.

The action is similar to that which occurs when an electric power plant cuts off the power and the lights go out. We virtually turn off the power that keeps our eyes open and they shut. There is no connection between this action and the fact that we sleep lying down. This is done merely because the body demands complete rest and relaxation in order to secure the benefits of a sound sleep, and complete relaxation is possible only when we are freed of the necessity of supporting any part of the body.

Making the American Dollar Do Double Duty in Armenia

Top—Making the Orphanage Furniture. Right—Earning His Bread and Learning a Trade. Left — Spinning the Cloth for Her own Clothes.

GETTING the dollar to do double duty when it is hard enough to persuade it to give one hundred cents worth of work may sound like frenzied finance. But it is the actual accomplishment of American workers of the Near East Relief in the Levant, where living costs are constantly striving for new altitude records.

Due to high prices of native products and the difficulties of importing goods into interior stations, these workers have found it cheaper and an effective aid to child training to manufacture their own supplies in the orphanages scattered throughout the entire region from Syria to the Caucasus, in which the Americans are caring for approximately one hundred and ten thousand children.

Not only has this method been found to furnish superior products, according to workers who have been responsible for these activities, but it prepares the children for occupations that will eventually make them self-supporting, such as printing, carpentering, tailoring, dressmaking and a dozen other trades.

The same plan is said by these workers to have been followed with considerable success in the administering of general relief. Because it was found that the indiscriminate distributions of money and food tended to make permanent beggars of those that received this form of relief, industrial shops have opened where employment is given to those in need. The products of these shops are either sold or used in caring for the orphans and adult refugees.

Though such methods cannot be adopted in relieving such widespread suffering as now exists in Armenia and elsewhere in the Caucasus, where famine conditions and accompanying disease are reported to be causing the death of thousands, they have been found to be practicable in regions where the suffering is not so acute or widespread and have resulted in the saving of a large amount of money, which it has been possible to apply to an extension of necessary relief activities.

The Boy Scouts met at the Second Congregational church Monday evening and arranged a hike to Lake Winona, West Peabody, under the direction of Cecil Young. Any member who would like to go is requested to meet at the church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Lucy Carney of Lynn street underwent a successful operation performed at the J .B. Thomas hospital, Monday morning.

Miss Blanche Barrowclough of Bartholomew street has been ill for the past 10 days with an attack of jaundice.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Congregational church is planning to fill a barrel of used or new clothing, to be sent to the far East relief, in care of the Red Cross. It is urged that every one will help this cause, to relieve the suffering, and clothing or money can be left at the parsonage before Tuesday, when the barrel will be shipped.

Shirley Green of Lynn street, who had a serious operation performed on his neck, is gaining every day.

Services at Lake Shore Park church, Harry B. Hill, pastor: Morning services at 10.45; subject, "Christ Fulfilling the Law." Sunday school at noon. Evening service at 7 o'clock; subject, "Environments or Heredity, Which?"

Prayer meeting this evening at 7.45. You are cordially invited to attend these services.

Mrs. Irene James of Bartholomew street is at the J. B. Thomas hospital, where she was operated on last Saturday.

Friends of Joe Ferguson, who have missed his familiar face around the centre of the city, will be pleased to know that he is improving, although he still has the aid of a crutch. He has been confined to his home on Lynn street for over a month on account of an injured knee.

Mrs. Freda James of Lynnfield street started for Philadelphia, Pa., Tuesday morning, where she has accepted a responsible position with the Densten Hair Co. She has been employed at the Peabody office of the same firm.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Byron of Mahaffey, Pa., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Watkins of Lake Shore Park. They arrived last Sunday, making the trip by auto.

The prayer meeting of the Second Congregational church will be omitted this evening, as the annual parish supper and meetng will be held.

Mrs. Sadie Currier, who broke her wrist about three weeks ago, is resting more comfortable this week.

The H. N. Batchelder Ice Co. started cutting ice on Spring pond this week. The ice is about 12 inches thick. They have installed a gasoline saw this year, which eliminates the use of horses on the pond.

Reginald Leach of Brown street is ill with pneumonia.

The regular meeting of the Men's Club will be held at the Second Congregational church next Wednesday evening.

The Bosco Club will meet next Monday evening at the church.

The carol singers furnished the entertainment at the Christmas tree held by Starlight Rebekah Lodge Monday evening. A chorus of 20 sung a number of selections with Miss Ella Reed as accompanist. Solos were rendered by Miss Beatrice Keith and Howard Gregson; violin solos by Miss Agnes Jordan; vocal duet by the Misses Agnes and Dora Jordan Wright Gregson and son Holdsworth assisted with cornets Every number was excellent, altogether making a pleasing program.

A cantata will be given at the Lake Shore Park church next Wednesday evening by members of the Sunday school, under the direction of Mrs. Sadie Rainford.

Miss Rose Moreau of Danvers spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Harold Newhall

Rope From Milkweed Fiber.

The fiber of some species of milkweed has been raised in making rope. The lint found in the pods, while fine and silky, lacks twist and cannot be used for spinning, but it has been used for stuffing pillows.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

Jim ("Sailor") White, the strong man of the Navy, is in the habit of pulling loaded freight cars with his teeth and cracking railroad spikes between his thumb and forefinger. When he entered State headquarters of the American Legion, he offered to lift desks and things with one hand, he wanted to tear up radiators by their roots, he wanted to dash in the front of iron safes.

He was out of a job, and his energy, with no outlet, was becoming terrific. The Legion succeeded in placing him—opening and closing doors in a club.

—*—

A national archives building in which would be assembled all the records of the World War is the aim of the American Legion's committee on memorials. A bronze tablet erected to a comrade who gives his life "in line of duty," upholding law and order, is a further recommendation of the committee.

—*—

Government nurses will not rank with "scrub maids" if a protest to the senate made by John Thomas Taylor, of the legislative committee of the American Legion, bears fruit. Taylor objects strenuously to the section of the pending re-classification bill which he says "will tend to lower the nursing profession in the eyes of the public."

—*—

Loans, without security, and at a low rate of interest, will be provided for sick and wounded ex-service men by a big rotating fund, plans for which are being worked out at a national headquarters of the American Legion. Ex-soldiers who do not need the ready cash from government compensation would contribute their bonus to the fund.

—*—

English and civics will be taught at American Legion posts in Greater New York, at the request of the Board of Education. This furthers the Americanization campaign already under way.

—*—

All that the Veterans' Bureau has accomplished in hospitalization and rehabilitation of ex-soldiers will be wrecked if medical reserve officers are placed on a civilian status, according to John Thomas Taylor, vice-chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee, who is protesting the recommendation of the Bureau of Efficiency. "Behind the recommendation is an attempt to make the treatment of the disabled man a football of politics," Taylor declares.

—*—

The sunny south appeals to jobless ex-service men, according to statistics of the American Legion employment bureau at Birmingham, Ala., which recently registered 145 men from all parts of the country, and only 105 residents of Birmingham.

—*—

A thousand dollars, farm experience, and an agreeable wife are the requisites of an applicant for a tract on the state soldier land settlement project. The applicant's wife must signify her willingness to take up rustic pursuits, according to an announcement from American Legion headquarters This is designed to preclude unsuccessful experiments.

—*—

"Army discipline" is not imposed upon sick and wounded ex-soldiers under government treatment, C. R. Forbes, director of the Veterans' Bureau, has informed the American Legion. A disabled soldier is not A. W. O. L. merely because he leaves a government hospital without consent of physicians. His only penalty is that he must foot his own transportation bill if he wishes to return.

—*—

All states are planning exhibits in connection with the conference of American Legion officials to be held at national headquarters January 19 and 20 The conference will be attended by General Pershing, Secretary Denby and a representative of President Harding.

—*—

To aid in combatting the "dope" evil which has invaded a number of ex-service hospitals in California, the American Legion is working with the Narcotic Control Association. James A. Johnston, warden of the California state prison, is president of the organization.

—*—

Rah-rahs have supplanted doughboy battle cries with 100 former soldiers who have enrolled as students in colleges and universities of Wisconsin. The service men are going to school again under the provisions of a state bonus which allows them $30 a month for four years along with their education

—*—

President Harding has received the first consignment of cherries from the Argentine to arrive in the United States. They were brought from Rio de Janiero by the steamship American Legion, which broke all records between that port and New York by a 10-day run.

—*—

The famous surgeons, Drs. William and Charles Mayo, will treat former soldiers of the World war in a $200,000 hospital which the American Legion posts of Minnesota will erect. Patients will be charged according to their ability to pay, as determined by Legion officials.

Leather Sales Are Holding Up

Sole leather sales are holding up well for this particular time of the year. Tanners of union backs note an increased demand for stock. Slight improvement noted in the call for light weight backs suitable for women's shoe trade. Offal is in slightly better request. In some instances tanners are sold up on their better grades and tannages of stock. Bellies and single shoulders in the heavy weights have been steady sellers The stronger tendency in offal continues. A more optimistic view of the future is being taken but as yet sales have not been such as to warrant belief that boom period business will develop. Upper leather demand continues quiet for the most part. Side upper leather moves in a fair way when buyers and sellers can get together on price. A slight improvement is noted in the demand for calf leather. Some tanners are talking of narrowing spread in price between grades. Prospects for a good suede season are bright . Such stock has been sampled liberally by the shoe trade. Samples are being displayed at the Retailers' convention where it will probably be definitely decided as to the life of the various leathers exhibited in the new styles. Patent leather demand is waiting the activities of the shoe trade. Glazed kid business has held up well. Signs of improvement are noted and larger orders are expected in the near future.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

SO. PEABODY ALERT TO PUPILS NEEDS

The Mothers'-Teachers' School Association of South Peabody held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, Jan. 10, at the South school. Dr. Lateman of the State Medical Department gave an excellent talk on the importance of medical inspection in the public schools. She spoke of many things being done and some new movements now in process, which will be a great benefit to the health of the children, but she stated to achieve success in the health department of the schools there must be the co-operation of the school nurse, teacher and parent

A business meeting followed with some interesting remarks by Principal Gilmore, president of the association. He gave an outline of some movements which will be very beneficial to the school and community of South Peabody. The first was that of the welfare of the child, for which a committee was appointed, whose duties are to provide something at noon for the out-of-town children who bring cold lunches, and to act in regard to the malnutrition of the child. The aim of the association is to do something worth while for the child, school, home and community; therefore it behooves every mother of South Peabody to attend the meetings and help elevate the standard of these high ideals.

Japanese "Trial by Ordeal."

Trial by ordeal still exists in some parts of Japan. If a theft takes place in a household, all the servants are required to write a certain word with the same brush. The conscience is supposed to betray its workings in the waves of the ideographs written. Tracing an ideograph involves such an effort to muscular directness and undivided attention that this device often leads to the discovery of the guilty person.

High School Notes

A meeting of the editorial board for "Pep" was held in the library Tuesday morning. Walter Van Dyke gave a report on the amount of profit made which will be $162. They now have $109.50 in the bank, and they are waiting the returns of the rest. It was decided that the next issue of "Pep" will be March 13, and will be a special issue for the under-graduate classes

A program of studies in the Peabody high school has been printed and a copy given to each pupil in the school. The program gives the courses of study and explanations of these courses and of the regulations of the school.

The high school offers five courses similar to the needs of its members: the Classical, the Latin-Scientific, the Technical, the English and the Commercial. Graduation in any of these courses require at least 80 credits, one credit represented in most cases, one recitation a week in any subject for one year. A study requiring five recitations secures five credits; one requiring three prepared recitations receives three credits, etc.

The Peabody high school has the certificate privilege for all colleges belonging to the New England College Entrance Certificate Board, and, also, to all Massachusetts Normal schools. Pupils who have received an average of 80 per cent. or more in any subject will be certified in that subject for admission to colleges on that board. Such pupils must have received about 100 credits in their completed subjects of the high school. Work below 80 per cent. is not of college or Normal school grade.

The Classical course, which furnishes preparation for college, requires four years of English, Latin and mathematics each; two of history and two of French or Spanish, with electives of chemistry, physics, modern and ancient history; solid geometry and trigonometry, drawing and household arts. One-half year's work in general science, one-half in community civics and one year of United States history and civics are required in all courses, which music, drawing and household arts may be taken as electives any year of any course

The Latin-Scientific and the Technical courses are similar to the Classical with a few changes in mathematics and modern languages The Technical course fits pupils for the Mass. Institute of Technology or for courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in other colleges.

The English course, designed for pupils who do not intend to go beyond the high school, offers a wide choice of electives, as history, mathematics and commercial subjects. By a careful choice in any course, pupils may prepare for any of the Normal schools, but the English course is especially adapted for this.

In the Commercial course at present only four years of high school are required, but five are strongly recommended. The studies in this course are those best suited to prepare for business, penmanship, typewriting, bookkeeping, English, etc.

Pupils should confer with parents and teachers on the choice of electives, and must secure the consent of the principal for any choice.

Sub-freshman must earn 16 credits in order to be promoted; freshmen, 32; sophomores, 48; juniors, 64. At least 80 credits must be earned in order to receive a diploma.

On the pupils report cards issued every two months a mark of A, or 90-100, represents certified rank of highest grade; B or 80-90, is certified work; C, or 70-79, is fair rank; 65-69, or D, is passing work, but does not allow the pupil to continue the subject; E, or below 65, means a failure.

It is hoped that this program of studies will give the pupils and parents a clearer understanding of work of the school.

HOUSE PARTY

A very pleasant party was held at the home of Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, 44 Highland Park, Tuesday evening, friends being present from Danvers, Boston, Lynn, Peabody and Salem. The hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, Mrs. Anna Talbot and Mrs. Bertha Dullea. During the evening a very pleasant solo was rendered by Veronica Dullea of this city. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour.

THE PHOTOGRAPH

By MOLLIE MATHER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Janey sat looking at her adored friend.

"Why," she asked impulsively, "do you never have your picture taken, Mollie? I have not seen one in the house, and you would—" Janey's eyes were caressing, "make such a lovely picture."

Miss Mollie Deming, spinster, smiled.

"No one would value my photograph, unless it might be you," she replied. "My relatives would doubtless write polite notes of appreciation when they received them, and relegate them to some unremembered corner."

"You know better than that," Janey jeered.

She jumped to her feet.

"Anyway, I want a picture and I am going to have it. You look especially lovely today, like some sweet shepherdess lady, with your soft crinkly white hair, and your true-blue eyes. Poor Terry will be glad of a job. He really should have been an artist in the city. Sentiment, holding him here, alone prevented."

Mollie Deming laughed, when she and the girl Jane were at home again. "Terry posed me so many times and was altogether painstaking, that his efforts should be rewarded with success," she said.

"You looked—" Janey mused, "so pretty, and, sort of wistful, sitting there—Mollie! Do you know, that is the way your eyes always impress me, by their wistfulness? Tell me, please, did you have an unhappy love affair? I wonder so much about you at times—I suppose, because I love you. I would be your confidante, Mollie."

The older woman gazed tenderly, thoughtfully, into the eager young face upraised to hers.

"People would tell you—your own mother may have told you, Janey—that I was in a careless, unthinking way, noted years ago for my conquests. It was at the time considered clever to flaunt one's captivating power. And I—well, well, there were many young men who came to my uncle's home, and I, uncle's ward and charge, played a merry game of hearts with them all, my own heart ever untouched in the game. Some day, I hoped to find my true love, to marry and settle down to a life of devotion. And when he came, my own love, I knew him; knew him instantly, by the thrill of joy that filled my days. And he loved me. That, I did not doubt. Why doubt the sincerity of this man, when others had been sincere? I think I lived in a dream—" Miss Mollie's eyes were misty, across the years; still her voice trembled its sorrow. "I live on in that dream of the past," she ended, sadly.

Janey's hands went out to her. "He died then?" she questioned—"your lover?"

"I almost wish that I might tell you so," Mollie hesitated.

"No," she added, "for the first time, I will speak the truth. It was thought that John Douglas, like others, had been jilted. But one knew, and after John disappeared this friend of his came and told me the truth. It was I whom John Douglas had jilted, heartlessly, and with a purpose. The friend said that he had been instructed to tell me that John deliberately planned my punishment, as he had deliberately, and oh, so skillfully, acted his part.

"He was charming in manner, you see, and well known for his winning way with women. So, coming to our small town, and hearing of my merry, never-may-care flirtations, John Douglas confidently and successfully planned the retaliation of winning my own heart, to cast it as carelessly away. But this I could not guess, as he held me close in his arms and bade me goodby, until tomorrow.

"'Tomorrow,' he promised gently, 'I will come back to you. Tomorrow, my dearest, watch for me.'

"So, through all the tomorrow I have watched and waited; and have lived how wearily no one may know—my punishment."

When Janey framed her friend's photograph and placed it upon her dresser, she was moved distressfully later to hide that same photograph away. For the sadness of Mollie's pictured eyes had a provoking trick of bringing quick tears to her own.

"That man!" exclaimed Janey contemptously. "Fancy being true to the memory of such a creature."

Then one day, as Janey entered unannounced Miss Mollie's sitting room, she faced a picture. And the two central figures facing the picture continued, happily, oblivious of her presence.

"It was fate!" the distinguished appearing man was saying, and even in her astonishment Janey responded sympathetically to the sincerity of that voice.

"When I thought that I had utterly lost you, Mollie—when the never-ceasing longing brought me back to this old town to view again, if only in secret, your face, I came upon that photograph in Terry's window. You, Mollie, had only forgiveness in the sweetness of your expression—had only grieved appeal in your eyes. So I am here, dearest, for that punishment I would have inflicted upon you has long been my own."

Janey closed the door noiselessly behind her, and when she was again in her own room, she hummed a gay little song as she searched out her friend's picture and replaced it upon the dresser.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

ON THE SQUARE

One of the leather workers of Peabody said to me a few days ago;—"I have been studying the triangle of Justice, Service and Co-operation for several weeks and have come to the conclusion that it is all wrong; it should be a square. What we workers want is a square deal and if we get it we are willing to give a square deal. A square with the upright representing the employer and the horizontal representing the employee, both parts of equal length, will mean 'a square deal 50-50.' That is what we union men are working and fighting for; a proper and equal division of the result of the combined efforts of manufacturer and worker, and, that means '50-50 on the square.'"

His idea started a discussion in which others joined. It was discovered that such a practice was, in part, in operation in the coal fields; there the royalties paid to the owner of leased mining rights, were based upon the costs of mining; wages were based upon agreements under government approval which agreements continue in force until April of this year. In other words a sort of partnership was in some manner established whereby owner and employee participated in certain money returns from the sale of coal, without regard to the public.

We talked last week about the Economic Law of the greatest good to the greatest number, and here is an illustration of the working of that law. The public will not or cannot buy the coal; the purchasing power is too small to permit the public to pay the price; people go without coal and much suffering results; thousands of factories put in oil burning appliances because it is cheaper; ships from England bring coal from English mines which is sold in Boston and in New York at a lower price than our own coal.

As a result the mines are partially closed; the worker is engaged at short time or not at all; subscriptions are being circulated to obtain money for the relief of women and children in the West Virginia fields; the owner of the mine does not get his royalties because the coal is not mined; no one is benefited; the public suffers most of all.

The miner does not understand all this; he sees a small pay envelope and thinks there is something the matter with his wages and in consequence his union has demanded a 30 to 40 per cent increase in his rate of pay under the new agreement to be made in April.

The rise of wages and of the selling price of goods during the war, is another example of prices made by capital and labor without consideration of the public. Costs of living mounted so high the public simply couldn't pay the bill. There is no need to talk about that situation. We are living in it rght now and it is not at all pleasant.

It seems strange that people do not realize that prices of goods do not depend upon the wish of the owner of the goods. Prices depend upon the wish and the ability of the purchaser to pay the price. This must be said over and over again until we all know it as we know our A, B, C. The public makes the price and thereby makes the rate of wages, the rate of profit, the rate of interest, the amount of public expenditure, the salaries of foremen and executives, the sale of real estate, rents, insurance and in fact everything that is bought and sold. In some cases laws, or certain combinations, can put up prices, but we know now that we can break this up very quickly by refusing to buy. We did this with sugar, you remember.

Supose the employees in a leather factory should enter into an agreement with the owner to make the best leather possible and divide the result on a 50-50 basis selling the leather at $1.00 a foot, or any other figure high above the present market price. How long would such leather be made? The factory would close; the owner would lose his money; the workers would lose their jobs; they would all be called a set of fools.

There is a better way. When men can co-operate, justly, in a 50-50 endeavor to serve,—to give the best possible service to the public,—to produce the best quality of leather at the best possible price; then such a factory will have steady work every day in the week, every day in the year and there will be fifty-two pay envelopes in that year and a surplus for the manufacturer to lay by to provide for "the rainy day" when business is dull, prices go down and he loses money in his business; such factories will continue in business long after other factories have failed because their managers and workers did not consider the wishes of the public.

No. An open square between owner and worker is not enough. A third side must be added to make a full triangle. The side of "Service." The most important side. The most important part of every man's life is the service he gives to the world. When we all,—owner and worker together,—believe and practice this, there will be no more trouble about a Square Deal.

COUNCIL CONFIRMS SHEEHY

Duggan. Then the Barry amendment was carried and a recess was declared to permit the hundreds of spectators to leave the hall.

Mr. Quirk was given permission to address the Council and he talked with all the force of a trial lawyer for nearly 45 minutes. He told of the details of his job and related numerous incidents of where his action had resulted in the city benefiting by thousands of dollars in taxes. He declared the system in vogue was the protection to the public and that the work called for a qualified man. He declared the Council might as well confirm Sheehy for City Engineer, City Solicitor or manager of the Electric Light plant. He declared Sheehy's appointment a political debt.

Councillor Eagan declared every man who went looking for votes was a politician, and that Quirk had gotten his job as a political reward for services during the first Donnell campaign in 1916.

Councillor Duggan replying to Mr. Craig's motion to first readjust salaries declared the 1921 Council had practiced economy and by cutting the Mayor's budget had saved the taxpayers $6 a thousand. He believed a readjustment should come, admitting it required some courage to say so for any man who had political ambitions, which he confessed he had.

Councillor Craig brought down the house by saying he was a plumber and not a politician, injecting the remark following Eagan's reference to politics.

Mayor Shea sent in reappointments for about every city official with the exception of City Auditor Goggin and City Engineer Emerson. Included in the number were City Treasurer Foley, City Collector Sherry and Andrew Fyfe, Commissioner of State Aid. The appointments will come up for confirmation at the next meeting.

A temporary laon order to borrow money on this year's taxes was ordered advertised.

Councillor Duggan got in an order of the Council requesting the Mayor to submit the names of insurance agents doing business with the city, together with amount of insurance carried. He said he believed the public was entitled to know the facts.

Among the spectators were ex-Councillors Giles, Brown, Cotton and Hogan.

PERSONALS

Miss Helene Lee, daughter of George W. Lee of Aborn street, graduated from the Massachusetts General Training School for Nurses in Boston last week.

A most enjoyable house party was held last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Courtis on Osborne street, when a large party of relatives were entertained. A sumptuous dinner was served and music was enjoyed during the afternoon. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mansfield, Misses Ray and Louise Mansfield, Paul Mansfield, Albert Conant and Miss Emma Hilton, all of Danvers, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mansfield and little daughter of Salem, and Mr. and Mrs. iWlliam Courtis of Devereaux.

The following ladies made up a theatre party and attended the Wednesday matinee at the Colonial and saw Fred Stone in Tip Top: Mrs. John Doody, Mrs. Andrew Sheehan, Mrs. Peter Carlin, Mrs. James Coffey, Mrs. Patrick Sheehy and Mrs. Sullivan of Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Merrow are receiving congratulations on the arrival of an 8½ lb. son, Herebrt Eugene, at the J. B. Thomas hospital on Wednesday.

Augustus Littlefield, well known leather man, who nearly succumbed to an attack of pneumonia is convalescing rapidly at the home of his brother, Frank Littlefield on Franklin street. He was confined to the Ipswich hospital for several weeks.

Joseph W. Blackburn is nursing a broken left arm as a result of having it crushed by a spirited horse which he was leading into a stall at his stable on Walnut street Tuesday.

Mrs. Joseph Porter of Main street lost a valuable diamond ring in a Boston department store last week.

Mrs. Joseph Archung of New York City, who was the guest of her sister, Mrs. John H. Nash of Burke street, has returned to her home.

Peabody people will attend the Ward 4 Social Club dance in Salem next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Alfreda James, bookkeeper at the Densten Hair Co., has been transferred to the Philadelphia office of the concern.

Dr. H. S. Pomeroy received a fractured wrist a few days ago, when he slipped on the ice while working on his auto and struck his arm on his car.

Mr. and Mrs. John Meagher of Gardner street will observe their 20th anniversary of marriage Sunday.

Ex-Mayor S. Howard Donnell, now district attorney of Essex County, will give an address tomorrow night before the members of the Peabody Club. His subject will deal with the business of his office, and his talk should prove of unusual interest.

JUNIORS ELECT

George Lawrence, star football fullback for Peabody high, was elected president at the annual election held by the junior class. Other officers are Florence Holden, vice president; Elizabeth Lillis, secretary; William Ratcliff, treasurer; executive committee, Charles Coan, Blanche Hayward, John Murray and Willis Moore.

FREE BOOKLETS

Congressman Robert S. Maloney has sent a long list of free pamphlets to Peabody people with the request to mark any four they wish and notify him. The booklets deal with agriculture, poultry and home gardens.

William Flynn's family have moved from lower Franklin street to the house owned by William P. Elwell.

The recently filed inventory of the estate of the late Mrs. Elizabeth P. Rogers shows that the deceased left in the neighborhood of $600,000.

Miss Katherine Carroll has recently enrolled at Miss Fannie Merrill Farmer's School of Cookery in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Porter leave the city tomorrow for a sojourn at southern winter resorts.

Feeling that the football date which rightfully belonged to them has been assigned to Charleston high school, the Salem management has started preparations to stage a strong counter attraction at Salem on that day. An offer has been tendered Duval high of Jacksonville, Fla., and School-Committeeman Odell insists that Salem will "go through" with their attempt to keep the Salem followers from attending the Peabody-Charleston affair.

Mrs. Frank Doyle of King street is recovering from her recent serious illness.

Mrs. Chester Bent held a whist at her home Wednesday evening.

Elizabeth Ingraham spent the week-end in Newton with friends.

Donald McCharles is confined to his home with a severe cold.

Mrs. B. K. Norton is seriously ill at her home on Perkins street.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam King held a whist at their home last Monday evening.

Miss Helen T. Nivison, matron at the J. B. Thomas hospital, has resigned her position.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the former Miss Gertrude Cole in the loss of her husband, Dr. Robert Ferguson Hayden, which occurred Wednesday at their home at 27 Albion street, Newton Center. Besides a widow, the doctor leaves three children, R. Ferguson, 3d, Catherine, and James Jefferson Hayden. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry I. Yale are entertaining Mrs. William Grant of Springfield.

Edward Carroll of Glue Hill is at the Salem hospital, recovering from a recent operation.

In honor of the former's birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Macdonald entertained a party of friends at a dinner party at the Essex House, Salem, last Wednesday.

Manuel F. Emilio has purchased a new Reo closed car.

Miss Mary Midgley, nurse, (graduate of J. B. Thomas hospital) has returned to her home on Federal street, Salem, after a ivsit in New York and Virginia.

BE IT ORDERED by the City Council of the City of Peabody as follows:

That the City Treasurer is hereby authorized to incur debt and issue notes of the City therefor to the amount of $775,000 (Seven hundred seventy-five thousand dollars) in anticipation of the revenue of the financial year beginning January 1, 1922. The said notes shall be signed by the City Treasurer and countersigned by the Mayor and shall be payable and paid not later than one year from their respective dates and may be refunded by the issue of other notes maturing within one year from the date of the original obligations. The said notes are hereby expressly made payable from the revenues of the said financial year. The said notes shall not be obligatory unless certified thereon as to genuineness by the First National Bank of Boston, Mass.

True copy attest,

MR. AND MRS. DANFORTH OBSERVE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Danforth of 264 Lowell street observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their home last Monday evening, when they kept open house for their neighbors and friends. They were the recipients of many gifts, including a purse of $25 from members of the South Congregational parish, presented by Rev. John Reid; a purse of silver from Starlight Rebekah Lodge, presented by Mrs. Lily Ferguson; a chest of silver from two brothers of Mr. Danforth living in Saugus, and remembrances and flowers from neighbors and acquaintances.

Mr. and Mrs. Danforth upheld their reputation as gracious hosts, and a very social evening was spent by the sizable party in attendance. The guest book was in charge of Miss Dorothy Roome.

Mr. Danforth and Miss Lenna Conforth were married in Springfield, Me., on January 16th, 1897, by Rev. Horace Graves, and have made their home in Peabody since that time.

Mr. Danforth is a past noble grand of Holten Lodge No. 104, I. O. O. F., and Mrs. Danforth a past noble grand of Starlight Rebekah Lodge No. 64. Both are members of the South church, where they lend their efforts to every activity, and Mr. Danforth is a subdeacon. He is employed as master mechanic for the Richard Young Co. CITIZENS FORUM VOTES SURVEY OF FIRE DEPT. FOR NEW LADDER TRUCK

The Peabody Chamber of Commerce first public forum called last night in the Council chambers, City Hall, resulted in a vote being taken whereby the Chamber will make a survey of the Peabody fire department with a view to recommending to the Mayor and City Council the need of motorizing the fire department and the purchase of a ladder truck.

The forum brought out a delegation of over 50 citizens, including the fire engineers and a number of leading taxpayers. City Collector Michael J. Sherry presided and in his remarks at the close of the discussion declared the Chamber was actuated by a desire to promote Peabody by holding these public forums and that co-operation on the part of the whole citizens would make the forums of great service to the city.

George C .Farrington, dean of the Peabody insurance men, declared that the fire underwriters were about to recommend that Peabody double the number of its permanent firemen, secure a permanent fire chief and abolish all of the horse drawn firekit. He said the records showed that Peabody was rated as having a fifth class fire department because of its number of men and lack of certain fire apparatus.

William F. Carlin, also an insurance man, said in pleading for a ladder truck that the cost was not the consideration ahead of saving human lives.

Chief Barrett said the department needed at least five more permanent men right off and he recommended the city motorizing all apparatus as soon as finances would allow. He favored

Energy Predicts $4 Shoes Due To Sifting Process Now Affecting Skins

(By ENERGY)

January mark-down sales as advertised in the Boston newspapers show big reductions in all kinds of merchandise. We are mostly interested in shoes at this writing, and looking over the prices, there is found shoes offered at practically one-half former prices. They tell us certain manufacturers make such shoes, therefore it is claimed a guarantee of quality. A five-dollar price is popular, but in the announcement it says such a price is for this sale only. So we look over other store windows, and find as much variance in price and quality as can be imagined. What does it all mean? It seems to me that the sifting process is not over. Everything points to this fact. Bargain prices on shoes follow bargain purchases by the retailer. But after all that is said and done, the tendency is downward, slow but sure. I say healthy, and before this year is gone, shoes of fair quality will sell as low as $4.00 a pair, and the quality will be proven by the wear.

* * *

But do not forget that high quality shoes will bring about as much as they do today. After all of us who have been through the last few years and purchased clothing and shoes at prices which seemed too high, and instead of purchasing the best, took medium quality, what happened? We were stuck good and proper. For in the last few years, quality has been lacking in all wearables paying prices which put a hole, not a dent, in our pocketbooks. So one of the changes that has actually taken place is that quality

"The Great Impersonation" Will Be Shown At Strand Tonight

Settings representing many different sections of the globe are seen in the Paramount feature, "The Great Impersonation," from the widely read novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim, which will be the main attraction on the Strand's bill for today and Saturday. James Kirkwood and Ann Forrest head the cast.

The picture opens with scenes supposedly laid in a room at Oxford university. Then it takes the spectator to a jungle in German East Africa, through the jungle to a clearing and a thatched cabin. The two principal characters there exchange reminiscences, and scenes on the continent are introduced.

The following scenes show the interior of the Kaiser's secret war room on the Wilhelmstrasse in Berlin, just prior to the great war. The picture then flashes to scenes in London, showing the quarters of the German ambassador, and then there is seen a setting representing Scotland Yard and the British secret service offices. Thru it all runs a story that will hold the attention of every one who sees it. Mr. Kirkwood plays a dual role, appearing as a German military commander and also as a member of the British secret service. The scenes in London five days previous to the declaration of war against Germany are unusually thrilling. In every respect "The Great Impersonation" is a superb production. A Sunshine comedy and Eddie Polo in the second chapter of "The Secret Four" will be the other numbers on the bill for today.

Bert Lytell in the popular stage success, "A Message from Mars," will be the feature number on the double bill for Sunday evening. "The Palace of Darkened Windows," a story which truthfully shows life in India, will be the second feature for Sunday. The bizarre Oriental settings and the strange wonder workings of a troupe of Hindoo fakirs are a show in themselves, while the plot is literally crammed with adventure.

A picturization of James M. Barrie's famous novel and play "The Little Minister," starring beautiful Betty Compson, will be the big attraction at the Strand on Monday and Tuesday. It is a fine picture directed with infinite taste by Penrhyn Stanlaws, and presented Miss Compson in the role made famous upon the stage by Maude Adams, the role of Lady Babbie. The production is praiseworthy in every particular and is certain to enthuse those fortunate enough to see it. It is a type of story of the fine, clean and wholesome plays that are so much desired. It tells the story of a town that was all upset till a gypsy girl came and—upset it some more. Lovers of Barrie will delight in the pictures of the village of Thrums. As a play it is enshrined in the hearts of millions. Clyde Cook in "The Chauffer" will be the comedy attraction. Mr. Cook has reached the top of the heap as a film comedian. His latest picture, "The Toreador," was one of the funniest films in months, and "The Chauffer" is said to be equally as good.

Mrs. Harry Trask Heads Eastern Star

Officers of Peabody Chapter No. 162, Order of the Eastern Star, were installed last Monday evening by Mrs. Annie L. Woodman, P.M., of Melrose. She was assisted by Leroy N. Bauer's Bill Would Probe County Heads

Ralph S. Bauer, president of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce, and prominent member of the Lynn Rotary Club, will be the speaker before the Peabody Rotary Club at its meeting next Tuesday noon. He will probably have something pertinent to say concerning the conduct of business by the Essex County commissioners. It was Mr. Bauer who started the criticism that led to the grand jury investigating Essex County affairs recently.

Mr. Bauer is known as the father of the Essex Agricultural school, having been its chief sponsor some 12 years ago, and he is one of its trustees now. He has just filed a bill in the legislature providing for an investigation of the administration of the affairs of the County of Essex by the county commissioners. The bill calls for the appointment of a commission, clothed with ample authority to make a thorough investigation, and embodies a paragraph permitting the commission to transit to the attorney general and to the district attorney of Essex County transcripts of evidence tending to incriminate officials or others in wrongful acts.

The commission will consist of three senators, to be designated by the president of the senate, five representatives to be chosen by the speaker of the house and three citizens, none of whom shall be residents of Essex County.

SCHOOL DAYS

Fireman Put Pleasure Off At Fire Call

Chester Carlin, the well-known fireman stationed at the Central fire station, was off duty when the department was called to the old high school Tuesday forenoon. He was well on his way to Danvers when the alarm came in, but he returned to Peabody on the first automobile that passed him in the direction of Peabody, and reported for duty at the fire almost as promptly as those who were in the station when the gong sounded. Carlin was one of the two firemen injured, and that he was not seriously hurt, is attributed to two factors, a good, strong helmet and good luck. When the coping fell into the building crushing Fred Sherry to the floor beneath its weight, a part of it struck Carlin on the head with such a force that his helmet was pushed down almost to his chin. After Carlin had extricated himself, or rather, his head, he turned his attention to rescuing Sherry, and then drove the latter to the hospital.

It is said that the loss by fire at the school will total around $12,000. When one stops to think that the building was once the old high school, it is less difficult to realize how old the structure must be and what ready fuel its timbers would have made for the flames, had they been permitted to get good headway. The flames did work fast, for according to early witnesses, they had reached the roof when the last of the 270 pupils in the building had filed to the street and safety, but it is quite apparent that the Peabody fire department also worked fast, for when the firemen from the Central house arrived on the scene the children were still marching from the building. With a few moments' leeway, the flames would have enveloped the entire structure.

It is also gratifying to most taxpayers and parents to be able to feel confident that in the event of fire such as that of Tuesday, the lives of the children are protected by an efficient fire department. The firemen deserve no little credit. They were on the scene in plenty of time on Tuesday to raise ladders, if need be, and rescue children from the second story windows of the building.

Perhaps some of those citizens who were criticising the salary increases granted to the firemen some months ago have a different feeling in the matter now.

Policeman James Murphy was also very active at the fire. He was one of the first on the scene, and before the children were hardly out of the building, he was throwing hats and coats from the second-story windows. The danger of accident to the children having past, Policeman Murphy was touring the building seeing to it that all were out, and in the course of that, too, saw another duty, that of throwing their wraps to the children.

WHY—

DOES A BARBER POLE HAVE STRIPES?

IN THE old days the barber used to be the surgeon, or blood-letter, as well as the shaver and cutter of hair, for surgery in those times was confined almost entirely to the removal of blood by means of a cut in the arm or leg.

The round brass ball at the top of his pole or sign was originally the brass basin which he used for lathering his customers who desired to be shaved and the pole itself was the staff which persons held while the blood-letting was being done. The ribbons (now painted stripes) represented the bandages used during the operation—the white one being the bandage as it was first applied and the red one that which was taken off the wound after the patient was through. As time went on, the functions of the barber were gradually taken over by the medical profession, but his pole remains as a symbol of his former glory.

George Gallagher, Peabody Boy, One of Youngest Radio Experts In Navy. On Board Revenue Boat

George M. Gallagher of Clement avenue has been appointed a radio operator on the U. S. Tampa, a revenue cutter now at the Charlestown navy yard. He is believed to be one of the youngest wireless operators in the employ of Uncle Sam. He is only 19 years of age and it was necessary for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gallagher of 37 Clement avenue, to give their permission for his enlistment.

GEORGE M. GALLAGHER
U. S. Wireless Operator

His appointment followed a competitive examination held recently in Boston and he won over a class of five who took the "exams" for the appointment. He entered on his new duties last Sunday. The Tampa is assigned to the New England coast for patrol duty, from the Maine coast to New London sound. Gallagher is one of three wireless operators on the ship. One of the operators with him is Charles Shea, a Dorchester boy, who is a nephew of Mayor Shea of Peabody.

The Tampa was launched last September at the Mare Island navy yard, California, and was sent around east through the Panama canal. It is one of the finest revenue cutters owned by the government and is electrically driven with a steam auxiliary. It carries a crew of 85 men. Gallagher is rated as a petty officer.

The radio station on the Tampa can send messages 2400 miles, its wireless outfit being the last word in efficiency. Young Gallagher began his study of radio some years ago and during the war had a license to receive messages on his wireless outfit at his home on Clement avenue. He took up the study of the radio a year ago at the Eastern Radio Institute in Boston.

His truthfulness during the recent oral examination in admtting he didn't know the answer to a certain question dealing with chemistry is believed to have worked to his advantage, for he was given time to brush up on the needed information. The federal examiners don't like a bluffer, and they evidently saw in the young Peabody boy the making of a good operator. He is a brother of John J. Gallagher, assistant office manager at the A C. Lawrence Leather Co., and Thomas Gallagher.

His Peabody friends will watch with much interest his success as a radio expert for Uncle Sam. The Tampa expects to get into active sea duty within a few days and will prove the bane of rum runners in addition to doing patrol duty in aid of distressed vessels.

The Sufferings of a Soldier

Cold Caught In Camp Hung On For Three Years. When Hope Was Almost Gone Cerizane Brought Relief

Mr. Gottfried Schneider, of 12 Monroe St., Pawtucket, R. I., quickly answered his country's call, but a few days after entering Camp Devens he caught a severe cold. He says:—"I was accustomed to sleeping in a warm bed in a cool room, so the cold I caught shortly after entering camp hung on to me. A hard, dry cough bothered me, especially in the mornings, until about a year ago.

"I tried different remedies that were recommended, but they did me no good. Then a friend told me how Cerizane had been doing good for nearly a hundred years, and I thought I would try one more medicine. In two days Cerizane Cough Balsam relieved the cough that had made me suffer for nearly three years, and the trouble has never returned. So I say to the men and women of my country, if you ever have a cough or cold, take Cerizane."

Cerizane is one of the famous "Winsol" line of remedies. It has been made by the same family, the Wilsons of Boston, for ninety-five years. All enterprising druggists will supply you.

P. H. S. GIRLS WANT TO TRY BASKETBALL

There are many girls at the Peabody high school who have long expressed the wish to have a girls' basketball team, and if the present plans carry, they are soon to have that wish gratified. The advisory board of the Athletic Association has given its approval. When the matter of a boys' basketball team came up for discussion at a recent meeting of the board, someone came forward with the query, "what about the girls?"

In the appeal that was made in behalf of the girls, it was pointed out that the gentle sex at the school has been loyal to the point of devotion, in their support of the athletic events carried on by the boys of the school, and this form of argument was well taken. It won for the girls—and that right now, is probably more interesting to all concerned than the circumstances surrounding how it happened.

But Faculty Manager Henry A. King is authority for the statement that just as soon as gymnasium at the high school is ready for occupancy, the girls shall have the pleasure of christening it in their practice games.

In the meantime, it is probable that steps will be taken toward organizing for the approaching season and many interesting games are to be expected.

And the girls are to have something on the boys, for a coach is to be appointed, and an effort is being made to obtain the services of Miss Alice Woodman, who did such excellent work as assistant supervisor of the playground work last summer.

It may also be interesting to know that some of the most active girls at the school in this movement for a basketball team, and to whom much credit is due for the accomplishment of the prolonged dream, include: Margaret Bachellor, Doris Tucker, Florence Holden, Blanche Haywood, Lucia Upton, Elizabeth Lillis and Dorothy Wiggin.

Reports from the contractor at the high school state that the gymnasium will be ready for occupancy within the next two or three weeks at the latest.

FIRE ESCAPE DOORS

The fire in the old high school last Tuesday morning offered proof of the need of a more frequent inspection of fire escapes by the Peabody school authorities. The door leading from the fire escape on the east side of the ugly building was frozen stiff in ice, refusing to budge an inch at the demands of dozens of small boys and girls who had fled down the escape seeking the yard. Boys of the upper grades tugged sufficiently hard to get the door ajar so the children could emerge in single file through the space. The condition of the door at the time of the fire was observed by Chief Barrett, firemen, members of the city government and at least one local attorney. All of the eye witnesses were loud in their criticism at the neglect of somebody to have this fire escape door free of icy obstruction so that it could be swung outward at the slight touch of a young schoolgirl. The icy condition about the door 24 hours after the fire was mute evidence still that neglect almost of a criminal nature had been unheeded. Had these children become trapped in the fire escape a panic would have ensued which might have cost the lives of some of the little folk. This fire escape door is an indictment that someone responsible had not done his duty. Who this man is the school committee should say, but the condition of the fire escape door offers convincing proof that a regular inspection of fire escapes following snow and ice storms should be made at the earliest moment. There's a tremendous responsibility that goes with the job of caretaker of a schoolhouse where helpless little boys and girls are housed and the safety of the children should be the paramount consideration. Peabody is indeed fortunate that it can say no precious life of schoolboy or schoolgirl was forfeited in this schoolhouse fire. Miss Josephine Connors, the principal, is deserving of great commendation on the part of mothers and fathers of the 270 little folk who were in the building. It was her woman's intuition that prompted her to call the fire drill and get the children out of the building. The janitor whom she found trying to stamp out the fire with a small hose should have first sounded the fire drill for the children and the teachers were the chief consideration. It is true that the janitor was trying his hardest to stop the fire, but the path of the blaze as evidenced after the flames had been mastered proved that the blaze had made too dangerous a headway. The condition of the fire escape door on this schoolhouse speaks for itself and should be the cause of a much greater appreciation of the heavy responsibility of the school authorities. This icebound door cannot pass unnoticed, and it should stimulate action by someone that will insure the safety of every schoolchild in this city.

YOUR TEETH

By Rea Proctor McGee, D.D.S., M.D., Editor "Oral Hygiene"

CLEFT PALATE

The roof of the mouth is called the palate. There are two parts to it the hard bony part surrounded by teeth. which is naturally called the hard palate, and the soft part that is so sensitive, at the back of the mouth, called the soft palate.

Some unfortunate children are born with a seperation of the palate lengthwise. In these cases the nose and mouth open into each other.

It is very difficult to feed cleft palate children and if they do grow up, they have a lifetime of suffering and embarrassment. They cannot speak distinctly and have great difficulty with the fluids of the mouth and nose. Usually there is a fissure in the upper lip extending from the nostril through the border of the upper lip.

Two methods are used to give relief to these children. One is to perform an operation, or rather a series of operations, to close the roof of the mouth and the opening in the lip.

The other way is to make a plate that will mechanically cover the opening in the palate.

The nature of the deformity makes the wearing of this plate very unpleasant for the patient.

When a child is born with a harelip and cleft palate, the first thing to do is to get a cleft palate nursing nipple, because these children are so very hard to feed. Then have the palate closed as early as possible. If these children are successfully operated on before they learn to talk, the voice will be normal. If the cleft is left until the child becomes accustomed to the faulty use of the tongue that is necessary with the open palate, his speech will never be perfect.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

TRY TO BE HAPPY

WHEN all the world seems to be conspiring against you, though in reality it is not giving you a fleeting thought, try to be happy.

The mere effort to acquire a sunnier mentality will be found helpful, as it takes you away from gloom, cheers your mind and enables you to look ahead with clearer vision.

To permit a depressing thought to imprison you, when there are duties to be done, which you owe to yourself and to others, is a common weakness not easily overcome, yet the shackles are easily broken when you go about the work in the right spirit.

The great-hearted have become great-hearted by trying to be happy.

Their early efforts were difficult, fraught often with severe trials. In seasons of discouragement they felt that they lacked strength to turn away from the sombrous shadows that encompassed them, but by exerting self-will, lighting up their little lamp of faith and keeping it ever burning, they came unexpectedly upon Happiness, waiting at the cross-roads with a smiling countenance and outstretched hands to welcome them.

When disposed to be downcast because of a harshly spoken word by a thoughtless friend, or a failure of some cherished plan you have been nursing for days and days, do not give up to ill-humor or remorse, but lift your eyes to the sky and open your heart to heaven's happiness.

If you attune your soul aright, you will find delectable happiness in the vast arch overhead, in the drifting white clouds, in the swaying of trees and in the whisperings of the winds—all bearing a message of cheer and encouragement.

How often do you raise your eyes to the smiling blue, or pause to think of the bliss beyond, waiting for those who shall overcome?

How often, instead of packing away your troubles, which no amount of grieving can change, do you turn to the great outdoors for consolation, seeking you at every turn of the road, on the summits of the hills by the dimpled streams and in the peaceful vales?

All the king's horses and all the king's men cannot bring you happiness if you, of yourself, refuse to go out with open arms to meet it and press it to your breast.

Mere words can never trace out happiness, nor make its meaning clear except to those who put forth a hand in God's name, and embrace it in faith as their own.

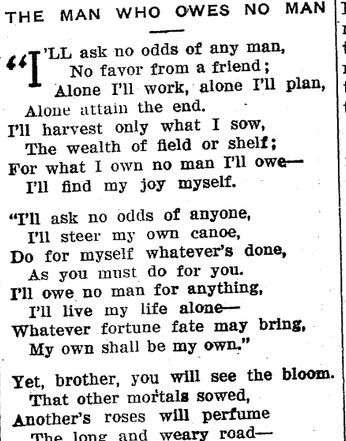
LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE MAN WHO OWES NO MAN



"I'LL ask no odds of any man,
No favor from a friend;
Alone I'll work, alone I'll plan,
Alone attain the end.
I'll harvest only what I sow,
The wealth of field or shelf;
For what I own no man I'll owe—
I'll find my joy myself.

"I'll ask no odds of anyone,
I'll steer my own canoe,
Do for myself whatever's done,
As you must do for you.
I'll owe no man for anything,
I'll live my life alone—
Whatever fortune fate may bring,
My own shall be my own."

Yet, brother, you will see the bloom
That other mortals sowed,
Another's roses will perfume
The long and weary road—
The very path you upward tread
In independent pride
With haughty and uplifted head,
Was made by men who died.

What steel your soul, what stone your heart,
What selfish folly yours,
You cannot live your life apart—
The human bond endures.
You owe to others what you are,
Each lovely rose you see—
And you must plant for years afar
The roses yet to be.

ROUND ABOUT

Henry W. Hildreth, tanners supply salesman for A. H. Whidden & Son, is still receiving congratulations on the fact that he and his esteemed wife recently passed their 37th wedding anniversary. The couple observed the day without ceremony, owing to the illness of Mr. Hildreth's mother, who is confined to the home at 9 Sutton street. Mr. Hildreth covers a large territory for the Peabody concern and counts many warm friends.

Recent press dispatches setting forth the fact that a physician in the middle west has perfected an X-ray machine to aid in determining prenatal conditions in maternity cases, brings to light the fact that Dr. B. J. Manoogian, the Washington street physician, for several years has been using a highly successful X-ray device which probably excels that of the western doctor. Dr. Manoogian has come to the front rank as a physician and enjoys a large practice.

The A. C. L. made its welcome appearance again this week with a 12-page number filled with many news items of the hundreds of employes at this great leather manufacturing plant. The issue contains an address by President Swift of the big corporation, which had for its keynote the assurance of better business in the near future. Earl W. Weaver is the editor of the paper and the material which he has included in this issue shows careful scrutiny and a marked effort to print only interesting news for the benefit of the A. C. L. employes.

I observed among the editor's proofs this week a paragraph recounting how Chester Carlin, one of the permanent firemen who was off duty last Tuesday, put aside his personal pleasure to hurry to the scene of the schoolhouse fire and be of service. He was on his way to Danvers when he heard the alarm and he at once hurried back and got into action fighting the fire. The incident proved that permanent firemen are firemen all the time, and the city does not lose by the two platoon system. Carlin's devotion to the service is typical of his brother firemen.

I observe that the Boston & Maine railroad, which derives a handsome revenue from Peabody shippers, is completing a platform extension in its freight yard depot which will facilitate the unloading of merchandise and also the loading of goods shipped from this point. Now if the railroad will turn back a small part of its fine revenue from Peabody shippers to making its freight yard more inviting to travel in rainy and slushy going, it will be showing a proper turnabout spirit. Peabody shippers have long suffered neglect at the hands of this corporation which under normal times takes more profit from Peabody shippers than it does from Salem manufacturers and other shippers.

The spectacle of a Lowell street resident pushing a sled conveyance with one foot while he rode on the other attracted much attention during the icy going. The implement, apparently of home make, consists of two runners about 12 feet in length, adapted for icy travel. A small seat toward the front is large enough for a youth or small adult person and permits of carrying bundles in lieu of the human freight. I noticed that the operator glided along at a speed of six or seven miles an hour and apparently was exerting himself but slightly by his foot locomotion.

Residents of Nelson Road, Gardner Park are wondering when the old sign "Clarendon Road" is going to be replaced by a new one bearing the name "Nelson Road". The name of the street was changed some months ago when some of the streets were re-named for the deceased war veterans, but up to the present time the old sign remains. It is rather confusing for a stranger looking for a party living on Nelson Road to walk through Gardner Park in search of a street by that name only to be informed that it still bears the sign "Clarendon Road". Someone ought to get busy!

SPELL OF THE OGRESS

ONE day when Peter, who was a shepherd, was tending his goats on the side of a mountain he noticed a bright flash of light which seemed to be on the very top of the mountain.

But, though he strained his eyes, he could not see anything but the flash of light, and he decided it must be the sun falling on a smooth bit of rock.

The next day the flash came from another place, and the next it had changed again, until Peter could not feel easy until he discovered what it was that caused the bright flash.

So one day, after the sun went down, he began to climb the mountain, thinking he would be there when the sun came up and discover the cause and return before his goats had roamed far away.

To his surprise, he found that one of his goats was following him, and, though he tried to drive it back, it continued to climb up after him.

By and by the sun came up and shone on the top of the mountain, and Peter saw a big white castle with a tower, which before he had thought was the very peak of the mountain.

From the window in the tower there leaned far out a girl with long golden hair, and as the sun fell upon it she waved it back and forth, making bright flashes of light.

"There Is Our Deliverer," He Said.

Peter knew then it was the beautiful golden hair that had thrown the flashes of light he had seen.

When the goat saw the girl and her golden hair it ran up the mountain so fast Peter could not keep up with it, but before they reached the top the girl had left the window and stood on the very top of the tower, waving her golden hair in the sunlight.

When Peter and the goat reached the top and were coming near to the white castle, up through the mountain arose huge heads covered with shaggy hair; then their shoulders appeared, and up they rose as if some one was pushing them from below.

Of course, Peter and the goat stopped and looked in amazement, and then the goat, who was the first to move, ran toward a tree and tapped three times on it with one foot.

The tree flew open and a queer little figure dressed in brown appeared with a burning brand in his hand. This he gave to the goat, who took it in his mouth and ran up to Peter.

Peter knew there was some strange power of the magic people at work and when the goat came, with the burning brand, he took it from his mouth.

What he was to do with the brand now he held it Peter did not know, but the goat, now standing on its hind legs, pointed toward the giants.

"You do not want me to throw it at them, do you?" asked Peter.

The goat nodded that he did, but though he wanted to help the golden-haired girl, Peter did not want to burn the giants.

Still the goat pointed, and then he began to dance about until Peter was afraid the giants might discover them and put an end to everything.

Lifting the burning brand high above his head, Peter hurled it.

In another instant the giants had disappeared and the white castle was in flames.

"The girl!" cried Peter, "the golden-haired girl, she will be burned." But before he could move, the goat had run toward the flames and leaped into them.

"Oh!" cried Peter, "they will both be burned and I cannot help them. What shall I do?"

He ran everywhere looking for water, and then, turning once more toward the burning castle, he stood still and looked, for the fire was out and there was no sign that there had been one.

Peter rubbed his eyes. He wondered if he had been asleep and dreaming about all he had seen, but he soon discovered he had not been dreaming, for there, on the very spot where the castle had stood, was the golden-haired girl, and beside her was a handsome youth, holding one hand.

"There is our deliverer," he said, leading the girl toward Peter, who stood looking at them, too surprised to speak.

"This lady is a princess," said the youth, "and I am a prince, but on the eve of our wedding an ogress who had many giant sons carried off the princess because the king would not have one of her sons for a son-in-law.

"I followed the ogress to this mountain, but when part way up she discovered me and changed me into a goat.

"As the ogress formed the castle and placed the princess inside I heard her say: 'You shall never be released or your lover freed from my spell until a mortal throws a burning brand and you both burn in the flames.'"

The prince took Peter to his palace, where he lived in comfort all the rest of his days, and the goats were not forgotten, for the prince said he had lived with them too long to leave them on the mountain.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

NANCY

THE quaintly demure name of Nancy, which has come into great vogue in modern times, signifies "grace." There was a period in her evolution, when Nancy fell into disuse, or was bestowed as a homely uninspired cognomen, particularly indigenous to rural communities. But Nancy's day has come; she is fashionable and exceedingly pleasant to pronounce.

Nancy's origin lies in the Hebrew Chaanach, signifying "mercy or grace," and her earliest prominent forbear was Hannah, mother of Samuel. But Hannah is a harsh name because of its aspirate initial, so the process of evolution carried the original word through the successive steps of Anna, Anne and finally arrived at Nan.

It seems curious that Nan was the forerunner of Nancy instead of being a contraction of the latter name; indeed it is one of the few such instances occurring in etymological records. Nannie, which is Nancy's diminutive, is indigenous to Scotland, though much used in England. Nancy is Annot in the former country.

France has many equivalents for Nancy and Nan—among them being Nanette, Nanon, Ninon, Ninette, Nichon and Nillon. Nancy becomes Nanna and Ninetta under Italian influence. There is even a Dutch form of Nancy—Naatje, and Nann and Nanneli are popular in Switzerland.

Amber is Nancy's talismanic gem. It is a medicinal stone which protects its wearer from danger and disease. Monday is her lucky day and seven her lucky number.

South Peabody

The annual parish meeting and supper was held at the Second Congregational church last Friday evening and was largely attended. The supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Esther Walker and committee. Reports were read from the different departments of the church, including the Ladies' Aid Society, Sunday school and treasurer, the latter report showing that the church was in good standing financially. The members voted to keep the present pastor another year and he was given a gift of $200. The following officers were elected for the year: Treasurer, Henry Cawley; clerk, Ed. Epence; collector, Mrs. Stella Newhall; Russell Walker, auditor; Carl Curtis, trustee for three years; deacon, Wright Gregson. William Brown was re-elected deacon for three years.

The Bosco Club met Monday evening at the Second Congregational church. Arrangements were made for a gala night at the next meeting. An entertainment will be held, including talks by "Chick" Davies. Refreshments will complete the program.

Reggie Leach of Brown street, who has been ill with pneumonia, is improving.

Miss Agnes Murphy of Brown street has been ill with a Quincy sore throat.

Mrs. Leslie Swan and daughter Shirley started Wednesday for Philadelphia, where Mr. Swan is employed at present.

James Heenan of Lynn has kindly donated 30 pair of children's shoes for needy children of South Peabody. These shoes are new and will fit children around the ages of three to six years. If there is any one who is unemployed and would like a pair of these shoes they can be secured by calling at the home of Rev. Robert Bakeman.

North Shore Ice Co. of Lynn and Frank E. Newhall are cutting ice on Brown's pond this week.

The Neighborhood Club held a covered dish party at Davis hall Tuesday evening.

Miss Helen Spence of County street is attending her cousins birthday party at Beverly this afternoon.

Melvin Smallwood of Overlea is at the J. B. Thomas hospital. While cutting ice on Spring pond last Sunday he had two toes cut off and another toe broken by the new gasolene saw.

Miss Eleanor Hobbs had a coasting accident. She went into a stone wall and injured her knee, requiring several stitches to close the wound.

The Sewso Club held their meeting this week at the home of the Misses Priscilla and Marion Pratt, Gardner Park.

The Epworth League of the Lake Shore Park church will hold a business meeting this evening, after the prayer meeting.

The Men's Club of the Second Congregational church held their monthly meeting and supper Wednesday evening. The following committee had charge of the supper: Carl Newhall, William Reed, Fred Wiggin, Lawrence Putnam and Wendall Jordan. The members spent the evening by talking over the needs of South Peabody and the proposed Community house.

Mrs. Sarah Swett of Lynnfield street spent a few days with her brother at Natick.

Mrs. Lewis Cann of Lynn spent Wednesday with Mrs. Josephine Ricker, Winnegance avenue.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Congregational church will hold an entertainment Wednesday evening, Feb. 1.

A number of Grange members went to Middleton Wednesday afternoon and evening to attend the meeting of Chebacco Pomona. Richard Mackintosh of this city gave an illustrated lecture on "The White Mountains."

The Ladies' Aid committee, which was appointed to fill the barrel for the Far East relief, met at the parsonage Tuesday afternoon and found that the people had responded so well that two barrels were filled instead of one, as planned.

The Mothers'-Teachers' Association have appointed a child welfare committee, which met Tuesday afternoon, and completed arrangements to have hot lunches at noon for the children who have to bring their dinner. The church vestry will be used for this purpose and will start Monday.

has come back, and while we pay somewhere near as much as formerly, we are getting far more for our money. That is important when one tries to figure out the difference in prices now and two years ago.

I frequently ask tanners what are the prospects? I get as many different answers as there are colors. One can see bright things coming, the next one is either blind, cannot see anything bright, and it sometimes seems to me he would not if he could. Another has a slight shrug of the shoulders and hopes. But the majority say business has a much better outlook, and is growing better, slow but sure. The A. C. L. Co. have been busy on patent leather for some months. This means they are finishing thousands of sides weekly, (not weakly) and again I hear of some large sheepskin manufacturers complaining because competitors are selling their output at prices they cannot or will not meet. Therefore such concerns are doing but little business. What is the answer? Those who are selling cheaper have evidently cut manufacturing costs, for with money lenders watching things so closely, borrowers must show a profit or money will not be forthcoming. New tanners who have started with little overhead have the advantage these times, and will continue to have it until business is more active. It was ever thus.

* * *

One of the problems facing the tanner is the fact that owners and producers of raw material, particularly from foreign countries, have lost heavily. What skins are in this country from foreign shores will be sold no doubt at ruinous prices, or prices that about pay the freight only. Surely no more importations will come from these merchants until prices assure them of a profit. Does it mean later a scarcity of such skins? If so, it must mean higher prices, and those who wait will take the next train. Admitting that gambling, or more explicit, purchasing supplies ahead is a risk, the time is surely coming when those that do so will make money. I know of several cases where materials have been purchased on a gamble and netting the buyer big money. Has the time arrived to take such chances? Telephone stock went begging at 93 up to 100, but now at 118 it looks good. So down the line. Do not miss the train gentlemen, for all through the dullness you have been good sports, so continue.

* * *

There are many things I see in the factories which it would not be right to publish. But I cannot help publish the fact that some tanners have made big strides in the quality of their leather. It has been an ideal time to experiment, and many have taken advantage of it. Perfect leather has not been produced. It may be some tanners will not agree with me. However, perfection is nearer today than ever before. Two bath chrome tanning is used but little. I know of two tanners who stick to this process, but the one bath offers more opportunities for varieties, therefore the most popular. I have always claimed that chrome tanning is still in its infancy, and that each year will develop new ideas which will add to quality. It is a case of experiment continually, and many are doing it.

* * *

I am informed that several new machines for the tanners are soon to appear on the market. As with the tanners, so the tanning machinery has no doubt been looked over with the idea of betterment. When the United Shoe Machinery Co. took over the Turner Co., I said look for improvements. This improvement idea has been one of the biggest assets to this corporation. The possibilities are there in tanning machinery. It will come, and by so doing the cost of production will be lowered. New principles are needed, one process machines will do the trick, and they will come. Add to that my liquid electricity and making leather will be a pastime rather than a business.

* * *

So the new year is on, and while wishes count for little, the happy stuff is coming, and with Henry Ford buying everything in sight, tin Lizzies will soon be given away with a pound of tea, and if he would only get something to run it, (for John D. has money enough,) something that went with the car for nothing, I might take a chance.

Lynn Mayor Asks Citizens To Boost City

Mayor Harland P. McPhetras, newly elected Mayor of Lynn, called on the Peabody Rotary Club members to lead the way toward bringing all citizens together in the common purpose of promoting Peabody, when he was the principal speaker before the local Rotarians this week Tuesday. He declared it was time to forget the war and lay aside all petty jealousy and distrust and get together. He said his big job as Mayor of Lynn was to create a better feeling between the people and the city government and also between labor and manufacturers.

"Some of you men here, I dare say, were not with Mayor Shea in his election," continued the Lynn Mayor, "but you ought to be solidly behind him now helping him to promote the best interests of your city. He needs the help of all the people and is entitled to whole-hearted support in everything he can do to make Peabody a better city.

"I owe my election as Mayor of Lynn to the work of the ex-service men who thought that one of their number should be Mayor. I told the Legion boys that they in common with all other organizations would get the same square deal treatment if I was elected and that they could not expect me to show any preference."

Mayor McPhetras went overseas as a sergeant in the Battery E of the 101st Artillery and was commissioned in France. He lost a brother in the same outfit who died as a result of wounds.

William P. Connery, Jr., who is private secretary to Mayor McPhetras, accompanied the Lynn Mayor and entertained in song and stories, which greatly pleased the Rotarians. John Graham, superintendent of streets in Lynn, was also a guest.

PEABODY HIGH TO TRY BASKETBALL

Following out the instructions of the advisory board of the Peabody High School Athletic Association, Faculty Manager Henry A. King is this week engaged in the task of arranging a basketball schedule.

Appointment of Timothy McCarthy, as manager of the team, which will be the first in the history of the Peabody high school, was announced today. Young McCarthy has made an excellent record in the school athletics, having played on both the baseball and football teams the past season.

The advisory board in announcing its approval of the basketball team, stipulated, however, that no expense should be entailed for a coach, members of the board expressing the belief as most of the candidates for membership on the team have already been in the game for two or three seasons as members of other local teams, the majority of them should be sufficiently well coached to give a good account of themselves. In the group of candidates are several boys who have been playing in the past with the Father Mathews team.

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

GOODWILL

Goodwill in the day's work. Goodwill between man and man. The old-fashioned goodwill of "the boss" who owned and managed the business and his helpers who were glad to work with him side by side. Shall we ever grow into that spirit again? Shall we ever get back that confidence that used to exist among the workers and the management?

Yes, we shall. The spirit of goodwill is growing little by little. As we began to get away from the war confusion, the strife and bitterness that filled the world, as we began to find out that the money we thought we were making so fast could be lost just as fast, and the wages that went up and up did not bring us any more prosperity, then—we began to wonder whether it would not be wiser to try and get back into old fashioned ways of confidence and trust instead of living and working in an atmosphere of hate and distrust and suspicion.

And so we are searching out ways and means and methods. The radical, the reactionary, the unbeliever, are laughing at the idea. They point to the bitter strikes, the industrial wars, the great money losses to both labor and capital only a year or two ago. They say "you cannot change human nature. Men will always fight for all they can get. In 1919 labor lost $723,478,000, and capital lost $1,266,357,000 in strikes alone. During the three war years there were 11,000 strikes in the United States."

Very true, and now we are all paying for this foolishness. Everyone of us in this country would be better off today if this tremendous loss had never occurred, and, that is the very reason why we are beginning to search for a better way. Where can we learn? We are learning every day, our salesmen are teaching us. The salesman knows that goodwill is the greatest asset in the business; an asset more valuable than the buildings and machinery, for it is the very life of the whole concern.

So the wise employer today sells to labor an opportunity to work; nothing more or less. Every laborer is a customer and he must be a satisfied customer who will bring others and will spread the reputation—the goodwill—of the establishment. Every laborer pays for his job in service; good work, good quality, good will. The transaction is complete. Wages and hours have nothing to do with this sale, they are part of the conditions of the sale. The employer sells an opportunity to work; the worker pays in service; there must be goodwill on the part of each to each.

We have often heard it said that "Corporations have no soul" and yet the word "corporations" means almost exactly the same as "co-operation.'" A corporation has a soul; goodwill is that soul. It is the soul of the business, the value of a unity of feeling, a confidence in each other's work—in other words the goodwill of the establishment that the public sees and feels and is attracted toward; the spirit that builds up the trade of that shop, or store, or factory.

And we have heard lately during these war years a lot of foolish talk about what the wage earner wants; some say "self-expression." Maybe so. Who knows what it means? It sounds like the talk of the college professor. Some say "high wages and low prices." Sure. That is what everyone wants, but we know now it cannot be done. Such talk is "bunk." when profits are plenty. We had it in the war. Bonuses, extra pay, all sorts of sharing. Where is it all now? What good did it accomplish? What about the time when there are no profits, nothing but losses?

Some say "a share in the management." But the honest to goodness wage earner doesn't say this. He knows that the science of management requires long years of study and experience. He cannot fill that job and does not want to until he can rise to be a foreman and then a superintendent and later an owner. This path is open to every American worker.

No, a wage earner wants what you and I and every other human being wants. A steady job that pays fair wages for a fair day's work. A home for himself and family. A boss he can have confidence in as a real leader. That's all.

We are all wage earners in one way or another, and we all want the same things. A job, a home, a leader to look up to. Goodwill, that's what we want. If any of us gets anything without earning it, he won't know how to keep it. Somebody is sure to get it away from him. We've all tried it,—we know,—"easy come, easy go."

And so, we are thinking. All over the land by one way or another we are building up goodwill out of a wild waste of extravagance, of the madness and passion of war. We are beginning to see some progress, slow, not always wise, but gradually we are learning that there is a soul in the day's work. Goodwill between man and man is that soul.

Ice Carnival In Aid Of Hospital

Members of the Peabody Woman's Club are greatly interested in the ice carnival to be held at Middleton on February 2, 3 and 4, in aid of the Essex County sanitarium, and have been assigned charge of the sandwich booth. The following committee has been appointed to perefct the preliminary arrangements: Mrs. Albert Roome, Mrs. Chester Bent, Mrs. George Howley, Miss Ruth Farrington, Miss Bertha Johnson, Mrs. Kenneth MacCharles.

COOKING CLASSES

The Thursday night cooking class have completed their course at the Peabody Training School of Domestic Science, and a new class is being organized for that evening, as announced elsewhere in this issue. Those wishing to join this class should notify Mrs. Petraske at once.

The sale of Christmas seals recently conducted in this city under the direction of the Visiting Nurse Association for the Anti-Tuberculosis Society netted $245. Most of the seals were sold by the school children and the following four schools sold the greatest number of seals: West Peabody, $41.10; Center, $41; Wallis, $39.50; Bowditch, $38.57.

PEABODY GIRL SAILS FOR SPAIN TO JOIN U. S. CONSUL'S STAFF

MISS HELEN F MACDONALD

Miss Helen MacDonald, who recently sailed for Spain, where she is to become secretary to the United States Consul at Madrid, the government seat, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus J. MacDonald of Cross street. She is a graduate of Peabody high school, where she fitted for secretarial work, and went direct from the local school to a responsible position as private secretary to a prominent insurance man in Boston.

She had received all of her training in the Peabody high school, demonstrating that personal application to studies in the local school fitted her for a position which others would have felt demanded higher education. Miss MacDonald was popular among her classmates, displaying many qualifications which go to make up leaders, and her success in Boston as a private secretary was rapid.

She will learn Spanish and undoubtedly will return home a finished linguist in the Castillan tongue.

Her father is chairman of the Republican City Committee and has long been prominent in G. O. P. circles. Congressman Robert S. Maloney aided in bringing about the appointment of Miss MacDonald to her responsible position in the American Consul office in Madrid.

EMPIRE STOCK

It was a bit out of the ordinary for a man to ask for the return of a gift made to an attractive young woman. But Garry, possessed of a jealous wife and an imagination, couldn't see any other way out of it. It would have gone on very nice had Mabel seen things in the same light. But she didn't. She decided to retain the gift. Garry decided that he must have it by "hook or crook." He tries both methods.

These are the chief ingredients of the Wilson Collison-Otto Harbach farce comedy hit, "Up in Mabel's Room," that will be presented by the Popular Players at the Empire theatre all next week.

No effort has been spared to make the presentation of the famous comedy one of the best that has been seen here this season.

Sanalt Relieved Awful Suffering from Sleeplessness

Any one who has suffered from insomnia, or sleeplessness, knows what intense agony there is for one who remains awake during the darkness and stillness of the night. Very often people who are afflicted by sleeplessness take narcotic drugs or stimulants, to secure only temporary relief, when they should find the cause of the sleeplessness and remove it.

One cannot expect to sleep peacefully when the stomach is distended by gas; the temperature is kept at fever heat through constipation, or nervousness as resulting from weak, watery blood.

Miss Sadie E. Welch, of 1705 Elm St., Manchester, N. H., says:—

"I was suffering terribly from insomnia. Medicine the doctor gave me only made me sleep a little while at a time, and gave no real relief. When a friend recommended Sanalt, I did not see how it would help me, until it was called to my attention that I was suffering from stomach trouble, and was very much constipated. So I was induced to try it. Before I had taken a full bottle, the constipation had passed; my stomach seemed all right, and although it at first rather surprised me to be able to sleep so well, I soon realized Sanalt had removed the troubles that kept me awake. As soon as I was again able to sleep I became much less nervous, and my appetite very rapidly improved. So I feel an everlasting debt of gratitude for Sanalt, and cannot praise it enough."

This is a good example of the necessity of people who are suffering trying to remove the cause, rather than the effect. There is only one way to MAKE a person sleep, and that is by drugging them, and of course if the sleeplessness is from a purely nervous trouble, from worry, or overwork, Sanalt alone will not relieve it, but in many cases sleeplessness comes from some trouble with stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, or blood, and for such sufferers from the terrors of insomnia, there is nothing better than Sanalt.

All obliging druggists sell Sanalt.

Mother's Cook Book

A light supper, a good night's sleep and a fine morning, have often made a hero of the same man who by indigestion, a restless night, and a rainy morning would have proved a coward.—Chesterfield.

PLUM PUDDINGS AND CAKES

THIS is the season when the plum pudding is enjoyed.

Little Plum Puddings.

Pour one cupful of scalded milk over one pint of bread crumbs taken from the center of a stale loaf of bread; when cool add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, the yolks of four eggs beaten until light, one-half pound of suet mixed with one-half cupful of chopped almonds, one-half pound of currants and one-half pound of seeded raisins; lastly, add one-third of a teaspoonful each of cloves and mace and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, then fold in the whites of four eggs beaten stiff. Pour into buttered individual molds and steam one hour. This recipe makes twelve little puddings. Serve with hard sauce.

Holly Cake.

Cream one-half cupful of shortening; add gradually one cupful of sugar, two egg yolks beaten light; then add alternately one-half cupful of milk and one and one-half cupfuls of flour, sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Lastly, beat in two egg whites beaten stiff and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in a tube pan for forty-five minutes. Cover with boiled frosting and ornament with citron leaves and cinnamon berries.

Little Cakes.

Cut small cakes from a sheet of pound cake. Beat the white of egg enough to make it liquid and mix it with a little sugar. Brush over the surface of the cakes and allow them to stand until dry. The next day dip on a fork into fondant, invert and slip from the fork. Decorate with nuts and candies or both.

Fondant.

This is the basis of all cream candies. Cook two cupfuls of sugar and one-half cupful of water and when boiling begins wash down the sides of the pan to remove any grains that have formed; cover and boil a few minutes. Now add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and cook until a little dropped into cold water will make a soft ball. Set away to cool, then beat and knead until creamy. Set away in a buttered bowl covered with paper and let it stand for a day or two to ripen, then it is ready to use.

Common and Preferred Stock.

Holders of preferred stock are entitled to dividends in advance of common stock holders, and also to a claim on the property ahead of the common stock. The customary way is to provide for a limited dividend on preferred stock, which must be paid before common stock holders are entitled to any profits.

White Stains on Hardwood.

A mixture of salt and olive oil will remove white stains from hardwood which are caused by hot dishes. The dry spot is covered thickly with salt, and then as much olive oil is poured over as the grains will take up. This stands over night, and in the morning the discoloration should be briskly rubbed with the mixture, which is then wiped off. If there is still any trace of stain, the application is repeated, again standing for hours.

Cancer of the Toe-Nail.

One of the rarest diseases known is cancer of the nail, only four cases being on record. The most recent one is described by Dr. Carlos Chagas of the medical college of Bello Bello Horizonte, Brazil. It is that of a laborer, aged sixty, who had it on the nail of his right great toe. The toe was amputated and the man, apparently cured, disappeared. The toe was examined microscopically and confirmed the diagnosis.

Patching Wallpaper.

To match wallpaper successfully, instead of cutting the paper tear it across irregularly. The white edge made by the tearing will not be on the patch, but on the unused paper. By matching the design the patch will be almost invisible.

No Lead in Lead Pencil.

The word pencil originally meant a small, fine brush, such as artists still use under the same name, but it now chiefly denotes the black-lead wood-cased pencil and its varieties. Lead pencil is a misnomer, because there is no lead about it. The case is wood or paper, and the substance that makes the mark is graphite, also called plumbago, from the latin word plumbum, lead. This is the only connection the substance had with lead, because it is a form of carbon, and it's one of the softest minerals known.

Patching Wallpaper.

To match wallpaper successfully, instead of cutting the paper tear it across irregularly. The white edge made by the tearing will not be on the patch, but on the unused paper. By matching the design the patch will be almost invisible.

No Lead in Lead Pencil.

The word pencil originally meant a small, fine brush, such as artists still use under the same name, but it now chiefly denotes the black-lead wood-cased pencil and its varieties. Lead pencil is a misnomer, because there is no lead about it. The case is wood of paper, and the substance that makes the mark is graphite, also called plumbago, from the latin word plumbum, lead. This is the only connection the substance had with lead, because it is a form of carbon, and it's one of the softest minerals known.

Notice is hereby given that Bank Book No. 3487, Warren Five Cents Saving Bank, Peabody, is lost and application for payment made. Chap. 171, Act 1912.

"The Day of Judgment of the World Begun."

The world is today awakening to the fact, that we have reached a crisis in the conduct of the governments of earth.

We find that the greatest minds in the world are perplexed as to how and what is to be done in order to preserve the present structure from entire destruction.

The only solution of this great question is found in the Bible, God's word. In it we find a great and wonderful plan so arranged as to care for the needs of the human family the fulfillment of which is already begun.

We extend to all a cordial invitation to hear the above topic discussed by

AN ORVILLE

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Diana's elder sister brought her argument to a climax.

"Remember, my dear," she said grandly, "that you are an Orville."

"Well," asked Diana testily, "exactly what does that mean? First, and always, I am an American, and if my mother chose to fall in love and marry into an aristocratic old family, why should I be continually persecuted with the fact?"

Gwendolin shrugged.

"Mother was a sweet and lovable lady. You greatly resemble her pictures, Diana. But she wore herself out endeavoring to live up to the requirements of father's family, falling dispiritedly in the end. Mother's tastes and ambitions were simple and homely, like yours, my dear. The rest of us are all Orvilles. And I don't mind confessing here, in the secrecy of my boudoir, that my marriage was made in accord with the dictates of father's family. I owed them that. Aunt Phyllis Orville talked with me often concerning my duty, and I knew what would be expected when Grandmother Orville, in my girlhood, sent me abroad. I was supposed to repay that kindness by a gratifying marriage. And I did. Gordon is a banker, coming from one of the finest families in Boston. There was a boy in the co-ed college I attended—"

Gwendolin paused. Her usually sharp black eyes were filled with dreams.

"Never mind that episode," she went on. "I merely refer to it to show you that we all have our love affairs and that they are easily put in abeyance. I admit I rather fancied this stranger admirer of yours, until Lois Adams learned accidentally of his boarding place. My dear! Think of a man of the slums presuming to force his attentions upon you! I declare it makes me furious when I realize how Lois must have laughed in secret over our humiliation."

"She need not laugh," Diana said, her quiet tone in pleasant contrast to her sister's excited one. "John Dalton is a man, whether he lives in the slums or the exclusive park, though that 'slum' remark is an exaggeration. He does board, he told me so frankly, in an old and shabby part of the city. He is trying to make his way up in his profession, alone and unaided. He thought," added Diana bravely, "that we could marry sooner that way. And nothing in the world," the girl raised her lovely, flushed face, "is of consequence to John now, save our marriage—and his profession."

Gwendolin jumped to her feet.

"Good heavens!" she exclaimed. "Has your affair gone as far as that? What will father say, if you persist in this foolishness?" the sister wailed.

Diana arose.

"I don't know," she replied. "I guess I'll go and ask him."

Her father was not in any room of the apartment which they shared together, so she sought him later in his office.

"Father," the young, loved daughter asked abruptly, "what became of Aunt Phyllis Orville, and why were my sisters obliged to live up to her snobbish standards?"

"Brought up like a princess, Phyllis was," he said. "We Orvilles had a pretty fine home, big stone place facing Orville court. Phyllis inherited the property and disposed of it, I suppose, long ago. Foreigners and business blocks have crowded out the court. It's called plain Court street now. I never drive down that way—tarnishes my memories."

"Court street," repeated Diana. "Father, I came to talk to you about Court street. It's where a man lives that I love."

"Love," whispered Colin Orville. He stared now at his daughter.

Diana nodded. "John is a civil engineer, father," she went on, "and your own friend Mr. Stewart thinks a great deal of him. But Gwendolin is humiliated because I want to marry John, for I am an Orville, and he lives on Court street." The sentences came in a confused rush.

Deliberately her father arose and got into his coat. "We will go and see just where he is," he said. "We can talk things over on the way."

It was a dingy house of past grandeur—oh, very far past, with crowding stores on either side, and children chattering around it in a foreign tongue.

Colin Orville grasped his daughter's arm. "Diana," he cried, "my dear, this is my old home." He shook his head sadly, then smiled his whimsical smile. "That, for the lasting glory of a proud name, and a proud house."

An old lady opened the door. She was a tall, white-haired woman, and she opened to them as one conferring a favor; then all at once her sternness melted into one longing cry.

"Colin," she said, "Oh, Colin!"

"To think," Diana's father said later, as the three sat in the old parlor together, "that you married a poor man abroad, Phyllis, my dear, and were too proud to confess to your family. And to think that you came back again to live on here in secrecy—perhaps in want—"

"Oh, no," the old lady answered him, "I have made a living, Colin, and I've had some really nice boarders. There's an exceptional young man stopping with me now, a Mr. John Dalton—"

"I know," laughed Diana, tremulous, starry-eyed; "that young man is going to marry an Orville, Aunt Phyllis."

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

The Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion will hold a whist party and grocery sale tonight in the Legion rooms in the O'Shea building. Next week Friday the newly elected officers of the auxiliary will be installed. Mrs. Charles H. Cassidy is the retiring president and Mrs. Frank E. Bomer will succeed to the office. Mrs. Cassidy has proved a most aggressive leader and the past year has been the most successful for the auxiliary, due largely to her diligent effort to promote the Legion work.

—*—

To lay proper emphasis on the five optional provisions of the pending adjusted compensation, the American Legion will present its case before every Chamber of Commerce in the country. The hue and cry against the "cash bonus" clause in the bill has befogged the issue, Hanford MacNider, national commander, charges.

Appointment of Senator McCumber, author of the bill, as chairman of the finance committee, is expected to speed up congressional action on the measure.

—*—

Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion, has announced the appointment of the Legion's national legislative committee as follows: Dan F. Steck, Ia., chairman; John R. McQuigg, E. Cleveland, O.; Earl M. Cline, Nebraska; Wm. R. McCauley, Bloomington, Ill.; James M. Hanley, Mandan, N. D.; Mat H. Murphy, Birmingham, Ala.; J. G. Scrugham, Carson City, Nevada; Wm. F. Deegan, New York; Joseph H. Thompson, Pittsburg; James A. Drain, Washington, D. C.; George L. Berry, Pressman's Home, Tenn.; Wilbur M. Brucker, Saginaw, Mich.; John Thomas Taylor, Washington, D. C.; John D. Markey, Frederick, Md.; Aaron Sapiro, Lexington, Ky.; John H. Sherbourne, Boston; Paul Edwards, Seattle, Wash.

—*—

Because he had not his commitment papers, Wallis D. Willis, a disabled soldier, was turned away from government hospitals to wander in the streets of Washington until overcome by exposure. Roused by Willis' treatment, the American Legion is starting a vigorous investigation of red tape evils.

—*—

Moneys received by the United States from foreign countries in payment of debt would go to ex-soldiers under a bill introduced in the House. This measure supplements the American Legion's adjusted compensation bill.

—*—

The 43,262 good deeds to unfortunate buddies performed by American Legion posts of Minnesota in 1921, cost $75,000. The list does not include 21,000 cases wherein hospital treatment, back pay, vocational training, and compensation were secured for disabled men.

—*—

Ex-soldiers who have lost their discharge papers will be able to obtain duplicates from the Secretary of War under a bill introduced into congress at the request of the American Legion.

—*—

Slackers and draft dodgers will not escape punishment through the operation of the statute of limitation if the House passes a bill to continue the military status of deserters. The American Legion, supporting the measure, urges unrelenting federal warfare against slackers.

—*—

Gun play between the Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion post at Akron, Colorado, resulted in the death of 936 rabbits, which were distributed to needy families in Denver The shooting match benefited farmers, who have been greatly troubled with rabbits.

—*—

States which pay adjusted compensation to their ex-service men now include: Minnesota, Maine, Michigan, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Wisconsin and Washington, according to John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee.

—*—

Legionnaires throughout the country have been invited to join the second annual ascent of Mount Hood by the American Legion post at Hood River, Oregon. The eleven-thousand foot climb will be made by the party during the summer, in continuance of a custom started by last year's expedition.

—*—

Twenty hospitals in three years is the record of one disabled fighter discovered by the American Legion. Physicians at Fort Lyon, Colorado, where this patient is now being treated, say that he at least will never suffer from getting in a rut.

PERSONALS

Harry P. Byron and wife (nee Watkins) have been recent visitors among their relatives here coming from their home in Mahaffey, Pa.

Mrs. Kenneth MacCharles fell on the icy sidewalk and fractured her wrist.

Mr. and Mrs. John Doyle have taken possession of their new bungalow, erected by the Peabody Chamber of Commerce on Ellsworth Road.

Frank B. Cawley, construction engineer and son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cawley of Newhall place arrived home this week after nearly 16 months in India where he went in the interests of the Ludlow Manufacturing Co. of Ludlow. The concern has erected hemp warehouses in India. Mr. Cawley arrived in San Francisco by the steamer Wolverine State on Jan. 9. He is a war veteran having been a commissioned officer.

Mrs. Mary S. Hanson and daughter who have been sojourning in Portland, Me., have gone to Daytona, Florida for the balance of the winter.

Mrs. Michael J. Sherry and son Robert have recently returned home from the Thomas hospital. Mrs. Sherry and baby are rapidly convalescing.

Mrs. John E. Meagher entertained her bridge whist club at dinner on Wednesday at her home 17 Gardner street. The event was in observance of the 20th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Meagher and was a delightful affair. The twelve members of the club presented their hostess with a beautiful flower bowl filled with roses and following a delectable dinner, bridge and music were enjoyed.

Edward S. Howard, former Lynn newspaperman and later a buyer of hides in South America will be the speaker before the Peabody Club tomorrow night with an illustrated lecture on his travels in the sister Republics. Mr. Howard is a finished speaker and gives a most interesting narrative of his travels in South America.

ESSEX COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL

The trustees of the school returned to the county treasurer $10,061.58 of their annual appropriation for 1921. The receipts from the farm and other sources have been larger this year than usual.

Farmers' Day

Thursday, March 16th, has been selected for the ninth annual Essex County farmers' day. It will be held at the school and will be an all-day session, continuing from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. It has been planned to have the usual general addresses, special section meetings, and also displays of the work of the school, together with trade displays and exhibitions. This day is set eight days later than usual, thereby the management hopes to avoid the inclement weather and also to allow an opportunity for much more in the way of out-of-doors exhibitions and demonstrations. One of the attractive features is the annual corn show.

NOTICE

Peabody, Mass., Jan. 18, 1922

Peabody Aerie of Eagles Has Proved Loyalty to Members

The Enterprise begins with this issue a series of sketches of leading fraternal organizations in Peabody giving some interesting facts about the history of the fraternity and introducing its President or leading official. Today's story deals with the Peabody Aerie of Eagles No. 732 which recently observed its 17th. anniversary, having been organized December 18, 1904. Robert J. Feeley, the President was last month reelected for another term as a tribute to his zeal in the office.

John L. McManus one of the best known Eagles in the State and a familiar figure at every national convention for the past 25 years was the first Past President of the Peabody Aerie. John Doherty, James Brown, James Burke, John L. Nash(now secretary) the late Timothy A. Sweeney, Stephen Duffy, Joseph Lavasseur, Patrick H. Cahill, Patrick J. Sheehy and Jeremiah Shea have all served as President. Mr. Shea was three times elected to the highest office.

President Feeley is a Past Chief Ranger of Emerald Court, M. C. O. Foresters and prominent member in the A. O. H. of this city. He was born in Dorchester April 1, 1891 and at the age of seven his parents removed to East Boston where "Bob" attended the Lyman school and got his three r's. He took up plumbing and heating as his vocation and served as helper and jobber. Later he accepted a position as assistant shipper for the L. Agoos Leather Co. in Boston. From there he spent a year in the employ of the A. C. Lawrence Co. in building 2 and eight years ago went to the B. E. Cox Leather Co. as head shipper.

He served the Eagles as their vice president. Shortly after he became President he started the movement to hold a show and dance in City Hall and this is now a yearly event. Two shows have been given with excellent success and a fine sum of money has been derived. During the big leather strike of last year the Eagles expended $1000 among its members and families who were involved. During the world war the Eagles were well represented in the service and the lodge did much to improve the comforts of the veterans.

President Feeley is well liked by a host of friends. He is married and has a son Robert. Jr. who is eight years old. The Feeley home is at 74 Franklin street.

CITIZENS FORUM

the purchase of a ladder truck.

William C Mahoney, secretary of the Firemen's Relief Association, echoed Chief Barrett in saying that the department needed more men.

Councillors Eagan and Cullen went on record as in favor of accepting any recommendation the fire engineers would make for improving the local department. Fire Engineers Carbrey, Bodge, Hutchinson and Costello all expressed the need of a ladder truck. Howard K. Spaulding believed the city should purchase an aerial ladder truck with an 85-foot ladder.

Councillor Duggan believed the Chamber of Commerce should make a survey of the needs of the fire department and report back the estimated cost. This remark brought from Mark E. Kelley, vice president of the Chamber, the statement that the Chamber had called the forum to get expressions from the taxpayers. He introduced a resolve that the meeting favor buying a ladder truck. This was so voted and later an amendment to have the Chamber appoint a committee to make a survey was also carried, and everybody appeared happy.

Charles C. Hills informed the gathering that New York city had some second-hand ladder trucks that could be bought for $7000 or half the price of a new truck.

Henry K. Eastman, chief engineer at the National Calfskin Co., moved the amendment that the Chamber make the survey of the needs of the fire department. Other speakers were Councillor Craig, Roger H. Smith and A. P. Ames. The latter praised the firemen for checking the fire at his plant some weeks ago and urged the purchase of a ladder truck.

NEW BUILDING OPERATIONS 1921

Building Inspector Michael H. Bresnahan in his report of building construction in Peabody for the year 1921 announces that 23 new homes, including double tenement houses and a chapel in the Hebrew cemetery comprised the new building operations. In addition there were several large additions made to local plants including the Hunt-Rankin Lea. Co., N. H. Poor Co., Chain Lea. Co. and Morse Blacking. A three story brick block on Washington street was also a new building. The total estimated cost of the new buildings was $194,850 and for additions or alterations $71,390, making a grand total of $266,240.

CITY HALL

The first meeting of the 1922 Council showed us that there will be action this year. Our representative from Ward 5 will delve into everything pertaining to our city, and it may work to the city's advantage.

Councillor Barnes will have his say also, and withall there promises to be plenty to keep political matters booming. When Councillor Craig said he was a plumber and not a politician, we wondered if he could stop all the leaks that go with a city government.

Knowing that plumbers have a helper who does the heavy work, or a part of it, perhaps a suggestion might be heeded as to whom it should be. However, we will desist from making a choice and wait to see what happens.

That a cut in city expenses will take place, is good news. If necessary, the cut should be general, and if not so, then there will be dissatisfaction. The trouble as we see it does not consist but little of too high salaries, but a general desire for all departments to have many things which can be dispensed with.

The meeting of citizens Wednesday evening showed a desire for cooperation between all interested.

George C. Farrington has been tendered and accepted the chairmanship of the general committee, and with his experience of taking care of large numbers in the Salem Cadets, he is well qualified. He has an able body of assistants, therefore a grand start has been made.

The reconsideration of the vote on the confirmation of Patrick J. Sheehy as chairman of the assessors, comes up at the next meeting of the Council. As it takes 6 votes to reconsider, there seems little chance of any change.

Two more appointments to come along, yes three. City Engineer, principal assessor and auditor. There have been rumors that a change will take place in at least one of these positions. But we find it does not pay to believe all one hears, so we wait.

Changes in the City garage are still going on, slow but sure. Nothing is given out from the Mayor's office as to what will happen, so expectation has the floor.

Peabody's schoolhouse fire which occurred Tuesday morning at the old high school on Stevens street caused many lurid tales to be printed by Boston and Lynn newspapers. One Boston evening paper had parents by the hundreds running panic stricken through the streets. Mayor Shea was made to appear heroic by braving the flames and saving precious records.

The fire demonstrated the necessity of every schoolhouse being connected with the fire alarm system, and it also may cause the school committee to give every school a direct telephone service until a fire alarm signal like that at the Keefe school is installed in each of the schools.

The smell of smoke was in the rooms for some time before action looking to clearing the school of the children was deemed urgent. Had not Miss Connors, the principal, acted as she did a panic might have ensued in which children might have been made victims.

That fire had made great headway before the alarm was given is attested by the fact that a boy in the fourth grade whose seat was in proximity of the flue complained of the growing heat behind him, and finally when smoke issued into the room near him he took a book and began to fan it.

The deplorable condition of the school building gives rise to the public expression that the city should never again use it for school purposes. At best, it is a fire trap and its proximity to the railroad tracks and monumental works makes it a hardship for teachers to properly instruct their classes.

The janitor, Charles McCarthy, who tried to put out the fire singlehanded, has been at the school for the past two years and for three years before that was janitor at the Warren school.

That feat of Inspector Pierce in climbing the ladder and bringing Fireman Sherry to earth, is only another of the many daring feats he has performed. Some athlete that boy.

Soon the new budget will be under way and when it comes from the Council many expect it to appear as with a round with Dempsey. But retrenchment must come so give it to us this year and have it over.

Lowell Street

Frank H. Sanger attended the banquet and meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers at the Copley-Plaza Wednesday. President J. E. Edgerton of Memphis and James A. Emery of Washington were the speakers.

Miss Ruth Farrington entertained the camp fire girls at her home last Wednesday evening.

The fire at the old high school recalls the attempt of certain members of the former school committee to have the insurance on the various buildings increased to conform more closely with the replacement value of the property. The different schoolhouses were appraised by George W. Pitman at that time and were shown to be greatly under insured, but the money was never available to cover the expense. Mr. Pitman's appraisal of the old high school at that time, when the building was unoccupied (1917) placed the insurable value at $22,000.

The ladies of Ward 5 conducted a successful whist party last Friday afternoon at the Russian hall on Endicott street. About eighty ladies participated in the battle for prizes and the winners were Mrs. Mabeth Lambert, Mrs. Mildred Penniman and Mrs. Carrie L. Clark. The proceeds were to be donated to the Community house drive, and a generous amount was assured.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Crane of Emerson street entertained a party of friends at a dinner dance and whist at their home last Wednesday evening.

Miss Alice Woodman of King street substituted at the Peabody high school the latter part of the week in place of Miss Annie Fairchilds.

Mrs. Oswald Goldsmith is confined to her home with tonsilitis.

Mrs. Louis P. P. Osborne, who has been ill at her home with bronchitis is slightly improved.

Miss Leola Judkins of Springfield, Me., is visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Will Danforth.

Ensign Philip Nichols (fiance of Miss Alice L. Woodman) while at sea on the U. S. battleship Florida was recently ordered detached from his station and transferred to the Naval academy at Annapolis as instructor. So important was the assignment considered by the department that the order was transmitted via wireless to the Florida while enroute to Cuba and a government boat dispatched to effect the transfer off Hampton Roads.

Mrs. Martin Wheeler of Townsend is the guests of Mrs. Mary L. Basford of School street.

Miss Rena Brown, who had the misfortune of having her Ford sedan stolen from its parking station in Lynn a few days ago, learned later that it had been found, an almost complete loss from fire at a lonely spot on the Newburyport turnpike.

The Mass. Leather Manufacturers' Association in electing officers for the coming year have chosen H. V. Hunt of the Hunt Rankin Co. as vice president and Elliott L. Macdonald of the L. B. Southwick Co. as a member of the executive committee.

WHIST PARTY

Whist party held in K. of C. hall last Monday evening was most successful, financially and socially, and the three hostesses of the evening, Mrs. Charles Cassidy, Mrs. Daniel Conroy and Mrs. John Gallagher, should feel quite elated over its success. A splendid entertainment was given, consisting of a butterfly dance by little Irene Messer; soprano solos by Mrs. Marion McBride Dorgan and Miss Irene Ford of Salem; piano solos by Miss Fannie Conroy, and a singing and dancing specialty by Miss Bessie Roche.

Ten prizes for whist were awarded to the following: Mrs. William Tracey, Mrs. Michael Ray, Mrs. James O'Neil of Lynn, Mrs. John Doody, Mrs. Maurice Ryan, Mrs. Jere Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Elmer Foley, Mrs. Mary Dorgan, Mrs. John Anglin, Mrs. Patrick Flynn.

COOKING SCHOOL

The Tuesday night class of the Peabody Training School of Domestic Science completed a six weeks' course in cooking on Tuesday evening, when they enjoyed a lobster salad supper, prepared by the members under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Charles M. Petraske, at her home, 17 Chestnut street. The table presented a pretty picture and the food which was deliciously cooked was proof of Mrs. Petraske's ability as a teacher. Joke favors at the table caused no end of merriment and following the supper music and games added to the evening's enjoyment.

Mrs. John Quinn of Highland Park underwent an operation for appendicitis at the J. B. Thomas hospital yesterday.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

Charles Putnam the well known milk dealer has been confined to the house the past week with an attack of rheumatism.

Dr. H. S. Pomeroy slipped on the ice last week and dislocated his right shoulder, in addition to a fractured arm received the previous week. He is able to be about by having a chauffeur.

Ralph Ferguson, Putnam street, is confined to the house with a badly wrenched knee, received while toboganning last Friday evening with his little son, Charles.

Mrs. George Felt of Main street entertained the nature class of the Peabody Woman's Club on Monday evening, when Richards Mackintosh spoke on Peabody's trees in his usual interesting manner.

Mrs. Adeline Griffin of Louisville is spending the winter months with her grand-daughter Mrs. George Osgood at her home on Sutton street.

Resolute Ingraham will take the apartment recently vacated by Chester George at Miss Gay's house on Sewall street, moving there the first of February.

The many friends of Philip Currier formerly of Peabody who makes his home with his daughter. Mrs. A. H. Paton of Melrose, will be glad to hear he his able to sit up a part of each day.

Mrs. Benjamin Courtis entertained Mrs. Margaret Rice and daughter, Virginia of Salem and Arnold Thrasher of Marblehead, at her home on Sunday.

Miss Sarah Warner of State street is confined to the house with a severe cold.

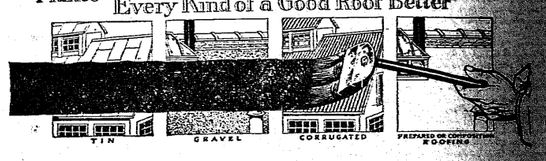
The Friendship Circle of King's Daughters met at the home of Mrs. Herman Barnes, King street, on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crafts (Miss Florence Lord) of Danvers, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter at the J. B. Thomas hospital recently.

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given Miss Frances Blake on Thursday evening. when between thirty-five and forty friends gathered at the home of Miss Mildred Grivet, 8 Park street. The larger part of the gathering was made up of the office force at A. C. L.'s where Miss Blake is very popular. Many lovely gifts were showered upon Miss Blake, whose engagement has been announced to Manuel Auen, who is a popular young man at the Water's River plant.

Mrs. Perley Kelley entertained a party of about fifteen at her home on Home street. Wednesday evening, when an aluminum demonstration was given by Mr. Jordan of Beverly.

Miss Margaret Sullivan of Foster street, an operator at the local exchange, has returned to her duties after being confined to her home for several days with grip.



William Elwell has been confined to the house the past few days with a cold.

It is whispered that ex-Chairman Quirk has been offered a position in the tax commissioner's office as supervisor of assessors. If correct, this poition was given him as a reward for the services rendered in the local board. The commissioner's office has had many good things to say about the doings of the local board, which is reflected in this offer.

Tedford Made Inspector In Revenue Dept.

J. Howard Tedford has been appointed a field auditor in the U. S. internal revenue department and will report to Commissioner Blair in Washington on Jan. 31 preparatory to taking his position in Baltimore He has been assigned to the income tax division and will spend the next six weeks in Baltimore He hopes to be transferred to Boston later.

Tedford has a splendid war service record in Red Cross work in both France and Italy He went overseas in 1916 with a unit of Americans who had volunteered for Red Cross work under the French troops, and he spent over two years in the service, being transferred with a commission to the Italian front toward the close of the war. He tried to enlist in Uncle Sam's forces overseas but his undersize denied him the opportunity to fight under his own flag. He is well known in this city, having been with the Densten Hair Co. for some years, and later in business for himself. He was married last year to Miss Clara Risteen of Pierpont street.

Mrs. J. Murray Wilson underwent an operation at the J. B. Thomas hospital yesterday. Her condition today is satisfactory and her speedy recovery is anticipated.

Extend Water To W. Peabody

One of the strongest reasons why water service should be extended to West Peabody is the presence of the West school, say West Peabody residents, and they would seem to have an argument. This will undoubtedly be one of the needs of Peabody to be expressed at the citizens' forum of the Chamber of Commerce next Thursday night in City Hall.

Mayor Shea will probably have something to say about it tonight at West Peabody when he appears before the Men's Club in West hall. Councillor Barnes and City Solicitor Farnham will also be speakers.

MANNING TO HEAR LYNN SHOE MUSS

Judge Daniel C. Manning of the Peabody district court has been appointed master to hear the arguments on the legality of the referendum on the wage adjustment question of shoe workers in Lynn Judge Sanderson at the equity motions session in Boston selected the Peabody judge Tuesday afternoon, after hearing arguments from attorneys on all sides.

SHEEHY TAKES OFFICE AS PRINCIPAL ASSESSOR

Peabody's City Council launched two big projects last night at their regular meeting, when they voted to demand a reduction in the cost of gas and took steps which may lead to a municipal collection of garbage. The credit for introducing both motions goes to Councillor Henry Duggan.

Peabody will unite with Salem city government in the petition for cheaper gas, and a conference will be held by the health committee of the Council and Board of Health with a view to recommending to the Mayor an item in his budget which will give a regular collection of garbage and abate what is generally held a nuisance by the lack of any systematic collection of offal today.

An expert gas engineer may be hired to prepare data for a hearing before the Public Utilities Board, before whom the question of cheaper gas may ultimately be brought. The Salem Gaslight Company will first be asked to slice off something on its present rate

Failure on the part of Mayor Shea to have either the City Treasurer or City Auditor present to explain the new loan order allowing the Treasurer to borrow up to $775,000, nearly caused that measure to go over two weeks last night when the order was called for a second reading.

Councillor McKeen started the debate and several of the Councillors, including Cullen, Barry, Duggan and Craig, were heard. All agreed that someone should have been present to explain the order. McKeen amended the motion to pass the order with a plea to postpone until explanations could be had. Councillors Cullen and Barry while regretting no information was forthcoming, believed the measure should be acted upon to permit of money being borrowed if needed in the near future. Mr. Barry stated that the City Treasurer probably would not borrow the full amount. Councillor Duggan, who had voted for the McKeen amendment, which failed

W. PEABODY GRANGE 10th ANNIVERSARY

West Peabody Grange No. 305 celebrated its 10th anniversary by a banquet and dance at the schoolhouse hall Wednesday night this week. One hundred and twenty-five Grangers, among them visitors from Lynnfield, Peabody, Hamilton and Wenham Granges, sat down to a delicious spread served by P. C. Hicks of Lynn. Worthy Master Gus L. Fischer was toastmaster, and he first introduced Miss Bessie C. Taylor, who read a paper telling the 10-year history of the Grange. He next presented Rev. Mr. Wheelock, worthy chaplain of the State Grange. He emphasized co-operation in the Grange. The Rev. Natt Scott, pastor of the West church, spoke briefly about the church and Grange working together. Walter H. Brown, first master of the West Peabody Grange, G. W. Preston, worthy gate-keeper of State Grange, William Watkins, master Chebacco Pamona, all made brief remarks. Worthy Lecturer White outlined the plans for the meeting February 3d. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, music by Potter's orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyle, who are at St. Petersburg, Florida, are reported enjoying their sojourn.

Announcing a Week of Extraordinary Attractions in Celebration of

The Strand's Sixth Anniversary

Jan. 29 to Feb. 4th.

TO OUR PATRONS:—

To you, the N. H. Ware Co., Inc., extend their sincere and heartfelt thanks for your loyal patronage during the past five years. Your support has enabled the Strand to carry on while hundreds of theatres were forced to close their doors. Again we renew our pledge to secure the pick of the motion picture industry for Peabody. Any suggestions that will make the Strand a better institution we will welcome.

During Anniversary Week and, in fact, the next few months we have secured some great shows. All Paramount, Goldwyn and First National attractions will be shown at the Strand—Why not see them at home?

Change now from spotty hot air heat to ARCOLA'S hot water warmth

An ARCOLA installation means an American Radiator in your dining-room and parlor

RIGHT NOW, in the middle of winter, is the economical time to make the change. Your Heating Expert has much more time now than he will have later on.

And you need not hesitate because the days are cold. Your furnace or stoves can remain until ARCOLA is installed and at work.

The three cold months are coming

The months when chilly bed-rooms mean discomfort for adults and the danger of coughs and colds for the children. What a satisfaction to have an American Radiator in every room, sending out its healthful hot-water warmth.

What a delight in the morning to come down to a dining-room comfortably warm. What a comfort to have all the hot water you want for washing and bathing.

All these comforts come with ARCOLA, and the installation can be made in a very few days. Telephone your Heating Expert (he may be classified as "Plumber" or "Steamfitter"); ask him for an estimate.

Do it now—today—and enjoy ARCOLA'S friendly warmth through the three cold months that are still to come.

ARCOLA can be connected with the kitchen tank also, giving hot water for household use

ARCOLA'S initial cost is surprisingly low and the cost comes back to you. Thousands of ARCOLA owners testify that ARCOLA pays for itself in the fuel it saves.

This is ARCOLA—handsome enough for the living room—but can be installed in kitchen or basement if you prefer

Ladies Will Be Guests of Rotarians

The first ladies' night of the winter season to be held by the Peabody Rotary Club is scheduled for next Tuesday evening in the Masonic banquet hall. Ex-Mayor S. Howard Donnell, district attorney of Essex County, will give an address. John Thomas, Cape Ann's representative in the legislature, who is one of the best known professional humorists, will entertain the Rotarians and their women guests with his amusing recitations. The Belmont orchestra, under Director Dan Keegan, will furnish a special program of music

The entertainment committee, consisting of Roger H. Smith, Mark E. Kelley, John Meagher, Philip O'Rourke, Frank Lummus and T. Henry Millea, have arranged a few surprise numbers for the enjoyment of the guests. Mrs. Brooks, the caterer, will serve a turkey dinner at 6.30. There will be dancing at the close of the entertainment.

An innovation by the club president is calculated to provide additional interest for the February meetings with each of the four meetings next month in charge of a different presiding officer. T. Henry Millea, Charles C. Hills, Albert Robinson and John E. Fitzgerald will direct the meetings in turn.

Ralph H. Bauer, member of the Lynn Rotary Club, and president of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce, gave the Peabody Rotarians some hot shots about Essex County affairs last Tuesday. He called on business men to interest themselves in the selection of public officials who, he said, would have a due regard for the taxpayers. Ralph was in great form and going strong. He added a sharp single when he said he was financially responsible for every word he uttered.

When Child Suffers Its Parents Suffer

How The Alarming Cough Of A Boston Boy Was Quickly Relieved By Cerizane

"Our five-year old boy was seriously ill with typhoid pneumonia, which left him terribly afflicted with bronchial trouble. He was unable to sleep, breathed with greatest difficulty and doctors who constantly attended him said the only real hope was that he might outgrow the trouble, if he lived. The slightest change in the weather brought terrible cough and lung pains, and he would almost smother."

So said Mr. G. W. Wyman, of the firm of Moore & Wyman, manufacturers of special machinery, whose works are at Granite and Richard Streets, Boston, Mass

"I was almost in despair when, upon the advice of a druggist, I tried Cerizane Balsam. When we gave him the first dose the child was gasping for breath and in great suffering. We noticed an improvement almost immediately. After a few doses the breathing became much easier and the little fellow went to sleep. We kept up the treatment for some time and our boy is now perfectly well."

Cerizane Cough Balsam is one of the famous "Winsol" remedies and has been made for ninety-five years. Any obliging druggist will supply you.

Empire Stock Will Present 2-Fisted Love

Among devotees of dramatic stock the name of DeWitt Newing as author has the same significance and the same ability to draw to the speaking stage as Hart and Fairbanks in the pictures and Zane Grey and other popular authors on the screen.

Newing won his place in the dramatic stock sun with such successes as "Dawn o' the Mountains" and "The Love of Su Shong" and mostly because Newing never writes on a subject with which he is not thoroughly familiar

In "Two-Fisted Love" which comes to the Empire theatre, Salem, the coming week, Newing has gone to the prize ring and selected for his outstanding figure one "Kid Maloney," an aspirant for the lightweight title. Other than giving the son of a minister a pretty beating for deceiving a young country girl "Kid" strikes no blows physically during the action of the play and the fight game is subordinated to the reformation ideas of the minister of a small town to which Kid has come to train for his big fight.

His training quarters are in the barn of the road house run by the Kid's manager, Mike McGuire, and McGuire is persona non grata with the good people of the town by reason of the suspicious place he runs. The Rev. Hume determines to drive McGuire from the town and McGuire is equally determined not to be driven.

When Kid Maloney meets and falls in love with Esther Hume, daughter of the minister, the plot thickens in a manner of speaking and the fighter proves before the end of the play that sometimes a real fighter is a real man.

CORRECTION DUE CHARLES C. HILLS

Peabody, Jan. 21, 1922.

My dear Mr. Penniman:

In your report of the forum in City Hall, last evening, in today's Enterprise, you quote me as saying that New York had some second-hand ladder trucks that could be bought for $7000, or half the price of a new truck. No such statement was made by me at the meeting. Councillor Craig was the speaker who referred to second-hand machines, and Councillor Duggan said he had seen a fleet of new motorized ladder trucks in New York city that cost $5000 each. What I said was that many people did not think the city of Peabody needed such a large truck as it was proposed to buy, to answer every alarm of fire, and that a truck could be bought, without the aerial ladder, for half the money, or less, that would fill the need of another ladder kit for the department. I am not looking for any correction in your paper, but am writing this to set you right on the matter. I did not mention second-hand trucks or New York.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. C. HILLS.

LEATHER FACTORIES EVINCING MORE KICK

(By ENERGY)

I have been watching and waiting to hear of a decided better in the leather business. I talk with a tanner who tells me he is busy on specialties, with regular lines going begging. Another tells me he is busy in his line of sheep, with the usual cancellations which go with the business. Still another says he is doing 20 percent of normal, and that competitors are underselling him two cents a foot, which two cents means a fair profit. No one will tell you that business is back to normalcy, and no one predicts that there is anything in sight that would indicate normal conditions.

* * *

But the fact remains business has more kick that a few months ago. I have come to the point of not taking any expressions from tanners seriously. They have not as yet brought themselves away from war conditions so far as profits go. They will tell you they have forgotten the war, but it is as natural for all to expect large profits, perhaps not as large as during the war, but to get back to small percentages will not appear good business. Remembering that many tanners who before the war never dreamed of high priced automobiles, that expense is on them today, and to discard those cars would be worse than taking the right eye. Pride is as natural to us as pudding, and to walk the streets when one has become accustomed to riding with his arms folded, is indeed tough.

* * *

So business is drifting along in ruts deep enough to keep us there. The live one is doing as much business as ever before. The other fellow playing safe is simply keeping the shop warm. He will not take the chance of losing until such time as the business horizon is far clearer than today. He may be right and the other fellow wrong. It would not do for all to think alike, so some time this year we will see who is right. Meanwhile raw material is low but not as low as weeks ago. Most lines of stock are being absorbed and the time is not far distant when skin prices will advance. Already hides have advanced, so expect the others to do likewise.

* * *

I listened Saturday evening to a gentleman who has traveled extensively in South America. His business in that country was the purchasing of skins. He took his audience along the eastern part of that continent and up the western coast. His business took him into the interior for he told us the place to purchase skins was of the original owners in the interior. He told us of the extensive interest of Armour, Swift, Cudahy and the rest of the big beef corporations, and which amount to fully as much as their interests in this country. The best cuts of beef there can be bought for 12 cents a pound and this price was not changed during the war because the government who control prices, forbid it. The country there for raising cattle sheep and goats is ideal, for feed is plentier than here. I presume as years roll by the slaughtering business in South America will grow to far larger proportions. All has a tendency to make the takeoff of skins show big improvement. So as I see it we can expect better hides and skins because of being better taken off, and increase in number. Few of us realize that South America is advanced in many ways fully as much as we are, no doubt due to the fact that foreigners seeing the possibilities, have invested their money there.

* * *

German leather is coming to this country in quantities. One well able to judge leather tells me this leather is the best ever. Germans as a rule make little black leather such as our gun metal finish. But they have sent some of this kind here and there is nothing about the article which can be criticised. The prices are lower than ours, and the question arises, what will result? Shoe manufacturers love their country no doubt. There is nothing on record where that love has spread to tanners. Therefore they will purchase the best leather for the lowest price. Why will not they purchase of the Germans today? Even if they hated them during the war, that hatred is smothered by the chance of making a dollar. So should we face much of this importation it will surely affect the tanners, to a considerable degree. The Germans have the pick of calf and hides in Europe. They are near the Norwegian market, the Russian market, and France with all her feeling will not hesitate to sell where the money is forthcoming. Then the price of labor in Germany is far less than here, partly for the reason the people there work to help country over self. That spirit will make Germany powerful again as she will be in a few years. We of the United States may be able to go along without such cooperation, but I do not believe it.

* * *

So we are facing problems while not new, are thrust upon us by the world's ways. It is no different than has been for centuries. It would be well as a nation to think more and talk less. In the past five years, talk has done more than has thinking. The man who can talk the best has the pole, and many times his arguments could be picked to pieces should the people think more. The records of the world show that the biggest men won their spurs by action and not words.

* * *

From the way white buck and other varieties have been selling of late, white shoes will be or will be expected to be the fad this summer. This means that the Vaughn sole will be in demand, which helps some.

* * *

Shoemakers of Lynn and Haverhill are still having trouble as to wages. The situation is not as bad as a year ago, but it is evident that cooperation with the manufacturers is a lost art in those cities. After the advice given them by men to whom they should listen, is not heeded, what else can be done? The situation is surely plain enough.

* * *

William J. Tetzlaff, well known tanner, has entered the employ of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Co. in the side leather department. He was formerly boss tanner at the Amerikaf Leather Co.

* * *

It is to be regretted that the Peabody Leather Co. has left our city. That plant is desirable for many purposes.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

There should be a big turnout of citizens at the next public forum called by the Chamber of Commerce to discuss needs of the city with a due regard to every taxpayer. The forum is to be held in the council chambers, City Hall, next week Thursday night. Representatives from all sections of the city should be present to say what their locality needs. The plan to have a survey of what Peabody needs most is bound to get progress for the city if the citizens will co-operate at this forum meeting

BAUER IS SINCERE

There is nothing of a personal tinge to the legislative bill which has been filed by Ralph S. Bauer, for the purpose of securing a fair and impartial investigation of the conduct of the affairs of Essex county. Mr. Bauer is actuated by a sincere desire to right some of the wrongs which have been permitted, and to which the attention of the people of the county was recently called by the grand jury.

His suggestion about the composition of a commission, which will specifically eliminate from its personnel residents of Essex county, shows that he aims to obtain an investigation which will be thorough and which will not be susceptible to local influences.

Mr. Bauer has demonstrated the need of a complete inquiry. There is sufficient evidence to warrant the adoption of his bill. It is only through investigations of the character suggested by Mr .Bauer that the people learn of the type of service furnished them by men elected to public office. He deserves commendation for his courageous stand.—Lynn Telegram, Jan. 22.

HE'S MY FRIEND

He may be six kinds of a liar,
He may be all kinds of a fool;
He may be a wicked high flyer
Beyond any reason or rule,
There may be shadows above him,
Of perils and woes that impend,
And I may not respect, but I love him,
Because—well, because he's my friend.

I know he has faults by the million,
But his faults are a portion of him;
I know that his record's vermilion,
And he's far from a sweet seraphim;
But he's always been square with yours truly,
Always ready to give or to lend,
And though he's wild and unruly,
I love him—because he's my friend.

I knock him, I know, but I do it,
The same to his face as away;
But if other folks knock him, they rue it
And wish they'd have nothing to say.
I never make diagrams of him,
No map of his soul have I penned,
For I don't analyze him—I just love him,
Because—well, because he's my friend!

—Jimmy Metcalf—Rotarian.

YOUR TEETH

By Rea Proctor McGee, D.D.S., M.D., Editor "Oral Hygiene"

STAINS

More than half of all of the people in the world live in Asia and have yellow or brown skins.

These people have changed the course of history many times in the past and they may do it again in the future particularly if they should learn the laws of sanitation as we know them.

There are so many men in Asia who chew the betel nut, which dyes the teeth red, that it is a good guess to say that one-tenth of all of the men now living dye their teeth red.

Chewing the betel nut may be a pleasant pastime, but the bright red stain will never become popular in this country.

Over here we seem to favor green stains for children's teeth and brown or black stains for the teeth of adults.

All of us think a Mongolian is a queer "gink" to deliberately make a habit of chewing an astringent nut that will leave its mark; yet we daily neglect to remove, or have removed, the various shades of green and brown stains that obscure the teeth that Nature gave us.

All stains should be removed from the teeth. If you cannot get them off yourself go to someone who knows how to take them off.

The green stain upon children's teeth must be removed immediately if it is not to be followed by caries, or decay of the teeth.

It is the normal that is beautiful.

Keep your teeth a normal color so that when you do smile you will get an encore.

BEST PEOPLE

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Philip Laidlaw was bitterly disappointed in a woman—he whom women had heretofore failed to interest. Almost, he had given up the shy hope of marriage, and a mate who would satisfy his heart, when he beheld Fay Winters.

Fay had come back to the small town after an absence since young girlhood, and Philip, the admired new attorney, saw her first momentarily, then with a lingering glance as she came through the lighted doorway of the town's best store.

"Perhaps, after all," said his man's hopeful heart, "this happy young woman may not be all that the townspeople say." For her return had long been heralded.

"Fay Winters coming back!" Philip's landlady said. "Well, what possessed her, I wonder, to come to the town that wasn't good enough for her years ago?"

"Fay Winters coming back to Eldridge!" exclaimed Philip's housekeeper. "Well, think of that, after all her travel and college training. Won't be nobody good enough for her to associate with. I remember her; she was nothing but a proud, pretty slip of a girl. Her rich aunt brought Fay up when she was left an orphan; and now she's left her all her money."

So Philip Laidlaw formed his imaginary picture of the newcomer's character. She was a snob, no doubt, and not an acquaintance to be cultivated. But after his second lingering gaze into the young woman's sweetly attractive countenance, Philip had marvelously changed his opinion.

Either the girl had altered with years, or her former neighbors slandered her; and after repeated evenings in Fay's pleasant society, the hope of marriage came joyously, thrillingly at last to Philip.

Here was the woman of whom he had dreamed, and despaired of finding. And secretly yearning, as months passed by, Philip decided, almost, to make his plea. Then came his great disappointment. In her charm for him, and her graciousness, Philip overlooked the indisputable fact of Fay's aloofness from others—her superiority, so openly deplored.

It was his housekeeper who forced the subject upon him. Her complainings, he discovered, were now echoed on all sides.

"Miss Winters hasn't got any use for Eldridge folks," the old woman told him, "except you, because you've been to college and have money. She don't call on the regular people here, or ask 'em to call on her. Not even Mrs. Dr. Wells, or the banker's wife. And folks do say, they wonder who on earth would be good enough to be a friend of hers."

Brusquely, because his heart was full, Philip put the matter before Fay that very evening. Though he had not openly voiced his love for her, he knew that the knowledge must be hers.

"Why," he regretted, "do you make no friends among the women here, Fay? Is it because—" the bitterness of disappointment brought contempt to his tones—"because there is no one good enough—even among the best people?"

In surprise, she regarded him. When she replied, her voice sounded coldly. "You are right," she agreed, "one should be sure that a real friend is good enough—one of the best people."

Her insinuation angered him; he took his hat and left. It was humiliating that the town folk should be correct in their judgment of the woman he loved—they, the cruelly, critical and slurring. She did not send for him, and because he felt that he owed her an apology which he could not give, Philip Laidlow stayed—sufferingly—away. His office assistant later volunteered information.

"The dames are chattering again," that young man said. "They are horrified now over Miss Winters' new friendship. Day after day she goes down to May Worth's with her books or her sewing. Day after day the two young women are seen together. Such a contrast, you know, Mr. Laidlow, so stunningly unexpected. But I don't blame Miss Winters; the accepted set of Eldridge are a narrow, speculating lot; taken together or singly. I know 'em."

Wondering unavoidably, Philip was on his feet.

"Tell me," he demanded, "where does this Worth girl live—?"

And the clerk told him. Philip had difficulty finding his way there, the house was so small and unobtrusive; for lack of paint, so hidden by twisted old trees from the roadway. But Fay Winters was with her chosen friend.

The friend sat—a neatly shabby little creature—in an inexpensive gayly covered chair. The cheery light from an open stove shone on the two girls' faces. What had been the topic of their conversation, Philip Laidlow could not know; but it was evident that neither ungenerous criticism nor unkindly surmise had left that soft glow of sympathy in the young women's eyes or touched their lips with gentleness.

"I want you to meet my friend, May Worth," Fay said proudly. To him, alone, she added, "and she is a good friend—one of the best people."

As Philip Laidlaw clasped the hand of the woman he loved, as his eyes met hers, true understanding came to him. And disappointment vanished forever.

ROUND ABOUT

Several of the Peabody firemen have asked me to add credit in these columns to Dr. J. W. P. Murphy, William F. Carlin and Councillor Henry Duggan for their efforts which resulted in plenty of hot coffee being served the fire fighters at the Solly block fire last Sunday night. Dr. Murphy went to Salem and kept the hot coffee coming all through the fire. Mrs. Francis Bowen, widow of the late patrolman, who occupies the tenement next to the fire block, insisted on the firemen using her kitchen to thaw out their rubber coats, and she and her daughter provided food and served the hot coffee. Mrs. Bowen rendered a fine service.

All Peabody and Essex County members of the New England Milk Producers' Association are invited to attend the annual meeting of the association to be held in Boston Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Important questions and changes in policy are to be brought up for discussion and it is important that as many members as possible should attend. Reduced rates have been secured on all New England railroads and the cost to any individual farmer will be materially lessened. It is hoped to have the largest meeting in the history of the association.

LEARN HOW TO READ YOUR OWN GAS METER

All gas companies keep a record of the tests of meters as they come into the repair shop or proving room. A recent published report of the summaries of these meter tests confirms the accuracy of the gas meter. The great majority of consumers' gas meters are correct, and the average of those incorrect is in favor of the consumer and against the gas company; in other words, under-register, rather than over-register.

The question about the size of a gas bill would never be raised if the consumer will read his meter daily, or even once a week. The gas is constantly at his service and the meter simply records the amount which is used. This amount can be controlled by the consumer, and the simplest way is for him to read the index of his meter daily. This is a very simple thing to do, in fact is done very generally by large users of gas for industrial purposes. If any consumer is in doubt about reading the index of his meter. the gas company will give instructions for doing so. In this way many disputes over the size of a gas bill will be remedied by the consumer, who has it solely in his power to limit the amount of gas used.

Our Growth

Following is a list of the number of students enrolled in the ten largest collegiate institutions in New England as of December 1, 1921, including evening students, but excluding special, extension, and non-resident students:

Harvard	6071
Boston University	5509
Yale	3815
Mass. Institute of Technology	3558
The Bentley School of Accounting and Finance	2194
Tufts	2092
Dartmouth	2011
Smith	1999
Brown	1641
Wellesley	1548

The Bentley School of Accounting and Finance was established in 1917 with 29 students, and in 1921 its enrollment of 2194 established a record of growth that is believed to be unparalleled in the educational history of this country. It is, so far as we have been able to ascertain, the largest professional school of collegiate grade in the world that is devoted exclusively to the training of commercial and public accountants.

The remarkable growth of this school is chiefly due to its high standards, and reputation for furnishing the best training in preparation for accounting practice that is available.

One of the outstanding features of this school is the unusually high standards required for graduation. All courses in accounting must be completed with an average grade of not less than B—(80%), and all other subjects must be completed with a grade of not less than C—(70%). Upon completion of the required courses a certificate is issued, but the diploma is witheld and the student is not permitted to be known as a graduate of the school until he has had two years of practical experience in commercial or public accounting that satisfactorily demonstrates his technical ability, adaptability, application, and business conduct. He is then entitled to a diploma and to be known as a B. S. G. (Bentley School Graduate). A diploma of The Bentley School of Accounting and Finance is something which one can justly feel proud to possess, and prize for the prestige it affords.

Both day and evening courses are offered to men who desire to specialize in accounting. Day courses require two years for completion of the required subjects, and evening courses four years.

Required Courses

Accounting I (Elementary)	Business Law
Accounting II (Intermediate)	Business English
Accounting III (System Building and Cost Accounting)	Economics
Accounting IV (Auditing)	Corporation Finance
Accounting V (Advanced Accounting Problems)	Money and Banking
Business Mathematics	Interpretation of Financial Statements

There are excellent opportunities in business for young men who are properly trained in accounting, and interested in fitting themselves for a position as office manager, cost accountant, auditor, comptroller, assistant treasurer, or public accountant.

Finish your high school training and then spend two years with us. You will then be ready for a good position and have the satisfaction of knowing that you are fitted for a definite career. This is the age of the specialist, and the man who starts out in life unprepared to do some one thing especially well is out of tune with the spirit of the times.

Our students range in age from 17 to 45
A number of them are college graduates

BIG SALARIES FOR ACCOUNTING WORK

During the past 40 years the accounting profession in the United States has grown from a mere handful of men to the point where today there are probably more than 10,000 men engaged in public practice.

Conclusive evidence of the increasing demand for properly trained accountants is given by the phenomenal growth of The Bentley School of Accounting and Finance in Boston. This school was established by H. C. Bentley, certified public accountant, with the purpose of giving a more complete and thorough training in accounting practice than offered by other schools. The first year, 1917, the school had an enrollment of 29 students, and this year, although the school is only five years old, it established a record with 2194 students.

With its enrollment of 2194 the Bentley school now stands fifth in the list of collegiate institutions in New England. An idea of the comparative size of the school is given by the fact that it has a larger regular enrollment than Tufts, Dartmouth, Smith, Brown or Wellesley.

A FAMOUS ACROBAT PRAISES SANALT THE SENSIBLE TONIC

THERE IS PROBABLY NO MORE FAMOUS ACROBATIC TROUPE NOW PERFORMING THAN THAT OF THE HART BROTHERS. THEY HAVE APPEARED ON THE GREATEST VAUDEVILLE CIRCUITS AND ALSO UNDER THE BIGGEST TENTS. DURING THE SEASON OF 1921 THEY WERE WITH THE RINGLING BROTHERS,—BARNUM & BAILEY'S GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH.

OF COURSE, THEY ARE UNDER GREAT PHYSICAL STRAIN AT ALL TIMES, AND IF ANY ONE OF THEM GETS SICK, IT'S A SERIOUS MATTER FOR ALL OF THEM. ONE OF THESE FAMOUS PERFORMERS, MR. EVERETT F. HART, SAYS:—

"About the middle of the season, when we were in Ohio, I almost completely lost my appetite. I simply had to force myself to eat what was necessary to keep me going. Food did not taste good; it did not digest. I was constipated and generally miserable.

"I suppose that people who attend the Circus have an idea that we actors are always well because it would seem that we have to be. The truth is that with the Big Show, with its many hundreds of people, there are always a good many who are really sick, and the performers, of course, have to watch themselves more carefully than any others to keep from breaking down. So, when my appetite left me, and I commenced to lose flesh, I knew that something must be done.

"One of the people with the Circus recommended Sanalt as being just the thing that I needed, so I bought a bottle, and commenced to take it. I soon realized that it was doing something to me, for my organs became active and regular. My complexion cleared up, and what was best of all, I stopped being afraid that I was going to be sick. Two bottles of Sanalt made me feel perfectly well, but I shall always have some with me in the future, as a protection against sickness."

All progressive druggists sell Sanalt.

Why It Is Called Wall Street.

Wall street, New York, derives its name from the old wall that extended along it in the old Dutch days, and marked the northern boundary of the town of New Amsterdam.

South Peabody

A number of South Peabody people have formed a dramatic club, under the direction of W. E. Weld, who has had experience in this line. The club has already selected a drama to be presented in the near future at the Second Congregational church.

Mrs. Bessie Perkins of Beverly and Herbert Tucker of County street were married last Saturday evening by Rev. Robert Bakeman. They were married at the parsonage and were unattended. The groom has spent the most of his life in South Peabody. They will reside on Rowell avenue, Beverly.

Mrs. Josephine Ricker entertained the ladies' degree team of Peabody Grange last Monday evening and an enjoyable evening was spent. The following members entertained during the evening: Piano solos, Mrs. Helen Sheehan ;vocal selections, Miss Mildred Ricker; readings, Mrs. Hazel Shepherd; fancy dancing, Mrs. Jessie Gourley; story telling, Mrs. Mary Moore, and gymnastic exercises, Miss Ruth Batchelder. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her daughter, Mildred Ricker.

Mrs. Stella Newhall of Lynn street entertained the Sewso Club Monday evening.

Jimmie Bowman of Lynn street is ill with pneumonia.

Dan Carney of Winnegance avenue has had an attack of the grip.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lake Shore Park church will meet with Mrs. Cronin on Broadway next Thursday afternoon.

A new barber shop has opened over the variety store at the Lynn and Peabody line.

The E. R. Club will hold a social in the vestry of the Lake Shore Park church next Wednesday evening. The girls have invited their mothers to attend.

A rehearsal for the "Old Folks' concert" was held Tuesday evening. February 7 is the date announced for the concert. Miss Beatrice Keith is directing the chorus.

Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. Lester Southwick of Lake Shore Park last Sunday.

Rupert Newhall of Lynn street started to work this week after a three week's illness of the jaundice.

Mrs. Carrie Swan of Lynn street was installed noble grand of Starlight Rebekah Lodge Monday evening.

The child welfare committee appointed by the Mothers'-Teachers' Association are to hold a food sale next Wednesday afternoon from three to five o'clock in Keith's store. The proceeds of this sale will be used for school lunches. The lunches this week have been well patronized by the children and this community work should be encouraged.

A photograph social was held at the Second Congregational church Wednesday evening. About 35 baby pictures were on exhibition and the prize for guessing the most correct was a tie between Miss Evelyn Brown and Miss Bertha Stone. Hot chocolate and cake were served by the committee.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Secong Congregational church will hold an entertainment next Wednesday evening. A one-act sketch called "Hiring a Confidential Clerk" will be given. One of Dorothy Berry Carpenter's pupils from Lynn will give readings and the Grange quartet will give selections. Several numbers from local talent will make up a program that will have to be seen to be appreciated.

Jordan Lodge of Masons, City's Oldest Fraternity--- Rufus Choate Once Member

Jordan Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Peabody's oldest fraternal organiaztion, passed its 113th anniversary on December 20, 1921, having received its harteer on Dec. 20, 1808. George Draper of the firm Draper & Chilson, leather manufacturers, is the Worshipful Master having passed through the various offices in the lodge to that of master at the last election.

The history of Jordan Lodge records that Rufus Choate, one of the greatest American lawyers, was raised in Jordan Lodge, and it is interesting to the later day generation to chronicle the fact that Choate was United States senator, succeeding to the unexpired term of Daniel Webster on the latter's death.

GEORGE DRAPER
Master of Jordan Lodge

While a resident of Peabody, Senator Choate resided in the house now occupied W. Boynton on Mill street. He was born in Ipswich and after completing his law studies put out his first sign, "Attorney Choate," in Salem, where it remained just 24 hours when he heeded a suggestion that he locate his office in Peabody, then South Danvers. He served Peabody in the legislature, both in the house and senate. He was elected to congress in 1833 and in 1841 was appointed successor to Senator Webster. Choate died in 1859.

An Indian chief by name Maungwandus, at one time head of the Ojibeway tribe in Maine, was raised in Jordan Lodge. The Indian chief had traveled over the world and finally settled in Peabody and became a member of Jordan Lodge in March, 1850.

Worshipful Master Draper was born March 18, 1880, in Peabody. He married Miss Emma L. Osborne, daughter of the late Calvin P. Osborne, leather manufacturer, and sister of Capt. Louis P. P. and Arthur A. Osborne, both of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Draper reside at 58 Washington street. Mrs. Draper is secretary and one of the charter members of Peabody Chapter Eastern Star. Mr. Draper is one of the wardens in St. Paul's Episcopal church.

Seventeen past masters of Jordan Lodge now living are in order of their term in office: John C. Jodrey, Charles E. Teague, Albert E. Southwick, Samuel Watts, Arthur L. Pattee, George F. Low, Augustus H. Patterson, Frederick Mansfield, Walter L. Williams, William H. Hill, Ernest W. Coombs, Alonzo W. Tyler, Howard W. Trask, Arthur A. Osborne, James E. Pray and Edward Rainford. All told, there have been 43 masters of the lodge since its institution in 1808.

The lodge occupies two floors in the Warren National bank building, having an excellent lodge room on the top floor and a reading room and banquet hall on the second floor.

STATE PRISON CHAPLAIN URGES PUBLIC CONCERN OF BOYS WELFARE

That the citizenship should manifest a concern in the welfare of our young boys and girls and thereby help to keep them from correctional institutions was one of the arguments of Catholic Chaplain Joseph M. Murphy of the state prison in his recent address before the St. John's Alumnae of this city. On this subject he expressed himself as follows:

"The scientific investigation of the prison problem indicates that the best efforts of social and welfare workers should be directed to securing such environment and training, both mental and moral, as will nip in the bud the criminal proclivities of the young, the wayward boys and girls of today who may become the adult transgressors of tomorrow and who will thus furnish the supply of inmates to the prisons in the years to come. The method of treatment in individual cases might be varied, but the absolute necessity of applying some adequate systematic treatment is obvious.

"If the supply of future inmates is diminished by just and equitable provisions of law and the earnest brotherly co-operation of the citizens, the overflow will necessarily decrease, and give less concern, and we would indeed rapidly reduce crime to a minimum, and decrease the number of felons now supported at enormous expense.

"The policy of the future will be more Christian and scientific in dealing with this class of offenders. It will provide a plan whereby they will be cared for and transformed into useful citizens without the stigma of a court sentence. The methods of the present only too readily sentence the young, with the result that every prison numbers among its population a large percentage of reform school graduates, men who have become institutionized, men educated in all branches and departments of crime who are practically outside the pale of conversion This system has been tried and found wanting After years of failure we begin to realize that the welfare of the individual and community demand that these youthful offenders be afforded every aid and assistance to embrace virtuous lives and that they be confined in the care of the state only as a last resort.

"The work of public spirited men will be more concerned with these boys who do not enjoy proper home training or advantages or who commit offenses against the order and peace of the neighborhood or who violate the rights of others. Many a boy and young man will be sent along the road to health, wealth and happiness through the medium of brotherly interest and be saved disgrace and positive injury which frequently follows from commitment to correctional schools."

Essex "Aggie" School Notes

Wednesday, February 15th, the Chebacco Pomona Grange combining with the Essex Pomona and Essex-Middlesex Pomona will hold the fifth annual mid-winter field meeting at the school. A program has been arranged for both morning and afternoon, which should be attractive to all Grange members. The students of the school will furnish a mixed entertainment occupying one hour. There are to be special meetings for Grange masters and Grange lecturers.

Plans are moving forward rapidly for Farmers day, Thursday, March 16th. In addition to the usual speaking program, there will be a trade display of implements, appliances and accessories useful on the farm and in the home. There will also be a small poultry show, the contestants being the poultry club members from Essex County.

NEW COUNCIL

The new council of Pocahontas will be instituted this evening by Great Pocahontas Annie S. Patterson and suite. All who have not signed are requested to be at the hall at 7 o'clock. After the institution there will be an election of officers and the Pocahontas degree. There will be a collation.

American Legion

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold an installation of officers in Legion hall this evening Mrs. Elizabeth Nye of Swampscott will conduct the installation. The officers for the coming year are: President, Mrs. Helen Bomer; vice president, Mrs. Jesse Fyfe ;secretary, Miss Anna Carbrey; treasurer, Miss Catherine Sullivan; chaplain, Mrs. Catherine Cassidy; sergeant-at-arms, Miss May O'Connor; executive committee, Miss May Carbrey, chairlady, Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, Mrs. James Murphy. Invitations have been extended to the G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps, Sons of Veterans, the American Legion, and to friends of the auxiliary. After the installation there will be a short entertainment and dancing.

* * *

While the auxiliary has had a prosperous year, the number of new members received has been very disappointing. It should not be necessary to urge the women to join an organization of this kind. At the Essex County meeting the reports showed that during August of the past year, disabled soldiers were enterig the hospitals at the rate of 1300 per month. In November the rate had increased to 1800 per month, and reliable authorities say that the peak has not yet been reached. To the auxiliary comes the task of providing comforts for these boys, and also of helping their families if they are found to require help. Every woman in this city whose son, husband or brother returned to her in good physical and mental condition should feel it her duty to join this organization and help the less fortunate boys who came home with minds or bodies disabled. Any wife, mother or sister of a member of the Legion is eligible for membership, and the auxiliary extends an invitation to these women to come to their installation, to meet their president and members, and to register for membership for the coming year.

* * *

Vigorous objection to the admission into the United States of Gregorie Semionoff, self-styled ataman (headman) of the Russian Cossacks, has been made by the American Legion, appearing before Secretary of Labor Davis. The Legion claims he is an undesirable alien. He has been granted permission to stay in the country for six months.

* * *

How much war trophies are actually worth depends on whose neck was risked to get them. John G. James' room in an Omaha, Neb., boarding house was rifled of all his A. E. F. souvenirs from a medal-laden belt captured from a German major, iron crosses picked up from the battlefields, the gas mask he had used in many battles, Red Cross bags containing shrapnel extracted from his wounds, a silver cigarette case taken from a German prisoner, to his American Legion button. He told the court they were worth $10,000. But the law only compelled the landlord to pay $50, because the trophies were in a suitcase at the time they were stolen.

* * *

Thousands of disabled soldiers who should be in hospitals are forced to work and support their families because their compensation claims have not been allowed, according to the American Legion. Hanford MacNider, commander, has called upon the Veterans' Bureau to effect prompt adjustment.

* * *

Every town of 500 or more persons in Minnesota has an American Legion post, Gopher state records show. Five hundred and thirteen posts and 275 Auxiliary units have been organized since July, 1919.

* * *

Beaten up by a gang of railway thieves, Detective J. C. Rodlinski of Salamanca, N. Y., was spared from death when one of the thugs spied a Marine service button in his lapel and recognized the detective as a former buddy in France.

* * *

Among the New Year greetings received by Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion, was a beautifully engraved card which read: "Happy New Year. May you, if you get in jail through sentence affirmed by the United States supreme court, receive from Harding, as did Debs, a pardon and a reception in the White House."

* * *

By floating a $25,000 bond issue, El Paso, Texas, has become the first city in America to attempt to finance a permanent American Legion Home by municipal bonds.

* * *

Formation of a new political organization, to be known as the Soldiers' Party, is advocated by Wm. B. Grimes, New York, in a letter to an American Legion newspaper of Toledo, O. Grimes was a lieutenant in the A. E. F.

With forest logs hewn and hauled by their own hands, American Legion men at Stigler, Okla., have erected an "overgrown cabin" for a clubhouse, where, before two roaring wood fires, they can gather on wintry night to fight the war over again in comfort

The act of a Toledo judge in refusing citizenship to two foreign-born residents who avoided war service because of "conscientious objections" has been commended by the Tony Wroblewski post, American Legion, composed entirely of foreign-born Americans and sons of foreign-born residents.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

JUSTICE SERVICE CO-OPERATION

LITTLE TALKS AMONG OURSELVES

STUDY AND WORK

Once again a remark from our "Little Talks" has been criticised. One of the leather workers of Peabody commented upon the following statement made last week in this column: "he cannot fill that job (management) until he can rise to be a foreman, then a superintendent and later an owner. This path is open to every American worker."

The leather worker did not agree to this. "He did not believe that such a path was open to him or any other wage earner. Workers in the cellar or at the machines were tied to their jobs by force of circumstances; by low wages, care of a family, lack of education and a dozen different forces which kept a man under somebody's foot all his life and from which there was no escape."

It is extremely unfortunate that men do not know, or do not realize, that in this country men are free; free to work, or to loaf; free to save or to spend; free to study or not, each according to his own will. It is because of this individual freedom that these United States are the hope and the refuge of all the world; there is no other country we ever heard of where men have this freedom and this right.

In this land we give to all an opportunity to develop character and manhood; an opportunity which permits the poorest boy to develop to the fullest extent of his ability. John D. Rockefeller was an office boy earning $1.50 a week.

Thomas A. Edison was another poor boy who could only earn $1.50 a week.

Elbert H. Gary was the son of a poor farmer.

Charles M. Schwab was a day laborer in a steel mill.

George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York, was a night watchman.

Philip Armour was a laborer with pick and shovel.

One of the presidents of the United States—Garfield—drove the mules on the canal towpath.

It would be easy to write of a hundred such men,—the great Lincoln was one such,—who were tied and bound by force of circumstance to a narrow life with small pay; but, they did not or would not believe they were so bound; they believed they were free. Free to do what? To work. To study. To produce. To create something. To save. They did not sit by and complain about their hard luck. They did not try by laws or combinations or warfare to force people to give them something so they could work less and produce less. No. They studied day and night to endeavor to produce more, to create something for which the world would pay them. They rendered the world a big service and the world paid them a big reward. The path they followed is open to every American worker. The path of endeavor, of study and work.

And if we look around among the owners of factories in the leather industry we see the same rule of work. Almost every manufacturer started as a wage earner. One worked in the cellar; one was a tacker; another a knee staker; one drove a team; one was a shipping clerk. There is no necessity of mentioning names, many who read these lines know just who these manufacturers are. The list is a long one and the end is not yet, for only a few months ago two young men stopped receiving any more pay envelopes; they started a little business of their own and today are handing out pay envelopes to others. The path they followed is open to every American worker. The path of earnest and honest study and work.

No, son. Don't let anyone try to tell you that you are not as good as the next man. Don't be led astray by any downhearted pessimist who tells you that the country is going to the dogs and you are going along with it. Don't believe the man who runs down your job, or your boss, or your city, or your country. If you don't like your job, get out. Find the thing you like to do best, whether it is playing the violin or working in a grocery store or factory. But, when you play your violin be a good player, one of the best. When you clerk in a store be the best clerk. When you work in a factory be such a worker that the boss can promote you to a better job; be the next man to move up. You are killing your chances every time you grouse and growl and kick and beat the anvil. "The man who never does more than he is paid for, never gets paid for more than he does." That's a true saying.

A manufacturer said the other day: "I am looking all the time for men who have ability to be foremen; the workers seem contented to stay at their jobs. Why is it they do not want to rise? Why do not men study and work and save in order to be better men and get better pay? I am watching all the time for men who know about leather and can use that knowledge."

This is a great country because of this opportunity open to every American worker. The men named above are wonderful examples to the young men of today. A Schwab is a great teacher; he makes us think. And in and through industry,—in our day's work,—there is a new thought among the youth of our land; leading them in initiative, in creation, in thrift, in energy, in persistency, character, courage and faith. Training them to be real men and women.

CHARLES H. EGLEE.

PYTHIANS INSTALL OFFICERS FOR 1922

Peabody Lodge No. 96, Knights of Pythias, and Pythian Temple No. 92, Pythian Sisters, held a joint installation of officers at I. O. O. F. hall, Friday evening, Jan. 20. Officers of Peabody Lodge No 96 were installed by D. G. C. George A. Woodman of A. C. Moody Lodge of Lynn. The officers installed were: C. C., Edward F. Larrabee; V. C., T. QUEEN OF SHEBA AT THE FEDERAL

The grandeur and immensity of the scale on which "Queen of Sheba" which will be at the Federal theatre, Salem, next Monday, was produced, under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards, is shown in those scenes of the picture taken on the desert. These involve the trip of Sheba across the Arabian desert on her first visit to the great wise man of the East, King Solomon; later the crossing of Sheba and her army going to the aid of Solomon, besieged by Adonijah in the Tower of David; and finally the Queen and her little son returning to her kingdom after the child's visit to Solomon and his great adventures at the court of the king

Like the moving of an army, like the moving of a great caravan over the desert, was the preparation for the making of these scenes The sand dunes on which they were filmed are at Oxnard, 65 miles from the William Fox West Coast studios. To this point there had to be transported 600 persons, 300 horses, 14 camels, 31 chariots, some 150 tents including Arabian tents, wardrobe and dressing room tents and sleeping tents for about 300 persons. Besides these were two 'chuck" wagons, accompanied by a chef and a staff of assistants; forty wardrobe boxes beside special wardrobe for principals; four water wagons; and eighteen motor trucks for the transportation of these things from the train over the five miles to location. Like a little city was this complete equipment when spread and set in action for the making of the picture.

For the accommodation of this moving army there were chartered two trains to carry the people and the equipment between Los Angeles and Oxnard—one train of twelve cars for the freight and animals, and a second train of six cars to carry the actors. Beside this, Mr. Edwards and his staff, the principals, and the cameramen went by automobile over the mountain roads.

The picturesquely clad mounted Arabians, followers of the Queen and her fighting men, were all picked trained riders, many of them western cowboys, who gave the greatest zest to the dramatic dash of Sheba's army racing across the sands of the desert when at the command of the Queen, they rushed to the aid of Solomon besieged by Adonijah.

GALAXY OF FILM STARS FOR STRAND ANNIVERSARY WEEK

The Sixth Anniversary of the Strand Theatre will be celebrated starting Sunday by a week of especially good pictures. During the six years that the Strand has been operated by the N. H. Ware Co., under the personal supervision of Chet Bent, it has justly acquired a high standing in the community. Today no one will challenge the statement that Peabody has motion picture entertainment on a par with any offered in New England.

The first of the Anniversary programs, which will be presented Sunday evening, offer Rudolph Valentino, the star who became an international favorite because of his talented work in "The Sheik" and "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," in a drama of the frozen Artic entitled "Uncharted Seas." Alice Lake co-stars with Mr. Valentino in this production. May Allison in "The Marriage of William Ashe" will be the second feature for Sunday evening.

"The Invisible Power," starring House Peters and Irene Rich, will be the special attraction for Monday and Tuesday. This is a strong drama by Charles Kenyon, the author of the famous play "Kindling." It is essentially a crook story, but emphasizes the difficulties of those dependent upon the thief rather than the underworld activities of gangsters. Irene Rich, as the wife, reveals new depths in portraying pathos and the sacrifices of a mother who prefers to part with her child rather than see her grow up and learn that her father was a thief.

House Peters, as the reformed crook, who is hounded by the secret police, gives a manly and romantic performance that will add to his prestige as one of the most appealing and capable leading men now on the screen. The story itself deals with the regeneration of an underworld character and the sacrifices of his wife to help him 'go straight." The very fact, however, that he has once been in jail, keeps him constantly under the surveillance of the secret police; so much so that even his wife becomes enmeshed in the politics of the detectives that watch the activities of underworld characters. The plot is logical and the climax highly effective.

"Buster" Keaton in "The Playhouse" will be an added attraction for Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Keaton is recognized as one of the greatest comedians of all time and his stunts in this new production are the absolute limit in fun making.

Marion Davies in "Enchantment," a Cosmopolitan production, will be the big feature for Wednesday and Thursday. It is released by the Paramount Company as a special feature which gives an accurate estimate of its entertainment value. In addition to the entertaining and fascinating story Miss Davies brings before the camera an assortment of gowns and coats and hats which will set every feminine eye in the audience shining with delight. Forrest Stanley is the leading man.

High School Notes

A meeting of the Commercial Club was held in room 10 Monday noon. It was decided to hold a private Party and Dance at some future date. The following committees were chosen: Decorating, Elizabeth Moore, Lottie Brown, Paul McGreggor, and Newell Bodge; Dance, Phoebe O'Connor, Helen Byron, Kathleen Hallahan and Mary Mularkey; Refreshments, Francis Harrigan, Bessie Carney, and Nellie Aldrich; Entertainment, Mary Moynahan, James Sweeney, Eva Fay, and Dorothy Wiggin.

The club has a membership of seventy-five students. The time for enrollment is limited. All those who wish to enroll must do so before Monday noon, January 30. No one will be admitted after that time. Any pupil may become a member if he is rated as a Senior or Junior, or is studying Stenography or Accounting.

The cooking and sewing classes in Domestic Science have been started this week and it is expected that many students will enjoy taking up the different kinds of work.

Miss Alice Woodman and Miss Nora McCarthy have been substituting for some of the teachers the last two weeks.

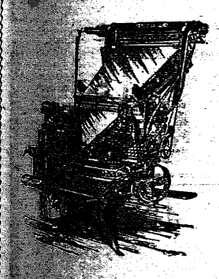
The P. H. S. had fire drills twice during the last week. The time required to clear the buliding was one minute and twelve seconds. Mr. Woodman plans to have the fire drill so arranged that the pupils will be familiar with every means of exit in every period of the day.

The sixth, seventh, and eighth grades of the Bowditch School are in session in the three rooms on the first floor of the new wing. As these classes keep the usual grade hours, there is no conflict in the school work.

The first rehearsal for the orchestra was held Thursday at 1.30 under the direction of J. W. Crowley. The new music room opposite the Assembly Hall was used for the rehearsal.

The classes in French under the direction of Miss Masterson are starting a course of correspondence with the pupils in some of the French schools. The two schools are kept in touch with each other by a New York Bureau, which does work of this kind upon receipt of ten cents from each pupil in the P. H. S. who wishes a correspondent. The Peabody pupils write their letters in English and receive their replies in French. The classes are enthusiastic on the plan, and expect much pleasure.

This class has received a number of addresses from France and each French pupil is expected to communicate with some French high school boy or girl. This exchange of words will undoubtedly aid Miss Masterson's pupils greatly, for they will learn a great deal of the French ways of correspondence and French ideas of America.



The basketball team which is now being formed for the girls, has filled many with much enthusiasm. The girls are very much interested in basketball and a large number have enrolled to become members of a team. Mr. King has secured a coach

Your New Year's Home

I am interested in seeing Peabody secure more homes. I have a plan which will permit you to pick out your lot of land and I'll build your new home to suit you in every particular. Why continue to pay rent, when you can own your own house? Let me show you how you can do it.

SHEEHY TAKES OFFICE

to carry, 5 to 4, urged the unanimous passage of the order and this resulted. Meanwhile there will be a conference between the finance committee and the Mayor for further details of the loan order.

Councillor Craig dubbed Councillor Barry the "Captain of Finance" when he spoke on the loan order seeking information and thought that the finance committee should first have all needed data regarding the new loan order and for that reason he favored delaying action. Barry is chairman of the finance committee.

The loan order was prepared by City Auditor Goggin, according to the City Solicitor, who said the former had urged the immediate adoption of the order so the city could borrow money.

Councillor Cullen, making his maiden speech last night, declared he would agree someone should have been present to explain the loan order, but lest the city be faced with no funds to do business, he favored passage of the order. Cullen has a mind of his own and will be heard from.

Patrick J. Sheehy becomes principal assessor today at a salary of $2000, succeeding Jere J. Quirk as chairman of the board, following the refusal of the Council last night to reconsider its confirmation of two weeks ago. Councillor McKeen moved the reconsideration. Supporting him were Councillors Barnes, Craig and Duggan. Councillor Jones was absent through illness and the other five Councillors voted against reconsideration.

Councillor Barnes read a letter from Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long, the gist of which was that no change should be made in view of the record of the assessors. Councillor Barry replied to the letter by recalling the fact that Gov. Coolidge replaced Commissioner Trefry, who had been an able official for 20 years, to make room for Mr. Long, his private secretary, who had no experience. Commissioner Trefry committed suicide following the loss of his position.

Mayor Shea sent in a list of public buildings together with the amount of insurance carried, as requested, but he failed to specify who carried the insurance and what the total amount of fire insurance was. On motion of Councillor Duggan these last two questions were referred back to the Mayor.

James J. Linehan of 75 Northend street was nominated for Board of Health Commissioner to succeed Alfred A. Hall. His term is for three years.

Thomas Donovan of 22 Caller street filed a claim for damages due to backflooding of the sewer. Atty. Charles R. O'Connell, his counsel, asked that the claims and sewer committees confer together on the petition. It was so voted.

The Council gave the fire engineers the right to purchase a pair of young horses for Hose 4 firekit.

Sidney B. Mansfield and Cornelius Sheehan were drawn for jury duty.

All of the Mayor's appointees already before the Council were confirmed last night. Councillor Duggan alone voted against confirming Andrew Fyfe, State Aid Commissioner. Fyfe should worry.

SHARING

SORROW is hard, but we can bear it
If there be others by to share it,
And Happiness, if we divide it,
Becomes as though we'd multiplied it.
Wherefore, in days of peace or trouble,
'Twere well always to seek a double,
And share in bright and stormy weather
Our blessings and our woes—together.

BENEFIT DANCE

A benefit entertainment and dance will be held in City Hall, Friday evening February 10, the proceeds of which will be given to a needy family. It is being conducted by joint committees from three societies in the city and it is expected that the attendance will be large. Potter's orchestra will furnish the music. The committee includes John Nash, Robert Feeley, Jere Shea, John "Cy" McCarthy and Daniel Desmond, representing the Eagles; Timothy McCarthy, Hyman Rosenstein and "Doc" Reed, the Leather Workers' Union; Patrick Keilty, Frank Shea and Patrick O'Connor the M. C. O. F.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Porter of Main street have joined a Lynn party who will spend the next month in Florida.

CITY OF PEABODY

BE IT ORDERED by the City Council of the City of Peabody as follows:

That the City Treasurer is hereby authorized to incur debt and issue notes of the City therefor to the amount of $776,000 (Seven hundred seventy-five thousand dollars) in anticipation of the revenue of the financial year beginning January 1, 1922. The said notes shall be signed by the City Treasurer and countersigned by the Mayor and shall be payable and paid not later than one year from their respective dates and may be refunded by the issue of other notes maturing within one year from the date of the original obligations. The said notes are hereby expressly made payable from the revenues of the said financial year. The said notes shall not be obligatory unless certified thereon as to genuineness by the First National Bank of Boston, Mass.

Introduced January 12, 1922
Advertised January 13, 1922
Adopted January 26, 1922
Advertised January 27, 1922

True copy attest.

City Clerk.

CITY HALL NOTES

It is evident that the new water pump is doing good work. The pressure during the recent fire kept up with all that was used There has been considerable air in the water for some time, due to the fact the reservoir has been low More water will be sent to this basin which will stop the trouble.

* * *

Spring pond is 65 feet at present, 72 being full and 58 low mark. Engineer Emerson calls this condition better than other years, and with spring coming there is little to worry about

* * *

Ice cutting it is estimated takes some 7,000,000 gallons of water or two day's supply from Spring pond. As the owners of this ice pay nothing for this ice or 7,000,000 gallons of water, the city loses.

* * *

It is expected the policemen's ball will net a good sum for their new organization. The citizens have taken hold of the advertising, which assures good money from programs.

* * *

Because of co-insurance, the city loses a tidy sum because of the fire in the old high schoolhouse. It seems to us that unless full insurance is carried, it would be as well not to insure at all. The open question of what to do with this half-burned buildig has many angles. If there is so much noise from shifting engines as to make that location a nuisance, then sell the property, or can some other department of the city use it to advantage?

* * *

The question of more room for schools has been partly solved. But they tell us the Warren school must be succeeded by a larger one, and so the expense will continue. Compared with other cities of its size, Peabody today is as well equipped as are most cities.

* * *

If we are going to build schoolhouses to use for basketball and get no revenue from them, it is something that a majority of the citizens object to. If no damage to the building comes from it well and good, but this seems impossible.

* * *

Mayor Shea has started on his 1922 budget, the departments being called on for estimates of the expense for this year We are some curious to know what is to happen.

Everything points to Chairman Sheehy of the Board of Assessors at the meeting Thursday evening. When settled the board can commence to line up for 1922, appointments holding up matters.

Suntaug lake is about full, as the city has not drawn from this supply for some time Later the water from Suntaug will be let on.

* * *

Jere Quirk is busy appraising several large pieces of property in the city With the Peabody Leather Co.'s plant, the Armstrong Leather Co.'s plant closed, and two others in litigation, tannery property is some different than a short time ago. The city will lose consideration from such property unless occupied.

* * *

The heating plant in City Hall should be overhauled for economy's sake. In the basement, some of the returns empty into the sewer, and many mornings the water in the boilers are low. Running cold water into them uses up much coal and there is no doubt a big saving could be made by proper returns to the boilers.

* * *

Salem, we read, wants a separate sewer. We do not know what a separate sewer would cost Peabody, but with the money Salem would pay us, the proposition seems feasible. Salem and Peabody never did agree from a municipal standpoint, and there is nothing in sight to make one think they will change. Discharging a sewer into the Atlantic is no child's play, and where we stand is difficult to figure. Would our manufacturers exercise as much care with our own sewer as now, when Salem is after us?

* * *

Then many will tell you that our sewer as constructed today is not large enough and we must add to it. Indeed there is plenty ahead to solve this problem for the best interests of the city.

* * *

We hear so many times that our city should be equipped with Ford cars only, this matter should be taken up and settled in the near future. Pierce Arrow appetites are strong, but the Ford will satisfy unless style is wanted. With the present condition of the city treasury, let us do away with the style stuff.

Lowell Street

L. P. P. Osborne, who has been a member of the board of directors of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, has declined a re-election for the coming year.

Miss Ruth Farrington is confined to her home by a severe cold.

The younger Camp Fire of Ruth Farrington met at the home of Dorothy Elwell on Franklin street Wednesday evening.

Miss Marie Lawton underwent an operation at the J. B. Thomas hospital last Friday.

Mrs. Frederick Macalister and daughter Patricia are spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Barnes of King street.

The fire escape at the Center school is receiving a much needed coat of paint. The grill work enclosing the stairways had only been dipped when the work was installed and this soon chipped off, leaving the iron to the mercy of the elements. The architect is applying the present covering at no expense to the city.

The police station had the appearance of a distillery yesterday morning as the result of two raids made in the city by Deputy G. A. McMasters and Chief Grady. A good portion of the chief's room was occupied by glass jugs containing the contraband, which certainly looked harmless enough.

Arvilla Barnes has been ill at her home on School street as the result of an abscess on a gland of the throat.

Miss Marion Quint is a victim of the influenza but is now well upon her way to recovery.

Mrs. Bessie R. Buxton, president, and Mrs. Etta M. Barnes, chairman, of the social committee of the Peabody Woman's Club, were guests of the Marblehead Woman's Club last Friday evening.

Miss Gertrude Lawton is spending the week with friends at Dover, N. H., where she is enjoying all the winter sports.

Miss Jennie Babner of Lowell street has recovered from a severe attack of tonsilitis.

Marjorie Norton underwent a slight operation at the Salem hospital this week.

Rev. and Mrs. John Reid entertained the faculty of the South church Sunday school at their home on Chestnut street last Wednesday evening.

Frank Hunt is confined to his home by a threatened attack of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Cook of 28 Mason street are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son born last Sunday at the Thomas hospital.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
PROBATE COURT.
Essex, ss.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of WILLIAM F. MURPHY late of Peabody in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for probate, by CATHERINE T. MURPHY who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to her the executrix therein named as CATHERINE MURPHY without giving a surety on her official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Lawrence in said County of Essex, on the thirteenth day of February A. D. 1922, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Peabody Enterprise a newspaper published in Peabody the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, HARRY R. DOW, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-sixth day of January in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two.

ATHERTON SPEAKER AT PEABODY CLUB

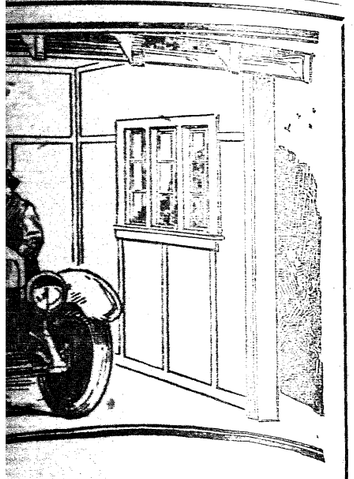
Horace H. Atherton, register of the probate court, will give some new stories of the odd things that come under his attention in probate matters before the Peabody Club members tomorrow night He is sure to find a big crowd.

PERSONAL



Miss Mildred Bickford of Holten street is spending the week with her aunt, Mrs. Ralph Willey of Atlantic.

Mrs. Fred J. Sylvada of Osborne street entertained the Ivy Circle at her home on Wednesday, when dinner was served to eleven ladies, and an enjoyable afternoon was spent.

Mrs. Ralph Willey of Atlantic spent the week end at the home of her brother, Charles E. Bickford, Holten street.

Lieut. Philip Nichols of the navy has been transferred from sea duty to the position of instructor for young navy men who are seeking admission to Annapolis. He is at Hampton Roads, Va., where the preparatory school is held for this purpose.

Vose E. Cross of Clement avenue and brother Harmon S. Cross, formerly of this city, were called to Waterville, Me., this week on the death of their mother. Mrs. Fred Jordan of this city is a daughter of the deceased.

VANDALS HURL FLAG ON FLOOR

Vandals forced their way into the American Legion rooms in the O'Shea building late last Friday night, unscrewed a large glass cabinet in which reposed the American flag and the Peabody Post handsome banner, and hurled the case to the floor, smashing the glass and defacing the flags. In addition the intruder otherwise defaced the rooms.

Commander Leo Sullivan has given all possible information to the police with a view to a clue, which may lead to an arrest of one or more persons who are suspected. According to Commander Sullivan no present member of the local Legion Post is guilty of the contemptible offense.

The transom over the door leading to the rooms was found forced open and it is believed the intruder bent on wreaking havoc in the rooms entered by this means. The cabinet in which was encased the colors was securely fastened to the wall and some effort was spent in freeing it from its position.

The incident has evoked great indignation and members of the Legion hope that the guilty person will be apprehended in the near future.

MAYOR HAD OK'D OFFAL COLLECTION

A contract for the collection of garbage throughout the city will probably be made tonight by the Board of Health with the endorsement of the Mayor and put into effect beginning Monday. This action follows a meeting of the health officials with Mayor Shea on Monday, Jan. 23, when an agreement was reached whereby the city would see a systematic collection of garbage. At that meeting were Commissioners Murray and Hall, City Almoner James J. Ray, Supt. Thomas Gilroy of the City Farm and Mayor Shea.

At the meeting of the City Council last week Thursday night, four days after the health department had made arrangements for the collection of garbage, Councillor Duggan introduced a resolve that the city undertake a regular collection of garbage and he was given credit for being the father of the idea. It is reported in City Hall that there was a leak in the board of health plans.

G. O. P. WOMEN

Republican women of Peabody are urged to attend an organization meeting in Odd Fellows' hall called for next week Wednesday evening, when Mrs. Mary Tillinghast, noted woman spellbinder, will be the principal speaker. The meeting will be opened at 8 o'clock. Chairman Angus J. MacDonald of the city cimmittee will preside.

HOWARD CLOCK CO. MAY LOCATE HERE

The Howard Clock Co. of Boston, one of the leading clock manufacturers in America, expected to become the owners today of the large factory formerly owned and operated by the Peabody Leather Co. on Grove street, papers being ready to sign at the registry of deeds office in Salem at noontime. The building is assessed for $56,000. It has a railroad siding and outside boiler house. The factory was erected less than seven years ago by the E. H. Porter Co. and is a model plant. It is understood that the Howard Clock Co. will employ over 100 skilled mechanics. Secretary Don Roby of the Peabody Chamber of Commerce first brought attention to the clock concern of the available Peabody factory.

Bakeman For Soldier Bonus

Editor of the Enterprise:

A soldier, wounded in France, lies on a bed today in the Parker Hill hospital. But he would not be there if it were not for the fighting loyalty of some of his Peabody comrades. These men were obliged to appeal to the president of the United States and have a special representative come from Washington and issue drastic orders before anything was done. And only fifteen miles from us in Boston is a veterans' bureau with an army of employes supposed to take care of this very thing!

Something is wrong—and one shudders to think how many boys there may be all over our country who need hospital treatment and have no one to

SMALL FIRE

A small fire on the roof of the building used by Vorel Leather Co., Central street, called out the department at 6.15 this morning. A chemical stream extinguished the blaze.

11 'FLU' CASES REPORTED HERE

Peabody's health situation today gives little cause for alarm with only 11 scattered cases of the "flu" report-at the office of the Board of Health. All cases are adults and the malady is reported as very light. But three pneumonia cases are reported. Three typhoid fever cases recorded show that two became ill by drinking bad water. There are two scarlet fever cases and a dozen children are ill with the measles. The condition of Roger H. Smith who was deemed critically ill with the "flu" early this week is greatly improved today.

CITY HALL NOTES

Some municipalities have already called meetings to talk over the financial situation, for most cities and towns are confronted with debt. One thing looks sure, our tax rate will be much higher than in 1921, and there is nothing in sight to reduce it for years to come. If such is the case the landlord certainly has a right to raise rents. The public pay the bills and should not kick if they do not take their privilege given to them to change matters, at the polls.

* * *

With the tuberculosis hospital expense $160,000 facing us, sewer troubles which will entail much expense, not to mention many minor matters, we are confronted with a problem of finance. Strict economy is the only answer, and all connected with the city government must share in the economy.

* * *

Those bids to repair the old high school building show some weird figuring, from some over $5000 to $1700, the successful bidder. It looks to us that this building has lost all connection with city affairs, and that the best method is to sell the property if possible and take the money to pay our bills.

* * *

The city garage is under the charge of Chief Grady of the police department. Some tell us this is being done in an illegal manner. They also tell us there is need there of a competent man to care for the mechines. Superintendent Sexton is not there for the reason there are no funds to pay his salary. Should there be funds he must return, being under civil service. Some tangle to unwind.

* * *

It seems to us the Council has a strong finance committee this year who should be able to prune expenses in the right way. Politics may be played, but we can see no reason why, with Messrs. Barry, Sullivan and Craig on the job.

* * *

Now that the new year is well seated, candidates for Mayor will be at work builidng their fences. It appears at this writing that there are many anxious to get into the game. We expect Mayor Shea to again be a candidate.

* * *

Chairman of Assessors, Patrick J. Sheehy, is on the job, and is taking hold like a veteran. He is most liable to fool many who think him not qualified for the position. The assessors' position with a high tax rate is not all fun, as some no doubt imagine. Fighting for the interests of the city against individuals is the answer.

* * *

A deficit of thousands of dollars in the water department is the answer to dull business. The factories pay the big water bills and when not running a big dent is made in the receipts.

* * *

Opinions of what shall be for a ladder truck are varied. Many claim we do not need an aerial apparatus, for with its bulk a new house must be built. Insurance interests demand something of the kind, in fact they keep on demanding this, that and the other, with the threat of higher insurance rates. We have many combinations of business in our country, but this insurance trust do things that no other combination would attempt.

* * *

Are we going to have an inclosed playground at the high school this year? Those interested in the entertainment of the southern visitors figure this ground would solve the problem of paying the bills for the entertainment. Such a ground could be made a paying proposition, we say, so that no expense would come to the city.

* * *

The 30th annual concert and ball of the Relief Association of the Peabody fire department will be held at City Hall on Tuesday evening, April 18, and arrangements are now in progress under a very efficient committee ,with the president of the association, Thomas E. Carbrey, in charge. The entertainment committee will be in charge of Chester V. Carlin of Engine One, which assures the patrons of a first-class entertainment.

* * *

According to City Engineer Emerson, the ice dealers have completed cutting ice and all of the local ice houses are filled with a crop measuring over 16 inches for the most part. It is said that the ice dealers secured their harvest this year cheaper than for a long time.

Comm. House Opens Classes, Scouts Active

A course of eight lessons in millinery will begin at the Community House Friday evening, Feb. 10, at 7 o'clock. As the number in the class is limited, early application will be necessary. Mrs. J. J. Murphy is the instructor.

The dressmaking classes are on Wednesdays at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 o'clock in the evening, under the instruction of Miss Grace O'Keefe.

With the arrival of the new Scout uniforms, furnished by the Peabody Rotary Club, interest in scouting has been greatly increased among the boys of the city.

Troops 4 and 5 meet at the Community House on Friday nights. Carl Killam is the scoutmaster of Troop 4 and has as his assistant Elmer Walker of Salem. Horace F. Bodge is the scoutmaster of Troop 5 and his assistant is Eddie Mansfield Munroe of football fame. Troop 4 has three patrols and Troop 5 has two.

The patrols of Troop 4 are the Eagle, Ivan Churchill, leader; the Beaver, George St. Laurent, leader; and the Fox, Charles O'Donnell, leader. The patrols of Troop 5 are the Panther, Matthew O'Keefe, leader, and the Wolf, Michael Hallinan, leader.

Last week in basketball a picked team from Troops 4 and 5 defeated Troop 2. This week Troop 2 plays Troop 4 alone and the husky warriors of Troop 2 are awaiting the battle, with vengeance in their eyes.

The hub-freshman class of the high school have arranged a series in basketball. Each room is represented by a team and some exciting contests are played afternoons in the gymnasium.

Demand For Sole Leather

Union sole leather demand is satisfactory in Boston. Business is only fair in the Philadelphia market, while Chicago reports no large sales. Boston oak sole market steady. Foreign inquiry for sides continues. Philadelphia oak sole market fairly active. Individual orders are small in size. Chicago oak market moderately active. Boston tanners are receiving small orders for union offal more frequently. Oak offal market is the most active as far as Boston is concerned. Some producers are sold ahead for a month or more on the choicest stock. The Philadelphia single shoulder market is well cleaned up. Chicago also notes better movement of shoulders. Belting butts are quiet with prices talked stronger. Philadelphia reports sales at steady prices. Side upper market generally quiet. No large lot purchases reported. Buyers are still looking for leather at low prices. Calf leather sales are more numerous in Boston. Quantities run to small amounts however. Patent leather demand somewhat better. In Philadelphia business has been lost owing to tanners inability to promise delivery as desired by purchasers. Glazed kid demand as far as Boston market is concerned runs mostly to small skins in top or low grades. Intermediate grades are neglected. In Philadelphia grades above five feet are hard to move except stock suitable for trimming purposes.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

SCHOOL DAYS

High School Notes

Are athletics popular with the Peabody high school girls?

Just ask Faculty Manager Henry A. King. Since the announcement in the Enterprise two weeks of the decision to permit the organization of girls' basketball teams in the local high school, Mr. King has been flooded with applications from both girl students and their mothers. Up to the close of the present week, the list of applicants had reached a total of 71 names, and the end is not yet. New names are being added almost every day.

Mr. King is preparing to call a meeting of of the candidates at an early date for the purpose of electing captains and managers for the various teams. It is not expected that more than five teams will be organized, each team to represent a class at the high school. The teams will comprise five regular players and three subs each. If this schedule is carried out there will be places for 40 girl players, and some 30 others will be "out of luck."

That the Peabody mothers approve of basketball for their daughters is quite evident from the large number of appeals that have been received by Mr. King from mothers of girl students, appealing to him in their behalf. Faculty Manager King expressed himself as greatly surprised at the unusual enthusiasm manifest by the young women.

As stated in the previous announcement the teams will be organized ready for practice with the completion of the high school gymnasium.

In the meantime a coach will be chosen, and it is generally hoped that it will be possible to obtain the services of Miss Alice Woodman in this capacity.

It is proposed to have an inter-class series of games during the early part of the season and those class teams that make the best showing in this season will be privileged to engage in contests with teams representing outside schools later in the season.

The 71 applicants for a place on the teams are as follows:

The illness of four players on the Peabody high basketball team necessitated the cancelling this week of the first of the scheduled basketball games with the Salem high team. Frank Hennessey, who was to have played as forward on the team, was in serious condition at the J. B. Thomas hospital, and William Crean, the other star of the team, was confined to his home with the grip. Two other players were also temporarily incapacitated by illness and the remaining two subs on the team were reported to be ineligible temporarily because of certain studies at the school.

In the meantime Faculty Manager Henry A. King is negotiating with the Salem team management for a five-game series instead of the original three games.

For the past week the absent list has been long. Many of the students have been confined to their homes because of illness. Quite a number of the Seniors in room 10 are absent on account of illness. Frank Hennessey, football and basketball star, is in the hospital with rheumatic fever.

Lottie Brown has been absent because of a severe cold.

Miss Alice Woodman substituted for Miss Broadbine in room 18, Monday.

Melvin Smallwood is at the Thomas hospital for treatment for an injured foot.

Among the visitors to the High School have been Miss Burnette Hallowell '06 who is teaching in the Ely School, Greenwich, Conn. Miss Esther Hallowel '16 who is taking a Kindergarden course in Boston. Mrs. Theodore Coffin (Amy Poor '99) of Katonah, N. Y. who has been visiting her mother in Peabody. Mr. Stephen Richards of Peabody. Mr. Richards is returning to the teaching profession as a Commercial teacher in the Gloucester high school.

Harmon Cross, a former chemistry teacher, visited school last week, and was shown about the building by Mr. Woodman.

The Senior students of room 10 are keeping a "Scrap Book." In this book are written short poems and sayings that will help set before them a goal towards which they may work.

Girl candidates for basketball at the Peabody high school are: Florence A. Holden, Dorothy MacCharles, Marguerite Smith, Evelyn Hall, Kathryn Sullivan, Margaret McCarthy, Mona McCarthy, Dorothy Wiggin, Elizabeth Gourley, Dorothy Brown, Marea Johnson, Lucia Upton, Mary Mularkey, Eleanor Long, Ruth Frame, Mary Moynihan, Juia Lane, Theresa Doherty, Blanche Hayward, Alice Partridge, Elizabeth McHugh, Elizabeth Ingraham, Elizabeth Lillis, Esther Barrett, Julia Ziskowski, Margaret Batchelder, Linda MacCracken, Mary Collins, Edith Hames, Margaret Wright, Florence Collins, Mary Pender, Eileen Lillis, Mildred McKenzie, Frances Putnam, Josephine Reily, Dorothy Rainford, Dora Jordan, Taimi Hanhilammi, Grace Singleton, Kathleen Hallahan, Margaret Monahan, Genevieve Thorpe, Annie Crowley, Helen Driscoll, Sadie Rosen, Elinor Hobbs, Jessie Dunn, Mary Bellew, Marie Nash, Charlotte Rich, Dorothy Tumulty, Eleanor Donovan, Florence MacKinnon, Hazel Hetherington, Dorothy Ferguson, Rebecca Gordon, Winnefred Kimball, Rebecca Millstein, Rose Goldstein, Doris Knights, Florence Currier, Dorothy Skinner, Mabel Reily, Anna MacGregor, Albertine Levasseur, Elizabeth Hanson, Edna Murphy, Josephine Brown, Alice Kasurinen, M. Little Talks Among Ourselves

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

We are more interested in the effect of the law of supply and demand upon the wages and the unemployment in the leather industry, than in any other application of that law. Supply and demand of any desirable thing is regulated by the Economic Law which (as we have said many times) is "the greatest good to the greatest number."

The wage committee of the American Federation of Labor recently stated: "The law of supply and demand has long since ceased to function in wage fixing, except under exceptional conditions, and the most acute suffering from unscientific wage theories is found in industries where there is no organization of the workers, and where the voice of the employer is the final authority from which there is no appeal."

It is no new thing to have the law of supply and demand called a back number. Every once in a while some one makes this sort of a statement, but it always turns out that the law was working where that person was not looking and in ways he did not understand. It may be held back in some one locality, but it is like a river on its way to the ocean level, it will get there in time no matter how much it may be hindered.

For instance,—there never was a better example of the working of this law than is being shown all round us wherever there are high rates. Side by side with the high rates will be found the greatest number of idle workers, for the rate of wages is not all there is to the wage question. The most important fact is the purchasing power of wages and that means the balanced relations between the different industries. Leather factories have made adjustments of wages, as well as of profits, to meet the demand of the public; the result is that the leather business is improving, little by little, very slowly to be sure, but still a little. It would improve much more rapidly if the shoe factories to which we sell our leather would do the same thing.

But the shoe workers refuse. The labor organizations have great power; they are using this power to prevent the natural adjustments between the industries that are necessary to give work to their own members in the shoe trade and also to the workers in the leather trade. They are making the price of the shoes into which their labor enters so high that millions of people cannot buy them. There is no demand for these shoes, there is no demand for labor, the Economic Law is at work. The power of organization appears to be defeating the law of supply and demand by keeping up the wage rates, but the law is really having its own way by reducing the actual wage payments. The whole body of workers would be much better off with lower wage rates and more employment and if this could be done all over the country, in the mines, the railroads, the building trades and wherever these high wage rates prevail, then living costs would come down and our wages—even at a lower rate—would buy more goods. We simply must learn this and must restore this balance of the purchasing power before general prosperity will come again.

The garment workers tried this same thing,—this attempt to keep high rates by the power of organization. The recent strike in New York City cost the workers $4,000,000. One million dollars was the actual expense in fighting the manufacturers and three million dollars in lost wages. There were 55,000 employes on strike and they went back to work under the same terms and conditions as prevailed before the strike began. The manufacturers lost $10,000,000 in expenses and loss of trade. The high cost of striking has kept pace with other high costs and the president of the Garment Workers' Union states that "strikes are getting to be too expensive for the workers except in a righteous cause."

Notwithstanding all these examples of the law of supply and demand the coal miners are preparing for a warfare next spring that will stir the whole country. The people who buy coal simply cannot pay the price and do not. The law of supply and demand gets in its work and once more,—as in the case of shoes,—there is so much unemployment and such a small payment of wages that women and children in the coal fields are in terrible need. Worst of all, they do not understand why they are in need and why the mines are closed more than half the time.

This law of supply and demand can be seen at work in every direction. During the war there was a great demand for engineers; mining engineers, civil, electrical, mechanical, every branch of engineering was called to work. Wages were high. Any ordinary engineer could command a big, fat salary. Today there is no demand for such men; there are no new railroads being built, no dams or waterpowers, no factories to build and no machinery to set up. No class of workers has suffered as the engineers are suffering today. They are looking for jobs in department stores, factories and wherever a job is open; some men who have earned $3000 to $10,000 a year are obliged to work as night watchmen; many are idle altogether.

It is impossible to overturn the whole world by war and expect to settle down to the arts of peace in a few months or even in a few years. We can all help to get back to prosperity by patiently and honestly doing the day's work, by dealing justly with our neighbor, by trying as well as we know how to co-operate in an effort to restore the balance of industry, by giving the best possible service every day. Each of us. You,—and me.

HELLO, CENTRAL!

Mrs. A. J. Hutchinson has resigned her position as night operator at the local exchange of the New England Telephone Company to accept a switchboard position at the local plant of the National Calfskin Company.

Mrs. Margaret I. Calhoon of Beverly has accepted the position of night operator at the local exchange, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Hutchinson.

Mrs. Mary M. Trainer, who has been connected with the local telephone exchange for the past 10 years, and who for some time past has been a supervisor, has tendered her resignation.

Miss Helen E. McHugh, a well-known operator, has been promoted to the position of supervisor at the local telephone exchange, succeeding Mrs. Trainer.

PEABODY FIREMEN UNIT FOR NEW LADDER TRUCK

Just how badly does the Peabody fire department need an additional motorized truck?

Is the situation sufficiently serious to warrant the purchase of such a truck at this time, when the finances of the city are at a low ebb?

Would Mayor Shea and the board of fire engineers be justified in authorizing an emergency appropriation for a new fire truck without delay?

In other words, is Peabody's need for the immediate purchase of this new addition to the fire department greater than all other needs of the city?

These questions should be settled by the tax payers and property owners of Peabody—those who stand to lose heavily in the event of a big fire and those who are called upon to pay a higher rate of insurance because of the lack of ample fire fighting facilities in the fire department.

The recent forum meeting under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce brought out many interesting facts in connection with the situation existing in Peabody as regards fire protection, but it is to be regretted that more citizens who should be deeply interested in such matters, were not present to acquaint themselves with conditions.

The fact that the Peabody fire department has but one ladder truck was brought out at the meeting, but to the every-day citizen this statement probably means but little. To the fireman, the insurance underwriter, and perhaps a few citizens who know just what the ladder truck is for, it has a very deep significance.

To the veteran fireman, one ladder truck in a city the size of Peabody, presents but one picture, and that a very gloomy one.

It should not be forgotten that Peabody has many large manufacturing plants that because of the nature of leather manufacturing business, are what might be termed highly inflamable buildings.

Discussing the situation with a reporter for the Enterprise a fire department official of long service in one of the neighboring cities, has this one question when asked for an opinion on the Peabody situation.

What is going to happen in Peabody when they get two alarms of fire in different parts of the city some day?

"Firemen," he continued, "are next to powerless when it comes to fighting a good sized fire without ladders. Often times the ladders are needed in carrying people from second and third story windows to safety. Ladders are most frequently used, however, to enable the firemen to get above the flames with their heavy streams of water and direct their lines into the heart of the fire. It is in this manner that heavy losses are kept down.

"What would have happened if another bad fire had started in another section of the city the day that Peabody firemen were battling with the flames at the old high school? There was not a ladder remaining on the truck during the schoolhouse fire. Every one of them was in use.

"Who could be blamed if a second fire in a factory building, or even a tenement house, had occurred while the firemen were battling with flames in the Main street block in zero weather that morning last week, when then, too, the ladder truck was completely stripped of its cargo of ladders?

"Certainly the firemen would not be at fault, and yet there would be those who would try to shoulder the blame on the faithful fire fighter, and in Peabody he is to be considered faithful, because he is working with antiquated equipment and doing the best he can, and a glance over the total fire losses of the city certainly speaks well for the department."

Probably there are few citizens who know that the firemen were handicapped in fighting the fire at the old high school, and there is every reason to feel that the loss would have been considerably less, had the ladder been sufficiently long to enable to firemen to get onto the roof of the building.

It was impossible for the firemen to ascend the slate roof of the building with heavy lines of hose, simply because their ladders were not sufficiently long. The fire was hottest in the blind attic at the top of the building, and because of the short ladders, the firemen fought it in a blind way, as best they could, from one of the class rooms under the attic.

With proper ladders, it was explained to the Enterprise, the firemen would have chopped a hole in the roof and directed their streams of water directly into the heart of the flames from positions on the ladder above the flames.

Police Secure Keith Talent For Big Ball

Professional talent from Keith's vaudeville circuit sent here by the Keith management will be the big feature of the entertainment to be provided by the Peabody Police Relief Association at its first annual concert and ball on Washington's birthday eve. The committee has perfected all details to bring this talent to Peabody.

Peabody manufacturers and storekeepers have rallied strong to the cause of the local Police Relief Association, and the committee has done its work particularly well, judging from the souvenir booklet which they are having printed. The sale of tickets has reached the 2000 mark and a banner house is assured the bluecoats on their initial debut as entertainers.

Another added attraction for the concert will be Roy Patch, the sweet soprano soloist of Beverly, who is now a member of the Apollo quartet. Patch is credited with having a grand opera voice and his friends in Peabody as well as in all Essex County where he is known predict for him a big public career.

Elmond Takes Lynn Widow For New Wife

Ellis Elmond, shoe dealer in Peabody square, was married last Sunday afternoon to Mrs. Sadie Williams of Lynn, widow of a former shoe manufacturer. They were married by a Rabbi at the Jewish synagogue, Harrison avenue, Boston, following which a reception was held in their honor at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Myers, in Allston. Mrs. Elmond is the mother of two fine boys, aged 13 and 10. Mr. Elmond owns a nice home at 5 Fay avenue. He has been in business in Peabody for the past 16 years. This is his second marriage, his first wife having died last year.

CITY CLOCK

Measures which will put the city clock on the South church into good repair and allow it to be an accurate time piece for the benefit of the travelling public should be taken at once by Mayor Shea. The citizens have long been annoyed by the fact that the clock is not in good running order. The City paid enough money for the new clock during the Donnell administration and a concern with a reputation installed it. Can this clock concern afford to have its name used in the criticism that is now directed against the unsatisfactory service of its timepiece? We do not think so. Furthermore, we believe the clock concern would prefer to expend some of its profit made on installing the clock and put it in shape to give real service. Was there no guarantee given the city that the clock would function?

GIRLS WILL BE GIRLS

Fathers and mothers of young girls will find what should be a profitable lesson in a point emphasized by speakers at the annual convention of the executives of the Camp Fire Girls, held in New York. It is this—that if the daughter goes in for questionable movies, jazz, cigarettes and cabarets, it is as likely as not the parents' fault.

What the Camp Fire Girls executives are trying to impress on fathers and mothers is that their daughters require an interesting outlet for their energy, and if they cannot find it in one way they will find it in another. The responsibility rests upon the parents to provide wholesome diversion for the girls; if they fail to do so the blame for the children's engaging in undesirable activities rests upon the elders.—Chelsea Record.

THE WORLD AND A PAIR OF SHOES

Even if shoes made in a Massachusetts factory are worn out in the streets of the town where the factory is located, still they represent international trade.

Dwight W. Morrow, in discussing the inseparability of our foreign and domestic business, recently offered this striking observation. The shoes he had in mind were made from hides imported from Argentina, were heeled with rubber imported from the tropics, were sewed with fibers and lined with cloth and dyes and tanned with chemicals brought from the four corners of the earth. Imported materials were used because they could be bought more cheaply than materials produced at home.

The shoe industry, moreover, illustrates the close interwining of domestic industry; for it calls on our mines, our collieries, our transportation system, our banks, for goods and for services. Our industrial system may be likened to a close-woven fabric, or, better, to a chain, whose strength is determined by its weakest link. —The Nation's Business.

YOUR TEETH

By Rea Proctor McGee, D.D.S., M.D., Editor "Oral Hygiene"

DEAD NERVES

We don't really mean dead nerves when we say it—what we do mean is a tooth pulp that has had its circulation stopped. A pulp is a little soft connective tissue with blood vessels and nerve fibres that is found inside the tooth and is necessary to the life of the tooth.

The pulps are very sensitive and delicate. If they are exposed they die; in fact they die sometimes when they are not exposed. Those that die without actual exposure have been irritated by tooth decay or improper use or injury, so that the pulp swells inside its bony case and chokes itself.

The tooth pulp could stand more irritation if it had room to swell, but in its little canal inside the tooth there is no room. As soon as the pulp is irritated enough to swell ever so little, the pressure stops the incoming of the arterial blood and the escape of the venous blood and then the circulation stops and decomposition begins.

It is very unfortunate to have the pulp in a tooth die.

It is true that many times the dead pulp is successfully removed and the canal artificially filled so that the tooth remains useful for a long period, but many pulpless teeth abscess. The cleansing and filling of a tooth canal is a very difficult and skillful operation. Why not take such good care of the teeth and mouth than you will not take chances on having infection from abscessed teeth?

By keeping the teeth clean and having small cavities filled at once the long, tedious and sometimes painful operation can be avoided. Sound teeth in good position and with live healthy nerves do not give trouble; they do their work willingly.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE EARLY MORNING

THERE is an invisible, inspiring force in the early morning air, drifting down from the hills, sweet with the incense of the dawn, which vitalizes everything it touches, from the sod and the sea to the souls of humans.

It is the birth of a new day, opening its eyes like a new-born child to a new world. Every atom, every sphere and every creature is facing a threshold that has never been crossed.

The old quiverfuls of arrows have been shot away.

Time is handing out another supply, selecting the sharpest and strongest for the hardy hand of youth, and urging youth to do its best, pointing to the dazzling paths that lead up and up to Arcadia.

* * *

Are you, young man and young woman, giving proper heed to Time's friendly admonitions?

Do you in the early morning of your life realize the blessed privileges that are yours?

Do you comprehend that this is the hour in which you must begin your march over the hills by every bowery road, toward a loftier peak, which in your delightful dreams you are picturing of wealth, and power and fame?

If you do, gird your quiver securely, look carefully about you and march on to the uplands nearer heaven, holding firmly all the while to faith and hope and honor, as you go.

Let not the lure of the valleys, the shade of the trees nor the purring waters call you back, when the sun approaches the meridian, and the day waxes warm and drowsy.

And at high noon, when the inclination comes to seek relaxation, and to side-step into fields of idle amusements, mind that you do not slip and go tumbling down among the failures.

* * *

If such desire confront you, summon all your resolution, all the fine virtues that within you lie, and face the way to Arcadia, though the outlines of the golden domes of the city do not yet appear.

At this moment, you are at the turning point, when a single deviation from high resolve, a step or two from the course you have been so faithfully pursuing, may ruin your career and blast your fondest hopes.

By passing the noontime of life in safety, you will soon come upon an easier path, and find no difficulty in wending your way homeward, where the ring and the fatted calf will be found waiting for you, with the glad smiles of loving friends.

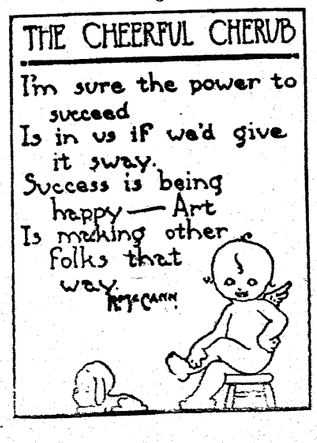
THE ROMANCE OF WORDS



"TAMMANY"

WHEN political reports state that such-and-such a person is the "Tammany candidate" or that "the Tammany organization is back of a certain move," the expression is understood to refer to a prominent organization in New York—but the fact that it receives its name from a noted Indian chief is overlooked.

Tamanend, the chief in question, was the ancient, wise and friendly head of the Delaware tribe of Indians who, for want of a better candidate, was "canonized" by the soldiers of the American Revolution as the patron saint of the new country. The Tammany organization dates from May 12, 1789, when it was formed for benevolent and social purposes, but eventually became an important political body, formally chartered in 1805 and opposing the so-called "aristocratic" Society of the Cincinnati. It was essentially anti-federalist or democratic in its character and its chief founder was William Mooney, an American upholsterer of Irish extraction. The grand sachem and the thirteen sachems typified the president and the governors of the thirteen original colonies.

The Tammany Society today is a charitable and social organization, entirely distinct from the general committee of the Tammany political body, which cannot use Tammany hall without the consent of the society.

ROUND ABOUT

Thirty years ago, or to be exact, back in 1893, during that historic panic a Peabody leather manufacturer found himself jobless. During his quest for employment as a tanner he visited a district near Boston when he was taken with an ill turn. Recalling he had a friend nearby he called on him and was induced to spend a few days as his guest. On the same day a third mutual friend appeared and the latter occupying a large bed room with single beds induced this Peabody manufacturer to share his lodgings for a few nights, and it was agreed. That was 30 years ago and since then neither had heard from the other. Tuesday of this week the Peabody manufacturer on his way home in a trolley car was told by the conductor that a passenger was inquiring for a Mr. ———, and in another moment a grey whiskered man was offering his hand to the Peabody man. The latter admitted he did not recognize the stranger, but once he had given his name the two shook hands with a meaning. The stranger in needy circumstances was in quest of the Peabody manufacturer with the purpose of asking a small loan. He got it.

Attorney Earl A. Hershenson, former City Collector, may exhibit a "no parking here" sign in his automobile in the future when he leaves it near Peabody square. Last Tuesday afternoon Police Inspector Pierce had his attention called to a man who had gotten into the front seat of "Al's" car and was peacefully dozing. The inspector called Patrolman James McMahon, who persuaded the uninvited occupant to start his hike for Boston street, Salem, whence he had come. Quite a few people witnessed the amusing (or pathetic) incident.

Warren Blake, fire marshal at the A. C .Lawrence Leather Co., had five of his children in the old high school at the time of the recent fire in that building. The children ranged in age from nine to 14. It is believed this is a record of the largest number of children of one family attending any public school in Peabody at the same time.

The death of Judge Henry Wardwell of Salem removes one more of the old school lawyers whose integrity and devotion to his profession brought him all possible honor. As counsel for the Warren Five Cents Savings bank of Peabody, and a former resident of this city, his death is mourned by many citizens here. He represented Peabody in the legislature from 1879 to 1881. He removed from this city to Salem in 1889.

With the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act accomplished facts, the Peabody Historical Society has recently become possessed of a document that bids fair to grow in value, as a curiosity, as the years progress. It is a bill of lading covering the shipment from Madeira, Spain of a cargo consisting of hogsheads, barrels, pipes, and keys of Madeira wine by the Schooner Mary and Frances to consignees in New York City, Boston, Mass., Partsmouth, N. H. The bill of lading was drawn with pen and ink on hand made paper and fastened together with old fashioned wax wafers and shows the value of the consignment to have been $17,685.00 as attested by the Master Nathaniel Cushing. The boat was built in Georgetown, Mass., and owned by Portsmouth interests. The date of the document was October 6, 1815 and besides containing the information that some of the first families of New England were anxiously awaiting the safe arrival of the boat also disclosed the fact that the Captain was not above carrying an attractive private stock on board for his own use.

Several bird-lovers from Peabody have visited the home of Charles Whitney on Whipple Hill, Pine street, Danvers, recently, to see the flock of birds that come to be fed each day. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney are both lovers of birds and have several feeding stations about their premises, with suet tide to the trees and pools of water kept open for drinking. Each morning about nine, sunflower seeds are scattered about and the birds come regularly for the feedings. Several species are seen each day, but the grosbeck are the most prominent in numbers, strange as it may seem, as they are uncommon around here.

The American Library Association is soon to issue a pamphlet on successful work of librarians in catering to aliens in the various cities and towns and particular mention is to be made in their bulletin of the work being done by Librarian John E. Keefe of the Peabody Institute. A surprising number of aliens are patrons of the Peabody library, and they are given every possible help by Mr. Keefe. The fact that the National Association of Librarians has requested date on the Peabody plan reflects credit on Librarian Keefe.

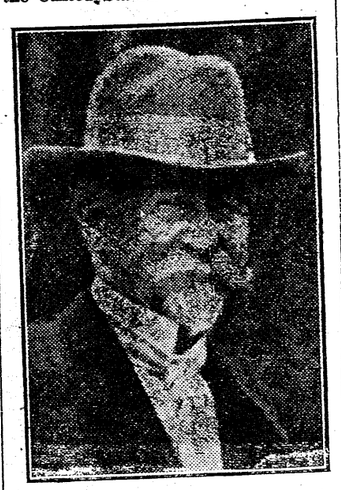
Delegates will be elected to the state convention which is to be held February 12.

BRIDGES AGAINST STATE CONTROL



Former Warden of State Prison Says State Should Keep Hands Off County Penal Problems

ACCEPTED AS EXPERT

His Opinion Respected by Governors and Legislators During All the Years of His Honorable Service

"If the Legislature of Massachusetts passes any measure which increases the authority of the State Commissioner of Corrections over the County penal institutions, I feel certain that it will be one of the most disastrous steps that the Old Bay State has ever taken in regard to its penal institutions."

Such was the opinioi expressed this week by General Benjamin F. Bridges, former warden of the Charlestown State Prison, who at his retirement a few years ago, was the Senior State Prison Warden in point of service, in the United States.

GEN BENJ. F. BRIDGES
Former State Prison Warden

For many years General Bridges has been recognized all over the country as an expert on peneological matters. During the many years that he served the state as Warden, he had the utmost respect of Governors, and Legislators and his opinions regarding prison affairs, were readily taken and respected as those of an expert.

"There is malicious propaganda being circulated regarding county jails." says General Bridges. "This propaganda has to do entirely with conditions in county institutions West of the Mississippi river. Why stories branding county jails as unfit for the habitation of human beings should be circulated through this Commonwealth, is a mystery to me, because such conditions as are pictured do not, and never have existed in Massachusetts. The spreading of such propaganda appears to me as a diabolic plot to misrepresent true conditions to the people of Massachusetts. What is said may be true of penal institutions in other parts of the country, but not here.

"There are no better managed county penal institutions in the country than those of Massachusetts. I know this from many, many years of experience.

"We should work to the end to keep our young men and boys out of prisons. Any step taken which is going to increase the prison population of this or any other state, is a detriment to society in general. By this I mean that with our parole system in Massachusetts, and the present method of handling county penal institutions, we have reached a point far in advance of I think any state in the Union, and to change the system would mean a serious step backward. The county houses of correction are exactly what their name implies, namely corrective institutions. A prison is a disciplinary institution, necessary in order that the confined criminal may be disciplined and society protected from his ravages.

"State control of county institutions would mean nothing short of placing all of the jails in the 'prison class.'

"The misdemeanant is not a criminal and as he is now handled in the county institutions, he may be and is most usually salvaged from a career of crime. Place that same misdemeanant in an institution directed and controlled by the state, and he at once becomes a prison inmate and a criminal, and the opportunities of saving him from a career of crime are vitally nullified, and nine out of ten times the boy or young man so treated is made a criminal even though his best tendencies might lead in another direction if they had been properly developed.

"State control of county prisons would, in my estimation, be a very bad thing. For many years Massachusetts has progressed under the present system of county institutions, and they are the bulwark standing between democracy and autocracy. To break down even in a small way this bulwark, will mean a step taken toward autocratic government, and we in Old Massachusetts, do not want to see such a thing as this come about.

"As one long experienced in every phase of peneology, I want to register my strongest objections to any effort to consolidate and centralize the power governing county penal institutions."

Rings and tinkers and makers of things all are out of a job. In one week three American Legion post adjutants applied for work at the municipal employment bureau in New York City.

"Move the house and you can have it." With this injunction, the Carbondale, Pa., post of the American Legion rolled up its sleeves and became possessed of a large, commodious mansion for its clubhouse.

AMERICAN LEGION

Four years behind in his reading, Henry Hustenden, German farmer of Manorville, L. I., has just run onto the battle of Chateau Thierry, and now he's so excited he can't work. In the summer Hustenden raises berries, in the winter he sits and listens to his wife read world events from a chronological collection of German newspapers. His wife reads slowly, and Hustenden (unable to read himself) with stolid Teuton thoroughness, has never allowed her to skip.

"Didn't you know this country was in the war?" a member of the American Legion asked him. "Ja," said Hustenden, "but I wasn't interested because I hadn't got to it yet in the papers."

"It's all over now," said the Legionnaire, heartily.

"Ach, not for me!" replied Hustenren, returning to his wife and the pile of papers.

Exception to the statement of Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, that poison gas is "humane" is taken by William F. Deegan, head of the American Legion of New York. He cites X-ray proof to show that 50 per cent. of the state's tubercular war veterans are victims of gas.

Ralph O. Russell of Sutton street, who was confined to his home this week, has returned to his office in Salem.

The Ladies' Circle of the Baptist church will hold their annual supper and entertainment February 22. A meeting of the Ladies' Circle will be held next Wednesday evening.

Tunnel That Helped to Dig Itself.

In the Simplon tunnel under the Alps, which is by far the greatest tunnel in the world, the quantity of water flowing out of the southern end, from the many veins encountered in the heart of the mountain, amounted to 15,000 gallons a minute, and furnished sufficient power to compress the air by which the drills were worked, and to refrigerate the tunnel. The necessity for refrigeration may be judged from the fact that the heat in the deeper parts of the tunnel rose as high as 150 degrees Fahrenheit when not artificially reduced.

South Peabody

A large and appreciative audience attended the entertainment given at the Second Congregational church, Wednesday evening. The programme follows: Selection by Grange quartette, composed of Miss Selina Houlden, soprano; Mrs. Sadie Morse, alto; Roy Gourley, tenor; Ed. Tobin, bass; reading by Miss Miriam Lovett, a little miss seven years old who pleased all. She is from Lynn and a pupil of Dorothy Berry Carpenter. Vocal duet by Miss Selina Houlden and Roy Gourley. The next number was a comic one-act sketch which was well received. The parts were taken as follows: Alfred Dobbs, who is looking for a clerk, Mrs. Esther Walker; Astor Colby, who has seen better days, Mrs. Annie Annis; Berthold House, a dude, Holdsworth Gregson; Sam Short with lots of slang, Miss Irene Skinner; Arthur Small, a model young man, George McDonald; Pat Murphy, Dobb's servant, John Barrowclough. It was a play with a moral as well as being funny. Selection by Grange quartette; reading Miss Miriam Lovett; vocal duet, Miss Beatrice Keith and Miss Agnes Jordan; reading closed the entertainment with Miss Agnes Jordan, violin; Miss Beatrice Keith, mandolin; Wright and Holdsworth Gregson, cornets. Pop corn cakes and chocolate bars were sold during the evening and a neat sum will be realized for the Ladies' Aid Society.

The Bosco Club met at the church vestry Monday evening. A lively debate was had by the boys on whether it was best to electrocute the hopelessly insane. Next Monday evening will be a social night. Any boy in the community over 12 years of age is invited and a small admission fee will be charged. "Chick" Davies will give a talk and the Bosco Club quartette will sing, also an orchestra of the members of the club will entertain. The fathers of the community who are interested in this organization are also invited.

The Sewso Club met with Mrs. Susie LeCain on County street Monday evening.

Mrs. Daisy Small of Portland, Me., spent Monday with Mrs. Charles Parker, of Tucker's court.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Cong. church will meet next Wednesday. The members are invited to come in the afternoon and the president will talk on missionary work. Supper will be served at the usual hour, a business meeting following. All members who took a dime a year ago are requested to give a report as to the money received from their small capital.

Mrs. Low Carney of County street has returned from the J. B. Thomas hospital where she had a serious operation performed two weeks ago.

Miss Lottie Brown of Lynn street has been sick for the past week with a bad infection of her hand which she scratched on a nail. She is improving daily.

Mrs. Jonathan Brown of Lynn street is gaining slowly after a three weeks' illness of grippe and bronchitis.

R. B. Draper who recently purchased a house on Lynn street is building a small store in his front yard which will be used as a coal office. Later on he will put in a stock of variety goods.

Melvin Smallwood of Overlea is still at the J. B. Thomas hospital.

Miss Frances Nottingham of Bartholomew street is still confined to her home. About three weeks ago while coasting on a double-runner she was thrown off and the double-runner went over her leg, injuring it quite severely.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robbins of Tucker's court celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary Wednesday evening when their many friends called to extend congratulations.

A food sale was held at Keith's store Wednesday afternoon by the welfare committee of the Mothers'-Teachers' Association and the ladies responded so well that $18.00 was realized by the sale. This money will be used for providing hot lunches for the children who have to bring cold dinners.

Mrs. Elizabeth Batchelder of Lynn street, who conducts the ice business is very sick with pneumonia.

Next Tuesday evening the "Old Folk Concert" will be given at the Second Congregational church. There are about 30 people in the chorus and they will appear in old time costumes. Both old and new songs are on the programme. Miss Beatrice Keith has charge of the chorus, assisted by Miss Marion Newhall, pianist.

Lake Shore Park church, Harry B. Hill, pastor. Services at 10.45. Subject: "The Ten Commandments". A sermon story for children. Sunday school at noon. Evening services at 7 o'clock. Subject: "Christ's Compassion." Prayer meeting this evening at 7.45. Fourth in the series on the Lord's Prayer. Theme: "Thy Will Be Done". A cordial invitation is extended to everybody.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Rust and baby of Gloucester are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Savage, County street.

Mrs. Alice Ferguson and baby of Lynn street have scarlet fever.

Aubrey Hetherington and wife of Frederickton, N. B., have been visiting his brother, W. E. Hetherington, Lynn street.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Newhall, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Newhall and Mrs. Harold Newhall attended the annual ladies' night of the Market Gardener's Association at Young's hotel Tuesday evening.

There was no morning service at the Second Congregational church last Sunday as the high wind made it impossible to heat the church. Services were held in the evening as usual.

DANGER IN THE TREATMENT COMMON COLDS

Colds are the plague of the temperate regions, and while common every month in the year, occur most often during the changes of the season in Spring and Fall and through the trying months of Winter.

Colds are generally affections of the membranes of the nose and throat, but their evil effects often penetrate into the lungs and passages of the inner ear. Catarrh, deafness, permanent loss of voice nearly always start with a common cold. The dreaded pneumonia and tuberculosis of the lungs, generally known as "consumption," also have their source in common colds.

Physicians say that much of the suffering from colds and their serious results might be avoided if we lived right. That is to say, if our homes were regularly heated instead of being either over or underheated; if we dressed properly and did not so recklessly and unnecessarily expose ourselves to dampness, draughts and storm.

But another great mistake is that of experimenting with new and untried remedies and methods of treatment. A few years ago there was a rage for "cold cures" that were filled with cocaine, morphine, chloroform and other poisonous drugs. Fortunately, the laws have stopped most of these. Both doctors and medicine makers have been at fault in exploiting "instant cold cures," "one-night remedies," "marvelous scientific discoveries" and much lauded "inhalants," "medicinal cigarettes," and dozens of other medical fads.

The best medicines of all times have been those that have been originated by the patient, sympathetic country doctor, or the loving, untiring wife and mother of the farm. Such was the origin of many of the reliable remedies of which millions of bottles are sold each winter.

How some of these remedies have served one generation after another is shown by the following letter from Mrs. M. B. Young of Union Village, Woonsocket, R. I.

"My earliest memories are of having my grandmother run to the cupboard and bring out the bottle of Cerizane whenever I had a cough. Just as my mother and grandmother gave it to me and took it themselves, I am still taking it and giving it to my children. I am often advised to try this, that, or the other new-fangled cough and cold medicine but as Cerizane worked all right with three previous generations of my family, I find it works all right for the fourth generation. If anything will cure a cough, break a cold or clear the head and lungs quicker than Cerizane will, I have never seen it. It is neither syrupy, 'druggy,' nor nauseating."

Cerizane has been made for nearly a hundred years by one family, the Wilsons of Boston. It was originated by Dr. Osgood who married into the Wilson family a hundred years ago.

Any enterprising druggist will supply you with Cerizane.

Bill Hart at Strand Tonight In Old Fashioned Western Film

Why "White Oak?" This is why: The chief character in this new picture by William S. Hart, which will be presented at the Strand today and Saturday as the last of the anniversary week programs, is Oak Miller, a gambler, and a man with a heart of gold. He is white by nature, in the colloquial sense. White as the Oak whose name he bears it was only natural that he should become known as "White Oak" to those who came in contact with him. The picture was written by Mr. Hart and Lambert Hillyer. Viola Vale heads the supporting cast.

Like Frederick Remington's paintings are some of the scenes showing the long wagon train making its arduous way across the desert, the attacks of the Indians upon the emigrants, the scenes formed in the battle between the trappers and Indians.

"White Oak" is a historical document with a wonderfully appealing story of hardship, privation, fighting, villainy, love, honor and justice, with a plot that is filled with vitality and mystery—an entertainment that thrills and sets the blood surging through your veins. It is pretty generally conceded that "White Oak" is one of the finest things dealing with the early west, that Mr. Hart has done for the screen. One of the Brigg's Tooner-

Jacqueline Logan

It is no wonder Jacqueline Logan is a "movie" star. She is not only well trained for the work, having been schooled for the stage, but she is an accomplished musician. She is a Colorado Springs girl. Her mother was a music teacher. An aunt was a vaudeville performer. Miss Jacqueline is a blonde. She is of Irish extraction.

ville Trolley comedies entitled "The Skipper's Flirtation" and a smashing chapter of Eddie Polo's serial, "The Secret Four," will be the other numbers on the program for today and Saturday.

Conway Tearle in "The Road to Ambition" will be the feature attraction on the double bill for Sunday evening. Olive Tell and Crauford Kent in "Clothes" will be the second feature for Sunday evening.

A Paramount picturization of Rita Weiman's Saturdayevepost story, "Footlights," starring Elsie Ferguson, which will come to the Strand next Monday, is unique in every detail. It tells of Lizzie Parsons, a New England girl, who becomes a vaudeville entertainer and impersonator. She attracts the attention of Oswald Kane, a theatrical manager, who resolves to introduce her on the New York stage as a Russian actress. Lizzie signs a contract, which states that for ten years she is to be under his management, and in that time she is not to reveal her identity.

Lisa Parsnovia, as Lizzie is now known, makes her debut with great success. Then she falls in love with Brett Page, a wealthy New Yorker. There is something about his upright, big American manner that makes her hate the lie she is living. She believes that her sweetheart is in love with the temperamental actress rather than common Lizzie Parsons. The picture works to a surprising yet logical conclusion. Reginald Denny and Marc McDermott head the supporting cast. "Footlights" is a Paramount special attraction which is sufficient guarantee of its merit.

A comedy film and the News Weekly will also be shown on Monday.

Shoe Competition Forces Eastern Centers To Hope Workers Will Take Cut

(By ENERGY)

Everywhere one goes, every newspaper, tells us of shoes being lower. The store windows here and in Salem with big headlines mark their shoes down $1.00 to $2.00 a pair. It is a plain case that shoes will soon assume the level of pre-war prices. Perhaps we may not get back to $3.00 shoes of 10 years ago, but one can never tell.

—*—

Endicott Johnson Co. announce they will cut the price of their shoes. They have no competition, they say, but believe it good policy in the face of conditions today and what appears to be in the future. They say they have no competition and why? New England in particular cannot make shoes at the prices Endicott Johnson and the International Shoe Co. are selling their shoes. No doubt other western shoe makers are meeting this competition, but New England is not meeting it as a rule. They tell me some shoe factories in country towns are able to do so, but Lynn and Haverhill cannot for the reason labor will not accept the cut in wages which is necessary. It might appear that I am hostile to these labor unions: Far be it for me to be hostile to them, but if any organization will not accept facts and figures, they are to my way of thinking going to dry rot.

—*—

When one corporation places on the market 120,000 pairs of shoes daily not to speak of many others let out to other factories by contract, it must mean an organization that the shoe trade must reckon with. It must mean such a concern is a big factor in shaping the business. Of the 120,000 pairs daily, 60 per cent. of this amount are nailed shoes. This shows us that nailed shoes are manufactured to reach country places for the poorer class, as well as for many working men doing rough work. We know such shoes are not fitted for the foot free from calouses and corns. The feet in such shoes are not accustomed to foot powder and in many cases stockings. But nevertheless there is an army of such people who must be shod, thus the 60,000 pairs daily.

—*—

High class shoe men will tell you these shoes are all of inferior quality. I am ready to admit they are not the best shoes made, but are shoes that will meet conditions today, and will wear with the best of them, which counts for much. Hem and haw as we will, something must be done if New England is to have a prominent place on the shoe map.

—*—

Again this same Endicott Johnson are tanning leather in large quantities. Sole leather and some kinds of upper are made there in large quantities. New York state has always housed many tanneries. But most of them have been small and of the kind that produced bark tanned leather. Practically all of such tanneries are a thing of the past.

—*—

When Henry B. Endicott passed away, we lost one of the biggest business men in the country. It was his brain that conceived and started the present business. He had previously been a commission merchant at the corner of High and Federal streets in Boston, under the firm name of H. B. Endicott and Co. Bullivant and Co. were competitors. Through the energy of Mr. Endicott, these concerns were merged under the name of Bullivant Brown and Fiske. They were the largest concern of the kind in Boston, and Peabody and Salem tanners consigned their leather to them in large quantities. When the American Hide and Leather Co. came into existence, it took away many of the big tanners from commission merchants, and a general reorganization took place. It was the starting of a new era, and what leather concerns who were not taken over by the American Hide and Leather Co. went their way as private concerns.

—*—

Many tanners were optimistic that such a consolidation would be for the benefit of the small fellows, while others felt the actopus would strangle them. But as with the Central Leather Co., who took in all the large sole leather plants, they simply held the umbrella and let the smaller independent tanners make money. The secret of this was that the hide market both in the sole and upper leather ends was kept from the violent fluctuations, as was the case before the consolidations.

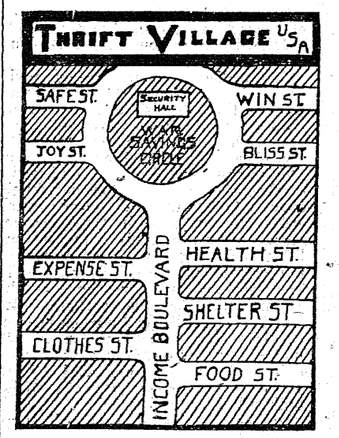
—*—

So every generation tends to change the trend of affairs in the leather business. No one could have predicted the changes in the last 20 years, and no one could have thought it possible that methods of tanning could have so changed. One might say that perfection has arrived, but I am of the belief that we are at the beginning of an era which will bring the standard of leather far higher than it is today. I believe there will be many radical changes in many of the present processes, and that new machines will do more than their part. Not claiming to be an expert, I have always looked upon some of the leather produced as being more than crude. Bellies and flanks flaky, and only the middle of the skin what it should be. Today I have seen big improvement in this respect, skins that can be cut all over or nearly so for vamps. Thus we are already entered on an era of better leather making, and we have but just started.

—*—

Leather is still on the waiting list. Perhaps I should qualify this statement by some leather. What is wanted this week is cast aside for some other kind the week following. Orders are received only to be cancelled later, but in spite of such business, the volume is gradually expanding. The hustler is doing business, if not one kind he turns to another, and keeps his factory running fairly full. Sheep leather is better in some quarters, while others contend the world is about over. The business is recovering from a serious illness and now convalescing, with good doctors at the helm.

Real Horses In 'Old Kentucky' At the Empire



Charles Dazey's popular play and for more than two decades one of the greatest successes of the American stage, will be the offering by the popular players at the Empire theatre, Salem, all next week. The original Ben Hur horses have been engaged for the great racing scene which comes as the climax to this most popular play which has proved to be the most satisfying American play yet written.

In Old Kentucky abounds in highly dramatic situations, clings to a beautiful love story that ends in an unexpected climax. Possibly the greatest of the many thrills in which the play abounds is the horse race upon which hinges the happiness of the young lovers. In this scene Miss Ann Kingsley rides Queen Bess to a glorious victory in one of the most exciting horse races yet seen either on the track, screen or stage.

For the moment the audience is transported to a Kentucky Derby day at Lexington; there is seen the track, the judges' stand; suddenly the shout they're off, the clatter of steel and hoofs, the subdued eagerness as the horses fairly fly down the track in the fast moving panorama, the turn into the closing spurt, the flash beneath the wire and the shouts for the victor.

It is all so real, so genuine and so thoroughly thrilling, that the audience is held spellbound and then bursts into thunderous applause.

The play gives the Players an unusual opportunity to display their capabilities and it should prove to be one of the theatrical treats of the season. To miss it will be a distinct loss. Tickets are now on sale at the theatre and can be secured one week in advance.

American Legion

The installation of the American Legion Auxiliary on last Friday evening was attended by a crowd that completely filled the Legion Hall. The installation was conducted admirably by Mrs. Elizabeth Nye of Swampscott assisted by Mrs. Mohr as marshall.

After the installation exercises, Mayor W. A. Shea addressed the gathering. As he already had an engagement for a meeting in another section of the city, his address was very brief, but he urged upon his hearers the necessity of helping the Legion and the Auxiliary in their ever increasing efforts. He also promised to help in every way, but as he has already been a friend in need on the occasion of their various visits to the Hospitals, this assurance was not needed by the Unit who are fast friends of His Honor. Rev. R. A. Bakeman gave a splendid address, in which he told of the spirit shown by the women of France, and of his experiences while with the A. E. F. He also urged justice for the service men, immediate care of the disabled and sick, and some sort of legislation that would give the service men a chance to get on their feet again, and to recuperate in some small degree, the loss that they had sustained in various ways, during their long absence from home and country.

Commander Leo Sullivan of the Legion urged every eligible woman in the city to get in line for membership and to give the boys the assistance that they now need, but will need much more in another year as the number of men who are showing the effects of nervous and physical strain is increasing alarmingly. He also urged the women to see that the ex-service men of their families joined the Legion and gave them their support in the fight that they are waging for the care of their disabled buddies, and proper compensation for all.

Mr. Nickerson of the Sons of Veterans gave an interesting and amusing address, and Mr. Smith, patriotic instructor of the G. A. R. told what their auxiliary had accomplished for them. He was warmly received by the audience. Miss Harriet Whiting of Danvers, Mrs. Sheldon of Salem, Mrs. Curry of Lynn, presidents of their respective auxiliaries, Mrs. Nye and Mrs. Mohr, of the Essex County Board, and Miss Murray of Saugus brought the greetings of the various units.

Mrs. Bomer, extolled the work of the past president Mrs. Cassidy, who had the task of piloting the Unit in its first enterprises, and assured the members that she would work untiringly during the coming year for the success of their work. Mrs. Cassidy then thanked her officers and members for the splendid assistance that they had given during the past year. She told of the reception that they had received from grateful boys on their first visits to the hospitals. She also stated that the Peabody Unit was the first to visit the Danvers Hospital as a unit, and to bring comforts to the boys.

The Vice Presidents for the coming year, Mrs. Jesse Fyfe, in behalf of the Unit, then presented flowers to the past president, Mrs. Catherine Cassidy, President-elect, Mrs. Helen Bomer, Mrs. Nye, Mrs. Mohr, and to the Secretary-elect, who is also past secretary Miss Anna Carbrey. With a few well chosen words she conveyed to each the esteem in which they are held by their fellow members.

Miss Murray assisted at the piano during the installation exercises, and a pleasing entertainment was presented by Master and little Miss Fitzpatrick, Miss Margaret Griffin, Edward Holleran, and John Feeney. Refreshments were then served by the members of the Legion, and dancing followed until mid-night.

The Unit was gratified to receive twelve new members who came during the evening and asked to be enrolled for the splendid work that the members are carrying on among disabled and needy service men.

The officers for the coming year are President, Mrs. Helen Bomer; Vice President, Mrs. Jesse Fyfe; Secretary, Miss Anna Carbrey, Treasurer, Miss Catherine Sullivan; Chaplain, Mrs. Catherine Cassidy; Sergeant-at-arms, Miss May O'Connor; Executive Committee, Miss Mary Carbrey, chairman; Mrs. James Murphy, and Mrs. Margaret O'Connor.

Mrs. Veta Brown conducted the guests and officers to their respective places and assisted in the installation ceremonies. There were four gold star mothers present and they were requested by the President to take places of honor in front of the assembly.

A man who said he was Warren Gamaliel Harding, president of the United States, was recently picked up on the streets of New York, the butt of promiscuous jokes. American Legion men took him aside and found him to be Lawrence Leedy, ex-soldier, suffering from mental disorders apparently due to injuries received in service. They placed him under observation at Bellevue hospital.

* * *

Forty-eight posts of the American Legion were chartered during the week ending January 20. Missouri led with seven posts, while Illinois and Wisconsin tied for second with six each.

* * *

"Down with the stars and stripes," yelled C. E. Swazey at a meeting of the American Legion post at Marion, O. Just as President Harding's fellow citizens were rolling up their sleeves they learned he was only mimicking the mating call of the Bolshevik.

* * *

A light wines and beer bill "solely" to provide revenue for the payment of a soldiers' bonus is opposed by a Syracuse, N. Y., post of the American Legion.

* * *

Far-seeing friends presented rolling pins to two brides of American Legion men at initiation exercises of the Vinton, Ia., unit of the auxiliary.

* * *

"O please send me a man!" pleaded a frenzied voice over the telephone. Rufus Bethea, American Legion's employment manager in Birmingham, Ala., seized a baseball bat and went. All he had to rescue was a Persian kitten.

YOU CAN SLEEP YOURSELF THIN

As natural, peaceful sleep gives rest, it will, of course, help one to gain flesh. But unnatural, sluggish, heavy sleep that arises from a bad condition of the organs, is not restful, and the sufferer grows thin and weak. A victim of the sleep that makes one thin describes it as follows:—

"I first noticed blotches and pimples coming on my face. I used a lot of different skin preparations, but they did no good Then there were dark circles under my eyes. headache, backache and gassy stomach At this time the drowsiness commenced. I was sleepy and sluggish all the time, and was afraid people would think me lazy. At the end of two years from the time my complexion commenced to get bad, my blood was in awful condition, and it seemed that my stomach and bowels had about stopped work. I was dizzy had bad taste in my mouth — and sleep' Why, I almost fell asleep while working. I kept getting thinner and thinner, and was just about ready to quit." Thus spoke Mr. Gus Olivario, a young business man of Gardner, Mass.

"But then, after two years of misery, the change came, and it came quick. The unnatural sleepiness left me in a few days, my blood cleaned right up, the disfiguring skin blemishes disappeared; my stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys started going right. In less than two months I had gained fifteen pounds.

"What did it? Just two bottles of Sanalt, the Sensible Tonic. That medicine is surely great stuff.

"I was in awful shape when my druggist suggested Sanalt, and had mighty little faith in it. But Druggist Leathe said: 'If you are not satisfied, come and get your money back.' But you can bet I did not want my money back, for I really believe that Sanalt saved my life. Have recommended Sanalt to a number of my friends and they all say it is working fine."

For general debility, or any of the distinct troubles of blood, bowels, stomach, liver or kidneys there is nothing better than Sanalt. It is one of the famous Winsol line of medicines that have been noted for quality and effectiveness for nearly a hundred years.

All ambitious druggists sell Sanalt.

That is why President Harding, in his message to Congress, proposed "a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal for the consideration and determination of all disputes which menace the public welfare." He would set up a commission to deal with "modern conditions of social and economic life." He would set up Federal machinery of conference on industrial disputes. In its purpose this is not very different, apparently, from the industrial court now functioning in Kansas, but it would differ in this, that it would frame a code of principles to be applied to the question in controversy. In the path of such a movement are many obstacles. None will hope more fervently than the American public that the way may be smoothed to a more peaceful and less wasteful industrial order.

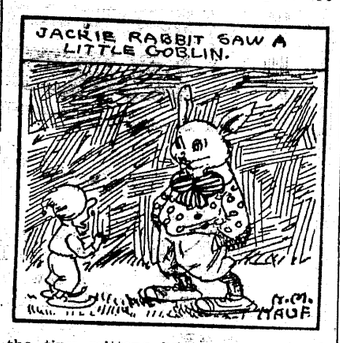
THE GOBLIN'S MITTENS

ONE night when Jackie Rabbit was running through the woods trying to find a bit of green stuff that might have poked out its top in spite of the snow, he heard someone crying.



Jackie ran to the spot from which the sound seemed to come, and there under a bush he saw a little Goblin with the tears frozen on his little red cheeks.

"What is the matter?" asked Jackie.

"Oh, dear," sighed the Goblin, "I have lost my red mittens that the fairies gave me, and I cannot find them, and I don't know what to do."

"Well, I will help you look for them," said Jackie. "I can't find any green stuff for a salad so I may as well be running about helping you."

Jackie Rabbit was a good hunter, and it did not take him long to spy the tiny mittens hanging on a bush near the ground.

They were very pretty little mittens and Jackie thought they would look well with his white coat. "The Goblin won't mind," thought Jackie. "I will just slip them on and run back with them."

But when he slipped them on his paws a very strange thing happened, for no sooner had he pulled on the second mitten than he began to jump about in the queerest manner.

Mr. Wood Rat made up a verse about it, which tells the story better than any other way, so here it is:

First he stood on his ear and then on his nose,
Then he danced on his tail and danced on his toes,
The wood folks ran out to see the strange sight,
Sure Jackie R. had lost his wits quite.

But Jackie Rabbit had not lost his wits at all. He was trying to stop cutting queer capers, but all he could do was to call out, "Take them off; take them off!" and, of course, the wood folks did not know what he meant.

Grandfather Rabbit, who had seen many strange things in his time, said they must form in a ring and catch Jackie when he came that way and hold him until they could find out the meaning of "Take them off."

So the next time Jackie danced toward the animals they caught him and held him fast. "Take them off!" cried Jackie, holding up the paws with the mittens and then Grandfather Rabbit pulled off the Goblin's red mittens and down on the ground Jackie Rabbit fell, all tired out with capering about so fast on the snow.

When he got his breath Jackie told them how he happened to have the mittens and Grandfather Rabbit told him that he should have known better than to put on anything belonging to magic people.

Jackie said he never again would try on anything that belonged to those strange little people and ran off to give the mittens to the Goblin, who was still hunting for them.

When the Goblin saw the mittens he danced with joy, and besides thanking Jackie Rabbit the Goblin gave him some nice green things for a salad.

Jackie was very glad to get rid of the mittens, and ran home and slept all day, he was so tired from the run the magic mittens gave him, and now if he sees anything red he looks, but never touches.

"I'll tell the goblins where they are," said Jackie, "if I see their mittens; but I will never even touch them again for any goblin I ever saw."

BLUE OR YELLOW?

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"And we will have a blue rug in the guest room," said Janey, "because mother loves blue, and she will be coming to visit us a lot."

The young man opposite moved uncomfortably in his chair.

"Now, Janey," he remarked, "You have decided upon everything in our prospective home, without giving me a look in. I kept quiet, while you arranged the living room in fancy, and fitted out your dining room; nor did I say a word when you left no place for my hobbies or studies. But my mother will come to visit us too, and she happens to have a preference for yellow.

"It's been almost an obsession with her—a cheery sunshiny room. I've heard her dream over it often, and coax dad in her diffident way for a new rug or a set of curtains, and he, reading and smoking over his paper, put all her dreams to flight with a casual refusal. 'Old rug good enough!' he'd say, or 'What do we want with new fixtures when Jim is leaving for a home of his own'; and mother would smilingly submit.

"Poor mother, putting always my wishes before her own. So I made a little plan, it was the very night that you said yes, Janey, and I was swinging along under the stars, and glorying over our home, and I said to myself, mother will have her yellow cheer-room there, and she can come to it as often as she wants. So, little lady—" big Jim moved closer and placed his hand over Janey's, "you'll give in on this, won't you, and come out to choose a yellow rug?" The girl withdrew her hand.

"My mother," she returned evenly, "has always loved blue. And she always had to buy furnishings which happened to be cheapest at the time, or more serviceable, so her own particular room is a conglomeration. She managed, and scrimped, the way mothers do, to make my room rose colored. And I'm bringing my rose covered mahogany to our own house, Jimmy. After you left me that night, I did some planning of my own. It was a blue room that I planned, for mother to revel in, when she could steal away for a time from father and his exactions, and—I will go with you," ended Janey firmly, "to choose a blue rug tomorrow."

Jim turned from his fiancee without kissing her. "Good-night," he said abruptly, and was gone.

Rebelliously, Janey went to her mother.

"Sometimes," she said, anger flushing her cheeks, "I feel as if I do not want to marry Jim. He's so terribly dominating; if I allow him to rule me now, mother, I shan't have the life of a mouse."

The woman bending patiently over her mending smiled. "How does Jim try to rule you, dear?" she enquired.

"About our house," Janey excitedly replied. "I want a blue guest room; you know you also like blue, mother—and Jim is obstinately determined on yellow."

Mrs. Wilfred turned a seam, "Yellow is bright and pleasing," she noncomittingly returned.

Jim found his mother reading.

"How is our little Janey tonight?" she asked brightly. "Janey," her somber faced son replied, "has exhibited this evening a new phase of character. And I don't like it. She has showed me that I am to have no word in the planning of my own home.

Mrs. Gray looked distressed.

"Girls usually like to plan their houses," she defended. "perhaps there is just one certain thing that Janey has set her heart on."

When Jim, stubborn in his suffering determination not to surrender to what he considered Janey's whim, absented himself from her presence for weeks, Janey, too, suffered in silence. The little house in Arcady was neither sought out, nor tenanted; while blue room or yellow room, were not to be thought of bearably—at all. Janey's mother and Jim's mother consulted together, dismayed.

"My dear," said Janey's mother to her one day, "I want you to go down to Hedstrom's and select a blue rug. Father sees his way now for us to refurnish my upper front room."

And "Jim," begged Mrs. Gray diffidently, "would you mind stopping at Hedstrom's this noon during your lunch hour? There is a yellow rug there that I have arranged to buy. The salesman will show it to you. I'd like your judgment before having the rug sent to the house."

The salesman at Hedstrom's was becoming impatient with his apathetic customer. Janey, listless, pale, viewed indifferently one blue rug after another; she was wondering how Jim could so persistently avoid her—and if he had known this queer longing ache, which constantly possessed her. A gruff voice nearby caused the salesman to turn with a start.

"Something in yellow," demanded Jim. His eager eyes met Janey's "In—in blue I mean," he amended breathlessly. "I'm interested only in blue rugs, understand; I have no wish to ever see—a yellow rug again." The salesman stared: His listless customer was suddenly close at this queer young man's elbow. "And as for me," she laughed back softly, "you can roll up all your blue rugs. Mother may chose her own. Why, all the fixings I've been making during the past weeks are yellow," she told Jim, happily—"the sunniest, cheerfest kind of yellow."

Bakeman Has Plea For Bonus

break through the "red tape" that prevents them from receiving it. Neither red-tape nor politics nor neglect must interfere with justice to men who have weakened themselves perhaps for life in the cause of human freedom.

And that brings us to the so-called "soldiers' bonus." It is unfortunate that this term is used, for it is not a "bonus." It is simply an attempt to overcome in part the financial handicap that the men who went to war were obliged to suffer. While men at home in every industry were receiving greatly increased wages, the soldiers got $30 a month. A man with a wife and one child received $55 a month, with the cost of living based upon the increased wages being paid in the factories, and when the men got home many of them found themselves without a job, with bills to pay, and with nothing saved. How much worry and actual suffering these three years have brought to the men who took part in the war and their families only the recording angel knows.

Canada and Australia have paid their unemployed soldiers, while the richest country in the world lags behind and "spars" for time.

Of course, it will be an extra burden but it is not fair for the soldiers to bear it alone, and in spite of the president and the secretary of the treasury and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, I believe that the people of this country consider this an honest debt and want it paid—soon!

Yours truly,

ROBERT A. BAKEMAN.

Garden Truck Men At Aggie

According to Herbert A. Harrington, Peabody's representative on the advisory board at the Essex Aggie school, things are not so bad financially at that county seat of learning as pictured in the recent reports. A meeting held by the trustees Wednesday afternoon disclosed this, says Mr. Harrington. Forty girls eager to take the home training course at the school have been denied admission; owing to lack of room. Refusal on the part of the county commissioners to approve of the $25,000 loan passed by the legislature for additional school rooms at the Danvers school is held responsible for the present lack of room.

Peabody market gardeners will attend the conference at the Essex Aggie school tomorrow, the program opening at 10 o'clock for an all-day session. Dinner will be served and there will be speaking in the afternoon.

The young people of the Universalist church are to give a minstrel show next Wednesday evening in the church vestry.

Salem Mayor May Talk To Rotary Club

T. Henry Millea, the Foster street grocer, will have charge of the Peabody Rotary Club dinner next Tuesday noon, providing the business of the meeting. He promises to surprise the members. By a recent announcement different members will preside at the luncheons on Tuesdays during this month.

The ladies' night given by the Rotary Club last Tuesday evening was a big success and a general good time resulted. Salem and Beverly sent over pleasing delegations headed by President George Hooper, Salem, and Dr. Henry Yeo, president of the Beverly Club.

District Attorney S. Howard Donnell gave an interesting talk on the business of his office safeguarding the people's interests. He defended the nol pros privilege and cited excellent examples of its wisdom. He told of the efforts to stamp out the drug habits and social diseases. It was one of his vigorous speeches condensed to make every word count and he got a big hand. John Thomas, rightly referred to as the prince of entertainers, was a big feature of the evening's program. Miss Rosa Korn, adopted daughter of Max Korn, gave two excellent recitations. Souvenir prizes awarded during the dinner was a vanity case which was awarded to Mrs. Max Korn, and a sterling pocket knife which went to Charles C. Hills.

The entertainment committee consisting of Roger H. Smith, John Meagher, Frank Lummus, Mark E. Kelley, Philip C. O'Rourke and T. Henry Millea delivered the best program of entertainment in the history of the local club. The dancing which concluded the evening allowed everybody to become acquainted. Music was by the Belmont orchestra with Dan Keegan leader, and they performed a high class stunt. In the elimination dance prizes were won by Rosa Korn and George A. Barnaby.

Peoples' Forum This Evening

The second Forum of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Council Chamber of City Hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

The subject of this Forum will be "A Survey of the City's Needs." It is the intention of the committee to bring out all those things which the public in general, which is cordially invited, believe to be of necessity. The Forum will also consider the advisability of establishing a permanent City Planning Board.

A request has been received from Post 153, American Legion, relative to the Adjusted Compensation legislation now pending in Congress. The Forum Committee has decided that an open Forum on this subject, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, would enable the Chamber of Commerce and the public in general to obtain the viewpoint of the ex-service man, as well as to learn the opinion of the citizens at large. The Forum Committee has granted the request of the American Legion and the third Forum to be conducted by the Peabody Chamber of Commerce will take place in the Council Chamber of City Hall Friday, February 10, at 7 p. m.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The meeting of the Peabody Woman's Club which is to be held in Peabody Institute next week Friday afternoon at 3.30 promises to be one of the most interesting on the club program. The committee in charge is to present Mrs. Elsie Chamberlain, of greater Boston, who will give one of her entertaining and instructive talks on "Correct Dressing."

Mrs. Chamberlain, who is a talented speaker, has in her subject "Correct Dressing" a novel topic which is sure to appeal to every member of the club. The speaker is assisted by several living models, who display the correct and incorrect forms of dressing, as they are described in the lecture. Refreshments will be served at the close.

The nature class of the Peabody Woman's Club will meet next Monday evening. The topic will "Birds of the Season."

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS

John Young of Holten street has returned home convalescent from a Boston hospital, where he underwent a serious operation.

The Relief Corps will hold a public supper in G. A. R. Hall next Tuesday evening, following the regular afternoon meeting.

Mrs. Fred J. Sylvada, spent the week-end at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Gove in Melrose.

Thomas McLaughlin, the barber, is ill at his home on Cottage street.

Patrick Cahill is ill with pneumonia at his home on Church street.

Miss Helen Walsh, nurse at the A. C. L. plant, is ill at her home in Beverly.

Mrs. Ralph Merrow and little son have returned to their home on Andover street from the Salem hospital.

The Friendship Circle of King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. Highland, 8 Sylvan street, Danvers, Monday evening.

Dr. Louis A. Banks, lecturer, is to deliver an address on "Prohibition" at a community mass meeting at the South church Feb. 19.

Michael Murphy and family of Summer street have been confined to their home this week with the grippe.

The condition of Mrs. William H. Fay, ill with the influenza, is reported today as much improved.

Miss Bertha Kirane is ill at her home on Park street with the grippe.

J. Henry Upton of Salem has been substituting at the South church organ the past two Sundays, as Miss Bessie Cleveland is quarantined at her home in Danvers.

The T. B. B. Club held their second meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John White on King street. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Ruth White; Vice President, Miss Martha White; Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Peters; Secretary, Miss Mildred MacKean.

LEO LEVASSEUR STOPS RUNAWAY

Leo Levasseur of Northend street, aged 20, emulated Bill Hart of the movies last Friday afternoon when he was largely responsible for bringing to a halt a runaway horse owned by Alberghini, the fruit dealer, and thereby saved from possible injury Harry Alberghini, the ten-year-old boy who had lost control of the steed. The horse was attached to a small pung and started off from Chestnut street on the run with his driver hanging to the reins and running alongside in a vain effort to halt the animal. Levasseur, who was on the sidewalk, jumped into the pung and did much to get the horse under control. John McDonald, a YD veteran and call fireman, also assisted by getting the horse by the head. The horse was brought to a standstill a few feet from the Reading tracks just as a passenger train came puffing through the square.

Lowell Street

Pauline Lawton is confined to her home with an attack of the grippe.

Norman Crane of Emerson street is down Maine on a business trip.

Mrs. Nathan Poor is confined to her home with the grippe.

Carol Bent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Bent, observed her fourth birthday last Monday by entertaining 50 of her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Poor are spending the month at St. Petersburg, Florida.

Mrs. George H. Howes's mother, who makes her home with Rev. and Mrs. Howes, sustained a fractured hip early in the week through a fall on the stairs at the Universalist parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Poeton of Basford's court are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at the J. B. Thomas hospital Thursday.

Miss Mary Boettner spent the week-end with her sister in Lynn.

Inspector Pierce and Patrolman Murphy created quite a diversion on Lowell street yesterday in their roles as dog catchers.

Misses Katherine and Frances Carroll are spending the week with their sister, Mrs. Wilder of Milford, N. H.

Councillor James T. Sullivan has sold his interest in the General Leather Waste Co. and has established a similar business under his own name.

J. M. Brown of Orchard street spent the past week at Lockport, N. Y., on business.

West Peabody

One hundred West Peabody citizens, men and women, were present at the public forum conducted by the Young Men's Social Club at the Schoolhouse hall last Friday night. Mayor Shea, Councillor Barnes and Judge Farnham were the invited guests and all pledged their support of any bills favoring that part of the city. Councillor Barnes was first introduced and he said that he wished to leave a message of loyalty with the citizens of this part of the ward. He said that all sections of his ward would be treated fairly and equally. Judge Farnham said that West Peabody may always be sure of his interest and support. Mayor Shea was delayed somewhat by a Legion meeting, but he found the West Peabody voters ready to fire all kinds of suggestions and complaints at him. The Mayor made clear the serious financial condition of the city. He pointed out that there would be very little money to spend on any improvements, but that West Peabody would receive its fair share of what money there was. The Mayor faced several red hot questions and he made many friends by the courteous and sincere manner in which he answered them. Here are some of the things that West Peabody wants, namely: A permanent playground, water system, extension of school bus line, electric lights in several places, a fire alarm that works and alarm boxes in different sections, a permanent driver, the fire apparatus kept up to the city standards, a deputy fire warden, permanent roads added each year, better care of roads, more efficient suervision of roads. Several citizens spoke in favor of the above improvements. This is the first of several meetings planned to unite West Peabody into a solid public opinion to demand a fair consideration from the city government.

At the Grange meeting tonight the feature will be a Bingville and kid's party. All Grangers are asked to come dressed either like children, farmers, or farmers' wives. Everyone is asked to bring his or her own lunch in a tin pail. There will be all kinds of exciting games played. Cy's Jazz orchestra will furnish the music for a picturesque grand march and for dancing. Prizes will be given for the best dressed couple. It is hoped that none will be such poor sports as to come without make-up of some kind. This is going to be a cracker-jack time.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stocker of Lowell street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, James Wilbur, born at the Lynn hospital, last Friday.

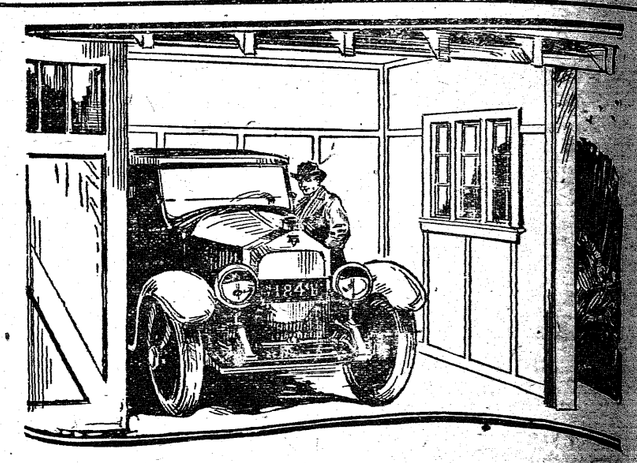
Miss Mabelle Leach of Winona street is spending a week at her home.

Interesting talks on Current Events will be given by Harry W. Rankin, Edward Croughwell and Mrs. Gus Fisher.

Mrs. George Gallop is spending the week-end with her brother at Providence, R. I.

Mrs. Edith Morgan of Manchester is spending the week with Mrs. Edward E. White on West street.

The Junior Christian Endeavor will meet Sunday at 3.30 o'clock. The leader is Miss Mildred Tenney. Her subject will be "Christian Endeavor Around the World." There is to be a surprise feature at this meeting. If you don't come you are sure to miss something.



It is said that there is a West Peabody boy on the list as a "slacker," but it seems that he was one of the first to enlist and he served six months in the army in Texas. He received an honorable discharge for disability.

One of the pleasing features at the Grange banquet was the singing of Edward Tobin, a Peabody Granger. He came as a pleasant surprise to the most of those present.

All citizens and friends are invited to celebrate the forty-first anniversary of Christian Endeavor at the West church February 5, at 7 p. m. Mrs. Roy Condon will be the leader, assisted by the orchestra and vocal soloists. The subject is "Christian Endeavor Around the World."

Daughter Born To Mrs. Fuller

Mrs. William P. Fuller, whose husband met his death seven months ago by being hurled from an automobile, gave birth to a baby daughter yesterday afternoon at her home 77 Aborn street. Two sons, William Jr., aged three and Robert, one year, comprise the family of the late special policeman. Citizens raised a benefit fund of over $1000 through the Peabody Enterprise for Mrs. Fuller at the time of her husband's death.

JUNIORS' DANCE

The junior class of P. H. S. have completed all arrangements for their class dance which is to be held at the new Keefe school on Washington street this evening. A live committee have the affairs in charge and have worked hard to complete every detail. Many novel features have been planned which are sure to add to the success of the party. There has been a large advance sale of tickets and those who have not been able to procure tickets may get them at the door. The committee is as follows: Frank Murphy, chairman, Charles Coan, Leo Buckley, Lewis Guilmet.
